PATENTS.

[From The Scientific American.]

The amount of misapplied talent engaged on inventions that can never be used is as wonderful as it is prolific. There is a ludicrous element in many of the patents, and more of the applications, which is well worth investigation; and we extract from the records of the Patent Office, an account of some of these, that show more genius than common sense, and have produced more laughter than profit:

In 1870, the owner of certain beehives, irritated by the loss of his honey by the bee moth, asked for a patent for a combined hen roost and beehive. He had noticed that the bee moth travels at night, while the busy bee works by day. His desire, therefore, was for a device that should admit the worker by day, and keep out the thief by night. This his ingenuity effected by the erection of a hen roost pivoted upon a beehive provided with gates. The bees were expected to be in their cells just before dusk; the hens lighting on their roosts were then to close the hives and keep them shut all night. The early rising of the fowls would automatically open the gates again, and return the bees—their honey all safe—to the airs of heaven and the flowers of earth. He received his patent.

Another applicant asked for a patent right for an artificial moon, that should light each town that used it without expense. His eye had often been struck by the reflection of distant windows at sunset, and how far that light traveled. He therefore proposed a balloon for each town, sufficiently large to raise a huge reflector that was to be hoisted every evening at dusk (about the time the hens shut in the bees). The reflections of the sun's rays, cast downward upon the village, was sure to light it through all the darkness of night. Fortunately for himself, this inventor presented his application through a patent attorney, who told him it was doubtful if it could be obtained.

In the fall of 1871, a gentleman, probably from California, applied for and received a patent for building houses on wheels or rollers, so that in case of an earthquake, they might roll backward or forward, but not be shaken to pieces.

Only three years have passed away since a very ingenius gentleman from the rural districts applied for a patent to prevent cows from switching their tails! He presented two models—one shaped like a bottle, around the neck of which the cow's tail was to be curled; the other consisted of a square block, with a hole through the center, wherein the tail was to be put, and then tied in a knot so the animal could not withdraw it. On the presentation of the application, the official examiner thought it could not be granted because of a similar device in "Don Quixote," where Sancho Panza, trying to sleep in the hay loft, was kept awake by the braying of his donkey below. His wakefulness gave Sancho time to reflect that, when riding the donkey, the animal switched his tail when he brayed. Descending hastily from the hay loft, the squire tied a block to the donkey's tail to prevent him from braying. But as this device originated with a Spaniard, and had never been repeated in this country, the office decided to grant the patent. Our readers will therefore perceive that they cannot tie a cow's tail to prevent it from switching without a payment of royalty to the owner of this privilege.

If "Don Quixote" anticipated one of our American patents, Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner" performed the same office for another, when he says:

"The air is cut away before,
And closes from behind."

Noticing how vessels are delayed by the necessity of pushing aside the water that obstructs their way, an ingenious gentleman asked for a patent for putting in front of the vessel a series of hollow wheels, whose blades should act as paddles. These wheels would lift the water so speedily out of the way that the vessel would have to rush in to fill the void. This motion of the vessel would give the wheels another turn, and then the wheels would once more lift away the water, and thus draw the vessel on. And so the motion of the vessel would turn the wheels, and the turn of the wheels would draw the vessel. This applicant for perpetual motion was so certain of success that, to provide for the only difficulty he could foresee—which was in the two rapid motion of the vessel, that would tear itself to pieces—he provided an anchor, with a spring cable to it, that he might check the vessel from its too rapid speed. The examiner, however, might have given his decision in the next verse of the "Ancient Mariner:"

"Fly, brother, fly! more high, more high,
Or we shall be belated:
For slow and sure that ship shall go,
Till the mariner's trance is abated."

An applicant for a patent for wooden pavements proposed to mount each block of wood on springs. He claimed that this would remove all jar in riding, and obviate the necessity of springs on carriages.

Another gentleman applied for a patent for heating canals by steam, so that boating could go on in Winter as well as in Summer. The office decided that this invention was worthy of protection and gave him his patent.

Another applied for a combination of clock and bed, so ingeniously contrived that when the clock struck, the bottom of the bed dropped out. He claimed that this plan would probably awaken the sleepers.

Speaking of combinations, he must have come from Missouri or Kansas who asked for a patent for a combination of cannon and plough. For this purpose he filed three applications, making the elongated handles of the plough hollow, so as to form two cannons. These were to be kept loaded till the guerillas were after him; the cannon were then to be fired, the guerillas shot down, and the farmer to go on his ploughing way rejoicing.

And he, too, must have come from the borders who asked for a patent of a combination of trunk and house. The trunk was made with triple sides, moving up and down. Doing duty all day in guarding clothes, when night came on, and no cabin near, the goods were to be taken out, the triple walls elevated into one, and the benighted traveler safely housed.

As early as 1718, Mr. James Pashile patented a swivel gun in England, with the motto

"Defending King George, your Country and laws,
Is defending yourselves and Protestant cause."

The novelty of this plan was that his gun fired two kinds of ball—a square ball and a round one. The round ball was to be used in all fights against Christian nations; the square balls, that would mangle the flesh more, only in contest with Turks and other heathen. This gentleman of old time must have been the ancestor of Mark Twain, of this country, who so lost his temper because the Secretary of War refused to recommend his gun for a patent. Mr. Twain's idea was, to have a swivel gun that should load at the center and should fire off at both ends. In case of a siege, he proposed to load the gun, set it a whirling, and drop it just outside the city wall. Before the balls left the mouth of the cannon they would acquire such a rotary motion that they would sweep around the walls outside of the town, killing off all the besieging host. We must acknowledge, however, that we have looked in vain, on the records of the office, for Mr. Twain's name, and hence we infer he never received his patent.

There would be much of the ludicrous, were there not more of the horrible, in the device of an American embalmer for a patent. Knowing that the office required a working model or drawing in all cases, he obtained the corpse of a little infant, embalmed it in his best manner, and forwarded it with accompanying specifications. The corpse was immediately returned to him.

One ingenious gentleman wanted the nation to let him build a water wheel that should cover the whole front of Niagara, and whose shafting and power should reach all parts of the land.

Another asked for a patent for the invention of the generation of steam by boring a hole in the ground until he reached the waters that are boiled by the internal fires of earth. He set forth among the advantages of his plan that there would be no danger of explosions, no expense for fuel, no necessity of engineers—all of which statements are undoubtedly true.

It must have been a relative of this gentleman, and one equally acquainted with the laws that govern the hidden heart of this planet, who applied for a patent for boring the earth for artesian wells for purposes of irrigation. He gravely set forth that he had made the discovery that quicksilver was heavier than common earth. He therefore proposed to start a hole, and to empty into it a little mercury. By the laws of nature, that mercury would be sure to work its way downward till it struck water, and the water would then be sure to work its way upward till it struck air.

Should it be said that such patents as this last, as that that for the prevention of cows' switching their tails, for artificial moons, for ploughs doing the work of cannon, etc., must be jokes, we can only reply that shrewd Yankees are not wont to pay thirty five dollars even for practical jokes, and that none of these designs have culminated into patents under less than that sum, and, when attorneys are employed, under double and quadruple that sum.

The Journal (Appleton's) is not large enough to contain the account of singular patents applied to domestic use. More than one application has been made for rat traps with a mirror in the center. The rat, seeing another rat of his own size and age nearer the toasted cheese than himself, would be sure to spring for it. There have been quite a number of tape-worm traps applied for, where a delicate bait is let down the throat by a delicate thread, and the hungry worm speedily drawn up. Constant application is made for patents for flying machines and for balloons. One contriver arms his balloon with cannon, another with Greek fire that should burst and explode when just over the hostile army. An English gentleman actually received a patent for putting a howitzer on horseback, and mounting the horse on springs, so that the recoil of the howitzer should not break the legs of the pony. And, as late as September last, a gentleman in this country applied for and received a patent for accelerating vegetable growth by the use of alternate strips of white and violet glass. In short, there is no idea so ludicrous, so wonderful, or even so old that some person of good sense and inevitable ability has not endeavored to throw around it, or something like it, the protecting aegis of the law of patents.

The Modocs.

That little handful of aborigines up there about Lost river are having things pretty much their own way. They don't care a cent for the military, and from all accounts, have no need to, as it occupies almost the entire time and force of the latter to keep themselves in supplies, and then with only indifferent success. The Indians captured a wagon with supplies, and escorted by seven men, killing one of the latter and also the driver and five mules. This occured a day or two before Christmas, and in sight of Captain Bernard's Company, which went to the rescue and succeeded in preventing the Modocs from getting away with any plunder except a pair of blankets. The Indians are constantly receiving reinforcements, and we are satisfied from our own knowledge of them and their country that it is going to take blood and treasure and time to conquer them. A large number of shells have been ordered up with which it is hoped some of them may be scared to death, they having no knowledge of these things, but except in the way of demoralizing, these missiles cannot do much harm in those widely extended caverns and fastnesses. It is a source of never ending regret that some of those thieving scoundrels of Reservation and Indian Agents were not the first and only victims of this outbreak, for which they are solely responsible, if reports are half true.

Weather in the East.

They appear to be having an immense amount of weather in the East, and of a very undesirable quality. December 27, the streets of New York were so effectually blockaded with snow as to enforce almost a total suspension of business. Thousands slept down town at the hotels, or in their offices, owing to inability to reach their homes. The poorer classes suffered terribly. Thousands of them that depended on their daily earnings to pay for food and lodgings, wandered about the streets, not knowing where to go. The thermometer stood 10 above zero. A similar state of affairs existed in Boston, their troubles there being intensified by several fires, one of which destroyed a small pox hospital, which throws some 300 small pox patients upon the community. Along the North Eastern Coast the thermometer ranged from six to forty degrees below zero, and no rougher weather has been experienced in the past twenty years.

Lynching in Visalia.

A noted scoundrel and man-killer in Visalia named J. C. McCrory wantonly shot to death Charles Allen, December 24th, but McCrory didn't live long himself. They threw him off a bridge an hour or two afterwards, but not wishing to drown him entirely, or lose the carcase, they first tied a strong rope to the railing and around his neck. As might have been anticipated the neck was of no practical use after that, but they saved the carsase which had caused the death of four men previous to this one.

Not to be Hanged.

Wm. Donovan, under sentence of death in San Francisco, has been twice reprieved and the day three times set when he was to die, the last being the 27th of last month. He had given up every particle of hope in this life, and was perfectly reconciled and even anxious to go hence, when at the last moment Gov. Booth commuted his sentence to imprisonment during life. It was hardly right to disappoint as cold blooded a murderer as he appears to have been in that way.

In Very Bad Luck.

Barnum, the great American showman, is again in extensive bad luck For the third time his entire museum, circus and menagerie establishment has been destroyed by fire. This last calamity occurred on the 26th ultimo. Everything was burned, animals and all, except two elephants, a camel and a few horses, so sudden and rapid was the progress of the flames.

Storm in Virginia City.

Virginia City, Nevada, was visited by a very severe wind storm on the 22d ultimo. It knocked wooden buildings, and light structures generally, about at a fearful rate.

Fire.

A disastrous fire occurred in Portland, Oregon, December 23, which destroyed $350,000 worth of property.

THE NEXT CHAPTER.

The question at issue before the people of this county presents some remarkable, as well as some very common features. Among the latter, there is nothing remarkable, or on general principles, wrong or unduly selfish, in the fact that the people of a certain locality are striving to attain a certain object for their own gain. That is a mere matter of fact business transaction and, except for a few attending conditions not necessary now to specify, entirely laudable and legitimate.

The most curious feature consists in the apparent fact that the people, to whose every interest and right this claim is especially inimical, should be the first to want to grant it. The one people do not, of course, want to do this thing merely out of love or respect to or for the other, because there is little or none of either entertained; nor is it proffered as a right of which other people have selfishly and unjustly deprived the second parties. It is perfectly natural to suppose that, in this instance, those people of Bishop Creek who are anxious to award this bone of contention to our friends below here, have some hope of bettering the fortunes of their own locality by so doing. We don't really suppose there is a single man, woman or scarcely a child of ordinary intelligence, resident there but knows that, temporarily at least, they must and will jointly and indvidually be worsted thereby. The full extent of this injury is probably not fairly appreciated by any. Aside from the every day outlay both in time and money involved in the extra travel, and the no less inevitable great increase in taxation, it must be accepted as a fixed fact that property values will decrease in exactly the same ratio. Taking all the contingent extra outlays together and we believe that $50 a year would be a moderate estimate of the damage that will have to be borne by every property holder there, and all others throughout the county, in proportion. Now, is it not self-evident that this sum taken from the yearly proceeds of a farm or other property, materially affects its value? It matters but little whether the figure submitted is strictly correct or not, the main fact of a considerable useless expense and loss, is beyond dispute. Candidly, we believe the aggregate loss will amount in each case to fully that sum, not for one year only but many years. Except when as a mere matter of justice, the permanent settlers of a combined agricultural and mining county, should never give up any advantage of this kind to which they are justly entitled in favor of the more transient representatives of the mining interest, though that is the chief. We do not wish to deprive the latter of any vested right or convenience, but we wish to impress this fact upon all interested: That the burden of maintaining the county government falls, in point of individual expense, in undue proportion upon the agricultural portion. This is brought about in more ways than one; first, from the very nature of the case, by far the greater number of criminal cases coming up for expensive judicial investigation must come from the mining population, while, from the same cause—its more unsettled character mainly—the number eligible or subject to jury duty is comparatively much smaller, even among an equal number of voting citizens. The reasons for this are too obvious to need additional explanation. It is quite true that perhaps full two-thirds of the jury duty of this and all similarly situated counties devoles upon one of the two main divisions of its inhabitants, but not entirely without recompense in other ways besides the fact that without the mining division, there would be but little or no need of the other, while the reverse rule will not hold good. We have reason to believe that a goodly number of the latter did hope to escape this share of this duty, without forfeiting corresponding advantages, through a change of boundaries; but if that hope ever did exist in other than the breast of the would-be Moses of whom it was delivered, it had better be dismissed before it measurably swamps a whole community, as we concientiously believe it would do. But of this more hereafter.

If the agricultural community referred to persists, through willful misrepresentations and vain counsel, in giving up an important and rightful advantage to a mining community, which has never even so much as asked for it, they are giving up ground they can probably never recover. The balance of power must inevitably revert to the mining interest and as a probable sequence, the "bone," once started, will never be located any nearer those who are now pushing it away from them, and have such evident need of having it nearest at hand. "A bird in hand is worth two in the bush," as these individuals will find to their cost when they let go of the one in hand in the vain hope of securing even one of the two, and if perchance successful after long continued, costly effort, which will certainly be required, they will surely find it a most shabby bird, indeed.

But it appears that the idea of attempting to catch either one of these birds—the organization of a new county, or a return to the old love—if such was ever seriously entertained, has been practically abandoned as foolish and absurd. It served, for a time, to gull a few sensible men into countenancing it until they fairly scanned the chances and prospects. The Lone Pine emissaries could make no definite promise or offer any satisfactory guarantee of co-operation by any parties any more responsible than they themselves, which, in point of fact, could not be any guarantee at all. They dared not make definite offers of this kind any more than to offer, direct, town lots for votes, because either would be a positive violation of the present election law, and in any case, the promise of co-operation in practically trying to ruin the county by dismembering it, was absolutely certain to be repudiated by almost every property holder, not only throughout the southern end of the county generally, but of Lone Pine itself. In the latter there might be some insignificant, certainly no respectable exceptions, for all who are capable of adding two and two could see that the advantage of possessing the county seat in the then corner of a small fifteenth rate county, encumbered with its share of a heavy present, and then doubly increased debt and current expenses would more than offset every anticipated advantage, anyhow to the great majority of the residents of a county seat of such uncertain tenure. A half a dozen lots in such a place, their value contingent upon the advantage of being in the county capital, would hardly pay anyone to neglect his plowing to canvass for that result more than one day. But be that as it may, none of the heavy tax payers in that section or elsewhere, will ever for a moment acknowledge the right of such irresponsible agents to pledge them to anything whatever, much less to such an outrageous grab as this. The sensible portion of those who have been approached (though only indirectly for reasons already given) with this bait, understand its tinselled character too well to nibble even to accommodate "a hospitable and much respected neighbor." The idea that any man possessed of the most ordinary business capacity, agreeing to surrender an important present advantage and right, on the strength of vague and entirely unreliable promises of an uncertain return hereafter, looks preposterous. It must strike even the later Moses himself that if the perfection of his grand scheme is at all dependent upon this aid, now only promised by implication, that it is easier to secure it in advance, than when he has surrendered his only means of commanding it. If it can't be secured in advance while there is an incentive it most assuredly cannot when the only incentive is removed, which removal he is so assidiously trying to effect.

If, however, this is not his real object, and the one he has promulgated is the true one, viz., a determination to injure others out of sheer spite or with just cause, it matters not which, then he proposes to act on a motive too mean for any decent person knowingly to countenance, even if were not to punish the innocent as well as the guilty, which it will do and in the aggregate a hundred times the most. As a class the people of Independence and vicinity will be less affected, and with very few exceptions, have absolutely less need to care and do care less about it than many of those who appear to be desirous of using over them a whip they think they hold, though knowing the force of the blow must fall in their own faces. The people of Bishop Creek, all of whom we claim, almost without exceptions, as the best friends of this journal, have just cause of complaint on various counts, among the rest, in having but one voice in county affairs; but is it decent or fair to charge the cause of these upon a people, not one in twenty of whom even know of their existence? If there is any wrong of this kind for which this place is responsible don't strike before sounding your rattles. As a rule the bread and butter question absorbs quite as much of the attention of the people of this place as it does with those of any other, and to an extent that gives them no time to hunt up possible grievances of others, altogether too modest or too sulky, to make them known, much less to right wrongs for the existence of which they are no more responsible or capable of righting than the poor suffering souls themselves. It has precisely the voice and power in the affairs of the whole community as that one which now complains and no more. Of the four principle precincts this was the only one that delivered a vote not wholly partial to its own candidates, if we make a partial exception in favor of, or account of one certain Benedict Arnold.

But we pass these matters for the present, but will add a word in regard to our position. We are not working now, nor never have worked exclusively in the interest of the place in which our fortunes are seemingly bound up, to the extent of a word or sentiment, except only as a part of the whole, certainly not in the prejudice of any other. So far as any marked appreciation in word or deed is concerned we owe it nothing whatever any more than any of the others. But in the pending issue we believe its interests to be identical with those of the entire county, and believing it, shall stand up for it to "the bitter end." So far as the issue itself is concerned, considered only in its personal bearings upon ourself, an adverse result would be accepted almost with pleasure—just why and wherefore we may hereafter explain.

The Storm on this Coast.

The late storm has extended throughout the entire length and breadth of this State and Nevada, and far away to the north and eastward. It was one of the finest and most acceptable storms this coast has experienced in many years, and gives good promise of another plenteous harvest every where.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT of the County Court of the county of Inyo, State of California, in the case of the People of the State of California against Peter Peerson, Justice of the Peace of Third Township in said county of Inyo, upon a judgment rendered in said County Court in Chambers on the 23d day of December, A. D. 1872, for the sum of Fifty Dollars fine, and Forty-three 75 100 Dollars cost of suit besides accruing costs, duly attested the 28th day of December, A. D. 1872, and to me directed and delivered, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said defendant Peter Peerson, J. P., in and to the following described real estate, to-wit: A certain piece of land situated near the town of Lone Pine, and lying on the north side of John Lucas' ranch, being the same land that was deeded by Wm. L. Moore to H. C. Hart and the place where the said Peter Peerson now lives, together with all the improvements and appurtenances thereunto belonging, all of which is situated in the county of Inyo, State of California. Notice is hereby given that on MONDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF JANUARY, A. D. 1873, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., in front of the Sheriff's office (there being no Court House), in the town of Independence, county of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendant Peter Peerson, J. P., in and to the above described real property, or so much thereof as will be sufficient to satisfy the judgment and all costs in this action, to the highest and best bidder for cash in hand.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Cash on Hand.

Sheriff Mulkey paid into the County Treasury yesterday the sum of $22,084 of tax money collected. During the afternoon he received $1,500 additional, leaving about $6,200 delinquent and yet to be collected. During the past ten months Mr. Mulkey has collected and paid to the Treasurer, from taxes and licenses, some $35,900. Treasurer Isaacs will have a long list of "Warrants Payable" as soon as the sum can be apportioned to the respective funds, and their payment ought to somewhat relieve the present financial stress. It certainly would if the scrip still remained in the hands of the many original owners, instead of being held by a few speculators. Any man who shall, in the face of all the facts and figures, hereafter dispose of scrip for less than eighty cents should be ostracised. Amen. And if the county seat agitation is dropped another fiscal year will see our county paper go to par, taxes reduced one-half in consequence, and everybody prosperous. Otherwise, otherwise. You pays your money and takes your choice.

A New Year's Ball.

The very best and most enjoyable dance of the season took place in Broder's new building, on New Year's eve. It was rather an impromptu affair, but could not have been better attended or more generally enjoyed if it had been in contemplation for a month previous. To Mr. T. F. A. Connelly, we believe, is chiefly entitled the credit of getting it up. Mr. Thompson, of the Blaney House, who thoroughly understands the difficult art of keeping a hotel, furnished general accommodations and a first rate collation for some sixty or eighty persons, and for various reasons he and his estimable lady are worthy of the highest praise. There were a great many fine looking ladies in attendance, but having a wholesome fear of consequences (our own much the better half being present), we daren't particularize. The music, piano, violin and flute, was excellent.

A Home Industry.

We are please to note the existence, or recent adoption rather, of a new industry, which to a considerable extent will retain at home money that has hitherto gone to the benefit of San Francisco. This is in the article of salt, which comes from the Rhodes marsh, a few miles north of Columbus, from which point all requisite quantities can be brought as back loads by Bishop Creek teams seeking at that town a market for farm produce. The salt is of a very superior quality, and can be furnished here at a less cost than the imported article. The distance over which it is hauled to this point is about 145 miles. Mr. W. G. Markley, at Bishop Creek, keeps quantities of it on hand for sale.

New Under Sheriff.

W. L. Moore, alias "Dad," has resigned his position as Under Sheriff, and his brother, J. J. Moore, takes his place. Dad has proved himself as an efficient and capable officer as this county ever had in that position, but we have no doubt the administration of his successor will prove just as satisfactory, and on these grounds there will be nothing to regret in the change, which was made necessary on account of having to look after a considerable amount of personal property requiring the immediate and undivided attention of the retiring officer.

A Fast Freight.

We have it from quite a reliable source that the Kern & Inyo Forwarding Company are now stocking the road hence to Bakersfield for a fast freight line, which is to be run day and night on fast time. We much hope this report will prove true, for such a line once fairly established will be of the greatest benefit to this entire section, and without doubt lucrative to the enterprising owners.

Awaiting Shipment.

There are now 18,000 bars of bullion lying at Cerro Gordo, Swansea and Cartago, awaiting shipment. Of this number some 12,000 have been shipped across the lake per steamer to Cartago. The estimated value of this bullion is $600,000—which is a large sum to be kept in idleness. A railroad is the only thing that will ever correct these matters.

Overpaid Taxes.

Parties who are entitled to reimbursement for overpaid taxes will observe by a notice from the County Treasurer, in this issue, that they must send up their tax receipts, in order that the amounts so returned may be deducted from the sum called for by the receipt. The amount to be refunded, we may remark, is fifty cents on each three dollars paid the present year under the old law.

Water Reservoirs.

Messrs. Beaudry & Belshaw have on the way from Los Angeles some 28,000 feet of redwood lumber, which is to be used in the construction of additional water tanks about their furnaces in Cerro Gordo. We are not advised of their programme in regard to increasing the present supply of water itself, for which the tanks heretofore in use have been quite sufficient.

De Fust Startin'.

The stone foundation for the new Court House is being laid, a good portion being already completed.

Mineral Surveyor.

Parties interested in mines throughout this section, and Lida District in particular, will note the fact that Mr. J. B. Hiskey (whose good traits of character outnumber his bad ones by several) has received the appointments of U. S. Deputy Mineral Surveyor and Deputy County Surveyor of Esmeralda county, Nev. This can not fail to prove a great convenience to those wishing to obtain patents. He has (and sabes how to use) a very valuable and complete set of instruments, including those for determining longitudes, latitudes and altitudes, and if you've got ore to sell he will let you into a few facts concerning the platitudes of mineralitudes.

A New Incorporation.

The certificate of incorporation of the Boushey Silver Mining Company was filed in the Recorder's office January 2. It sets forth that the object of the corporation is to carry on the business of mining in all its branches in Cerro Gordo Mining District, County of Inyo, State of California, and to purchase and sell mines and other properties. Capital, $5,000,000, divided into 50,000 shares of $100 each. Trustees, S. A. Raymond, P. C. Lander, Thomas Rogers and P. J. Lavlin. Secretary, J. M. Case. Place of business, San Francisco.

What Jeems Has to Say.

We advise everybody to closely scan what Jeems Perham has to say, over the firm name of J. S. Rothschild & Co. We will indorse this Jeems for truthfulness a long ways ahead of that Truthful James Bret Harte tells about. This one says he will sell goods "shust as sheap" as anybody, and we haven't the least doubt about it.

Seth's Position.

S. G. Sneden very succinctly defines his present position on the credit system, in the same column wherein he tells of his heavy stock of well assorted goods. There is never a doubt but what his plan is much the best and cheapest for all concerned. See what he has to say about it.

Change of Time.

In order to correspond with the new programme or change of time on Wilsons Aurora and Carson stage line, Ullrick's stages will hereafter, until further notice, depart from this place at noon each Monday and Thursday. Arrives here on Sundays and Wednesdays, the same as heretofore.

In Reply.

We are indebted to Mr. T. McDonough, of Cerro Gordo, for a satisfactory reply to the notice of "Information Wanted" which appeared in our issue of last week. The desired information will be communicated to the parties interested.

Returned.

Mr. Isaac Harris arrived home last evening from a several weeks' purchasing expedition in San Francisco. Although glad to get back, he looks none the worse for having passed the holiday times at the bay.

CHRISTMAS AT BISHOP.

BISHOP CREEK, Dec. 26, 1872.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Here we arrived in time for the holidays, and for a new place and a country village, I never saw a better time than the good people of this valley enjoyed. The "burg" has wonderfully improved of late, and well deserves a say in county affairs; it seems determined to be a town in spite of all the opposition and oppression brought to bear upon it. Mr. Sneden has greatly enlarged and improved his buildings, and has as fine a stock of goods on hand as the county can boast of, all of the best quality and a general assortment. Mr. Sneden's saloon is run by the popular saloon man, Jack Herton, and is a first class establishment. "Pap" Kingsley has a fine, new building, well finished and furnished, in which he dispenses "pizen" in a first class way. The church is a fine looking building on the outside, but owing to a lack of lumber, means or energy (I know not which), it is unfinished inside; but as soon as lumber can be had I am told they calculate to complete it and place thereon a bell, with which to "wake up the natives." The new shool house is receiving the finishing touches; it is a No. 1 building, and shows plainly that the workmen are first class. The desks and seats will soon arrive from San Francisco; then, with their efficient teacher, Mr. Jackson, they bid fair for a "first chop" school, as I am told they have funds sufficient to run a school steadily for two years.

CHRISTMAS

Was a drizzly, frizzly grizzly day, but cleared off in the evening and things got pleasant, and it seemed as if all, both great and small, turned out to enjoy a regular, old-fashioned Christmas tree party, and a jolly old time they had. Mrs. L. Hutchison, Mrs. Vaugn and Mrs. Smith was the committee of arrangements, and the world can't produce three women better suited to the task than they. Nearly $100 was raised by donation, with which beautiful toys were purchased for all the children, and I am told not one was missed—remarkable for so large a scope of country. These toys were tastefully arranged upon two beautiful young pine trees, and from the "snow capped peaks" of the Sierras came old Santa Claus, in his usual cheerful, jolly, noisy way—but owing to there being no snow in the valley he had to leave sleigh and furs behind, dress lightly and come on horseback. Suffice it to say, however, it was the very best thing of the kind I have seen for years.

The ball I have no space or time to speak of, but "they say" it was the best ever enjoyed on the river. Forty-eight tickets were sold, and a magna-bonum supper devoured by 125 persons. Yours,

YOITING.

Al. Nesbith Killed.

BENTON, Dec. 31, 1872.

MESSRS. EDITORS: Our quiet hamlet was the scene of something of a tragedy on the evening the 27th instant. One Al. Nesmith, imbibing during the day too much of what Lo calls "fire-water," got on the war-path, threatening the lives of several of our citizens. He wended his way to Partzwick in the evening, and shortly after arriving there opened the hotel door and fell dead on the floor. The Coroner, A. B. Williams, was immediately notified, who summoned a jury, whose verdict was that the deceased came to his death by gun shot wounds, by some party to them unknown. The verdict of the community is, "Well done!"

OBSERVER.

[Al. Nesbith, or Nesmith, will be remembered as having made himself prominent in the pursuit and capture of some of the Nevada convicts, and took the boy murderer—Roberts—back to Carson. A deformity gave him the soubriquet of "Broken-nosed Al." He formerly resided in Gold Hill, and has generally been known as a disreputable character.—EDS. INDEPENDENT.]

A Miner's Idea of What's Right.

A mining gentleman who, so far as we know, never performed jury duty in the county, and until he accumulates enough property to be assessed, never will, thinks that as a matter of right and equity the seat of justice of this county ought to be much nearer the mines. Cause why, "the people of Bishop Creek have their own horses and feed, and it don't cost 'em so much to attend Court as it does a miner, who has to pay stage fare." However, his views correspond with those expressed by a Bishop Creeker or two, who think it won't cost them any more to go to Lone Pine than to this wretched place, even if the former is a day's travel or so further, "because we have our own horses." Of course that makes it much cheaper than riding in the stage, even if it does treble the time in going and coming, besides maintaining the said horses in the "city" while dancing attendance at Court for a week or two. For the same reason it will be a great convenience to combine business with pleasure, by taking loaded teams to that vast mart when going in obedience to a Court summons. For number one fools the foregoing views are quite creditable.

His Views.

A somewhat aged gentleman who tugs away at the Lone Pine end of the "bone" with great vigor, very gravely and earnestly asserts that when the said bone is fairly anchored "where it rightfully belongs," the people will then make the officials do the clean thing, and won't allow any more "ring" stealing at all; not at all! If it can't be prevented any other way they will arise as one man and form "Vigilante Committees and clean 'em out like a flash." They "won't allow rascals of any sort to dwell within their delectable purlieus." These are not the exact words of the venerable tugger, but they give the exact substance, and no doubt this announcement will fall like a wet pair of heavy Mission blankets upon the ears of our thieving "rings," members of the legal fraternity and others who remember how the rascally Celestial was dragged to pieces some years since, and, more recently, the lofty, law-sustaining edicts of the Court of Last Resort.

County Court.

The County Court will meet on Monday next, when will be heard the case of the District Attorney against the Supervisors and the white race in general.

Death of a King.

The death of the King of the Sandwich Island, Kamehameha V., is announced. Being the last of his family by direct descent, the Hawaiian throne is left vacant. It is very probable a republican form of government will be adopted.

Scientific American,

FOR 1873.

BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED.

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, NOW IN ITS 28th year, enjoys the widest circulation of any analagous periodical in the world.

Its contents embrace the latest and most interesting information pertaining to the Industrial, Mechanical and Scientific Progress of the World; Descriptions, with Beautiful Engravings, of New Inventions, New Implements, New Processes, and Improved Industries of all kinds; Useful Notes, Facts, Recipes, Suggestions and Advice, by Practical Writers, for Workmen and Employers, in all the various Arts.

Descriptions of Improvements, Discoveries and Important Works pertaining to Civil and Mechanical Engineering, Milling, Mining and Metallurgy; Records of the latest progress in the Applications of Steam, Steam Engineering, Railways, Shipbuilding, Navigation, Telegraphy, Telegraph Engineering, Electricity, Magnetism, Light and Heat.

The Latest Discoveries in Photography, Chemistry, New and Useful Applications of Chemistry in the Arts and in Domestic or Household Economy.

The Latest Information pertaining to Technology, Microscopy, Mathematics, Astronomy, Geography, Meteorology, Mineralogy, Geology, Zoology, Botany, Horticulture, Agriculture, Architecture, Rural Economy, Household Economy, Food, Lightning, Heating, Ventillation and Health.

In short the whole range of the Sciences and Practical Arts are embraced within the scope of The Scientific American. No person who desires to be intelligently informed can afford to be without this paper.

Farmers, Mechanics, Engineers, Inventors, Manufacturers, Chemists, Lovers of Science, Teachers, Clergymen, Lawyers and People of all Professions will find The Scientific American to be of great value. It should have a place in every Family, Library, Study, Office and Counting Room; in every Reading Room, College, Academy or School.

Published weekly, Splendidly Illustrated, only $3 a year. The Yearly Numbers of The Scientific American make two splendid volumes of nearly one thousand pages, equivalent in contents to Four Thousand Ordinary Book Pages. An Official List of all Patents issued is published weekly.

Specimen copies sent free. Address the publishers, MUNN & CO., 37 Park Row, New York; or subscriptions will be received at THE INYO INDEPENDENT office.

PATENTS. In connection with The Scientific American, Messrs. Munn & Co. are Solicitors of American and Foreign Patents; have had over 25 years' experience, and have the largest establishment in the World. If you have made an invention, write them a letter and send them a sketch; they will promptly inform you, free of charge, whether your device is new and patentable. They will also send you, FREE OF CHARGE, a copy of the Patent Laws in full, with instructions how to obtain a patent. Address Munn & Co., 37 Park Row, New York.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a sincere effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates, for 1873, will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparallelled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873.

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conducters to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & CO.

What a Drink Costs.

The New York World has been figuring up the cost of an occasional drink, and says: Once in a while a pensive man my be heard to say, "I wish I had all the money back that I have spent for drink for the last ten years." No man in twenty who retrospectively gazing gives utterence to the wish, has in his mind an approximating estimate of the amount which a person of even moderate bibulous propensities may spend upon drink in the space of ten years. Leaving wines and expensive drinks out of the question, let us see what a plain cocktailist, or modest imbiber of old rye is likely to disburse on his favorite refreshment in the course of a year. Take a very moderate man, for example. Assume that he drinks every day four glasses of whisky at fifteen cents. That amounts to sixty cents a day, which makes four dollars and twenty cents a week—multiply by four and you have $16 80 cents a mouth, which comes to $201 60 a year. Thus, if a man who has gone on at this rate for ten years, had all his liquor money back, his pockets would be inflated to the tune of $2,016. This is only a small beer calculation, but think of those who spend five times that sum on liquors, and remember that their name is legion.

A Sharp Witness.

At a recent trial the counsel for the prosecution, after severely cross-examining a witness, suddenly put on a look of severity, and exclaimed: "Now, sir, was not an effort made to induce you to tell a different story?" "A different story from what I have told, do you mean?" "That's what I mean." "Yes, sir; several persons have tried to get me to tell a different story from what I have told, but they couldn't." "Now, sir, upon your oath, I wish to know who those persons are." "Well, you've tried about as hard as any of them." He was questioned no further on that point.

The Result.

Mrs. Green, of Davenport, assisted the kitchen fire with the kerosene can. The heavy rain kept a good many people from attending the funeral.

The Charlotte, North Carolina, Observer says that during the recent cold spell a little girl was walking along the street, half blubbering, and complaining that she had the "headache in her toes."

—A young sailor boy at Newport saved two gentlemen from drowning, last week, and was offered a glass of beer as his reward. Thinking the reward greatly in excess of the service rendered humanity, he declined.

—There were two astonished families at Bangor, Maine, on Thanksgiving morning. The milkman delivered a can of pure milk to one and pure water to the other, by reason of a mistake in filling the cans.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

The War.

The latest news from the seat of war at Lost river, is to the effect that the Indians are running off vast numbers of horses and cattle. The troops expected to make a grand onslaught on Capt. Jack's braves some time between the 6th and 10th of the present month, or as soon as two howitzers, expected from Fort Vancouver, were received. The soldiers were being very generally censured for their inactivity. Capt. Jack says that he does not want to war against the whites, but would rather die fighting for his rights than to be starved to death on the Reservation. He has a mortal dread of those thieving agents, and well he may. All he wants is to have a small lot of ground, say 3,000 acres, set apart for the use of his tribe out of the ground they have always considered as their own, and they can live there as heretofore in harmony with the whites. Gov. Booth has telegraphed to Washington to that effect, and also asking a reconsideration of the peremptory order requiring them to live on the regular reservation. It is likely, however, that this small band will have to be further reduced by powder and lead before any satisfactory arrangements can be made now.

The Sacramento Record.

The city of Sacramento will certainly take the palm from any other in the United States, hardly excepting New York, for newspapers enterprise. The Weekly Record of January 1st comes out with no less than 140 columns of reading matter, statistical, and of great value for future reference. The Record is unquestionably assuming its proper place throughout this coast as one of its most reliable and enterprising papers, notwithstanding a certain degree of prejudice it had to encounter from its assumed or real connection with an overpowering corporation.

Stokes Convicted.

Contrary to general expectation or precedent, the jury in the Stokes trial brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The prisoner was most terribly affected when the verdict was announced and his sister, who was present, even more so. The chances are, however, that he, with his wealth and influential friends, will manage by delays to evade the extreme penalty of the law.

Fatal Snow Slide.

A terrible snow slide occurred at Little Cottonwood, Utah, on the 26th ultimo. The avalanche was some 600 feet wide and 12 feet deep. It carried eight teams, drivers and animals, a distance of 1,500 feet. Three of the teamsters were taken out alive, but some twelve men are yet missing, with but small hope of recovering their bodies before Spring. The teams were hauling ore from the adjacent mines.

Rather Hefty.

The San Francisco Chronicle of the 4th instant publishes an item to the effect that the western part of Washington Territory has 12,000 square miles of timber lands, which will average thirty million feet of timber to the acre. If The Chronicle compositor will look at it in the right light, he will see that it is a good many feet for one acre to produce.

The Visalia Narrow-Gauge.

Some $30,000 additional stock was subscribed to this road at a meeting in Visalia on the 2d instant. The meeting was large and enthusiastic, and it is now considered a certainty that the road will be built. We sincerely hope so, for we believe the interests of this county are very closely identified with that undertaking.

Will Retire.

It is reported that the determination of Secretary Fish to leave the Cabinet is unalterable, and that the President has tendered the position to W. M. Evarts.

Narrow-Gauge Railroads.

Narrow-gauge railroads will be found of far greater importance to the people of California when constructed than our citizens generally imagine. For instance, the expenses of a narrow-guage road will be so light, that two or three trains may be run each day instead of a single train as on the most of our railroads at the present time. Narrow-guage railroads will not only give the people double the number of trains per day, but freight and passage can easily be reduced fifty per cent. at least, from present charges.—S. F. Call.

Proper Talk.

"Mam, mam," said a little boy excitedly to his mother, "there's a flog in the well." "Madam," remonstrated a stranger present, "why didn't you teach your child to speak *fl*opper?" "Now,' returned the old lady, "you've fixed it.'

THE INJUNCTION SUIT.

Inyo County vs. the Board of Supervisors, Before Judge Hannah, of the County Court, in Chambers.

As the above entitled action, in possible results, was probably the most important that has yet been heard in the county, we reproduce the principa portion of the arguments on both sides, but more briefly as a matter of necessity.

Mr. Laspeyre, for the defense, opened the case, and made a very effective speech, covering several of the principal points afterwards more elaborately set forth by his colleague, and senior counsel in the case, Mr. Reddy. As a lawyer and speaker Mr. Laspeyre acquitted himself very well, indeed.

The District Attorney, E. H. Van Decar, then made a few remarks by way of introducing the plaintiff's side of the case, which he brings in his official capacity, and then subsided. Mr. Miller, his colleague and chief manager for plaintiff, then took the floor. In response to a query by the opposing counsel, he gave notice that he neither expected or would receive a dollar from the county in payment for his services in this action. He then reviewed at length the cited authorities submitted by the other side, and, considering the self-evident weakness of his case, gave his interpretation of the meaning of the authorities cited with a good deal of ingeniousness, not to say ability, as a pleader. He insisted that the action had been properly brought, because the District Attorney was the proper guardian of the legal rights of the people, no matter by whom threatened or endangered, and as the Board of Supervisors had transcended their legal rights as officers in the manner and amount of the contracts with Chaquette, they were the only proper defendants in this suit for a simple injunction; that, if granted, as it should be, by reason of their inability to respond in the laige amount of damages that was certain to be entailed upon the county if the original contracts was declared void, he (plaintiff) had a perfect right to amend his complaint and make the contractor a defendant in the action, when, or before, the case came up for adjudication in the District Court; that for reasons clearly set forth in the complaint, the contract had been awarded contrary to the provisions of the statute, and that His Honor, Judge Hannah, having full jurisdiction of the case, should grant this injunction, fix the amount of the injunction bond required from the county, which would be forthcoming, and which, from the very nature of the case, should be but small, as no great amount of damage was possible under the circumstances. If this was not done the county would be defrauded out of the large sum of $35,000, or, one bridge having been completed and accepted, costing over $7,000, he was willing to deduct from the total sum of the contracts, leaving $28,000 that would "go up the flume" unless these works were at once stopped, and the whole thing entered into de novo, and according to law; that the county had no resource, the official bond of the Supervisors being but $6,000 in the aggregate, while the contracts being void, the bondsmen of the contractors would, of course, be relieved from their obligations; that the defendants had interposed no proofs or affidavits of any sort, against the plaintiffs sworn complaint in detail (also accompanied by a copy of each of the contracts in question) except the affidavit of the County Clerk, which was of a negative character, and merely to the effect that the Board had never, to his knowledge authorized the District Attorney to bring this or any suit in the name of the county during the past year, either againt themselves or others; that as a matter of course they never would authorize any such actions themselves, being defendants, "so long as any of us had hair on our heads."

The authorities Mr. Miller quoted in support of his views were, so far as we remember, precisely the same that were offered on the other side, to which we shall refer in Mr. Reddy's arguments. It is impossible for us to give even a synopsis of all or one-half that was said on either side, as Mr. Miller talked for four hours and Mr. Reddy nearly as long, their remarks covering the case in all its phases, aside from its strictly legal bearings. We believe that we have given the salient points of Mr. Miller's views and aims, other, or in addition to the plain inference of the complaint, which we have already published.

We shall merely present the main points of Mr. Reddy's able argument, with citations of the supporting authorities, but before doing so will say that it is a matter of wonderment to all who heard this and other arguments at the time, how any reasonable man or lawyer could have ever expected any other than a decision in favor of the defendants. Knowing, as we did, the object sought in bringing the suit, we have refrained from any previous expression of opinion regarding it, but now we may be allowed to do so, adding a word of advice to those who foot the bills for "plaintiff," in the certainty that there is no just grounds for attributing it to mere interested motives. It is said this case is to be appealed. It is wasting both time and money to do so, if our candid opinion, based on a pretty full knowledge of the facts, is any proof whatever. But, if even Judge Hannah's judgment should be reversed, which is hardly possible in this case, it cannot be compassed in time to accomplish the desired result, viz.: to prevent the construction of the Court House and remaining bridges, and in either case it involves a considerable expense to both individuals and the county, and in any contingency, a very heavy bill of damages against the latter, with no compensation whatever.

It will not only be a damage generally, but to the cause which gives it life—to which we would not object; but we do object to any further action in the name of the people, or in having the prestige of the District Attorney's office used in making us appear ridiculous. In short, it is both foolish and wrong to pursue this system any further, and besides that, it places the fair-dealing portion of the people of Lone Pine in a false position as regards this action, inasmuch as they are amenable to the charge, in common with its active supporters, of having waited until secure of their own particular object, to-wit: the Lone Pine bridge, before they attempted to deprive others of a similar right, through this mere technicality. We have reason to believe that a good many of them objected to instituting this suit on these grounds, if no other, but it was done, and was a most miserable failure, both as a make-weight in the pending issue, and as a stepping stone in a professional point of view. The District Attorney has earned for himself a most unenviable reputation in matters of this kind, and if possessed of as much proper self-respect as he ought to have, would vacate a position that he ought to know he is not competent to fill. But passing this we will give the main points of Mr. Reddy's able argument:

That the names of the members of the Board after the 1st of December, 1872, are not given; it is essential that service should be made upon the present Board, the Court not being presumed to know that it is the same as the one previous to that date (Barbour on Actions, 106); the District Attorney can not bring an action of this character without authority from the Board (Hittell, Title District Attorney, Sec. 7.) Only a certain class of actions (this not being included) can be brought by District Attorney (Hittell, 6977.) By permitting him to make the Board defendants, he virtually obtains control of the affairs of the county; he is not the heir of their authority if incapacitated from any cause, and can in no case usurp their legal powers, as now attempted. This injunction can not be granted, because it would suspend the general and ordinary business of the county, which is a corporation (Practice Act, Sec. 117, 15th Cal., 33.) It is their legal duty, by the act creating Boards of Supervisors for the several counties, to cause to be erected Court House, jail, bridges, etc., and to provide the means with which to govern, and without such means the corporation they represent is impotent. To interfere with these rights is to interfere with the general and ordinary business of the county, to which these structures are vitally essential. The Board can not, by their oaths of office, be in any manner, directly or indirectly interested in any contract for the erection of public buildings without violating their oath and committing a crime. As there is no allegation of fraud in this case, they should control it the same as any other. They can not without committing a misdemeanor by presumption of law, as the custodians of the county's interest, place themselves or be placed antagonistic thereto. The District Attorney cannot in this manner, sever the position of agent and principal, except by allegation of fraud or crime committed by the said agents. The parties interested in this should be Inyo county on the one side and the contractor, E. Chaquette, on the other. As the latter is not made a party, any order affecting his rights in the premises would be coram non judicie, and void (Barbour, 185, 449, 452, 456, 12th Cal., 105; Cal. Practice Act, sec. 14.) The Supervisors are mere agents, and it is an error to make them defendants. (Barbour, 526, 527.) Complaint does not state facts sufficient to warrant an injunction; does not show how the county can be injured, having the completed works to show for the money expended; does not allege that the character of the structures or value will be less than the contract requirement or price; no attempt whatever is made to show that the county will suffer injury in any manner, and without this being satisfactorily shown no injunction can be granted. An irreparable injury—something disastrous to the rights of the plaintiff—must be shown. A mere technicality is not sufficient; there is no room for the interposition of equitable remedies.

The speaker contended that a large amount of damage must entail upon an innocent party, the contractor, who has proceeded in good faith in procuring all necessary materials and in the active prosecution of the work; that the plain terms of the contract prevented him from drawing a dollar of the money in payment until the work was executed; that if the Board are made party defendants to the action, admitting the injunction granted, who were to execute a legal injunction bond in the name of the county? That the amount of money to be used upon these structures was not limited by a special appropriation; that an advertisement in detail meant only the general character of the structure, its dimensions, number of rooms, finish, etc., and not the number or size of the timbers, boards, nails, etc., as claimed in effect. In short, that the new statute upon which this action was based had been complied with in its literal terms, and that the contrary, as a legal proposition, was not worth a moment's consideration by this Court, and that the said action was brought on mere technical grounds for sinister motives only; further, that it was a maxim of law that no action of this kind can be maintained unless all the parties interested are made parties thereto, or a contract nullified where it is impossible to place the parties in statu quo; that no corporation has a right to prove its own negligence or wilful dereliction to defraud innocent persons out of their labor, property or money; and, to sum up, that the District Attorney was a mere cat's paw in the hands of these parties, and a traitor to the trust imposed upon him by the people of this county. We will only add, that his Honor denied the injunction.

P. REDDY'S REMARKABLE DREAM.

A gentleman, who was present on the second morning of the arguments before Judge Hannah in the case of the County against the Supervisors, gives in substance the following version of a remarkable dream the senior counsel for the defense, Mr. Reddy related during his introductory remarks. We will add that we do not attempt to give it in the exact words used, and therefore drop the first person singular:

Premising, first, that the dreamer had returned home the previous evening greatly debilitated from the effects of the opposing counsel's (Miller) exhaustive four-hour's speech, he languidly dropped into an easy chair, and soon after, from the enervated condition of his mental faculties occasioned as above mentioned, into a troubled doze, during which this dream occurred to him in all the vividness of actual realities.

A most evil-portending, black looking cloud appeared to have arisen down about Lone Pine. From out of this vapory mass shot forth a terrible object, thunderbolt or what not, which apparently portended the utter annihilation of this devoted burg, in which he stood aghast viewing the wonderful and, chiefly by reason of his nervous condition as aforesaid, most awe inspiring scene! With bated breath and eyes bugged out strictly in accordance with the apparent exigencies of the case, he watched its approach. Nearer and nearer swept on this threatening besom of destruction, but to his infinite relief, through a rapid transmogrification this black monster soon appeared as an horseman and him riding rapidly. But his relief of mind was only partial after all. The horseman's features were not yet recognizable, but their lean and cadaverous look was easily discernable, while his every air, taken in connection with some formidible implement (which might be a cannon) upon his shoulder, seemed portentious of danger. It might be general or particular; there was no telling. If the former, the horseman might go through the town like a ferocious dose of salts, scattering hash-slingers, both those that give credit and those that didn't, as a duck would scatter a mess of junebugs, or it might be a veritable John Anaoks, whom every honest lawyer dreads. But straight on came horse and rider—that is to say, as straight as the sinuosties of the Lone Pine road would permit—straight up to Lentells' corner came the pair. Here, in imagination, stood the dreamer, conscious of his inability to protect himself from harm, if harm was intended, but resigned in the faith of his own virtues, and the potent power of a four-bit piece in hand ready for any emergency and an adjacent gin-mill, provided the bold horseman should prove to be the identical John Anaoks whom he now began to suspect it to be. He was correct in his suspicions; it was him—F. K. Miller, Esq., of Lone Pine, a spade on his shoulder and a smile under his nose. He halted when the snout of his noble plug was close up to the corner (of course it will be understood that the other end of this animal, as well as that of the rider, yet pointed in the direction of Lone Pine, which circumstance tended to still further allay the fears of the innocent dreamer standing there.) After Mr. Miller had hastily descended from the hurricane deck of his mustang, evidently with no sanguinary intent, the other made bold to address him, and here is what followed:

"You seem to be looking for something, Mr. Miller," inquiringly remarked P. Reddy. "Can I help you any way?" he added with some trepidation, after noting the devouring look of the other as his eyes fell (without much damage, however) either upon the Blaney House or the lone man, just beyond, industriously engaged on the foundation of the new Court House.

"Yes," said Miller, with a firm resolve depicted on his face, "I am looking for a thing—for a person, rather. I want to find the District Attorney."

"Who, Van Decar?"

"That's him."

"Why," said Reddy, "poor Vandy is dead and was decently interred right there," pointing to a small mound near by that looked as if it had been raisad by a Thomas cat, or some other small animal, in an endeavor to further his own ends.

"No, he ain't," replied the other, confidently. "He has only crawled into his hole, playing dead, so that he can get to read his own obituary."

"No," persisted Reddy, "I know that Vandy is dead as a door nail, this time, though he did successfully play that other dodge when he first came here and got some very flattering obituaries. On the strength of these our people took him in, not as a stranger, but as an old friend in need, giving him food and raiment and drink, sir; barrels of it," the dreamer added in an injured tone, and then continued: "Yes, we done all that, and more too, for Vandy, and he returned our kindness when the drink finally gave out, with a vengeance, sir, for after he had taken us in he tried his very best to do for us, but he died in the effort and was deeply interred for fear of another premature resurrection."

"Don't care a cuss; I want him anyhow, and am going to dig him up," said Miller, nowise put out by the discouraging speech he had just listened to.

"But we object; it will endanger the health of the town. The smell, you know, the smell. The health officer, everybody, will object," said the other, with some excitement, and then inquired what the other wanted him, the defunct brother attorney, for.

"I want to make a 'cat's paw' out of him; he will make a first-rate one, you know."

"So he will; nobody will dispute that. Dig away, for this will be the first time since his birth when he can be made of some practical use."

With this Miller pitched in with the little spade he now for the first time took from his shoulder, and soon uncovered a pair of boots.

"There," said he, "there is Vandy's boots."

"Not much; those are Bill Squires' boots. He bought and paid for them."

Some more dirt was thrown out and a pair of pants were exposed.

"Those are Vandy's pants, dead sure," said Miller, confidently.

"Not at all; same as the boots," sententiously replied Reddy.

By this time it was obvious even to the digger's not over sensitive nasal organs, that he had undertaken a very nasty and offensive job, but though its rankness "smelled to heaven," he was bound to proceed, for a cat's paw he must have, even if its use, when obtained, should suffocate both himself and friends. He is a very persistent man in things of this character. A few more spadefuls and the well known features of the defunct District Attorney were revealed, sure enough.

"There," said Reddy, "you will believe me this time, anyhow?"

"Yes—for once. Old Dan Tucker is no deader than Vandy," said the other lawyer, and adding despondently, "not even fit for a cat's paw! Phew! this is awful! Enough to kill two decent men. Let us leave."

"So it is," gasped the first—the other lawyer. "Let's go and have a drink."

That unfortunate remark has led to ruin many, very many individuals, but its potent power was never before so forcibly exemplified to the injury of a community as in this instance. Its familiar sound brought Inyo County's legal adviser to life and to his feet!

"I'm in," he said with such unusual energy and startling effect as to bring the dreamer to a realizing sense of his surroundings, and that this was but a dream! "'and yet not all a dream,' as I perceive this morning, your Honor, when I look around this room and recognize the very features, relative and actual positions, the incidental and attending facts connected with this suit, all of which were so vividly portrayed in that truthful, though disgusting vision in that arm chair."

We will again repeat that, having the foregoing second-handed, it is quite possible we may have varied slightly from the letter, though scarcely from the text. It is what may be called a "free translation."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

LOST.

LOST, ON THE ROAD BETWEEN INDEPENDENCE and Big Pine, a POCKET BOOK, containing the following valuable papers: One Check, No. 286, on Wells, Fargo & Co., San Francisco, for $165; one Check, No. 287, same, for $200; one Note for $385—all of which are payable to my order, without being indorsed by me. The public is cautioned against negotiating for the same, as payment has been stopped. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving the pocket book and contents at the office of Harris & Rhine, Independence.

A Splendid Showing.

We doubt if any county in this State can make any better tax exhibit than this of Inyo. It not only speaks well for the general prosperity but also for the efficiency of the Tax Collector, the Sheriff. The whole amount of taxes collected up to last Monday was a little over $40,000. After deducting the Collector's percentage the remainder, $37,972,02, was paid over to Treasurer Isaacs. Of this $644 was for poll, and $146 for dog taxes. The whole amount now delinquent, property, human and dog poll taxes, is but $1,965 25, all of which but $125, is secured on real estate. The collections will come within $500 of the Assessor's returns. Last year they lacked $7,000, or nearly one-third of the whole assessment, which was about $23,000. The District Attorney and County Clerk have collected about $1,000 of last year's, delinquent $7,000.

Good Templars Lodge.

Pursuant to invitation issued by D. G. W. C. T., M. S. Clark, a meeting was held at the Masonic Hall in this place, January 3, and a Lodge of I. O. G. T. organized, which now consists of about twenty members. The chief officers are: Richard Lewis, W. C. T.; John P. James, W. S.; Charles J. R Butler, W. F. S. We have not ascertained the names of the remaining officers. If no pig-headed management, such as is so often fatal to institutions of this kind, is permitted to creep in it is bound to be a success, and particularly if the ladies will take stock in it, which they ought to do by all means.

Law Matters.

Judge Hannah, of the County Court, in addition to the injunction suit and some probate matters, disposed of these suits this week: Hoff & Co. appellants in the case of Galliardo vs. Hoff & Co. Judgment for appellants. Galliardo vs. Hunt & Swearingen; jury granted at request of plaintiff; fees not being forthcoming, judgment was entered for defendant; plaintiff's motion for change of venue denied. Galliardo vs. Telegraph Stage Co.; judgment for defendant.

Benton.

Albert Mack, Esq., has about $10,000 worth of ore on the dump of the Leete mill, at Benton, and has been in Virginia perfecting arrangements to take charge of the property and run it himself—which desirable event will be immensely satisfactory to everybody thereabouts. The works reduced milling ore very successfully, but a furnace is needed to roast the pulp, when there will be no necessity for assorting the rock.

Incorporation.

The certificate of incorporation of another heavy Cerro Gordo company has been filed with the County Recorder. The capital is $6,000,000; the object, to introduce water in Cerro Gordo. We understand that the necessary engines are already purchased, and the pipes in process of manufacture, in San Francisco. We presume that the Trustees are the same as those of the Boushey S. M. Co., mentioned last week.

Their Time Table.

The Southern, or Telegraph Stage Company's stages leave Lone Pine each Sunday, Tuesday and Thursday, at 12 o'clock M., and arrive on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at 9 A. M., connecting with Earl's stages for Cerro Gordo and Independence. Mr. J. P. Taylor, the Lone Pine agent, tells us that the line is doing a good business, and makes San Francisco in three days. Superintendent Thoms is expected thitherward shortly.

Spanish.

Anyone wishing to assist in the formation of a class in the Spanish language will please confer with the junior of this paper. If availed of at once a first-rate opportunity is now presented to study that useful tongue.

Work Begun.

Active work has been commenced on the Stevens fluming operation, at Cottonwood, men being at work on the necessary road up the canyon. This is an item of interest to the Porterville folks.

In Another Business.

Mr. I. W. Hunt, a well known residenter of Lone Pine, has sold his property in that place—the Orleans Hotel and Pioneer Livery Stable—and will engage in the cattle business. The purchasers were A. M. Loomis & Bro.

Worthy of Note.

Mr. J. Vagt received seven small potatoes from Germany, last Spring, which he planted on his place near the Post. The yield was 146 pounds of good potatoes.

Merchandise.

A large number of teams have, during the past week, unloaded immense cargoes of general freights for our various merchants.

Lost.

Tim Lewis has been so unfortunate as to lose a pocket book containing a lot of valuable papers. See notice for particulars.

Supervisors.

The Board meet in special session on Saturday next, according to official notice given elsewhere.

County Funds.

Sheriff Mulkey has recently paid to County Treasurer Isaacs the sum of $25,981 90, which has been apportioned to the different funds as follows:

Refunded on overpaid taxes	$ 889 26
County General Fund	5,280 56
Interest and Building Fund	3,486 63
General School Fund	2,378 89
Hospital Fund	1,452 77
Contingent Fund	1,452 77
Sinking Fund	1,162 21
Building Fund	1,162 21
Road Fund	968 51
Mono Debt Fund	2,905 53
State General Fund	4,842 56
	$25,981 90

After the payment of the first half-yearly interest on the bonded debt, there remains in the treasury for the redemption of bonds—which are legally payable twenty years hence—the sum of $2,587 50, which the Treasurer will advise the Supervisors to advertise, as authorized by law.

Malicious Mischief.

Some miscreant wearing the guise of humanity entered the room where is kept the billiard table belonging to the company at Camp Independence, a few nights after Christmas, and venomously cut the cloth to shreds and hacked up the cushions. The officers and soldiers of the command would like to find out the miserable wretch that did it, who is probably one and the same with the creature that cut off some shade trees in town last Summer.

Business.

A rare chance is offered some one familiar with running a boarding house to get into a lucrative business at Swansea, owing to ill health compelling Mr. Vincentelli to withdraw. See notice.

A CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATION.

Our readers will doubtless remember the publication in these columns of a letter from one of the numerous swindling firms of New York, which in cautious phrases invited the "honest" recipients to send a few genuine "stamps" for unlimited supplies of the "queer." The fact that said firms may have duped some would-be swindlers is a matter of but little moment, but is some satisfaction to find that a Western man occasionally makes a fair "stand off" with them, as in the case of the following letter, which was recently forwarded to one of the "old smoothies" in question:

SWEETWATER, NEVADA,
December 25, 1872.

K. P. DOUGLASS, Counterfeiter, etc., New York city: My Very Dear Sir—I am in receipt of your favor of a recent date. Your offer is very liberal. There is one obstacle in the way of my entering right into the business. That is we have nothing but gold coin in circulation here, and none of that bright and nice enough to send to such a nice, clean boy as the tone of your very confidential letter would indicate you to be. I am "on it" a little myself, and as our business is somewhat similar it may be to our mutual advantage to form a partnership. Without entering into details, I will state briefly my antecedents, business, etc. I was born at the "Five Points," in the city of New York, of poor but rascally parents, like yourself. I formed a strong desire—at a very early age—to get even on somebody. My first inclination was to become a robber or pirate, but on sober reflection my cowardly heart rebelled against that line of business. I then turned my attention to sneak-thieving, and after a short but brilliant career I was appointed to an overseership at Sing Sing prison—seeing over the walls trying to escape. My next move was to go West, where I done a little in the horse-stealing line, but finding it didn't pay I quit that and went into sluice-robbing, in which business I laid the foundation of my present immense fortune. After making about $500,000 out of the honest miners, I turned my attention to the manufacture of bogus twenty dollar pieces, in which business I am at present extensively engaged. Am turning out from three to five barrels daily, of coin that can not be detected from the genuine, and am selling on the same terms that you sell your counterfeit. If agreeable you can send me, charges paid, $200,000 worth, in bills ranging from $50 downward, to commence with. I will have no trouble in passing it, if it is as well executed as you say it is.

I will now give you a little insight into the manner in which my bogus coin is manufactured: The business is, of course, conducted with great secrecy. I have located a cave in the Sierra Nevada mountains, which has but one entrance, and that through a hollow tree. Have fifty men three miles under ground, working by the light of a diamond. With the exception of five tried and trusty friends (one of whom is the fellow who recommended me to you as a high-toned, honorable man), none of these men will ever be permitted to see the light of day. As fast as they become dissatisfied they are promptly murdered, and their places supplied by others—New York dead beats preferred. The material used in the manufacture of the coin is brass, taken from the cheeks of New York swindlers, the supply being inexhaustible. My reason for not sending you a car load of coin is, as I said before, that I have none quite nice enough. But if you will send me your photograph, I will have your profile stamped on the coin, when of course everybody will want it. You can charter a freight train, come on and get enough to make you rich. You may be surprised at my generosity, but as you have placed such unbounded confidence in me I wish to show my gratitude. "Confidence begets confidence."

In the meantime, to somewhat compensate you for the vexatious delay to which you will be subjected, you are authorized to go to the Directors of the Union Pacific Railroad and order a Saratoga trunk full of their first mortgage bonds. Tell them I sent you. At the same time you might call on Gen. George "B." McClellan and get a few quarts of Arizona diamonds, on my account. (Just mention my name to him.)

Your idea of breaking up the United States government through an unlimited issue of an exact imitation of United States currency is certainly a very brilliant one; and, taken in connection with a plan of mine, must certainly make of you and me two of the greatest, most influential and honored men that any age ever knew. My plan is this: You to go on with the counterfeiting until you have currency enough to swamp the government, then present the same at the treasury for payment, and thereby force the government into bankruptcy. In the meantime I can run my bogus money factory to its full capacity, and buy up all the factories, influential newspapers, city fronts, vessels, telegraph, steamboat and railroad lines in creation. Then we will have a sure thing of ruling the world. Should my suggestions meet with your approval, you are at liberty to address me further on the subject.

However, in order to test your sincerity, before entering into further negotiations, I shall exact some substantial proof that you are really interested in the matter. You can forward by mail to my address, registered at my risk, quarter of a million dollars worth of genuine United States bonds, and say $50,000 worth of gold notes. I will acknowledge the receipt of the same by return mail, and my confidence in you will at the same time be greatly strengthened. Yours, sweetly,

N. EIKWA.

Arizona News.

The troops operating near Camp Verde returned on the 17th of December. Lieut. Rice, commanding a detachment of the Fifth Cavalry, and Hualapai scouts, had two engagements in the Red Rock country, killing thirteen warriors, capturing several women and children, and destroying large quantities of Winter supplies with rancherias. One Hualapai (friendly) was killed in the fight. Capt. Pierce's command captured several camps with eleven prisoners, mostly women, the warriors being away on marauding expeditions. The other expeditions destroyed several rancherias, with quantities of supplies, and kept an advance moving. Gen. Crook was at Camp Grant on the 17th. All the mounted troops left Camp Verde on the 22d, and are now moving in every direction in conjunction with movements of troops and friendly Indians from Apache, Grant and McDowell. Capt. Randall's command, from Apache, had several engagements at Tonto Basin, killed twenty-five warriors, captured several women and children, and came into McDowell on the 16th. Left again on the 20th.—Sacramento Union, Jan. 3.

The Sacramento Union.

The name of this journal is so intimately associated with the memories of almost every gulch and canyon, by place hamlet and miner's cabin west of the Rocky Mountains, from the "flush times of the Spring of '50" down to the present day, that it must ever hold the first place in the hearts of the vast number who are thus identified with its history. All of these feel a satisfaction in noting its progress—in knowing that it has lost none of its pristine force or vigor, and that, as in the days of yore, it still leads. The daily of the 1st of January, 1873, carries 112 columns of solid statistical and general reading matter. We know plenty of men (boys then) who, twenty years ago and long years since, gladly weighed out once every week a dollar and a half in "dust" for a copy of this same paper that did not convey half the information that this one does which can now be obtained for one-twelfth the sum. It is the flush times that have gone backwards—not the paper. We note, however, an omission, in the present record of the notable events of the past year, of a little circumstance which took place here and elsewhere the 26th of March last, which we fancied at the time, would be worthy of record in the biggest daily on the coast.

A Pool Game.

A pool game was played at Gobey & Butler's saloon last night, between a noted billiard player and a well known sport, which was kept up all night at $100 a ball, and resulted in the fleecing of the sport for the snug little sum of $6,000.—Virginia Chronicle, Dec. 30.

LITERARY.

APPLETON'S JOURNAL is now enlarged to the extent of four additional reading pages, while a cover encloses it. In this form it takes more definitely its place as a weekly household magazine. It will continue to present healthful sound, instructive, entertaining and animated literature. It will confine itself, as a rule, to one serial novel at a time; it will contain the best short stories obtainable; it will give picturesque descriptions of places, and stirring narratives of travel and adventure; it will have highly entertaining papers upon various subjects that pertain to the pursuits and recreations of the people; will give portraits and sketches of persons distinguished in various walks of life; will present lively, social sketches, having in special view those things the knowledge of which will contribute to the welfare and happiness of the household; it will describe phases of life in all quarters of the globe; it will discuss the more important events of the time, and the advances made in art, literature and science; it will endeavor to reflect all the ideas, movements and developments of society; and, while hoping to enlighten, will strenuously aim to entertain, with large abundance of material, all who resort to its pages for intellectual pleasure. It will employ illustration sufficiently to give variety and animation to its pages; but will seek rather to become a journal of popular high-class literature instead of a mere vehicle for pictures.

The December number of "THE PEOPLE'S MONTHLY," of Pittsburg, Pa., is just to hand, and we must confess to a surprise. No such fine or elegant illustrated paper has ever appeared out of New York, while it challenges comparison with anything published in that city. The new type, new "heads," and tinted paper look admirably. This Christmas number has a supplement of eight pages (making twenty-four in all), and is absolutely crowded with fine illustrations, and interesting letters, stories, poems, etc., appropriate to the season. The Household and "Boys' and Girls'" departments are of especial interest. In fact, the whole paper is gotten up for the home and the family, and is pure, bright and wholesome. This Monthly we must say is a credit to the West, and should receive a hearty and generous Western support. Agents wanted everywhere, and large commissions paid. Send for sample and circular. Three months on trial, only twenty-five cents, including the splendid Christmas number. More given away with each paper than its cost. Yearly subscriptions only $1 50.

We acknowledge the receipt some days since of Dr. Dio Lewis' excellent magazine, "To-DAY." It is beautifully printed on tinted paper, and enriched by well-executed illustrations. Its literary contents are the productions of popular writers, and the tone of the whole is of the most elevating and moral character. Dr. Dio Lewis is the editor, and Maclean, Stoddart & Co. are the publishers, New York, Philadelphia and Boston. Price $2 50 per annum.

The Elko and Pioche Narrow-Gauge.

An Elko dispatch of the 3d instant gives this:

The Eastern Nevada Narrow-Gauge Railroad, from Elko south to Hamilton and Pioche, has at last got into hands who are going to push it to completion. William Boyle, agent of Gilmer & Salisbury, of Salt Lake, has been here negotiating for the charter. He has effected a purchase, and the work is to commence at once. The present managers contemplate extending the road south to the Colorado river, and a bill will be introduced in Congress asking for a charter and an appropriation from Northern to Southern Pacific Railroad

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT of the County Court of the county of Inyo, State of California, in the case of the People of the State of California against Peter Peerson, Justice of the Peace of Third Township in said county of Inyo, upon a judgment rendered in said County Court in Chambers on the 23d day of December, A. D. 1872, for the sum of Fifty Dollars fine, and Forty-three 75-100 Dollars cost of suit besides accruing costs, duly attested the 28th day of December, A. D. 1872, and to me directed and delivered, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said defendant Peter Peerson, J. P., in and to the following described real estate, to-wit: A certain piece of land situated near the town of Lone Pine, and lying on the north side of John Lucas' ranch, being the same land that was deeded by Wm. L. Moore to H. C. Hart and the place where the said Peter Peerson now lives, together with all the improvements and appurtenances thereunto belonging, all of which is situated in the county of Inyo, State of California. Notice is hereby given that on MONDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF JANUARY, A. D. 1873, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., in front of the Sheriff's office (there being no Court House), in the town of Independence, county of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendant Peter Peerson, J. P., in and to the above described real property, or so much thereof as will be sufficient to satisfy the judgment and all costs in this action, to the highest and best bidder for cash in hand.

Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Early Traces of Men.

[From The Scientific American.]

When quarrymen uncovered slabs of Connecticut sandstone, bearing impressions exactly like bird-tracks, geologists reasonably inferred that at the time the rock was forming and was as yet but wet sand, there existed gigantic birds or birdlike animals, which strode along these ancient seashores much as beach birds do along the shores of to-day. The fact that traces of birds had never been found before in strata so ancient, much less the popular theory that birds were of later creation, did not invalidate the inference; one positive fact, as is well known, outvalues any amount of negative assertion, and the old theory had to give away.

When workman, digging a canal near Stockholm, came upon a buried hearth with charcoal on it, exactly like those which uncivilized people now make and use, the natural inference was that some one of more than brute intelligence had lived there before the overlying earth was deposited. Had the hearth been slightly buried, say six feet below the surface, there would have been no question of its artificial origin; it would have been accounted the work of man as surely as if a human skeleton had been found lying beside it. Should the inference be considered less legitimate because there happened to be sixty feet of earth above the hearth? True, that accumulation of erratic blocks and sand and sea shells gave unmistakable evidence of great geological changes since the hearth was last used—glacial action, submergence of the land and its subsequent elevation—all involving long periods of time; but that told not so much against the testimony of the hearth as against the belief that man was of more recent creation.

Now that such witnesses have been multipled to an almost infinite number, forming a continuous chain from the earliest historic times far back into the tertiary period, the evidence is overwhelming; the "alleged" antiquity of man, as it is styled by those who have never investigated the matter, passes from the domain of hypothesis into the region of demonstrated fact. The vista of human antiquity opened up by these surprising discoveries is indeed vast, so vast that even those who have most patiently followed them and assisted in their development are overwhelmed with the thought of it. No wonder then that those to whom it comes as a sudden revelation should flatly refuse to admit its reality. As Mr. Evans remarks in the closing paragraph of his magnificent work on the ancient stone implements, weapons and ornaments of Great Britain, "it is impossible not to sympathize with those who, from sheer inability to carry their vision so far into the dim past, and from unconsciousness of the cogency of other (than the fossils described in the work above mentioned) and distinct evidence as to the remoteness of the origin of the human race, are unwilling to believe in so vast an antiquity for man as must of necessity be conceded by those who have fully and fairly weighed the facts which modern discoveries have unrolled before their eyes." Yet while we sympathize with the natural incredulity of those who lack the basis of intelligent judgment, we need not imitate their unreasoning assurance in contradicting the deductions of science while refusing to examine either the ground of their own convictions or the evidence of the different convictions of others.

The geological proofs of the antiquity of man, to which Mr. Evans alludes, are of three-fold character:

1. The association of human bones with the bones of extinct animals under conditions which prove them to be of equal age.

2. The signs of human action on the bones of extinct animals; the breaking of them to extract the marrow, after the manner of existing savages; the shaping and polishing of them for use and ornament; and more instructive still, the tracing on them of the outlines of mammoths and other animals now extinct or driven by change of climate to distant parts of the earth.

3. The discovery of wrought stone implements, weapons and ornaments under undisturbed strata demonstrably belonging to periods reaching as far back as the pliocene period, if not farther.

Detailed descriptions of these evidences, which are as marvelous in number as in variety and interest, may be found in the elaborate works of Lyell, Lubbock, Wilson, Evans and other English scholars, as well as in numerous French and German writings; or the evidences themselves may be studied in situ, and in numerous rich collections of archæological specimens, by any one disposed to do so. The purposes of this article admit but the briefest mention of a few of the most ancient of these traces of early man.

First, for our own country. Perhaps the oldest skull yet discovered is the one found in the pliocene strata of Table Mountain, California. Having no companion in its almost incredible antiquity, it was natural at the time of its discovery for men to ridicule the age accorded it, and to take refuge in the assertion that it never came from the place alleged, or, if it did, it must have come there by irregular means. But when many corroborating evidences of human existence during the pliocene period are found, as they have been, in the same strata under conditions which satisfy careful geologists that the strata had not previously been disturbed, the astonishing character of the testimony is not sufficient ground for flatly rejecting it. More recently, similar fossil evidences of perhaps a still earlier presence of man on our Pacific coast have been discovered. At a meeting of the San Francisco Academy of Science, in May last, Dr. Blake presented the Society with a number of perforated implements of serpentine, which had been taken from stratified rock near the summit of the Coast Range, 1,700 feet above the sea. They were found embedded in argillaceous shales, in digging away the side of a hill for the foundation of a house, and, says Dr. Blake, were "evidently fashioned by the hand of man or some animal capable of using its anterior extremities so as to fashion objects to meet its wants, and apparently possessed of sufficient intelligence to use lines or nets for catching fish; as it would seem that these instruments must have been used as sinkers." Dr. Blake pronounces the rock in which these interesting specimens of primitive manufacture were discovered, to be of an age not later than the pliocene period; while Prof. Whitney, the State Geologist, is of opinion that it is still more ancient. Anyhow man appears to have antedated the upheaval of the Coast Range and the attendant geological changes; a remoteness in time which makes the fossil skeleton found at Natchez and New Orleans, and the human fragments under the Florida canals, seem comparatively modern. Yet at that distant period man had existed long enough to overspread a considerable portion of the earth, if not the whole of it, since traces of such primeval men have been found wherever they have been diligently sought for.

Scarcely a decade has passed since geologists began to admit the possibility of finding traces of men in glacial or preglacial strata; yet already human bones, or unquestionable evidences of human handiwork, have been found in the deposits of those early times, in connection with the remains of supposed pre-human animals, in England, Scandinavia, Belgium, France, Spain, Italy, Germany, India, Australia and South America, as well as in our country; and the more carefully the search has been conducted, the farther back the history of man has been pushed into the distant past. Every inch of the ground has been fought over, the firm conviction of the early investigators that man could not be so old a creature causing them to receive every discovery with downright favor. Such an upturning of all the recognized foundations of history seemed of necessity to involve some hidden error. But it did not. The facts are so numerous and intelligible that the most skeptical enquirers have been convinced, and now not a few of them hold rank among the authorities of the young science of arcæogeology. Among these is the venerable Sir Charles Lyell, whose caution is not less remarkable than his courage. After studying some of the earlier discoveries of human fossils, he admitted their preglacial origin and thought we might expect to find the remains of man in the pliocene strata. Writing after the discovery of such pliocene remains, Sir John Lubbock set the time of the first beginning of the human race as far back as the miocene, or middle tertiary period; while Alfred Wallace carries the date still farther back, into the eocene period; this, however, on theoretical grounds, since the traces of men earlier than the pliocene period are few and somewhat questionable. In what is said to be miocene strata near Pontlevoy, France, a M. Bourgeois has found numerous wrought flints in a stratum containing the remains of a long extinct animal allied to the rhinoceros, and beneath a bed which contains the mastodon, the dinotherium and the rhinoceros. Similar evidences of man's presence and skill have been found in the miocene beds of Aurillac, with the remains of animals long since extinct; and at Pouance, another observer, M. Delaunay, has discovered a bone of a herbivorous cetacen of the miocene period, which bears the marks of cutting instruments, such as must have been made when the bone was in a green condition. Doubtless these faint foreshadowings of man's presence in the middle tertiary will be strengthened by future discoveries, as the first evidence of his existence in the later tertiary and quarternary periods have been.

The time required for all the geological changes which have taken place since man demonstrably entered upon the struggle for existence is simply inconceivable. The glacial limit lately set to his history has been overpassed, and his dominion extended perhaps farther beyond it than it is back of the present. "We of the present generation," says Sir Charles Lyell, "when called upon to make grants of thousands of centuries in order to explain the events of what is called the modern period, shrink naturally at first from making what seems so lavish an expenditure of past time." Yet, however much the imagination may take alarm at the immensity of such periods, the sternest reason declares them to be necessary unless we stand ready to deny the orderly sequence of events. The same sort of evidence which proves the existence of man on earth six thousand years ago proves his presence here as many thousand centuries.

NOT FAVORABLY IMPRESSED.

From all accounts we infer that Mr. Garrettson don't feel very favorably impressed with our notices of his efforts in the Lone Pine interest. Perhaps not, but he will please bear in mind that so far as our knowledge extended he was the only person on Bishop Creek whom we could definitely point out as the active advocate of the removal measure, and as the public representative of a perfectly suicidal policy—in which every resident of Inyo county is more or less interested—he may naturally expect to reach that degree of prominence he has labored so hard to attain. In general we suppose him to be a very good sort of a man, possessed with both intelligence and influence, but of the latter in a less degree, perhaps, than we have credited him with. It matters not how different the views of individuals may be upon questions of public policy, each is entitled to respect where there is an honest belief that his method will tend to the greater public good; but when, as an advocate of an ill-advised movement, he trots about from house to house—as Mr. Garrettson did do—striving to induce others to enter the lists with him, not to work a good to any, but merely and solely to inflict damage upon others at the cost of an equal damage to himself and friends, then he forfeits even the ordinary respect of his adversaries, no matter how great the respect and esteem in which he was previously held. If he is endeavoring to accomplish a good either for himself or his locality, and will make the fact apparent, we will cordially assist him in presenting such facts and treat their advocate with due consideration. But so long as he keeps such facts hidden away wholly out of sight and makes no appeal for support except upon individual prejudices, he must excuse us for not according any great amount of respect for such motives or such actions. This entire question is one of personalities. We do not believe that there is one man in the county who honestly thinks the proposed change will result in any general good. On the contrary, it is a well known and conceded fact that individual considerations only are pitted against those of the general welfare, and so long as this is the case it is difficult to consider it without individual references and without investigating the actuating motives for such extraordinary actions. We would not accuse every man who indorses Mr. Garrettson's views as wishing to make this change out of personal spite only. Doubtless there are many who believe they will ultimately, if not at present, best subserve their own good in accomplishing it, but if there are any good reasons for such belief then they are wrong in not setting them forth. Our columns are free and open for all such purposes. That is their ostensible duty—to present both sides of every question of public policy, but the arguments on each side must be brought forward by its own advocates.

So far as the main issue is concerned we have not a doubt as to the final result, even after allowing full forty adverse votes upon Bishop Creek, but that many or any considerable number there will have a very bad influence when we come to seek for a suitable Representative in the next Legislature. We will probably fail of electing one at all; if so, it is morally certain that we will have no other chance in the next ten years. We shall take occasion to again refer to this important phase of the controversy.

Captain Jack.

Captain Jack, the old Modoc, and his braves are yet entrenched in the lava beds, but they were to commence using the howitzers on him last Monday. They have some hopes of making that bed too warm for him, but in order to do it we fancy that something more than "masterly inactivity" and those howitzers will be required.

The Reese River Reviler.

The Reveille (published daily, at Austin, Nevada) has entered upon the seventh year of its existence and usefulness. In superficial inches The Reveille is not large, but it is old, "hefty" and otherwise huge, ranking A 1 as a country daily.

The Nevada Senatorship.

J. P. Jones may now safely be marked down as the next United States Senator from Nevada. At a Republican caucus on the 9th instant every vote, forty-nine in number, were pledged to him, which insures his election.

SOME CAUSES OF COMPLAINT.

The anomalous views held by a good many of the citizens of Bishop Creek (which here is intended to include Round Valley and the entire upper end of the county) upon the county-seat question is partly explained in the fact that in various ways that section, which substantially is the most important division of the county, has been treated somewhat slightingly. However true this assumption may be, it is still hard to see what bearing the pending issue has upon it, or how one evil is to be remedied by another, but it appears to be true nevertheless that there are a number of them who consider the present county capital responsible for the greater part of their grievances. There are still a smaller number who argue themselves into the belief that a simple change of location of the Court House from one small village to another, no larger and considerably more distant, must in some way tend to their advantage. But without arguing that part of the question we will take a look at some of the complaints, and if found to have any foundation in part, then to consider the degree of responsibility justly chargeable upon the county-seat or its inhabitants.

We have heard it frequently asserted that, as a mere matter of courtesy, if nothing more, the people of the section referred to ought to have been, and ought to be, consulted in matters of so much importance as the issuance of these bonds. As an abstract question those who hold that reasonable view are undoubtedly correct, but the question is: How is (or was) it to be done? The answer is, in the same manner that the people are consulted in the affairs of the State at large, viz.: Through the sectional representatives, each of whom is supposed to ask and receive the opinions of individual constituents, in whose judgment he places confidence. This is the rule that obtains in legislating for the State in such cases, and just as frequently in the local legislation of county affairs. The power of the duly elected representatives in either case is very nearly absolute, and of necessity must be if anything is ever to be effected by such legislation, but at the same time, policy and common courtesy demands proper deference to the opinions of those who have given him his powers. He is amenable to them for his acts, but the responsibility is all his own, as, from his standpoint he is supposed to see and to know the proper course, and to act upon his own knowledge, as exigencies require, without regard to the possible desires of those whom he represents. An act of this kind may prove obnoxious in the extreme, or entirely consonant with the general desire. In the latter case the legislator doing it may be charged with a discourteous neglect in not having previously consulted his constituents; under the same conditions in the former it would be rated as nearly a crime, but in either case it is difficult to see how the State capital, where it is done, is to be made responsible. Yet that is precisely the object aimed at by a certain few in regard to this bond question.

We have yet to hear the first man of either high or low degree condemn the bond act itself as being impolitic. On the contrary it is conceded to have been the best thing that could have been done under the circumstances. The objections are: The manner in which it was done, and the final disposition of the proceeds; the interests of a portion of the county not having been duly considered in this disposition, as it would have been done if the citizens of that portion had been consulted previously.

A little history may explain this: On or about the 1st of February last, two or three gentleman of this place, whose individual interests were so intimately connected with those of the general public that no distinctions can be shown to prove that they were impelled by purely selfish motives, concluded that the best way to supply important public needs was through the issuance of a certain amount of county bonds. A close estimate of probable costs was made, and the amount to be raised guaged accordingly, scarcely anticipating a single dollar of surplus to be used above absolute necessities. A draft of a bill to that effect was drawn up and submitted, within ten days after, to a full Board of Supervisors for their endorsement. It was endorsed after full and deliberate consideration by the Board at the meeting in which it was first introduced, which, of course put it out of their power as individuals to first submit the matter to the considerations of their friends at home. But previous to this, however, and immediately after the original draft was drawn, when for the first time it came under our notice, it was placed in our hands and a full synopsis of its aims and objects laid before our readers, with an express notice that our columns were open to a full discussion of its merits or demerits, but there was no response from any source whatever. A reference to the first issue of this paper in last February will satisfy any one that this matter was submitted to the public. No objections were raised from any person whatever. Without a subsequent special meeting for the purpose the Board had to act then and at once or not all.

The bill became a law on or about the 7th of the March following. During all the intervening period no objections came from any quarter, although we doubt if there was a man in Inyo county who could plead ignorance of its existence, aim or objects. If any objections had been raised, though but a mere whisper, we would have felt it our bounden duty to have given them a place in these columns. As it was, it was referred to on two or three occasions while pending in the Legislature. During the whole of that time it was subject to remonstrance or to amendments if any one felt sufficient interest in it to take the matter in hand. There was nothing done, and that is enough on that point.

It is said the public needs did not require the erection, especially at such a great cost, of a bridge at Bend City. That the interest of the upper end of the county was ignored in not making that or a similar expenditure there.

Taking the last first, Bishop Creek at the upper end was supposed to possess all the bridge facilities that could reasonably be required. The fact that it had cost the county a considerable sum a money formed no part of the consideration one way or the other. It has never yet been shown that anything more was needed, or that the business of that section has been crippled to the amount of a cent by reason of the inefficiency of the existing bridge; but there was one needed at what may be called the lower end of that valley, and when that was provided for, which was done almost exclusively in that interest, it certainly left no just grounds to complain of neglect on that count. The Big Pine bridge was located and is being built essentially in the interest of Bishop Creek, to which, in view of probable results, it was deemed of the first importance.

The Bend City bridge was not built for the exclusive accommodation of a few private individuals, as is charged. Facts existing at the time seem to have been studiously ignored by certain individuals anxious to make capital out of this. A renewed and very promising value was at that time placed on the probable development of a large number of mines to which this bridge was, or would be, of necessity. One of them was in active operation, with apparently very fair prospects ahead, and with the certainty of having expended more hard "imported" cash (in the aggregate more than half a million of dollars) than almost any other, perhaps without exception, in Inyo county. That company were likely to continue operations on a still larger scale. It would have been both indecent and unjust to have deprived them of an essential right they had previously enjoyed by refusing to repair or rebuild a bridge which was of vital importance in the prosecution of such an important enterprise. Considered in reference to that company alone it was a paying policy, as well as a simple right to replace the old and wholly unsafe structure with one that was not liable any day to involve the county in a large sum of damages. But, besides this, there were many other reasons why this bridge ought to be built, though it does not form a part of a great throughfare.

It was the only means of crossing the river in a length of over 60 miles, and is really of great importance to the general welfare in various ways, which we shall not now stop to particularize, even though that enterprise first alluded to is now one of the things of the past. It was an actual thing at the time, which, in connection with other things, justified the proposed expenditure dollar for dollar, as much as that for Big Pine, and as a matter of right, quite as much as that at Lone Pine.

That percentage or "brokerage" business is still harped upon by some. We shall not discuss that matter at length now, but will say this: The bonds would not have been sold without the active agency of Mr. Rhine. We can give the names of five of our most prominent citizens, of this place and Cerro Gordo together, who severally advised him on the second trial to give it up as a bad job. "They can not be sold at any price," they told him on the streets of San Francisco. "Give it up, and as those buildings have to be put up, we can buy the scrip at twenty cents on the dollar, and we can make money out of it if the county does lose." Other responsible parties were ready to submit bids to construct these buildings, taking the unsold bonds in payment on a basis of 70 cents on the dollar, the nominal rate being 80 cents, the minimum at which they could be sold by law. The result would have been a double price on the contracts. The cash capital to carry on the work had to be forthcoming, and this we had not at home, so the value of the bonds would have been proportioned to a forced market, say forty or fifty cents on the dollar, on which basis the estimates would have been made. Mr. Rhine refused to give it up, because he feft personally responsible for the whole thing—he having orignated the scheme. To permit things to go by default would be laying himself liable to a collusion of fraud, certain to be charged on the subsequent depreciation of these securities, both bonds and current scrip. If he did not have the active opposition of the gentlemen referred to to contend against, he did have the earthquake and Col. Whipple, backed by the Relief Committee. He done well, and that's enough on this subject now.

A Logical Deduction.

As an illustration of a certain course of reasoning which prevails to a considerable extent just at this time, we will mention this circumstance: A short time since a citizen of Bishop Creek was wending his way hitherward with a heavily loaded team. His wagon got into a mud-hole and stayed there, despite the most strenuous exertions of driver and team to extricate it. He whipped and his team gee'd and haw'd, but all to no purpose. He waxed wroth and swore, but didn't jump and crack his heels together after the manner of Washoe teamsters, simply because it was physically impossible for him to do so, on account of the tenacity of the mud in which he stood. But he done the next thing to it. He swore that he was going to vote to move the county seat to Lone Pine! "Independence didn't care a d--n how bad the roads were; never did spend a cent on 'em!" He appeared to be in dead earnest, although he is rated as a very reasonable sort of a man, and a good citizen, generally.

The Credit Mobilier.

All the New York papers are commenting on the scandal of the Credit Mobilier exposure. The Herald says a great moral victory has been achieved by the press in forcing the investigation to be had with open doors, and insists on having the sink of jobbery searched until the guilty ones are held up to the world. The World says that whitewashing is at an end. The names of several men chosen by their fellow citizens for honorable public service will take a stigma. The Tribune admits real sorrow that both Ames and McComb's testimony show the Credit Mobilier stock to have been used corruptly in Congress successfully and more generally than many have believed. The Times considers that Ames' testimony makes it clear that he wished to interest Congressmen in his scheme for the sake of their influence.

Greeley Statue.

All printing offices in the Union are to be called upon for one pound or more of old type, to be made into a statue of Horace Greeley to be set up in New York, and all compositors are requested by The Tribune chapel to give the proceeds of setting up 1,000 ems February 3d, 1873, toward making the statue. We have no doubt but that every office and printer in the land will cheerfully respond to this request.

Bill Tweed.

This superior rascal is likely to be brought to trial at last, notwithstanding the extraordinary efforts of his counsel to stave it off as long as possible. A full jury is impaneled, and the trial was to begin on Wednesday last. As there are over a thousand counts in the indictment it is probable the newspaper reporters will have something to write about for many days to come.

The Arizona Miner.

This sterling journal has entered upon its tenth (5th year) volume, and, as we are gratified to know, under the most favorable auspices. The office is complete in all its fittings, with the exception that a faster press is needed in order to supply the fast increasing demand for the paper. The Miner is deserving of the highest success.

Anticipated.

The second inauguration of President Grant will probably be the occasion of the most imposing military display ever witnessed in Washington since the grand review of 1865. The Government troops stationed in the vicinity will, for the first time, appear in their new uniform.

In Trouble Again.

Victoria Woodhull and her man, Blood, were again put in the lock-up, January 9th, for circulating obscene literature. We are indebted to that "lady" for a late copy of her Weekly.

The Goat Island Grab

This matter is exciting the attention of the good people of San Francisco to a great extent. A large mass meeting was held recently, in which the grab was condemned without stint. The Government Engineers report that it would be extremely unwise for the Government to permit the joint occupation of the island, saying that when the railroad erects the necessary buildings required by such a road at its terminus, and such as are in contemplation, it will be impossible to defend either San Francisco or Oakland by defences erected upon that island, no matter what their strength may be. By firing these buildings by shot or shell or other means, the fortifications will be rendered utterly untenable. The interest on the first cost of the connecting bridge and docks is estimated at $375,000, which of itself is sufficient to furnish better advantages in all respects on the Oakland shore, with connecting ferries to San Francisco, and without endangering the harbor itself by this long and inconvenient bridge to a city in the middle of the bay.

Resigned.

We understand that T. W. Dexter, Receiver at the Aurora Land Office, has handed in his resignation, to take effect on the appointment of his successor. It is likely that Charley Baldwin, who has held that position as Deputy for some time, will receive the appointment, though this is mere conjecture. We may remark in this connection that it has been rumored here that Register Butler will visit this valley in an official capacity to take proofs in pre-emptions, there being some fifteen or twenty pre-emptors ready to make such proofs, and at the same time anxious to avoid the tedious and expensive trip in person and with witnesses as the law requires, to Aurora, if the rules of the office will permit the business to be done as here proposed.

Nevada.

Gov. Bradley's message to the Nevada Legislature presents some interesting information. The State debt has been reduced $175,903 during the year ending January 1st, 1873. At the close of 1872 the debt was $726,450, with assets on hand of $347,209, leaving a net debt of $379,246. The whole taxable property of the State is $22,879,145, which is an increase of $1,978,035 on the assessment of 1871. The gross proceeds of the mines for 1872 were $23,719,211, which shows an increase of $3,692,625 on the proceeds of 1871. The Governor recommends taxation for the special objects of an Insane Asylum and a State Prison. He also recommends legislation to prevent or punish corrupt usages in elections.

Sentenced.

Stokes was sentenced on the 6th instant to be hanged on the 28th day of February. When asked if he had anything to say why sentence of death should not be pronounced against him, he replied in a low, distinct voice that he was innocent of the crime and did not intentionally violate any of the laws. He believed that all the testimony for the defense was lightly viewed by the jury. Thomas Hart's evidence was false, as the prosecution very well knew.

Illustrated Press.

We have received the initial number of a monthly bearing the above title. It is profusely illustrated, in which respect and also in its literature, it compares well with the best of the eastern publications of the same class. It is worthy of support on its merits alone and certainly none the less since it is a home production. Price, $1 50 per annum; published by Murray & Dewey, 414 Clay street, San Francisco.

Professions.

In the United States there are 43,807 clergymen, 40,731 lawyers and 61,858 physicians. To bury those whom the physicians hurry to their graves are 1,976 undertakers and 1,114 sextons. The clergymen, lawyers and physicians number 146,396. Is it not a wonder that there is not more unhappiness in our glorious country?

The Sunday Law.

The Sunday law, we note by our exchanges, has been pretty generally observed throughout the State. It was just so-so here, so we conclude somebody will get into trouble about it some of those days.

Inyoites.

Among our visitors this week were Mr. J. Earl, one of the enterprising business men of Inyo county, and Mr. Beaudry, of Cerro Gordo, the wealthy mine owner of that place and whose name is so widely known in connection with the vast bullion product of that region.—Bakersfield Courier, Jan. 11.

General News.

Some 70,000 miners are now on a strike in Wales. Serious results are apprehended.

Fifty-nine fishermen were drowned at Yarmouth, England, in the recent gales.

In the Washington news we have these items: A bill reported by Ramsey, from the Postal Committee, for abolishing the franking privilege, with amendments, including one changing the date of its going into effect from September, 1872, to July, 1873, was objected to and went on the calender.

On the 9th McComb testified that Congressman James Brooks, in 1867, bought 100 shares Credit Mobilier stock and paid for it at the par price of $100 per share. Also, that Brooks bargained for the 50 shares placed in the name of his son-in-law Neilson. Also, that when Brooks paid for his Credit Mobilier stock he received 200 shares in the Union Pacific Railroad stock and $5,000 in first mortgage bonds of that company. Afterward he received $6,000 in Union Pacific stock. A few days subsequent to this the Secretary of the Credit Mobilier was to bring the books of that institution and of the Union Pacific before the Committee.

The question of admitting Colorado and Utah as States was before the House.

The Republican Legislative caucus, at Springfield, Illinois, nominated the Governor elect, R. J. Oglesby, for U. S. Senator.

The House Committee agreed to pay the Pacific Mail Steamship Company $1,000,000 per annum for the China mail service.

Senator Sumner's health continues feeble and he is unable to leave his room.

A subsidy of $1,000,000 for the China Mail Steamship Company is agreed to by the Committee on Appropriations, to take effect July 1st.

The town of Prescott, Arizona is to be incorporated.

The falls of the Willamette river, Oregon, are now passable by steamboats, the canal and locks having been completed.

A private letter just received in Washington from Georgia says in regard to the pending election before the Legislature of that State for United States Senator to succeed Hon. Joshua Hill, whose term of office expires in March next, that the result can not be predicted, but that the general opinion is that the race is between A. H. Stephens, Gordon and Johnson. For some time past the friends of Gen. Gordon have been hard at work, and were confident of success, but for some days past Stephens has taken the lead, and his friends express much confidence that he will be the successful candidate.

Personal.

We are pleased to notice the arrival among us on a visit from Inyo, the Hon. P. Laspeyre, who intends to visit San Francisco before he returns home. He is looking as well and as handsome as ever. We envy Inyo insomuch as she took from us one of our best citizens and most efficient county officers.—Havilah Miner.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

The Independence, Lida Valley and Gold Mountain Stage Line.

Three or four weeks since we made mention of the fact that a stage line, hence to Lida and Gold Mountain, was about to be established. It was put on and has been run regularly once a week since, but we made no subsequent allusion to it, prefering to wait until satisfied it was likely to become a permanent institution. Such it may now be considered although the present outlay, each trip, is about $75 more than the receipts but it is confidently expected that this unfavorable showing will soon pass away, but whether it does or not it behooves everyone in the valley nearly to give all the aid we consistently can towards its maintenance. The proprietors are not able to keep it up any great length of time without such aid and, if the wagons are drawn off the entire trade of that eastern region will go to Wadsworth. We will not only lose the advantage of its merchandise and passenger traffic, but also be cut off from a most promising market for our surplus products. The present outlook for that section is very encouraging and its trade is and will be of real importance to this valley generally, and which, with a little combined effort, can be made to command it almost as a whole. This line of stages is of the first importance to that end and let's give it a helping hand.

More Heavy Litigation.

The papers in two very important mining suits, involving many thousands of dollars, were filed in the Clerk's office during the past week. We know nothing as to the merits of the case, in either suit, but as the leading mines of the county are involved, possibly entailing a suspension of operations therein, this litigation will be looked upon as something of a general misfortune. The suits are entitled as follows: "The San Felipe Mining Company, a Corporation: Galen M. Fisher, Charles H. Wheeler and Alfred Wheeler, Plaintiffs, vs. M. W. Belshaw and Egbert Judson, partners under the name and style of M. W. Belshaw & Co., and Victor Beaudry, Defendants. An action to recover possession of 2,100 feet of San Felipe mine at Cerro Gordo, $20,000 damages and the value of the rents and profits at $1,000,000." "The San Felipe Mining Company, a Corporation: Galen M. Fisher and Alfred Wheeler, Plaintiffs, vs. M. W. Belshaw and Egbert Judson, partners under the name and style of M. W. Belshaw & Co., and Victor Beaudry, Defendants. Action for recovery of San Felipe Tunnel, $5,000 damages and $10,000 the value of the rents and profits."

P. W. Bennett, Esq.

We understand the county-seat-removalists have retained this gentleman to assist them in fighting through their legal points in reference to the injunction and election order. As a lawyer, we have not the slightest doubt but that Mr. Bennett will do full justice to the cause he has undertaken, although as an individual he has given them to distinctly understand that his feelings and influence are wholly with this place in regard to the result of the proposed vote. However successful he may be for his clients he certainly can't be any more zealous or work any harder than Mr. Miller, in the same cause, has already done. We presume Mr. Miller still "stays with the pot," though we have no definite information on the subject.

About Completed.

Mr. John Broder has his new two-story building (designed for butcher shop and offices) nearly ready for occupation. Mr. Broder is entitled to credit for his enterprise in adding to the town two of the best building in it, and something more than mere credit for his kindness toward the Blaney orphans, for whom he has, in one of these building, expended a large sum (over $6,000), without interest and without hope of repayment for a long time to come. Such generosity does him infinite credit.

The Third Punic War.

The troubles over that surplus from the "Relief Fund" are not yet ended. "The damned spot will not out." After a wordy war it was devoted to the construction of a school house. The school house is now finished, but the cash is non comeatable, and in lieu of his $1,600 John Alexander, the contractor, still holds on to the building, and there is a prospect for some lawyers to get a fee.

In a New Line.

Mr. J. L. Darrah has purchased all of Mr. Earl's interest in our local stage lines, and in lieu of freighting ores from Cerro Gordo, will hereafter devote his entire time to the staging business. See the new advertisement in reference to those lines. Miers & Furguson continue the freighting business hitherto done by Darrah & Miers, though Mr. Darrah still retains an interest therein.

Changed Hands.

Mr. J. L. Bourland, of Bishop Creek, has purchased Paul Bennett's former residence, and the little farm attached, located just south of this office. We do not know whether Mr. Bourland intends to make that his place of residence or not, but for that purpose no prettier can be found in this vicinity. The price paid was, we believe, about $1,600.

Benton Affairs.

We learn that Mr. Albert Mack and a gentleman named Powning have purchased the Leete mill at Benton, and that the entire indebtedness of the concern has been satisfactorily arranged. The mill will be started up at once under the foremanship of Mr. Partz, a very competent man. We presume our old friend D. P. Pierce retains his position, though we have no definite information to that effect. Anyhow he is one of the best men of the country, and a first rate mill man, and never "colics" about anything, so if he ain't boss of that institution we really think he ought to be. We hear nothing as to the whereabouts of that honest man and financier William Leete, but suppose that he is enjoying his hard earnings in peace and quietness in some retired Arcadian grove, where there are none to molest or fright his innocent soul away.

Singular Circumstance.

We are indebted to W. L. Moore (late Under-Sheriff) for the appended note, which he found together with an old saddle, frying pan and some clothes on the 16th of the present month, at a point on the east side of the river, some four or five miles northeast of Lone Pine. In addition to the foregoing we have no explanation of this apparent mystery other than the inference to be drawn from the note itself, which we give verbatim, save a most obscene and defiant postscript: "This is the remainders of Charles Packwood from Swansea, this old saddle is Henry Davises cole [coal] camp. I have left everything that I left Swansea with. now I am going to dround myself two hundred yards from here—so good by friends & foes. CHAS. PACKWOOD, or TRIMBLE.

Kiss, — —," etc., etc.

Off Again.

Mr. J. Earl starts to-morrow for the Bay, intending to go thence to Washington. If there is any man in the county that deserves well for public spirited efforts in its behalf Mr. Earl is the man, not alone for what he may intend to do but for what he has already done, and taking the past as the criterion for the future, we wish him the highest success in his undertakings, whatever they may be.

A Full Board.

Judge Hannah has appointed Mr. F. H. Burroughs, of Lone Pine, as Supervisor from the First District, vice John Simpson, three months absent. Mr. Burroughs is one of the best men of the country, and well qualified for the position to which he has been appointed. In these "trying times" the place should have been filled long ago.

County Court.

His Honor Judge Hannah of the County Court disposed of the case of Barbour vs. Earl & Co. (judgment for defendants,) and Hunt vs. Dobbie, jury trial (verdict for plaintiff), this week, and adjourned the Court for the term.

A New Firm.

Messrs. Wilson & Gage, two gentleman of Bakersfield, have purchased Mr. Gardner's painting business here, and are now ready to do all work in that line. They come well recommended, and doubtless understand their business in all its details. See their ad.

An Excellent Pen.

We have been favored with a sample card of the celebrated Spencerian Steel Pens, and after trying them quite thoroughly are convinced of their superior merit. These pens are comprised in fifteen numbers, each differing in flexibility and fineness of point, so that the most fastidious penman cannot fail to find among these numbers just such a pen as suits him. The Spencerian pens are famous for their elasticity of movement, smoothness of point and great durability, and are a nearer approximation to the real Swan Quill Pen than anything hitherto made. They are manufactured in England under the supervision of the original inventor of steel pens, the venerable Josiah Mason, and Joseph Gillott—the latter making a few of the numbers after the models of the late P. R. Spencer, the famous penman. For the convenience of those who may wish to try them, a sample card of the Spencerian pens may be had by mail by enclosing 25 cents to Messrs. Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., 138 and 140 Grand street, N. Y., or the pen may be bought at any store where pens are sold.

The Narrow-Guage.

A railroad meeting was held at the Court house last Wednesday. A. W. Roysdon, A. J. Atwell and Hon. Thomas Fowler addressed our citizens on the subject of the proposed narrow-guage road to Stockton. About $7,500 additional were subscribed to the stock. Solomon Sweet took $4,000, and Senator Fowler took $2,000 and will subscribe more. About $100,000 of stock have now been taken in this county. Porterville, true to her ever generous instincts, comes to the front with a most liberal subscription to the capital stock of the narrow-guage railroad company. Messrs. Atwell and Roysdon addressed the people of that place on the subject last Monday, and $14,000 of stock was subscribed by the few present at the meeting. They promise that $30,000 shall be taken in their community.—Tulare Times, Jan. 4.

—A boy born on the Union Pacific Railroad's western bound train, near a little town in Utah Territory, has been named "Ulysses Pacific."

The Apache War.

A San Diego dispatch of the 10th gives the following interesting item from The Arizona Citizen of the 4th instant:

News has been received by Gen. Crook from Major Brown, stating that his command, aided by friendly Pima Indians and one troop of cavalry under Capt. Burns, had a severe fight with the Apaches at Salt River. The Apaches were intrenched in natural fortifications and fought so recklessly and stubbornly that it took five hours to dislodge them. Fifty-seven of the Apaches were killed and many wounded. Twenty-three were taken prisoners. Major Brown had with him a number of Apaches from Camp Grant, who fought well and were extremely obedient and docile. The Citizen says, editorially, that during the past six months the killed and captured Apaches must amount to hundreds, and that Gen. Crook is doing his work well. It also says that while the people dread and deplore the necessity of these deadly battles with the Apaches, it is evident that fighting alone will give to Arizona the peace and safety so long deferred.

SHERIFF'S SALE.

BY VIRTUE OF AN EXECUTION ISSUED OUT of the County Court of the county of Inyo, State of California, in the case of the People of the State of California against Peter Peerson, Justice of the Peace of Third Township in said county of Inyo, upon a judgment rendered in said County Court in Chambers on the 23d day of December, A. D. 1872, for the sum of Fifty Dollars fine, and Forty-three 75-100 Dollars cost of suit besides accruing costs, duly attested the 28th day of December, A. D. 1872, and to me directed and delivered, I have levied upon all the right, title and interest of the said defendant Peter Peerson, J. P., in and to the following described real estate, to-wit: A certain piece of land situated near the town of Lone Pine, and lying on the north side of John Lucas' ranch, being the same land that was deeded by Wm. L. Moore to H. C. Hart and the place where the said Peter Peerson now lives, together with all the improvements and appurtenances thereunto belonging, all of which is situated in the county of Inyo, State of California. Notice is hereby given that on MONDAY, THE TWENTY-SEVENTH DAY OF JANUARY, A. D 1873, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M., in front of the Sheriff's office (there being no Court House), in the town of Independence, county of Inyo, State of California, I will sell all the right, title and interest of the said defendant Peter Peerson, J. P., in and to the above described real property, or so much thereof as will be sufficient to satisfy the judgment and all costs in this action, to the highest and best bidder for cash in hand.

C. MULKEY, Sheriff,

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Napoleon and the Rebellion.

The death of the ex-Emperor Napoleon recalls an incident of the great Southern Rebellion which has not hitherto been made public. It is well known that the late Emperor of the French was an active and earnest sympathizer with the South; that more than once he seriously meditated material intervention in their behalf; that the invasion of Mexico and the enthronement of Maximilian in the seat of the Montezumas was a part of a deliberate plot to break up the American Union. But to what lengths he proceeded—how resolutely determined he was to carry his fell design into execution—has never been fully known outside of a narrow official circle. The story of his purpose is short but suggestive, and was told by Mr. Seward to a few personal friends at a dinner party:

"It was," said Mr. Seward, "in the darkest days of the rebellion. Disaster upon disaster had befallen the Union armies. Treason was active and bold fronted at Washington in the north and in the west. Rebel emissaries and their allies were plotting against us over the Canadian border. Rebel cruisers were being fitted out in British ports and sent to prey upon our commerce; Germany was coldly neutral; the smaller European States were indifferent spectators of the conflict; Russia was the only friend we had among the powers of the earth.

"In this desperate emergency I received an autograph letter from the Emperor of the French. It was marked 'private and confidential.' It began with expressions of personal regard for myself, and pain at the spectacle of the great Republic in the throes of dissolution. 'Personally,' said Napoleon 'I could wish the cause of the Union to succeed. But the welfare of France and the force of popular opinion are paramount to individual sympathies. Our commercial interests are seriously suffering from the prolongation of your war. My subjects appeal to me to arrest the bloody conflict. I must obey the voice of France at whatever cost. You cannot put down the rebellion; embrace the earliest opportunity to make terms with the South. If you fail to do this, I shall feel compelled, in the interests of my country—in the interests of civilization—to intervene with all the power at my command.'

"I answered Napoleon's insulting letter immediately. I did not waste words in compliments. I said: 'This is a family quarrel. We propose to settle it in our own way and in our own time. We do not wish the assistance of outsiders; we will not brook interference. The American Union is to be preserved. It shall be preserved if it takes twenty years to do it. The war is hardly commenced yet; the people are just beginning to warm to the work. We wish to be on good terms with France, our ancient friend and ally. But you must keep your hands off. If you presume to interfere, we will show you what a free people battling for national existence are capable of. Hitherto we have conducted the war humanely, in accordance with the codes that govern the most Christian States. Interference on your part will be a signal for a war of conquest and destruction. We will free the negroes; we will put arms in their hands, and send them forth to ravage and plunder. We will make the South a waste and a desolation. Raise a hand against us, and horrors worse than those of San Domingo will be seen from one end of the South to the other.'

"The letter was sent by the first steamer. The same day I telegraphed to Thurlow Weed, Archbishop Hughes and Bishop Simpson to meet me at the Astor House the morning following. That evening I left for New York and explained to these eminent gentlemen the objects of the conference and the new danger that threatened the Union cause. I told them that they must at once go to Europe, to labor unofficially with the Government and ruling classes in England and on the Continent, to represent the wickedness, danger and folly of foreign interference. In less than a week they were on their journey, reached Europe at a most opportune moment (Mason and Slidell had just been seized—England was in a white heat of rage) and did much toward convincing Europe that the proper thing and the only thing to do was to leave us alone. And the mission cost the Government less than $7,000."

An Emperor Dead.

[From The Sacramento Union.]

Charles Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, better known as Louis Napoleon, late Emperor of France, made King of Holland (1806) by his brother Napoleon the First, was born in Paris April 20th, 1808, and died yesterday morning January 9th, at 10:45, at Chiselhurst, Kent county, England, in the 65th year of his age. His mother was Hortense Eugenie, the beautiful daughter of the Empress Josephine, by her first husband, Gen. Beauharnais. This marriage took place in 1802 while Louis held the appointment of Embassador to St. Petersburg, he being then twenty-four years of age, and his wife, Hortense, nineteen. It was an enforced marriage to strengthen the personal and family influence of Napoleon, then First Consul for life, and meditating the usurpation of imperial honors and title. It was an unhappy marriage, because the lady's heart did not go with her hand, because she had loved and not yet forgotten Gen. Desaix, the hero whose life purchased the victory of Marengo, and because the man whom policy gave her as a husband was in all things the reverse of what a woman of Hortense's aspirations craved. They lived together a cat-and-dog life, if the general gossip of the times may be credited, till about the year 1810, when they separated, Hortense returning to the Emperor's court at Paris, and Louis, being forced by the Emperor to abdicate the throne of Holland, retiring to private life in Styria, as the Count of St. Leu. He lived till 1846, dying at Ajaccio, Corsica, his native town. His wife died at Arenenberg, Switzerland, nine years before, in 1837. There was an elder brother, named Napoleon, who died in Italy in 1831. But the younger one was always the favorite with the Emperor, and as the mother retained the children, he was brought up in the Imperial family. There were rumors, more or less credited, that from the birth of her first child, and after the separation of Louis and Hortense, she lived a dissolute life in Paris, varied with intrigues in politics and love. These, like others of a like kind touching the Corsican blood, were possibly of English origin, where the Pitt and Burke party encouraged the grossest libels on the Bonapartes from the mother of the Emperor down to the children of his brothers and sisters. One of these English stories was that the second son of Hortense was not the son of the King of Holland, but of Admiral Vernel, a dutch naval officer. Another rumor, far more plausible, is that the late Count de Morney was the illegitimate half-brother of Napoleon III, and that his father was the Count de Flahaut, a favorite lover of Hortense. A writer in the American Encyclopedia makes this remark touching the scandal about the paternity of the ex-Emperor: "It is known," he says, "that Louis Bonaparte had a warm dispute with his brother, the Emperor, touching this child, which he averred to be none of his, and that his unwillingness to recognize it as such was only overcome by the most decided measures on the part of Napoleon." And, in spite of charity, the world will b apte to pardon the husband's suspicions, since it is an admitted fact that the wife gave birth to the late Count de Morney while she was still legally wedded to the ex-King of Holland.

—When the epizootic broke out in Chicago an expressman bought a horse badly affected with the distemper. He got him for $89, and began to dose him with a pint of gin and ginger twice a day. The stimulants kept up the spirits of the animal so that he worked all the time, and in less than a week earned $192. Unfortunately, however, the horse has acquired a taste for intoxicating liquor and cannot do without it now. He smells it as he passes by saloons, and insists upon stopping; neither will he eat his food unless thus seasoned.

THE NEXT ELECTION.

Already that historical cauldron is beginning to bubble in anticipation of the election next Fall. The Sacramento Union in an able editorial on the subject says it will not be, an issue between Democrats and Republicans as parties, but the People versus Stanford or railroad monopolies. The next Legislature is to elect a U. S. Senator, and The Union says it behooves the people to see now and at once that the election primarily is not manipulated by railroad schemers, which involves the election of either Gorham or Standford himself to the United States Senate. With respect to this great monopoly the representatives of both the political parties have proven derelict in their obligations to the people, since each in turn in the last two Legislatures has gone body and soul into Stanford's hands. Such being the facts, The Union says, neither of these parties can give any guarantee at all that it will stand between the people and the encroachments of this overshadowing incorporation, therefore a people's party, distinct and separate from either of the others, is the only hope.

Whether that paper is correct or not in its statements and opinions as a whole, this fact is strikingly true, that by far the safest plan of action is to elect men to the Legislature, and indirectly a U. S. Senator, who, from the people's standpoint, are on the safe side of this all important question. Such men will deny railroads no just rights, it is fair to presume, while on the other hand those committed in advance directly to that interest, will overslaugh without compunction every right and claim of the public as against those, bona fide or alleged, of the soulless paymaster they represent. Such men work for money, and of course for those who pay the most, which in the nature of the case is not the public; and as a further matter of course, men who work for money, as here implied, are not to be trusted at all.

So far as we are personally concerned, and in that we do not differ from the general sentiment of the people, we are decided advocates of railroads, in all particulars save one. That may be inferred from this: That they become a curse to any country or people when they attempt, as those of this coast are now doing, to make every other interest subservient to their own. In that they must be met and checked before the evil becomes unbearable or beyond remedy, which if not so already in the last particular is certain to be the case sooner or later, if we as a people do not strain every nerve to prevent it. So long as they persist and we remain a free people, this must be a most important issue in general elections. Though but indirectly interested, it is a matter of as much importance, in one sense, to the people of this section as any other, and before matters are definitely fixed in regard to the next election, it is right and proper that this matter should receive due consideration.

In regard to local issues the next election is likely to be the most important yet held in this county. First, it will probably, almost certainly, be the last chance we will have for Legislative representatives for many years to come. Second, it may be impossible for us to avail ourselves of this last chance, since the threatened dismemberment of the county will probably put it out of our power to elect a local representative. The election will result as before with regard to the Tuolumne or Mono nominees. No man of either party can possibly be elected as Representative in the next Legislature who will not unequivocably pledge himself to oppose that mean and foolish scheme, first, last and all the time—and the reverse may be equally true, not from force of numbers of the advocates of that side, but force of circumstances with regard to the vote of the other two counties of the district. The foregoing covers, in effect, the whole ground of both the local and general issue to be considered in the county election.

The Joe Walker Mill.

The Joe Walker mill will commence crushing rock taken from the Cumberland mine in a few days. The mine is a quarter of a mile from the Joe Walker mine, the rock is very rich and there is plenty of it.—Havilah Miner, Jan. 18.

—Connecticut's meanest man lives in New London and keeps a lager beer saloon. He rewarded the person who found his pocket book, containing $200, the other morning, by offering to shake him for the drinks.

THOSE CONTRACTS AGAIN.

Mr. Alexander appears to have persuaded himself (with the aid of a few disinterested friends, perhaps) into the conviction that some way or other he was considerably abused by the Board when they caused his bids to go by the board. Now the fact was the abuse was all the other way, as we shall try and explain pretty soon. As our very honorable District Attorney has also taken occasion to make the same fiction, supported by his solemn "davy" (which of course, gives it great weight), an important part in his attempt to blacken the characters of honorable men in the suit entitled "Inyo County vs. the Board of Supervisor," or "Miller's Defeat"—and as others still are strenuously working to deceive the public in this and similar matters in an endeavor to give color to the wilfully false and indecent charge of corruption, fraud and favoritism on the part of the gentlemen of the then Board of Supervisors—accusing them of violating their oath of office—the perverted facts relating to this bid of Alexander's being the base of these charges made by men who measure everything in their own half-bushel—we shall again take the trouble to give all the essential facts in the otherwise unimportant case sufficiently in detail to prove both the animus and falsity of these disgraceful accusations or implications.

On Friday, September 13 last (not Monday, the 16th, as asserted by Mr. Alexander) the contract for building the three bridges was awarded to Mr. Alexander as the lowest legitimate bidder. After the formal award there yet remained the essentially important items of the time of completing the work, the time of payments and the amount of the bond to be given. These matters were discussed at length and in the presence of a dozen or more persons, we being among the number, therefore the real sum and tenor of the terms then agreed upon and accepted verbally by both the contracting parties could have been positively established in any court of law with or without, or even in the face of a written record, if, in the latter event, its purport was different or opposed to the understood intent of the verbal agreement which formed the base for the action of Alexander toward the fulfilment of the only remaining condition to perfect the contract. The bearing of this remark will appear directly. To all intents and purposes it was a perfect contract and beyond the control of the party of the first part, but not so with the second, except in the conditions of acceptance. He could withdraw at any moment he decided not to go ahead, while the Board could do nothing of the kind during the whole of the six days (seven including the first and last) in which he kept the Board and others dancing attendance upon his futile endeavors to do a thing that he, as a first condition, ought to have known he could or could not have done before he interposed a bid to interfere with the routine of important public or private business, it matters not which.

If his judgment as to the value of the work to be done, based on elaborate figuring, was worthy of endorsement by such bondsmen then his judgment as to the time was none the less so. But we will first review the actual proceedings of the Board in this matter.

The agreement in brief was this: The first bridge was to be completed in 90 days from date, and then be paid for in full without reference to the other two, each of which was to be paid for in like manner, but not in either case until satisfactorily cleared of all liens for labor and material. Four months was allowed in which to complete the two last. The contract price for the whole was $13,500, as near as could be determined, the length of the approaches not being definitely fixed. The bond was $4,500 more, or $18,000.

Those were the terms agreed upon and accepted as satisfactory by all the high contracting parties. The contractor, however, previously asked for an advance which the Board were at first in favor of allowing, as the money for the work was lying idle and otherwise useless, but this was overruled for this reason, which, however, was not intended as impugning the integrity of anyone in particular: The structure could be completed by the contractor (who had received his pay), be accepted by the county, which would release the bonds, and then by reason of unpaid liens the bridge and the advance both be lost. However extreme or improbable this result it was a chance that could not be taken by any responsible public agent or business man. All this is necessary to show the spirit which characterized the acts of the Board, which in this and similar matters, have been so meanly maligned by this same Alexander, et id genus omne.

The successful bidder was given until the next Tuesday (four days) in which to hunt up his bonds, which, figuratively speaking, were yet running wild without mark or brand on the plains, and he without rope, corral or anything prepared to secure a single one! He did not get any; none could be had, as he came back and reported, without more time and the written agreement with which to toll them in. Both were allowed. Here comes in the transcendent abilities of the county's legal adviser, the same that afterwards made the affidavit. After much delay he reduced the contract to writing; reduced it considerably, it seems, for while left otherwise substantially the same as above, no reference was made to the payment by instalments; such is Mr. Alexander's statement, as also, that this writing was supervised and approved by the member from his own district, Mr. Simpson, a committee of one appointed for that duty. He was given till the following Thursday the 19th, till 2, P. M. (in all, one day more than was consumed in creating the world) to fill that $18,000 bond. He sallied forth to corral his bondsmen but met with difficulties, or fell by the wayside, for he never came back again, except by proxy. Bondsmen in his section were much wilder then than afterwards when they thought it would tend much to their local advantage to retain a certain official in his position, which, otherwise, he might have to vacate. But that was an error, the like of which pretty good men sometimes fall into, the same as young Franklin in regard to his whistle.

On their own volition, as we happen personally to know, the Board again extended the time for the appearance of those mythical bonds from the 2 P. M. of the seventh day till nearly sundown of the same, when the proxy came and said: "It was impossible for Mr. Alexander to procure the required bond without more time (say ten days) for that purpose, but the time in which to finish the structures must also be extended to six months, and the bond," he thought, "could be obtained," and everything would be serene. The party of the first begged to be excused; the bidder, they explained in effect, was disposed to work much cheaper than anyone else and on that account, if no other, they were anxious to give him the job, but as they had already waited many days on mere verbal promises, they felt that to be consistent with their duties to the public they really thought it would be stretching their powers beyond their proper legal tension to postpone a very much needed work, and that too on the strength of merely a verbal promise of an irresponsible third party whose principal had repeatedly failed in his. There was nothing new, strange or oppressive in the conditions of this contract; nothing but what any competent business contractor would have anticipated and provided for within a reasonable degree of certainty before interfering, by irresponsible bids, in the execution of important public business. It was an imposition on the people, and more tangibly, upon their agents to thus abuse their faith and confidence, and make fools of them, to use an expressive vulgarism. But neither proxy, principal, aiders or abettors have ever excused that Board to this day for acting on Mr. Simpson's motion to rescind the original order, which was then done.

There is no reasonable doubt but that Mr. Alexander entered into this business in good faith. His failure to perfect it was in no sense criminal; his neglect to make the most common provision in advance to insure the completion of his undertaking would have been excusable, notwithstanding the false position in which he placed himself and others for so long a time—all this might and would have been passed over without remark or feeling but for his, and certain of his friends, brazen attempt to make capital out of his failure for which he was alone responsible, by taxing it upon others, whose only fault in the premises was in being too lenient toward his pretentions.

But it is done for a purpose, the same that is involved in these technical lawsuits, the groundwork of which it is part and parcel. Let those who are to be influenced into a particular line of action through such shallow means look at the actual facts and then judge of the spirit which prompts the system that these men have adopted to carry their ends. The representatives of the people are impugned in their private character and public capacity, in whichlast they are forced to defend their acts in expensive lawsuits brought against them on just such grounds as above given. And for what purpose? Simply that the people of this county are not to be trusted to give an expression to their desires on the pending issue on its simple merits. Prejudice must be created, where it does not already exist; and, we will remark, these gentlemen who sustain these suits will in that particular aim, be successful beyond their highest hopes if they persist—but to their own sorrow. It will beyond peradventure morally damn every one of them individually and beat their cause besides. People are not fools. They will not be forced to foot bills which in, one way and other, will surely equal the whole cost of the structure, to prevent the building of which, for a time at least, this expense is to be incurred, or, if not for that object alone, for none that can result in good.

A VERY GOOD PROPOSITION.

We learn from Mr. I. W. Hunt that a number of gentleman, himself being included, of Lone Pine, Swansea and Independence propose organizing and incorporating a Toll Road Company, having in view the improvement of our main thoroughfare from this place south to the southern boundary of the county.

The plan of operations may be outlined as follows: To present a petition to the Board of Supervisors at the next regular meeting asking a charter for the right of way, and power to collect tolls on a road to be built on or near the present traveled route from Independence and Lone Pine to Indian Wells. If this petition is granted, work will be begun immediately, commencing at Lone Pine, thence running south, and as soon as possible there after the company will proceed to incorporate with a capital of $25,000, ten per cent. of which has to be paid in under the laws of the State on incorporating. The work of constructing the road is to be divided up into sections, as may hereafter be agreed upon, tolls to be charged only upon the completed sections, and in proportionate rates. This is the plan in brief for the preliminaries.

A good road over that route is a matter of prime necessity to the best interests of the county. There is little or no probability that the county will ever attempt to construct such a road. It will depend wholly upon private enterprise without doubt. At this time there are portions of the present road, over which almost the entire freighting of the county is done, that is practically impassible for heavy teams. This is the case not only in the numerous places south of Lone Pine, but in more than two or three places between that town and this. With labor and money all of these can be remedied or avoided, as well as the greater part of the weary and, to a heavy loaded team, almost hopeless stretches of deep sand. This is to be done by grading a road on the solid ground along the foot of the mountains, by which means it is said nearly all of those stretches can be avoided. As between a good road upon which tolls have to be paid, and such a one as we now have, the question of tolls is a matter of no consideration whatever with freighters, because the freighting capacity of every such team is sufficiently increased to more than compensate this outlay, while the gain in time is in a still greater ratio. Owing to the mud in various places, at this time, teams consume whole days in moving over a space that with a good road would not require as many hours.

We make these remarks not because they are new in general, but because they are specially applicable to the matter in hand. Everybody knows that this southern road is a bad one, by reason of which the people of this county, and the teamsters as well, are taxed with a dead loss of very many thousand dollars every year, if not every month. The proposition under consideration is the first and only one that has yet been submitted looking to an immediate and practical remedy for this great drawback. It does not propose to interfere, except to a very limited extent, where from the nature of the ground it is unavoidable, with the present so-called county road, so no one is compelled to travel the toll road if they prefer the other. With proper restrictions and understanding as to details incorporated in the charter, it occurs to us that this proposed enterprise is worthy of every encouragement from us as a people.

Our immense freighting interest, which covers every other, imperatively demands better facilities than is now afforded by the present road. The railroad will soon reach this side of the Tehechepi, which is to be our point of connection, and we will either have to build a good road to it by general taxation or by special in the way of tolls as here proposed.

In conclusion, for the present, we will remark, however, that the parties interested ask nothing more than the charter, having at command all necessary funds for the purpose in view, but we lay their plans before the public for general consideration before any definite action is taken. If there are any objections now is the time to bring them forward.

Hundreds of Human Beings Perish—Whole Herds of Cattle Frozen.

Accounts of the loss of life in the recent terrible storm in Iowa, Minnesota and Dakotah, continues to be received. There is now no doubt that hundreds of human beings perished and thousands of head of stock. In Minnesota and Dakotah whole herds of cattle froze to death. Among the cases which show the fearful character of the storm is that of Mr. Hempstead and wife, of Dakotah. The man was away from home when the storm came on. He managed to reach home, but found his wife out caring for the stock He went to search for her, and both were since found side by side, frozen to death within forty rods of their own door.

Almost a Fire.

As the result of a most stupid piece of carelessness, Judge Hanson's house (the residence of Mr. Rhine) was set on fire on Tuesday last, and but for the timely discovery by a neighbor, that building, the Masonic Hall and probably the greater part of the town would have been consumed. A stove had been removed from one of the rooms to accommodate the children's party of the evening before. A man about the place replaced this stove, but instead of passing the pipe through the safety flue, provided for the purpose in the roof, left the upper end immediately in contact with the underside of the shingles, and then proceeded to light a good fire in the stove. As a very natural result the roof was soon in flames, but were fortunately discovered and extinguished before any material damage was done.

Impassable.

We hear it from several persons that the stage road along the foot of the Alabama mountains is almost entirely impassable for even light teams, much less heavy ones. For some distance along them the road is entirely under water, and it is imperatively necessary that something should be done to remedy the trouble at once, or the mails will have to be carried on horseback. Two hundred dollars will be sufficient to cut a new road around this place back on good ground, and that amount will have to be raised by contribution in this town and from parties residing along the road. The sooner a responsible toll road company is authorized to take this road business in hand the better.

The Rights of Property.

Under-Sheriff J. J. Moore held a court Monday and Tuesday last to determine the ownership of certain property attached by plaintiff in a suit entitled Burroughs vs. Alexander, originally tried in Justice Peerson's court. The property attached was claimed by Robert Arnold, Alexander's title to it being denied. A jury consisting of the following named gentleman was impannelled: Wm. Squires, B. L. Brown, G. W. Brady, A. Parker, John Broder and S. A. Densmore. P. Reddy appeared for Burroughs, and Judge Snelling for Arnold. The trial occupied the greater part of two days, resulting in a verdict for Arnold.

Enforcement of the Sunday Law.

On complaint, John R. Hughes, K. C. Johnson, Lola Travis and Mrs. Moore were arraigned before Justice Fox of Cerro Gordo, on Monday last, on charge of violating the Sunday law in regard to the selling of liquors. A plea of guilty was entered, when they were severally fined in the sums of $10 and $15 each. The saloons had been duly closed for several Sundays previous, but they concluded to keep them open for once, with the result stated. Up to the present time little or no attention has been paid to the law either in this place or Lone Pine.

Promoted.

First-Lieutenant W. E. Dove, the popular, well-known officer of Camp Independence, has received his commission as Captain, and ordered to the command of Co. "C" and Fort Hall, Idaho. The officer's many friends in the county will learn of his deserved promotion with pleasure, but their feelings will not be unmixed with regret, since the change involves his transfer from this post.

Destructive Whirlwind.

A report reaches us that Daneri's new warehouse and store building at Cartago was recently completely destroyed by a whirlwind, but we have been unable to obtain the particulars.

New Hotel.

Ball's new hotel, at Lone Pine, is receiving its furniture, and will shortly be thrown open for the accommodation of the public.

Board of Supervisors—Special Session.

Board of Supervisors met Saturday, January 18. Present T. K. Hutchison, President, and A. N. Bell. These bills were allowed and ordered paid as follows:

The sum of $5,000 paid E. Chaquette as per contract, for the Big Pine bridge, out of the Interest and Building Fund.

P. Reddy, attorney's fees in the case of "Inyo County vs. the Board of Supervisors," on the General Fund, $500.

M. W. Hammarstrand, cash paid to Bancroft & Co. books, blanks, expressage, etc., Contingent Fund, $51.

Forty days additional time was granted E. Chaquette in which to complete Bend City bridge.

Ordered, that the District Attorney dismiss the suit entitled "Inyo County vs. the Board of Supervisors."

Adjourned until the regular term in February.

Amicably Arranged.

We intimated last week that there was a speck of intestine war threatening the citizens of our aspiring neighbor, Lone Pine, in regard to the new school house. It proves to have been but a mere speck after all, and due to causes quite different to what we had been led to believe, but since we gave no details before, it is not necessary to do so now, other than to say the actual cost of the building was a number of hundred dollars more than was originally anticipated, and it was a question as to who were the proper parties to make up the deficiency. It was amicably arranged, however, the citizens making up the sum deficient and receiving the building, which is said to be by odds the best school house in the county. In floor dimensions it is 36x22, with a ten-foot ante-room attached. It is weather-boarded and ceiled throughout with redwood, and fitted with sash doors, and an abundance of windows, teachers' desks, book-cases and forms all of San Francisco make and the most approved style. The whole cost was $2,700. School began on Monday last, there being some 30 pupils in attendance. The teacher, Mr. D. W. B. McKay, late of Yolo county, is well-qualified, and there is a well-founded reason to hope that he will be a fine educator of the young and a useful member of that growing community.

Birthday Party.

Miss Alice Rhine gave a party to her juvenile friends Monday evening last, the eighth anniverary of her birthday. The youngest member of THE INDEPENDENT family attended, and as in duty bound reports the same as follows: "I was to a party. It was a birthday party. A party of girls. One of 'em got to be older one year than usual. The girls at the party were lots. One of them was strong. She threw me down and hurt my nose. That's how reporters allers gets hurt. I was mad and ate 3 cakes and 2 gum babies. They were sweeter than the girl who threw me down and hurt my nose. I am sleepy, but will eat one more cake and two gum babies. Good night all. WILLIE CHALFANT."

Lusus Naturæ.

This interesting story comes from Bishop Creek: One day last Spring a peculiarly marked or spotted dog belonging to Mr. Sneden, chased a rabbit with great suddeness into the midst of a band of sheep belonging to Mr. J. W. Inman. Subsequently some lambs were born to that flock, and among the rest is one, now nearly grown, which in his every movement, color, spots and texture of his "wool," which wool is simply unadulterated dog's hair, is as near as possible the exact counterpart of that dog.

Inyo Drug Store.

Our readers will not fail to read the new advertisement of the gentlemanly and well-known druggist, Dr. P. G. Gelcich, of Lone Pine, who, having located himself in his new building, calls the attention of the public to his stock and business. The learned Doctor is one of the most successful practitioners in the county, and has a host of friends. But he has one bad trait—that of being School Trustee, all same as our Senior.

Water.

The troubles of Cerro Gordo in relation to the scarcity of water seem to be on the increase, owing to the lack, so far, of the usual Winter snows. It is to be hoped that the Boushey company will hurry up their proposed operations, or else the town will be in a bad row of stumps. But with the introduction of water it will become the livliest camp in the State.

Experimental.

S. G. Sneden, the well known merchant of Bishop Creek, is experimenting on the time and cost of the different routes for freight to this country, having lots of goods in transitu by the different routes of Los Angeles, Bakersfield, Carson and Wadsworth. A statement of the result would not be uninteresting.

Signs.

The finishing coats of paint are being put upon the Harris & Rhine building, as well as the lettering of the signs. The interior of the immense establishment is literally loaded with vast piles of merchandise, from which a dozen ordinary retail houses could be comfortably fixed out.

All Going.

Both the Cerro Gordo furnaces are in steady operation, and on an average 250 bars of bullion are shipped each day.

"Wich is P. M."

We notice by the official reports that J. W. McMurry, Esq., has been appointed Postmaster for Big Pine.

An Enterprising Horse Thief.

In the line of our duty as a recorder of local events we have occasionally had to relate the doings of some bold and persistent horse-thieves, but none quite so much so as one Moracio, whose career since his advent to this county sums up about as follows: Arriving, originally, some six months since with a band of horses stolen from Los Angeles, he succeeded in disposing of them in the southern portion of the county. His next move was to freeze to a lot of stock near Lone Pine, including a span of valuable mules belonging to Col. Stevens. In his leisurely trip northward he, with a pard or two, incidentally picked up sixty odd head from J. C. Butler, near Belmont. Sheriff Mulkey, reaching that point in his pursuit, learned that the citizens were out on the trail, returned home, knowing that should he effect their capture the Nye county officers would hold the prisoners. However, the thieves were taken by the citizens, after the serious wounding of one of them, and placed in jail at Belmont. While the Sheriff and posse were trying to recapture an escaped prisoner, Moracio and his remaining pard took unofficial leave from the premises—and in connection with this it is not stated that the officers of Nye county are entitled to the highest meed of praise for their efficiency. Our industrious thief, supposed to be wending his way to the wilds of Montana, retraces his steps and fetches up with another band at his camp near a little lake some four miles south of Lone Pine. On Saturday last, Mr. Mulkey having heard of their whereabouts sent a man into their camp to take items, ostensibly to inquire after stock. A plan for their capture was immediately arranged, but upon the arrival of Mr. Mulkey and party the birds had flown, leaving everything in camp except their saddle horses. From attendant circumstances it was concluded that they would return, so after dark Mr. Mulkey gathered up the stock advertised elsewhere and waited all night for them to return, but they didn't come. On the same night (as afterwards transpires) they proceeded to Gomez' ranch at Big Lake, begged some supper, took four head of loose stock and started for other scenes. They are being pursued, and may yet be happy in the stone mansion hard by the bay of San Francisco.

Swindling.

Constable R. D. Parker on Sunday last arrested a man under the name of Henry Smith, on a warrant sworn out by Wood & Cohen, on these grounds: On the Friday previous, this Smith, or whatever his name his, purchased a small amount of goods at their store, tendering in payment an O. L. S-L. Co. San Francisco check, drawn in favor of L. Laski, Lone Pine, and calling for $154. The check, however, was not endorsed by Laski, but was accepted by Wood when endorsed by this "Henry Smith," and the change in coin given on the presumption that it was through an oversight that Laski had not endorsed it before paying it to Smith. It was soon ascertained that Laski had never seen the check, it having been lost by, or stolen from, his little boy soon after its original payment to him. Payment in San Francisco was stopped, and a duplicate received. It then became a matter of some interest to Wood & Cohen to know what had become of this not over particular member of the Smith family and his pard. They were overhauled a short distance above Big Pine, they being detained one day in their travels by the temporary loss of a horse. The pard was allowed to proceed but "Henry" was brought back, and will try and explain next Wednesday how he became to be so deceived.

A Krewiel Parient.

A Lone Piner sends us the following gushing epistle, but neglects to state whether he came by it from first hands—i. e., the writer's—or not: "SAN BERNEDO, May 12. Mr. ---- kind sir after my most affictionate regards (did I say regards) I say love my honoured father has taken into his head that we must not git married, and I am to be sent off to morrow to Cousin --- in San Diego Co, and that he (my father) is to tell you that I have declined your suit, Now my dear sir if such reports reach your ear I beseech you to not listen to them, for it is all a deep laid scheme to mar our happiness and ruin our future bliss. Believe me sir I am the same to night that I was when we plited hearts and hands on the placed waters of the San Gabriel River. The time will come when I shall return and you will find me the same Louise in life yae in death. I write on my knee by moonlight, on the wood pile when all are asleep. Yours till life and its issues shall end ---—"

Fire Extinguishers.

Judge W. A. Fox, of Cerro Gordo, is the agent for the celebrated Babcock self-acting fire extinguishers, and we presume will shortly set forth their use and advantages to our business men. From a familiarity with their workings we are convinced that they are almost indispensible to hotels and large business houses, and are the next best thing to a regular engine and fire company in a town having plenty of water.

County Warrants.

There is $1,604 25 in the contingent fund of the county treasury for the redemption of such warrants as holders may properly propose to surrender. Having no warrants, this concern don't intend to "go for" any of it.

Still Below.

Major Egbert and Lieut. Haskell are still at Headquarters, San Francisco. Our Lokleitems will shortly issue a general order directing them to come home.

Express Matters.

J. L. Darrah, proprietor of the Earl Express Line, gives notice that he will not be responsible for property shipped over his route unless delivered to and receipted for at the designated offices of the line.

Fire.

Last Sunday morning, about 7 o'clock, Belshaw's coal bank, about 100 yards from his furnace at Cerro Gordo, was discovered to be on fire, and before the flames could be extinguished from 30 to 50 tons were destroyed.

New School District.

The people of Big Pine are petitioning for the formation of a new school district for the accommodation of their rising generation.

Estray Gloves.

Somebody left a pair of gloves at this office, and the said somebody will please come and get them. We propose to be honest about it if it kills us.

Continued.

The publication of the patent notices on our fourth page are continued until February 5th, by direction of Register Butler.

Thanks.

Our acknowledgments are due and tendered to Col. O. R. Putney, now of Columbus, for favors extended this office.

Snow-Bound Trains.

A Milwaukee dispatch of January 11, says:

Reports from Iowa via. the Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad, say that sleighs have succeeded in reaching the train which is snow-bound between Conover and Ridgeway, and rescued the passengers. Superintendent Prior telegraphs that there are eight trains snow-bound between MacGregor and Austin. The snow is packed so tight that the snow-plows have no effect on it. It will have to be shoveled out. All that can be seen of some trains is here and there the top of the brake just protruding above the snow, and nothing but the top of the smoke-stack of the engine marks the whereabouts of the same. The thermometer ranges between 20 and 25 degrees below zero, with the wind blowing a perfect gale. The drivers who drove the teams were badly frozen.

SQUIBLETS.

—There is one boy in Danbury, according to The News, who didn't get anything in his stocking, Christmas. He left a pan of ashes on the front stairs to follow an organ-grinder, and a moment later his indulgent father came rushing out of the door down the front stoop, accompanied by the pan and its contents, looking for all the world like a real god riding in the clouds. For a few moments that boy thought he had a pile driver for an ancester.

—Camel's-hair shawls can still be found costing $5,000, but there are long shawls of antique designs and richest colorings reduced in price from $150 to $250, formerly longed for at $1,500. The real Decca is as low as $50. Reversible camel's-hair shawls are especially popular, as one's friends are thereby cunningly deceived, and the owner credited with being the possessor of two, and so quien sabe?

—The Danbury News says: "The remarks relatives and friends who attend a funeral make upon the merits of the deceased are frequently instructive. At the funeral of an aged resident of Slawson's a neighbor feelingly observed that the departed 'wouldn't rare and cuss about taxes any more."

—The Memphis Appeal tells of an Irishman who got laughed at for making faces over some persimmons, and who retorted thus: "Ye may grin, ye mutton-headed idiots! but I can lather the sowl out iv the man that spilt vinegar over them plums."

—A woman of gallantry, becoming old and dangerously ill, sent for her confessor, who came and said to her: "It is now time for you to forget your past life and to think on loving God alone." "Alas, Father," she replied, "at my time of life how can I think of any new amours?"

—An Appanoose county squire, concludes the marital knot ceremony thusly: "Them that this Court has joined together let no man bust asunder; but suffer little children to come unto them, so help you God, and may Heaven have mercy upon your souls!"

—A pig broke into a shed at Galena, where a large quantity of nitro-glycerine was stored, and managed to get one of the cans open and devoured the contents. It then wandered into a stable, and, on berng kicked by a horse, exploded into a thousand pieces, blowing one of the horse's legs off.

—Some of the Boston people wish to have the scarred and blistered columns of the new Postoffice, which marked the limits of the great fire, preserved in their present condition instead of being replaced by new ones. They would surely bear an eloquent inscription, and serve as an appropriate monument of the conflagration.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

UNITED STATES REGISTER'S OFFICE, Aurora, Nevada, November 20th, 1872.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT JACOB GROTH has this day filed in this office a diagram, together with notice of application for a patent from the United States, under Acts of Congress approved July 26, 1866, and May 10, 1872, for One Thousand (1,000) feet of a certain vein or lode of quartz or other rock in place, bearing gold and silver, known as the EAST GARIBALDI LODE, situated in the Esmeralda Mining District, Esmeralda County, State of Nevada, and described as follows: Beginning at the western boundary line of said claim at Post No. 1, thence running South 11 deg. 28 min. West 150 ft., thence South 78 deg. 35 min East 1,000 ft., thence North 11 deg. 25 min. East 150 ft., thence North 78 deg. 35 min. West 1,000 ft. to the point of beginning, containing Three 67-100 acres, embracing said lode, and one hundred and ten (110) feet on the northerly side, and forty (40) feet on the southerly side of the center of the lode line, and particularly described in the plat of the survey of said claim on file in this office. From developments made the three shafts on the westerly end of said claim are accepted as embraced in the lode. The nearest mine is the Empire mine, on the South. The said claim is bounded on the West by the West Garibaldi lode, and on the East end by no known claimant. The location of said East Garibaldi Lode is of record in the office of the Mining Recorder in said Esmeralda District.

Curious Facts About Water.

The extent to which water mingles with bodies apparently the most solid is very wonderful. The glittering opal which beauty wears as an ornament is only flint and water. Of every twelve hundred tons of earth which a landlord has in estate four hundred are water. The snow-capped summits of our highest mountains have many million tons of water in a solidified form. In every plaster of Paris statue which an Italian carries through our streets for sale there is one pound of water to four pounds of chalk. The air we breathe contains five grains of water to each cubic foot of its bulk. The potatoes and turnips which are boiled for our dinner have, in their raw state, the one seventy-five per cent. and the other ninety per cent. of water. If a man weighing 140 pounds were squeezed in a hydraulic press, seventy pounds of water would run out, the balance being solid matter. A man is, chemically speaking, forty-five pounds of carbon and other elements, with nitrogen, diffused through five and a half pailfuls of water. In plants we find water thus mingling no less wonderfully. A sunflower evaporates one and a quarter pints of water a day, and a cabbage about the same quantity. A wheat plant exhales, in one hundred and seventy-five days, about one hundred thousand grains of water.

A Curious Puzzle.

A waiter is said to have got twelve commercial travelers into eleven bedrooms, yet to have given each a separate room. Here we have the eleven rooms:

1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	11

"Now," said she, "if two of you will go into No. 1, and wait there for a few minutes, I'll find a spare room for you as soon as I've shown the others their rooms."

Well, now having thus bestowed two gentlemen in No. 1, she put the third in No. 2, the fourth in No. 3, the fifth in No. 4, the sixth in No. 5, the seventh in No. 6, the eighth in No. 7, the ninth in No. 8, the tenth in No. 9 and the eleventh in No. 10. She then came back to No. 1, where you will remember she had left the twelfth gentlemen alone with the first, and said:

"I've now accommodated all the rest and have still a room to spare, so if one of you will step into No. 11 you will find it empty."

Thus the twelfth man got his bedroom. Of course there is a hole in the saucepan, somewhere; but we leave the reader to determine where the fallacy is, with just a warning to think twice before deciding as to which, if any, of the travelers was the odd man out.

A Bright Dog.

A shepherd once, to prove the quickness of his dog, who was lying before the fire in the house in which we were talking, said to me in the middle of a sentence concerning something else: "I'm thinking, sir, the cow is in the potatoes." Though he purposely laid no stress on these words, and said it in a quiet and unconcerned tone of voice, the dog, who appeared to be asleep, immediately jumped up, leaped through an open window, and scrambled up the turf roof of the house, from which he could see the potatoe field. He then, not seeing the cow there, ran and looked into the barn where she was, and finding that all was right came back to the house. After a short time the shepherd said the same words over again, and the dog repeated his lookout, but on the false alarm being the third time given, the dog got up wagged his tail and looked at his master in the face with so comical an expression of interrogation, we could not help laughing at him; on which, with a slight growl, he laid himself down in his own warm corner, with an offended air, as if determined not to be made a fool of again.

—An old German, while on his way from Indianapolis to Lafayette, froze his nose. While thawing the frost out of that very necessary member he remarked: "I no understand dis ting. I haf carry dat nose forty-seven years and he never freezed hisself before."

An Interesting Discovery.

It has long been a question with ethnologists whether the pre-historic people of America were acquainted with the manufacture and use of textile fabrics, but the question seems at length to have been settled affirmatively. We are informed by The Washington Chronicle of the 7th instant that the Smithsonian Institute has just received a copper ax taken from an Indian mound in Illinois, which tells the story. The ax was evidently wrapped in some fabric when buried, since the oxydation of the copper, which penetrated the interstices of the cloth, has made distinctly traceable the longitudinal and transverse fibres of which it was woven. The ax also proves that the art of melting and casting of metals was not known at the time it was made, and that they were hammered into the shape of the various utensils required. Oxydation has brought out distinctly the striæ of the metals, which would not have appeared had the implement been cast. Relics such as this represent the bronze age of American prehistoric civilization, bronze itself, as a pre-historic material, being known only among the antiquities of Central and South America. There is every reason to believe notwithstanding the immense number of prehistoric copper implements found as far east as Massachusetts, and as far south as Louisiana, that the material from which they were formed was all obtained from the Lake Superior region, where there are still evident traces of the excavation of copper on a large scale.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday,.....February 1, 1873.

A RUMOR TO BE NOTICED.

Just prior to the publication of this issue, and too late to permit an investigation, Mr. A. H. Johnson calls our attention to a statement made on the authority of Sheriff Cyrenas Mulkey, which not only compromises our own dignity and integrity, but that of the County Treasurer and the business firm of Harris & Rhine. To give it as it runs: First, that THE INDEPENDENT is working in the interest of Harris & Rhine, inasmuch as it purposely ignores all mention of certain acts of one member of that firm, which are as follows: Second, that the money belonging to the county is being paid out by them, and checks upon San Francisco issued with which to pay the State's proportion, and for which the said firm charge three per cent.; that the county's coin is used by them in taking up checks presented by tax-payers, for which accommodation three per cent. is also charged—the proof of all this being, as is stated, that packages of coin paid into the treasury by the Sheriff were subsequently paid back to him by other parties, and by him recognized as being identically the same.

Although actually meaning next to nothing the above causes an inference that some "gouging" is going on. We have to do nothing with it save so far as it refers to us; the others concerned can fight their own fights—through these columns if they choose, provided all statements are made with due respect and propriety. We shall have our say next week, but for the present have only to add: That the rumors of a present or past collusion with Harris & Rhine or any other firm or individual are absolutely false and utterly without the shadow of a foundation.

Without even thanks we have vindicated and supported county officials, Mr. Rhine and others when unjustly accused, without the advantage of a hint, syllable or word. When our best motives are impugned we request the party doing it to get up and speak "right out in meetin'," and give us a fair show.

In conclusion we will merely add that, though it appears this thing has been publicly discussed in certain circles for some days, or perhaps weeks, that we have never heard a word in reference to it until mentioned by Mr. Johnson.

The Statue of Greeley.

It was a peculiarly happy and appropriate idea of some member of New York Typographical Union No. 6, to erect a statue of Greeley out of type metal. It has been truthfully said of Americans that when a great man dies we forthwith resolve to erect a monument to his memory, and then straight way don't do it. But in this instance the object is likely to be accomplished. Soldiers have been perpetuated in monuments made of old cannon, artists have had their busts done in marble painters have had their forms committed to canvass; here, now, the memory of a distinguished printer, writer, publisher and philosopher is to be handed to posterity through a monument composed of old type. There are 6,133 newspapers and periodicals printed in the United States, and at least 15,000 printing establishments, who are to contribute each a pound and upward. We estimate that there are 80,000 working printers, and each are invited to contribute the proceeds of 1,000 ems—about an hour's work—to the object, ranging from 50 cents in the East to $1 per M. gold in several places on this coast. The hour to be devoted to the purpose occurs Monday next, and THE INDEPENDENT will duly forward its pound of type and four dollars.

Troubled.

When any of the "outside" papers are troubled for an item they stick in a line or two about "Inyo earthquakes" and infer that the Inyoites will get hurt if these things continue much longer, and are much troubled thereat. Now, if these gentlemen only knew it the chances are their own localities have been afflicted with the shakes quite as much as that of us miserable Inyoites, who don't worry about it at all, nor have any obvious reason for so doing.

United States Senators Elected.

Last week Howe of Wisconsin, Cameron of Pennsylvania, and Conklin of New York were re-elected by the Legislatures of their States to the United States Senate. Illinois has elected Gov. Oglesby in place of Trumbull, and Nevada John P. Jones in place of Nye.

NEW COUNTIES, ETCETERA.

As there are some who appear to seriously entertain the idea that a division of the county, or a change in its boundaries, is desirable and practicable we will take a look at the prospect.

First, is the scheme practicable? Will the Legislature consent? The chances are wholly unfavorable. Such bodies are especially adverse to legislation of this kind, even when a large and wealthy county is the subject, and with a large majority of its people favorable. When a sparsely settled county, no matter how great its area is the subject, its inhabitants have to be almost universally in favor of such a move to give it a shadow of a successful issue, and especially when such county is previously but barely able to maintain its corporate existence without repudiating its honest debts. Both of the two counties our wiseacres propose to operate on in this instance are of the last mentioned class. One of them was saved from bankruptcy by the State assuming its debt, and the sale of a portion of its territory. It will take many years, and money in amount more than equal to the fee simple of the possesions of all the gentlemen who profess to favor the creation of a third county out of these two poor ones, for them to accomplish their design, and it is absurd to expect it ever to be done until time's mutations make it possible.

It required some six years of active work to effect a division of Santa Barbara, a large sea-coast county tranversly divided near its center by a mountain barrier, which was to be the new boundary, and possessing over $7,000,000 of taxable property. Besides that the people of both sections were generally willing for the change.

How would it be here with less than a corporal's guard of third rate men as the advocates of such a move in opposition to the otherwise universal wish of the entire people? Those are the relative facts upon which this corporal's guard of map makers will have to base their chances of success.

But admit the new county of Garretson an accomplished fact and how will it affect those gentlemen whose taxes are now such a burden? Mono has $460,000 of taxable property all told. Her present debt is $11,000. Inyo has a total valuation of $1,400,000, and, including bonds and floating debt, a debt of $70,000. The new county will take an equitable share of territory, property and debts of the two, say one third of each. She will set up housekeeping with some 20 miles square of arable land, 3,000 acres of it under cultivation, property to the amount of $620,000 and a debt to begin with of $27,000. To this last must be added $15,000, if paid in cash, three times that if paid in scrip, for necessary buildings, and for current and contingent expenses $15,000 more as a low estimate for the first year, at the end of which this fine county would have a little debt of some $57,000 to provide for, in addition to the stealings. To meet interest and current expenses $21,000, or $3 50 tax rate per annum would be required, leaving the principal for future generations to pay off. These estimates are on a cash basis instead of mostly scrip as they certainly should be, besides the over estimate of taxable property. The rate of taxation would exceed 4 per cent without doubt or contingencies, but we will leave that for the map makers themselves to figure out, as they will not be crowded for time before the new responsibilities they hope for will devolve upon them.

The chances for a general and hearty co-operation on the part of the citizens of the two counties from which this one is to be taken, in that favor may be inferred from the undoubted fact that the tax rate in both will be increased not less than one-third, since the assumed third of the property of each is to be subtracted, while the cost of running their respective county governments is not lessened in the least. Of course, everybody will assist in this cut-throat game when called on to so—which will be some time first—also in the same way and for the same reason the equally plausible, practicable and desirable plan of a reversion to Mono. The tax rate of that county is $2 40, and here it is $2 50. Supposing the former willing to take back this territory encumbered with its share of the joint debt—which, as an essential preliminary must be previously proportionately increased by the pending election, removal and contingent extra building expenses which cannot possibly be less than $10,000—the tax rate in that county must be full $3, and in this not a cent less.

As a means of reducing taxes neither of these schemes offer any material inducements. As a means of saving travel and traveling expenses to and from the county capital the prospects are about equally encouraging—say for central Bishop Creek to the capital of Garretson county—we use that name as a matter of convenience not knowing, any other as applicable—mile for mile about the same as at present; to that of Mono as 100 is to 40 say, and as mountains, often impracticable, are to a level plain.

Yet the man—we know certainly but one be it understood—who advocates such sophistries, honestly or otherwise it matters not which—who howls loudly about high taxes and then does his best—and with success—to make them still higher by forcing a useless and heavy expense upon friends and foes alike, and all for no more tangible reason than his own personal animosities—this man, who is a good man, a hospitable neighbor, must be let alone; he has no weight as a public leader, though it is through his exertions money is to be taken out of my pocket, out of your pocket, out of everybody's pocket; let him severely alone, he can't do any harm more than indirectly cause litigation that will cost the county not less than $2,000 and yet settle nothing; directly, cause an election costing $2,000 more or thereabouts—a good share of which reverts to printers, too!—don't kick and splurge while he saws away on your throat, because he only uses an old case-knife and you might kick some dirt in his friends' eyes; don't bother him; let him saw in quietness and he "won't rare and cuss about taxes no more," as a man feelingly remarked over his dead friend (please, intellectual friends, don't interpret this as another hint at assassination, for we haven't quite reached that stage yet); let him work in peace; he is only a private gentleman trying to engineer public affairs and, of course, though the public is materially affected, his misguided efforts mustn't be lampooned.

Perhaps not.

THE SEWING MACHINE JOB.

The Scientific American is making a good fight against the passage of an act by Congress extending the Wilson sewing machine patent another term of seven years. The same bill was up before the last Congress but failed to pass, and now the sewing machine ring, composed of the Singer, Howe, Grover & Baker and Wheeler & Wilson companies, are using money and influence in another attempt to fasten this unjust and unreasonable monopoly upon the people of the United States.

The patent, which has already expired and on which a third term is asked, is that of Allen B. Wilson for the "feed" motion. It is simply an improvement upon the original Howe machine, but covers, by its broad application, all the sewing machines in use. The royalities received from it amount to millions of dollars every year, but not satisfied with having made immense fortunes out of it already, these greedy cormorants are still asking for more, and mainly at the cost of the poor, to whom the sewing machine is as necessary as the roof which covers their heads. Here, as a reward for a mere modification of an original patent, the poor sewing girl, and all others as well, are compelled to pay six dollars for an article which otherwise would cost but one. A sewing machine which sells in San Francisco, for instance, from $55 to $65 can be profitably manufactured for $10, and higher priced machines in the same proportion. This is a most outrageous "gouge" to have to stand during the legitimate existence of the patents, and to continue it, as Congress is now asked to do, it becomes downright robbery. Thousands, not to say hundreds of thousands, of poor sewing girls and weary mothers, who must use these machines or starve, have almost been compelled to give five-sixths of their hard earnings to enhance the power of these miserable cormorants, and other hundreds of thousands will still have it to do if this most unconsciable job can be engineered through Congress.

If the extension is allowed, as asked for, the Credit Mobilier scandal will stand as a paragon of virtue in comparison. The sheer force of gold can alone accomplish it. It is to be hoped that every newspaper in the land will take this matter in hand and assist in bringing the power of the press on the side of right and justice.

Kern County.

The people of Kern county are to have an election on the 15th instant to decide their county-seat question—Bakersfield being the prominent candidate. The people of that place spent some $15,000 in getting a bill through the last Legislature making it the county capital, but the Governor vetoed it, so the work had to be done over again under the new Code. The prospects seem rather to favor Bakersfield in the present fight, as it possesses a number of public spirited men who have done much to bring that county into notice, and also because it stands in the midst of the finest agricultural section of the State, which is rapidly settling up. It is said to be a very unhealthy place, however, in which respect Havilah has a most decided advantage.

MARM. G.

As will be seen by the following, which is a copy of a manuscript poster extensively stuck up around the northern end of the county, THE INDEPENDENT has secured the valuable assistance of the "old creetur" known by the soubriquet of "Marm G."

NOTICE!

Marm G. having at great expense secured an interest in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, she hereby notifies the people of the north end of the county that the paper, as heretofore, will be subservient to their interests, and will contain lengthy articles of rare merit appertaining to J. L. G., which will prove highly edifying to subscribers.

The old lady here has reference to those subscribers only who pay for their paper, as it is not intended to be very edifying to such as do not, like the person referred to as the subject of these long diatribes.

The bridge at Big Pine, which will eventually prove of great benefit to Bishop Creek in diverting travel to the other side of the river, we consider of vast importance and will in time advocate the building of another at some locality to still further the interests of Bishop Creek.

Marm G. is quite correct in this statement as this bridge will certainly divert a great deal of travel to the other side of the river when the farmers of the west side go there en route for a market for their produce. It was thought this facility for reaching that market would supply a want about which there was much complaint over a year ago, and at which time and with that object in view, the construction of the bridge was strongly advocated in this paper. It was thought then, and is yet for the matter of that, that the only locality in the county which could supply that market with farm produce was Bishop Creek (and Big Pine), which having more than twenty miles advantage in distance over Independence, could also supply it in all kinds of imported merchandise—with a very little enterprise on the part of the local dealers in the same. To prevent strangers from trying to travel the east side of the river above this bridge, over a much longer and at certain seasons entirely impassible desert road, instead of going through the settlements over a comparatively good one, it is proposed to raise by subscription an amount sufficient to erect a guide-board at or near Fish Slough explaining these things. Marm G. will be stationed there to explain its meaning to ignorant travelers, who, of course, are extremely numerous.

If there any at Bishop Creek not satisfied with the above, we will propose they have the use of the Bend City bridge free of toll for 90 days.

Yes, or for a longer period, when hauling their produce to the Lone Pine market, especially when in connection with attendance at court there.

We shall continue to publish notices of the arrivals and departures of Mr. Earl.

Or any other public spirited man when the numbers are so few, engaged in any enterprise of interest to the public at large—same as Mr. Garrettson, for instance, but for diametrically opposite reasons.

The pitchers and other gifts received by P. R., accompanied with dreams and occasionally notices of Van making the most personal allusions. Mr. Rhine, if omitted, we wish readers to always bear in mind that we consider him in.

Our sentiments precisely, particularly the first clause. Presentations of that kind, whether in return for public or mere personal services, or whether without any consideration whatever, though private in their nature, become legitimate subjects for newspaper mention, especially when of such unfrequent occurrence. It shows that once in a great while a man can be found liberal enough to render something of an equivalent for a well-earned service, though such return is not named in the bond. Such acts and returns are rare indeed, but should not excite jealousy in the minds of any, especially those who dislike to comply with the literal terms of a contract, no matter how much said contract may have benefited them. Dreams will be published in detail, as Marm states, when they illustrate literal facts; these will include dreams of visionary new counties and official positions therein.

In fact, we will make it a high-toned family paper.

Owing to her short-sightedness Marm G. has to employ an amanuensis to give expression to her brillant ideas and, as a matter of course, her productions shadow, to a material extent, the opinions of both. For that reason, and from a similarity of tastes and circumstances between herself and scribe, her contributions in the children's department of the paper (on the 5th page) will make it a welcome family visitor, as, having no children of her own, her opinions are from an entirely impartial stand point.

MOTTO—Independence now and forever.

Properly interpreted "thems our sentiments." THE INDEPENDENT'S columns, outside the paid advertisements, are owned, controled, influenced, biased or swerved by no man or set of men, except its editors, in existence. If it tires out by advocating the right, as we see it, then let her sink, and it will be all the same to yours truly.

To subscribers a fine chromo drawing, "Court House on Wheels."

Which chromo will truthfully represent J. L. G. and his chums unavailingly heaving at the wheels thereof, their heels flying from under them while doing so. Also, a fine chromo likeness of each of these heavers, represented by the knave of clubs, will be given to all contributors who have not furnished facts pertaining to their own locality for publication, and then find fault because no mention is made of the same. And also a similiar present to the gentleman who prefers to spend his time in giving expression to his grievances through manuscript posters, instead of sending the same to this paper, which holds itself ready to print anything of the kind.

Battle With the Modocs.

A Yreka dispatch of the 20th instant to The Union gives an account of a fight with Capt. Jack and his Modocs at the Lava Bed, seventy-five miles from Yreka, on the 17th of this month. The news was brought out by H. C. Tickner, directly from the scene of the fight. Tickner left headquarters of the army on Tule Lake at 3 o'clock P. M. Sunday. It appears that Gen. Wheaton commanded the whites. They consisted of two hundred and fifty regulars, two companies of Oregon volunteers under Gen. Ross, and twenty-five California rifles under Capt. J. A. Fairchild. In all, about four hundred. Capt. Jack's Indian force is two hundred. The Indians were concealed among the rocks, and the plan of Gen. Wheaton was to surround them and make his attack upon them from opposite directions. In conformity with this plan Capt. Bernard on Thursday morning (16th), with one hundred regulars and a few Klamath Indians as guides, moved around the Lava Bed to the east. At 8 o'clock Friday morning the advance was to be made east and west. It happened that Thursday night and Friday morning there arose a dense fog, shutting out sight of any object at the distance of forty yards. Gen. Wheaton's force was twelve miles from Capt. Bernard's; the Modocs between the two within their rocky intrenchments. The attack was begun on the east by Capt. Bernard and his one hundred regulars and a few Klamath Indians. He was opposed by two hundred Indians, some of whom are supposed to be from the Pitt river tribe, as the Modocs don't number two hundred warriors. The line was two miles long, the Indians concealed behind rocks. Gen. Wheaton heard the firing and advanced, but he feared to use his howitzers lest the shells might strike Bernard's command. The fight lasted from early in the morning till night. And yet in all this time, if we may credit the account of Tickner, "not an Indian was to be seen!" The two white commands shot at random, and were kept in the face of the concealed enemy, so fighting at a terrible disadvantage till forty whites were among the killed and wounded, including several officers. The Oregon volunteers lost two killed, the California rifles had three slightly and one mortally wounded. Among the regulars twenty-five privates wounded, and Capt. Perry seriously and Lieut. Kyle slightly.

After nightfall the whites withdrew to their camps, Capt. Bernard's 100 regulars stood the brunt of the fight. It is not known that one single Indian was hurt. The troops will now act as an army of observation and only try to prevent the Modocs from raiding on the settlements till they can obtain reinforcements.

Possessory Titles to Mines.

Our attention has been called to an important requirement of the present mining statute of Congress, which does not appear to have yet received the attention on this coast which it deserves. This is the annual expenditure required to hold possessory title to unpatented claims and prevent relocation by other parties. The act is not mandatory as to obtaining patents within any specified time, but permits those claimants who have expended not less than $500 upon their claims to apply for and receive patents; but until a patent is obtained claimants of lodes located before the 10th of May, 1872, are required to expend thereon not less than $10 annually for every 100 feet claimed on the lode, while to hold a claim (of 1,500 feet), located after that date, necessitates an annual expenditure of not less than $100 thereon, in labor or improvements, in default of which in any one year the claim will lapse and be open to relocation.

In many of the districts to local regulations provide that upon the expenditures on a lode aggregating a certain amount the claimant is relieved from a further outlay thereon to maintain his possessory right, and many valuable claims are so held in good faith by parties, many of whom are absent from their claims and unaware that they are affected by said statute. Through a want of compliance with this provision of Congressional law, it is estimated that hundreds of valuable claims will be open to relocation by the 10th of May next, and it is understood that parties are already organizing with the view of effecting these relocations after that date, when present possessory titles shall have elapsed. A publication of these facts may prevent loss to unsuspecting parties, and the newspapers printed in mining districts will be doing a public service by calling special attention to them at an early day.—Exchange.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

 All advertisements, to insure insertion in these columns, must be handed in on or before 2 o'clock P. M., Friday.

Dull.

We hear some complaints of dull times. At this time of the year this is a natural state of affairs which would soon pass away, but there are some reasons for apprehending a longer continuance this time than usual. The pending big mining suit cannot possibly improve matters, no matter what the final result, since it involves our most important resource already in full blast; if any change is contingent it must be to retard or lessen, which, to a considerable extent, is certain to be the result in more ways than one. The squabble over the "bone of contention" may, however, make things lively for a time, but the re-action will have the opposite effect, as, like this suit, let the result be what it may, it can't better things in general over the present. The epizootic is also threatening the motive power of our freight wagons and plows, and grub may take a raise in consequence, but still the chances are we will get through and do well yet.

Appealed.

Under-Sheriff Moore informs us that the transcript of the statement on appeal to the Supreme Court of the great injunction, busting out contracts case, has been served upon the counsel for defendants, Messrs. Reddy and Laspeyre & Snelling. Mr. Miller continues in position as counsel in chief, and Vandy as the plaintiff. It appears that the retaining of Mr. Bennett, as reported by us, has not been consummated. Result: The County mulcted in the sum of $1,500 or $2,000, and the decision of the County Court sustained. "Rings," "rings."

I. O. G. T.

We are authorized to state that a meeting of the Busy Bee Lodge, No. 250, I. O. G. T., is to be held on Monday evening next. It is desired that every member be present. We are pleased to state that the Lodge is in a fair way of becoming a permanent institution, and its ranks are increasing with new members every week. There will be a public installation meeting next Friday, 7th inst.

Henry Smith.

This individual has, in regard to that check affair, mentioned last week, occupied the attention of Justice Gunnison's court during the greater portion of the past week. After a full examination of witnesses and a lengthy argument by the counsel, he was held to answer before the next Grand Jury, on a charge of grand larceny. The next regular term of the County Court commences on the first Monday in March next.

For the Sandwich Islands.

We understand that Mr. J. L. Porter, late Superintendent of the Beaudry works, Cerro Gordo, was, on account of ill health, compelled to resign the position he has held so long and satisfactory, (except to a printer man in search of items), and has started to the Sandwich Islands to recuperate. He has been quite unwell for a long time, probably the effects of the lead fumes to which he was so much exposed.

Closed Out.

Deep Spring is about deserted, the attractions of Lida proving too much for the staid inhabitants of that camp to resist. After working up a lot of tailings, the little mill is to be removed; and yet, from detailed descriptions, we believe that some of the richest mines in Inyo are situate within the district, and that they will yet be worked with profit.

Cigars.

Our office was one evening last week hostilely invaded by the inimitable Jeems P. M. Perham, who, with a bland and childlike smile, desposited upon our table a box of superb cigars. Of late there is a very noticeable improvement in the quality of cigars dispensed throughout town, and Rothschild & Co. always keep "just a leetle" ahead.

Completed.

Dr. White, Post Surgeon, has completed his new Post and county hospital, and it is now occupied by a number of patients—among the rest an old Mexican in a most pitiable condition, as from the effects of a cancer he is slowly but surely starving to death. We purpose visiting the hospital soon, and will give a more extended notice of it.

The Bridges.

The new bridge at Big Pine is to be completed to-day, and will probably be officially examined by the Board of Supervisors during the following week. Work has been commenced on the Bend City structure, and we doubt not but that it will be completed within the prescribed time.

Change of Route.

Yesterday the Telegraph, or Southern, Stage Line effected a change of route, and will hereafter run from Tipton to Havilah, via. Bakersfield, avoiding the grade over Greenhorn Mountain. It is said that the change will shorten the trip to Lone Pine by seven hours.

For Fort Gaston.

Lieutenant Haskell, who recently went to San Francisco in pursuance of his duty, is ordered thence to Fort Gasten, Klamath county, to do duty there. We are sorry to lose the presence of Lieutenant Haskell, as he is a genial and very popular officer and gentleman.

The Court House.

We observe that work is progressing on on the new Court House building, the frame being now about up. We didn't observe that any provisions had been made for putting wheels under it, but there may have been some nevertheless.

Board of Supervisors.

This body will meet on Monday next in regular term. "That Petition" will come up for action, and, if found correct as it likely is this time, its prayer will be granted and the election be ordered.

Blacksmith Wanted.

A good blacksmith, one understanding wood and wagon-work especially, will find at Big Pine, in this county, an excellent chance for a permanent, paying business.

For the Wars.

Dr. McMillan, Post Surgeon here a few years ago, has been ordered for duty with the army in the field against Modoc Jack and Shack Nasty Jim.

For Havilah.

P. W. Bennett, Esq., and Thomas May without the Esq., started by private conveyance, for Havilah, Monday last, to be gone two or three weeks.

Personal.

Among other visitors to our burg this week we notice our new Supervisor, Mr. Burroughs, and Mr. Laski of Lone Pine, and Mr. Beaudry and Mr. Freedman of Cerro Gordo. As there are but few who know the popular landlord of the American Hotel, Mr. Freedman, by his surname, we will explain that we mean "Boston" himself. We might as well explain further that neither "Boston," Mr. Laski, Mr. Arnold, and some others, came here just for the fun of the thing, but because the Sheriff "fotched 'em"—not for any known crimes of their own, but as witnesses in the "Henry Smith" case.

American Hotel.

The notion that in Cerro Gordo the weary traveler "or any other man" can not obtain the comforts of a good hotel is a mistake, if such an idea has, of late, been entertained. The American Hotel, engineered by Mr. Freedman, alias "Boston," is a success as a public house. Notwithstanding the extraordinary expense necessarily connected with running the house, the charges are but little, if any, more than those of similar institutions in the valley. See advertisement.

The Delinquent List.

Sheriff Mulkey publishes his delinquent tax list this week, and it will be seen that it is narrowed down to a very insignificant sum comparatively. The total assessment was about $36,000, all of which, except less than $1,000, has been collected. The Tax-Collector has done his duty well this time. Last year there was $7,000 delinquent. Who brought scrip down to 60 cents, please? Rings?

The Weather.

This week we have had a good deal of the above and of rather a rough character for this country. For a day or two the wind blew strong from the south and then chopped around to the south'ard, whence we are having a good ten-knot breeze, accompanied with a little rain in the valley and much snow on the mountains.

Benton.

Messrs. Mack & Powning, now running the new mill at Benton, shipped their first bullion on Tuesday last. It is very fine, and said to command a premium at the mint and banks. It is proposed to add a roasting furnace to the works as soon as it can be constructed.

Inyo House.

We learn that Mr. Schalten has retired from the management of the Inyo House, and that Mrs. Catherine Wallace has leased the same and will shortly open it for the accommodation of the public.

On Dit,

That a well known (former) landlord of this burg will very soon commit matrimony. Go it; we haven't had a wedding notice for some time or longer.

Valentines.

Sentimental youths, loving swains and heartless jokers can obtain at Rowley's the necessary articles for use on the 14th of the present month.

Wonderful Smelting Operations.

Levi Stevens, the inventor of generating heat by the decomposition of water, has brought his experiments at Garratt's foundry to such a point that ores are now smelted in less time than has ever before been accomplished. On Monday afternoon three crucibles of ore were placed in the furnace, one of which burst with the intense heat. The second, containing silver ore from the Lizzie Bullock mine, San Bernardino, was taken out in 45 minutes and the metal poured into a mould. When cool the brick was found to weigh nearly six pounds of fine silver. Good judges present at the trial examined the brick and pronounced it to be between 800 and 850 fine. It was the general opinion that the result would have been better had the crucible been allowed to remain ten or fifteen minutes longer in the furnace. The remaining crucible, containing twelve pounds of silver ore from the Hayes mine, eastern Nevada, was allowed to remain one hour, the ore being of a refractory nature. Too little flux having been used, it was thought best to replace it in the furnace. When taken from the furnace a few minutes after, a fine bar of silver weighing half a pound was poured out. The result of the experiments was highly satisfactory, and several mine owners, who were present, expressed themselves as delighted with the workings of the furnace. It will without doubt greatly facilitate the reduction of rebellious ores, and effect a great saving in the expense of smelting.—S. F. Bulletin, Jan. 15.

Wallapai Mines.

J. L. Ward & Co. yesterday called our attention to a very fine specimen of base bullion from the smelting works of Col. F. H. Baker, of the Wallapai District. Mr. S. H. Speake, who has just arrived from the Baker works, reports that the furnaces had been running four days before he left, and had turned out bars at the rate of forty per day. Teams laden with bullion had already started for Los Angeles, and there are now, probably, four teams on their way hither. No doubt Col. Baker has struck it "rich," and will make a handsome fortune in a brief time. Old furnace men pronounce his the best works on the coast. All the mines in this district are turning out handsomely. Many miners are rushing into the district, and a high grade of ore is taken out generally.—Los Angeles Star, Jan. 25.

A Polar Storm.

This is the title given to the late terrific storm which swept over Minnesota and other States, and in which so many persons and animals lost their lives. It lasted four days, and in severity was never equalled there before.

Pre-Emption of Unoffered Lands—Important Decison.

WASHINGTON, January 4, 1873.

Register and Receiver, San Francisco, California—Gentlemen: Yours of the 18th ultimo, asking instructions concerning declaratory statements on unofferd lands, has been received.

You state "that the time for pre-emptors who filed prior to July 14, 1870, expires March 22, 1873." This is an error. The act of March 22, 1872, providing that pre-emption claimants who had filed declaratory statements prior to the passage of that act, on lands in California, should have one year from date of said act to make proof and payment, was for the relief of pre-emption claimants in the State of California, and hence cannot be construed to restrict to that date a claimant whose period for proof and payment would not otherwise expire until after March 22, 1873, while it does not extend such period to those whose time would otherwise expire prior to that date.

Any settler on unoffered surveyed lands in California, whose settlement antedates April 14, 1870, has until March 22, 1873, for proof and payment. If his settlement was subsequent to that date he has thirty-three (33) months from date thereof. Circular of July 20, 1872, is herein inclosed and your attention called to the last section of the same.

After a filing has expired by limitation of law, you are to treat the land described by it as if no filing had ever been made for it, save in the single instance of the party making it offering his proof and payment prior to the initiation of a valid adverse claim. In case of conflicting claimants for the same land, it is of course sufficient that they commence proceedings prior to the expiration of the period for proof and payment. Their action, however, must be regular and legal. Where pre-emptors are delayed in making their final proof, etc., by a suspension of the plats, they are entitled to the same period after their restoration as they would have had if such disability had not existed.

A claimant cannot be allowed to file a second time for the same land, on expiration of the legal period allowed for entry, alleging a new settlement. Such a declaration would be a manifest contradiction in terms of the facts alleged in his filing already on record, and would amount to a stultification of the claimant, which this office cannot legally permit. If parties, therefore, allow the legal limit to expire without making proof and payment, they do so at their own peril, and cannot be protected after such laches against an adverse interest legally acquired. On the contrary, the law will be strictly applied in favor of such adverse claimant, and his legal right will be secured to him whenever he shall present himself in conformity with the requirements of law and demands its recognition.

Respectfully, WILLIS DRUMMOND, Commissioner.

Progress of the Epidemic.

The disease, now affecting nearly all the horses in this part of the State in a greater or less degree, appears to be of a milder type at present than it exhibed in the Eastern States; and it is possible that it may not be any worse. Still our freight men and stage proprietors are using the utmost care and diligence with their animals, giving them all the rest possible, and applying all the available remedies. The stage drivers have orders to walk their horses, and the stages consequently do not arrive here from Palisade until late at night. This imposes extra duty upon the hostlers, agents and the post-office. But an advantage will be gained in the recovery of the sick horses, and the arresting of the disease in those not much affected by it. The prospects for freighting are not very bright. The last shipment of bullion was made by the Phenix works, nominally through Pritchard's agent, but the labor of hauling was done by private teams. In anticipation of an absolute want of freighting facilities, the various reduction works will, it is expected, close down their furnaces shortly. The Phenix will do so to-day, and it is said that the Eureka Consolidated will soon be shut down likewise. The Ruby Consolidated will stop about the first of the month. If this state of things continues our town will be very dull until the opening of Spring, or until man's faithful working partner, the horse, has recoverd from the fearful visitation.—Eureka Sentinel.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Viscera Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

A BAD AND DANGEROUS MAN.

[COMMUNICATED.]

There is a small settlement in the State of Nevada, situated not "a thousand" miles from the California State line. The community is made up principally of very respectable people, but, like many other localities, this is infested by some obnoxious persons. One fellow, in particular, we could easily spare. He came here about seven years ago, a ragged, impecunious cuss, and as we had not been favored for some time with any outsider who was helpless and inoffensive enough for us to consider it safe to pour out the vials of our wrath against, so we considered this a good opportunity to make our power felt. Our first move was an attempt to find out what his former business had been. Failing in this, we very naturally concluded that it had been something disgraceful. Several of our honorable citizens tried to provoke a quarrel with him so as to form a pretext to shoot or hang the penniless vagabond. We failed in this, as he never resented. Too often, alas, he was the recipient of sympathy from those we wished to have persecute him! The next wonder was how did the scamp get anything to eat? To our horror we discovered that a prominent merchant of a neighboring town was actually selling him grub on credit! Supposing this to be the last resource of the pragmatical outlaw—there is not one of our set that knows what pragmatical means, as it is a big word, and, of course, don't apply to us, we use it—we anticipated no trouble in making him roll up his blankets and leave. We called an indignation meeting—on the sly—which was presided over by one of our most distinguished gossips, and concocted one of the most damaging stories that our united imaginations could conjure up. This story was told to the benefactor of the scamp by one and corroborated by others, and we succeeded in making this merchant believe enough of our story to cause him to shut down on the sneak. Now we thought we had him beaten. But, oh, the uncertainty of human expectations! No sooner was this thieving rascal's supplies cut off, than he walked right up to the counter and paid his bill in bright and tempting coin. This proceeding was a dangerous innovation on our usual mode of making payments, which consisted in merely giving orders on each other. The next wonder was where did the meddler get so much money? None of us had paid him any, in fact we owed him but little at that time—it is different now, and some of us intend to keep it so, although, to their shame be it said, the majority of our citizens are dealing honestly with him. We have never found out where the meddlesome scoundrel got the money to pay that bill.

After all our trouble, and letting our own business go to ruin to watch the manœuvres of that pragmatical hound, he went to work right under our very noses and raised a crop of garden vegetables. And what makes it still worse, the people of neighboring towns bought his produce. Yes, wagon-load after wagon load, and paid him for it, too! And in spite of all our honest endeavors to prevent it, they are doing so year after year, and his infernal shadow is increasing, while some of our shadows are decreasing in about the same ratio—this decrease is wholly owing to the terrible strain on our time and energies caused by attending to his business instead of our own. All other plans having failed—presuming on his unsuspecting nature and lack of brains—we decided to place him in a position of trust, where we thought to get him involved in some difficulty that would at least disgrace if not banish and imprison him. We gave him two petty offices and called to our assistance a few high-toned gents of a neighboring town. We tried bribery on him, but that didn't work, as our means would not justify us in ascertaining his price, besides there was a glimmering of his forbearance giving out. Here we dropped that mode of attack and tried intimidation, but the idiot did'nt know enough to scare well. Supposing he would be liable to want legal advice as to his duty in a certain matter, we put up an adviser for him; the simpleton did not call on our man at all, he most likely exercised his own judgment in the matter, so things ended in our discomfiture as usual. We then concluded that he was not a fit man to be trusted with public business. One office that we had given him there was a little pay attached to, and we thought to hoist him out of that first. We called to our assistance another who was occupying a similar position, and also secured the services of numerous outside "strikers and blowers," and set our man to making preparations to "move on his works," but our man put his foot in his own trap; long before he had things fixed to dislodge the scoundrel, it was discovered that our man would have the most to answer for, therefore we have concluded to let him enjoy that enviable position a little longer. At our last election this villain had the effrontery to vote contrary to our wishes, and also, to injure the prospects of one of our noble citizens, who was an aspirant for an office where there was a chance to make some money, but then he would never have made a cent out of it, he is too honest. We know he is accused of malfeasance during a former term of service in the same office, but of course that is all slander as viewed from our liberal standpoint.

There are quite a number of Republican voters in this settlement, and the aforesaid candidate is supposed to be one of them. Now this fiend had the audacity to draw up a writing, the substance of which was that the Republicans of this precinct had no confidence in said candidate and would not vote for him, he had the effrontery to get this remonstrance signed by all but two of the Republicans of the settlement, and then read it to the candidate and asked him to withdraw from the contest. But, like the high born patriot that he is, he refused to withdraw. Had this fiend been content to stop at this, we would certainly have elected our man by a large majority. No, he had not trifled with our feelings enough. His next move was to cause copies of this remonstrance to be posted about the county, thereby defeating a good man for an office he might have filled with profit to himself and immediate friends. His only excuse for such villainy is that he had the good name of his party to defend! We have gained one victory over the villain, although when we consider how slight the advantage we don't feel like crowing much. It came about in this way: He kept persisting in taking the law of the land for his guide, in direct opposition to the wishes and interests of some few of our good citizens, so we concluded it was best to turn him out and put a man in his place who would do our bidding. We brought up our voters and elected our man by a majority of one! Yes, humiliating as it is, we must acknowledge that where only a short time ago we had such things all our own way, we came very near being beaten this time. And now since we have elected our man we are afraid to use him, as it has leaked out, and is believed by some, that our man is not legally qualified to hold an office or even cast a vote. Some of the emissaries of this fiend have been talking about a writ of quo warranto; now we don't know what quo warranto means, we only know it strikes terror to our honest souls. Be it understood, however that we are mad. And so long as this pragmatical demon shows no disposition to fight, we will not quit trying to drive him from amongst us.

We have tried every honorable means that suggested itself unsuccessfully so far. Were it not for the old adage "Where there is a will there is a way" I should feel as though we had better give it up. But as it appears to be a safe game—he don't offer to fight as some would under the circumstances—we have decided to bide our time and wait for something to turn up. When we get him started—if he runs your way—you shall be duly notified, so your citizens may be on the lookout for a convenient place to hang him.

Yours hopefully. N. EIKWA.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday,.....February 8, 1873.

AT HIS OLD BUSINESS.

From the following, which we find in The Sacramento Union of January 28, it will be seen that F. F. Gallardo, Esq., is now exercising his penchant for "damages" in Sacramento. He seems to value his good name and reputation as a man and lawyer much higher while among strangers than among acquaintances. He only estimated the damage to his feelings and reputation at $10,000 here when sent to jail by Judge Hannah for contempt of Court, and again for being called a "d—d dirty dog" his estimate of the damage was only $300 minus one cent. It may be that he will send over here and to Whisky Flat for witnesses to prove his "good name and reputation as an upright attorney and counselor-at-law, and a good citizen," and he may not. We have no information on that point. It is a wonder he didn't go for The Union for having given publicity to the fact of his incarceration in a "frightful dungeon:"

SUIT FOR DAMAGES.—F. F. Gallardo, who was arrested by officer Dolan on a warrant sworn out by Guiliermo Melendez, and was subsequently released on putting up a deposit, but yesterday held by Judge Gilmer in $1,500 bail to appear Thursday for trial, commenced suit in the Sixth District Court yesterday against officers P. F. Dolan and Fred. Chamberlain and Chief Matt Karcher and his sureties. The plaintiff complains that on the 26th day of January the defendants did wrongfully and unlawfully, and of their own act and willful accord, with intent to beat, to injure, defame, assault and extort money from the plaintiff, and with intent to search his person, and by unlawful and forcible attacks to induce and compel him to submit to and comply with the propositions, terms and conditions made by the defendants; that defendants did wilfully, fraudulently, forcibly and unlawfully arrest the plaintiff, and search, beat and assault him and restrained and imprisoned the plaintiff's person and liberty within a dungeon or dark and frightful room within the interior of the building known as the station-house, and then and there, without sufficient legal authority, kept him in great anguish, anxiety and moral suffering and pain, on account of and by reason of said imprisonment; the plaintiff having been denied by defendants the right to give bail for his appearance according to the law of the land, and was locked up in said frightful room and therein kept in close confinement no less than twenty minutes of time on the 26th of January. That said Dolan proposed to the plaintiff from the outside of the door of said frightful room that if he would deposit a sum of money with him for his appearance before the proper court on Monday, and pay said Dolan for his trouble to go with plaintiff for the money to the Pacific Hotel, promised to let the plaintiff go if the proposition was complied with. That the plaintiff, afraid of further violence toward him, agreed to the proposition of the defendants, for the purpose of releasing himself from prison and feeling apprehensive of further violence against him made a deposit of $25. The complainant further believes that the first two defendants by collusion concocted the plan of locking up the plaintiff for the purpose of having the arrest published in the public journals, and thus to injure his good name and reputation as an upright attorney and counselor-at-law, and as a good citizen. He claims to have been injured in the just and full sum of $20,000 in United States gold coin, where he prays judgment against defendants, together with costs of suit and such further relief as may be just and proper."

The Area.

From the recent annual message of the Mayor of Boston, it appears that the extent of the territory burned over covered about sixty-five acres; whole number of buildings destroyed, 776; value of personal property and buildings destroyed $73,591,000, and the number of lives lost, 14; seven of the number being firemen.

Cold.

Snow drifts sixteen feet deep have formed in places on the Western Pacific Railroad. The weather is so cold that a number of section hands have frozen to death. From many places in the Northern States deaths from the cold are still taking place.

Flying Machines.

A crazy man is working hard upon a flying machine in San Francisco, and another lunatic in Virginia City has constructed wings, by means of which he expects to fly to the top of Mount Davidson and back.

Executed.

Pancia Valencia was hanged at Fairfield, Solano county, January 31, for the murder of Joseph Hewitt two years since.

Dead.

Ex-Empress Carlotta is reported to have died at Dresden recently.

THE NEXT MOVE.

We presume that Mr. Miller will again set to work to obtain signers to a new petition. As we know to a positive certainty that many of those who signed the original, as well as the second, which have amounted to so little towards effecting the desired object, did so with the expressed desire of merely settling by an actual vote the mooted question, but at the same time with the averred determination of voting in the negative, we respectfully submit to their earnest consideration these questions: Is not a failure in procuring the requisite number of signers just as effectual a settlement of the question as a vote could possibly be? Is it not absolutely certain that the said vote when brought about must cost this county a very considerable sum of money, which can be just as well saved by refusing to sign a petition that is to cause this unnecessary expense? Will an affirmative vote as a result of that, further better the condition of the public at large? Is it not absolutely certain that the tax-payers of this county will have to foot an expense of many thousands of dollars if this vote should decide for a change of county-seat? Is it not just as postively certain that the proposed movement is more directly against the interests of the very people of the northern end of the county—through whose consent it can alone be effected—than any others, as a class, in Inyo? Will it not cost every tax-paying citizen north of this place from $20 to $50, and upwards, more each year, besides the increased taxation, to have to go to Lone Pine as the county-seat instead of the present? Most undoubtedly it will. What claim have the few individuals engaged in trying to enforce that additional expense upon so large a number, upon the affections of this people that they must tax themselves to such an extreme to satisfy it? What difference does it make to the non tax-paying emissaries who stop at nothing in their efforts to accomplish a personal triumph? How much does the general cost they are striving so hard to inflict, affect them as individuals? Are the people of this county to open their pockets, to come and go, at the beck and nod of such as they? Is this public to be made a tool in the furtherance of the ends of such as they? Are we to place our property, our business, our general progress wholly in their hands that they may work out either, or both, their malice or personal aggrandizement? No! But that is precisely what they are asking. They, themselves, don't dream that any general good is to come of this. They never have nor dare not present their claims for this change on their real grounds. Their only earthly hope of final success is based upon prejudice. The very groundwork of the move at the outset was a falsehood and fraud, since there was an attempt (and partially successful, too) to deceive the public as to the object in view; that it was merely to "legally locate the county-seat"—inferentially that the present had never been fixed by law and by a vote of the people.

We will state that we firmly believe that their proposition will be beaten on a square vote. We have good reason for such belief, though allowing every signer to the late petition to vote in its favor, which, however, a considerable number of them will not do. So far as we are personally concerned we have no fears of the result; and, so far as our private interests are concerned, a most perfect indifference to the final result. The printing bill by law necessarily connected with the election itself, would fairly compensate us for any possible depreciation in the value of the small amount of property we have to be affected by an adverse result, which at our option only would entail a suspension of this journal. We are tired of a business which compels incessant drudging without any profit, and would hail almost with pleasure such a tangible excuse for closing our connection with it. We are ready to prove the truth of this statement at any moment. But, notwithstanding, we shall oppose this selfish scheme to the last, and under all circumstances, not in our personal interests, not in the interests of the town of Independence, nor any inhabitant thereof, than just so far as the same is identified with those of the general public, to whom we are under equal and more obligations in almost every respect. We mention these facts because we desire the position of this paper to be understood, when we respectfully but earnestly ask all fair-minded citizens of this county to give the questions and facts above presented full and fair consideration before again placing themselves and others in a false position by attaching their names to a petition which, at the very best, can result in no material good to any large or deserving number, while to a very large majority of the people it bodes no good in any shape or form whatever.

THE FATE OF NUMBER THREE

It has been generally expected that Petition No. 3 would accomplish its object and the desired election be ordered. No one in this town, adversely interested in it, ever took the trouble to look at it in a general much less a critical way, therefore its peculiarities and defects remained unkown and unnoticed until it came up for consideration. Then its fatal defects, in a legal point of view, were so clearly and ably set forth by Mr. Reddy, volunteer counsel on the occasion, that the Board decided by an unanimous vote that it would be folly to order an election certain to prove null and void and of no effect except to involve the county in costs of election and possible litigation. The latter was inevitable in the contingency of the vote resulting in favor of the prayer of the petition, and with nearly equal certainty in the event of a contrary result. Its illegality in either case insured the opening of the whole question anew; if the election beat the petition the very men who now sustained it could appeal to the law and at the end of a law suit secure another election, while, on the other hand, the opposite interest would most certainly seek and obtain the same remedy. Mr. Reddy staked his reputation as a lawyer on the correctness of his legal point and contingent results, and sustained his opinions by decisions of the courts. Among others was one from the Supreme Court of this State. It was the Alameda case, decided on the 25th ultimo, a report of which reached this office in The Daily Union of two days later date. In several respects this decision was exactly in point, while one by a New York court covered the entire ground. These, together with a synopsis of Mr. Reddy's argument, we shall present next week. Now it is impossible, owing to an unusual lack of both time and space.

The defect was simply this: The petition nowhere alleged that its signers were qualified electors, citizens or taxpayers of Inyo county. Not being alleged it was not a matter subject to proof. The attached affidavit of the father and chief engineer of the petition and witness to the genuineness of the signatures, was troubled with the same fatal omission in regard to his own status—F. K. Miller's. Technical, this, but of vital importance, nevertheless, especially when the rights of property, and of a whole commuity are involved.

The question was argued at length by counsel, Reddy and Miller. The Board voted unanimously in favor of rejecting the petition. It is worthy of remark that Mr. Burroughs was the first to admit the truth of Mr. Reddy's arguments and to vote accordingly. If he had been a man to be biased by personal interests in connection with those of the particular locality he represents it is possible he would have held different views. As a man of judgment, high standing and integrity, and considered in relation to surrounding circumstances, we consider Mr. Burrough's action in this matter as the very best possible vindication of the other members of the Board regarding their alleged motive in rejecting the preceding petitions. Men whose prejudices blinded their sense of justice will now be forced to admit that the preceding acts of this Board were perfectly justified by facts, and for them then as now to have done otherwise would have been in direct violation of their sworn duties and obligations. On that account we consider the present result a triumph but in no other respect so far as the main question is concerned, for that remains unsettled and no one can be any more desirous of its final determination than ourselves or the people of this town.

As the Board in each instance was impelled to the course taken through the force of the legal bearings in the case, exactly as jurors in an important civil suit affecting the rights of friends and foes alike in an entire community, it becomes a matter of simple justice to give credit fairly earned to the lawyer, who without fee or promise of reward, presented the points of law bearing or relating to the question at issue, upon which a just verdict was based. It is an incontrovertible fact that nought but expensive and acrimonious litigation could have followed had the prayer of either of those petitions been granted. It is just about as certain that the lawyer whose ability averted that result, could let things go without interference and as sequence, ultimately have secured a heavy retaining fee for defending essential rights illegally jeopardized. Presuming that the technical defects and consequential results would otherwise have passed unnoticed, it is a certain that this people are indebted to Mr. P. Reddy, for this result and nobody else. He has proved himself both a good citizen and a first-class lawyer, and is entitled not only to that "pitcher," which has nearly worried the life out of certain snarling souls, but to a whole service; for in the manner mentioned, he has undoubtedly saved this county several thousand dollars useless expense.

Boss Tweed.

The jury in the above named gentleman's case disagreed and were discharged. It was said to be a model jury, standing eleven for acquittal to one for conviction. The Boss thinks he ain't so much of a rascal after all, and will get through all right yet.

THAT RUMOR OF IMPORTANCE.

In regard to that matter brought to our attention by A. H. Johnson concerning the County Treasurer and the firm of Harris & Rhine and THE INDEPENDENT, Mr Mulkey authorizes us to state that he never at any time stated or intimated that THE INDEPENDENT was working in the interest, or as the paid volunteer or special advocate, of either in the manner stated by Mr. Johnson, to-wit: That this paper, as a part of the "ring," had purposely ignored the alleged suspicious practices of that firm respecting the public money on deposit in their safe. We believe Mr. Mulkey, and believe that Mr. Johnson jumped at conclusions in regard to what Mr. Mulkey did say to him exactly as he jumped at the conclusion that this paper was not "independent enough for him," since it made no mention of a thing of public report concerning a matter that he (Johnson) considered as very damaging to the cause this paper was advocating. The value of this opinion may be estimated from the unequivocal fact that we were indebted to Mr. Johnson himself in proper person and at the time referred to, for the very first intimation concerning the matter in any shape or form, whatever.

As we want to be distinctly understood on this point, we will state that Mr. Mulkey says that he did make the remark, in substance, as stated by us last week concerning the manner in which he had reason to believe the county money was being used; also that he intended from that and similar facts, assumed to have a bearing in the case, to do what he could to effect the removal of the county-seat, but that A. H. Johnson himself was responsible for the charge of collusion made against this paper. As before stated, we believe every word of Mr. Mulkey's explanation. While we do question the justness of his reasons for taking sides in favor of the removal, we have not now, never did, nor never expect to have any cause of quarrel with him for standing by what he honestly conceives to be his own interests, or those of the friends to whom he feels under the greate obligation.

In another column will be found the report of County Treasurer Isaacs to the Board of Supervisors. To that we invite attention; in all material points it effectually exonerates himself, and the firm with which he is connected, from the direct or implied charges made against him and them. Though the Treasurer is necessarily involved in the matter of these charges, yet to our knowledge, no one has ever doubted his perfect integrity, or, in short the perfect security of the trust in his hands. But by making the fact appear that the firm with which he is so intimately connected has been making a per centage by using money on deposit in their hands, it was hoped and intended to create or add to a prejudice against the rights and claims of the locality in which they do business. That is the long and short of the whole story.

This and all similar matters pertaining to the private business affairs of this firm, which have been unreasonably dragged into this issue, become matters with which we as public journalists, contending for our individual rights as well as those of the public, have to do with only just so far as the same is made by interested parties part of a public issue. In such matters we claim that we can prove that these parties have been most ungenerously and injustly held to answer for things entirely foreign to the question at issue. In that respect, and that only, so far as the public is concerned, are we their advocates. We say, and can prove, in part, at least, that they have done as much to forward the general interest and welfare of the people of this county as any other firm within its limits, and a thousand times more than any of them who seem to seek every opportunity to malign them. As an instance in point we will state here what we know in reason to be a fact, that on their own volition, and at a time when circumstances did not force them to do it, they raised the price of county scrip from 55 cents on the dollar to 70 cents and maintained it at the latter figure during the darkest days this county has yet seen. It was a most thankless undertaking, and one that circumstances, in the shape of a growling public, compelled them to give up, and within twenty-fours thereafter the said scrip fell to 60 cents, through a coalition or not, just as you please, since which date the county's obligations of this character have been issued and passed from first hands to an amount considerably in excess of $12,000. Will these howlers please figure up the loss to the county? We only estimate the amount, but the prices and circumstances are given for undeniable facts. We are morally certain that, except for the position this firm have been so unjustly forced into in their public relations, that county scrip this day would sell for seventy-five cents on the dollar in gold coin.

Some parties will probably ask if we believe or mean to assert that this firm raised the price of county scrip so much above its current value merely to prove their good will toward the tax-payers, who alone were benefited. We say, no, not exactly for that reason. It is sufficient to say that their interests and those of the people of this county generally were so closely identified, not for one day but for many days, and years in prospect, that in building up one they built up the other, and in that way, and no other, expected to make money out of the transaction.

We have never intended it to be understood that we intend to indorse their every act and motive, nor those of any other individual whose acts have been called in question in this issue, except just so far as they are connected with the same. Our opponents have made their fight and sustained the issue on purely personal grounds, in substance: That from the alleged misdoings of a certain ring in the town of Independence, the management of county affairs must be placed beyond their reach or influence by removal to Lone Pine. Admitting the truth of any or all these charges, it must strike any sensible man, who will give the matter a moment's thought, as the hight of absurdity to expect to place the affairs of the county beyond the reach of such influences by removing its Court House hither and yon. Yet that is the sum of the argument—the body and soul of the whole thing. Who is there that dare deny this proposition? Where is the man that will honestly claim that the general interests of this county would be better or even as well subserved by having its seat of justice at the town of Lone Pine, and supposing that it could be transferred there without a dollar additional cost? Has it ever been asked for by parties living beyond it, in whose interest the plan is ostensibly put up? Has it ever been asked for on any tangible ground other than on the merest personal considerations, pro. and con.? Let sensible, fair-minded men consider these questions on their simple merits, and then say whether THE INYO INDEPENDENT was right or wrong in treating these questions on their personal bearings to the extent that has been done. We have sustained the acts of the Board of Supervisors, of Harris & Rhine, of P. Reddy, in these matters against false charges and assumptions advanced by the removal emissaries, paid or volunteer, and in doing so have met these emissaries on their own grounds. Must we quietly sit still and allow J. L. Garrettson, F. K. Miller, J. Alexander and others to systematically and falsely malign and try to deceive, without a word in objection or refutation, for fear we might offend them or some of their personal friends? We ask no man's opinion as to what we shall do in such cases, and more especially when we are accused of collusion in such alleged frauds.

The Modocs.

On the 25th of January Captain Jack made an attack in force upon Captain Bernard's regulars while the latter were in the act of breaking camp, but the Modocs got badly defeated, losing several killed and wounded and all their horses. Since then it is reported that the Indians have had war among themselves and now want to have a big talk, with the view of arranging terms of peace with their white brethern.

Large Damages.

Peter Peerson, by F. F. Gallardo, his attorney, commenced suit in the Sixth District Court yesterday against the Sheriff, Under Sheriff, County Clerk and County Judge of Inyo county, for false imprisonment; laying his damages at $100,000.—Sacramento Union, Jan. 28.

The defendants in the above constitute one of our "rings." How their misdeeds are to be punished through the Sixth District Court, however, we leave for Gallardo and the plaintiff to to determine.

In Point.

As the readiest method of bringing several points of interest to the notice of our readers we publish in full the County Treasurer's communication to the Board of Supervisors. It covers the whole ground and is worthy of close attention.

Destructive Fire—Sneden's Building Burned.

On Friday morning last, January 31, between 9 and 10 o'clock, the roof of the large building of Mr. S. G. Sneden, Bishop Creek, was discovered to be on fire, and despite the most strenuous exertions to save it the property was entirely consumed and a mass of burning rubbish in less than forty-five minutes. The two lower compartments of the building, which was a very large frame, were occupied by the proprietor as a store and by J. M. Horton as a saloon, the upper story being devoted to public hall purposes. The store, one of the most important business establishments of the county, had been recently enlarged, and was heavily stocked with goods; and the net loss, allowing for an insurance of $8,000, will be rather over than under $15,000. The books and a small quantity of goods were saved. The wind, which was prevailing at the time, happened to be favorable for the saving of other buildings, although Mr. Sneden's residence, the Bishop Creek Hotel and other houses, were several times on fire. Sneden's numberless friends will learn of his bad luck with the sincerest regret, since this is the third time that he has lost nearly his all by the demon of fire. He was just getting fixed, and calculating upon a long deferred visit East; now he will have to go to work and get fixed over again. But his indomitable pluck will laugh at misfortune, and he takes matters coolly—as witnessed by the fact that he, while the fire was raging, with the utmost nonchalance, sat upon a half-burned board and prepared the writings in a business transaction which happened to come up at the moment.

Busy Bee Lodge, No. 250, I. O. G. T.

This Lodge is rapidly increasing in numbers, among them some of our best men and women. We have waited a year in the daily expectation of being presented with some cake and wine and things which we didn't want to throw away, otherwise we would want to be a Tank and with the Tanks to stand. But hope defered produces a huge disgust about the stomach sometimes, so we won't answer for consequences much longer. The following officers were elected for the ensuing quarter at the meeting of the above Lodge last night: Mrs. R. A. Clark, W. C. T.; M. S. Clark, W. V. T.; Margaret Lewis, W. T; John P. James, W. S.; Charles J. R. Butler, W. F. S.

Snow.

The mountains in and surrounding Inyo have lately received an abundant covering of snow. It commenced falling on Saturday last in Cerro Gordo, proving a godsend to the inhabitants of that locality. The Kearsarge mill was almost inaccessible for a time, but the snow partially melting it is now easily reached. On the Inyo mountains the Greenley road is in places covered to a depth of five feet, rendering it necessary to transport the mails on horseback and afoot. In the valley there has been no fall of either snow or rain, and to-day the atmosphere is like that of a beautiful Spring day.

Seriously Ill.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. Chester, of the Kern & Inyo Forwarding Co., has been twice very seriously ill at Bakersfield, a fact which has materially retarded the operations of the company. In connection with the forwarding business, it is now authoritatively stated that the railroad company are moving men and material to the front, and will have the road completed to Tehechepi Pass by the middle of April next. The statement will hardly be credited, but it came pretty direct, nevertheless.

Proceedings of the Board.

The Board of Supervisors are to-day still grinding away at the multifarious business before them. We shall next week present a full and official transcript of the proceedings of the term, in compliance with the new law compelling the same to be published, and by virtue of an underhanded arrangement with this vile sheet, whereby the proprietors thereof will reap an enormons emolument, to-wit: one dollar per term. Rings.

That Stolen Stock.

Monday last Sheriff Mulkey delivered to the rightful owner twelve head of the stolen stock which he captured from the wholesale horse thief mentioned a week or two since. Moracio had taken the animals, together with three more besides those retaken, from Jesus Revas, of Columbus, the stock being at a salt marsh about twenty miles from that place. Mr. Mulkey still has a little bay mare, for which he wants an owner.

Dirty Curs.

We have been made acquainted with the facts in a case which, owing to their nature, we can hardly give in print further than to denounce a pair of scrubs who would fain intimidate with six-shooters a helpless woman under circumstances, considering the object, that will forever damn them in this community where the facts are well known.

The Treasurer's Report.

In this issue will be found County Treasurer Isaac's semi-annual report. It is clear and comprehensive and from it anyone can deduce the financial status of the county. We should, however, review it somewhat in detail but it is not possible at this time.

Warrants Redeemed.

Out of $1,602 25 in the sinking fund of the county treasury, warrants which, including interest, called for $2,220 09, were on Tuesday last surrendered for $1,602 60, leaving $1 65 in the aforementioned fund.

Birthday Ball.

Lovers of fun and Terpsichore will be glad to note the fact that a ball is to be given at the Inyo House, as nearly on the 22d as is compatible with a due observance of Sunday proprieties. See notice.

Communication.

"Old Dad" has favored us with a racy letter from Lone Pine, pertaining to his investigations in the matter of love-letters, which we shall endeavor to give next week.

Dr Columber.

The friends of Dr. Columber, of Lone Pine, are alarmed over his unaccountable absence of several days, under circumstances which indicate that he has taken his own life. It is certainly to be hoped that the Doctor will turn up all right yet.

Globe Livery Stable.

Messrs. Willson & Gage, a new firm in town, which possesses considerable snap and enterprise, has purchased Densmore's livery stable, and thrown it open for public patronage. See their advertisement.

Re-opened.

Attention is called to the new advertisement of the Inyo House, just taken in charge by Mrs. Wallace. We predict that it will become a well-patronized and popular institution.

Arrivals.

In this issue we begin the regular publication of the arrivals at our principal hotels during the week preceding each Saturday. Those of the new "Union Hotel," Lone Pine, will hereafter be given with the rest.

One Trip Less.

The Independence, Lone Pine and Cerro daily stage line has, for the present, drawn off the Saturday trip. This arrangement will in no way interfere with the regular transmission of the through mails.

A Change.

We understand that Mrs. M. A. Barry, proprietress of the Lone Pine Hotel, has leased that well known institution, and will turn her attention to a similar establishment in Columbus, Nev.

Ranch for Sale.

Our old friend Glover, now of Lida, offers some industrious man an excellent opportunity to get hold of what will become a very valuable piece of property. Read his proposition.

THE COUNTY FUNDS.

Communication from the Treasurer to the Board.

TO THE HON. BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF INYO COUNTY: Dear Sirs—With the honor of handing you herewith a statement of county affairs for the past six months ending January 31, 1873, I would most respectfully call your attention to the gratifying fact that there has already accumulated in the Interest and Building Fund, for the redemption of Inyo county bonds (payable in 1892), the sum of $2,587 50. In accordance with the law regulating the payment of those bonds, you will please advertise for proposals for redemption of same, to the amount on hand.

I would further call your attention to the report of the last Grand Jury, in which that body seriously recommends that my official bond be increased from $10,000 (the amount prescribed by law) to the slightly enlarged sum of forty thousand dollars. Not being clear-headed enough to see the justice of this recommendation and desiring a little more light on the subject, in a moment of impulsiveness I addressed a letter to the Hon. J. A. Bauer, County and City Treasurer of San Francisco, politely asking him what was the amount of his official bond, and maximum amount of money placed in his possession as the guardian of the public treasure of that city and county, so that I could form some approximate idea of the difference of bonds required and money handled between the impecunious Treasurer of San Francisco and his more lucky (?) colaborer of the same grade—the Treasurer of Inyo county. His reply, which I inclose, is as follows:

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 26.

HENRY M. ISAACS, Esq., County Treasurer, Independence: Dear Sir—In answer to your letter dated Dec 22, 1872, let me inform you that in February next, 1873, after all the taxes have been paid, and the money received for the different kinds of bonds which we shall sell, I will be the lucky or unlucky (just as you may call it) custodian of about four millions of dollars, not speaking of thousands of dollars of special deposit. The amount of my official bond is $200,000.

Yours truly,

[Signed] J. A. BAUER,

City and County Treasurer of San Francisco.

Here we have a citizen of our own State handling four millions and more of the money of the people, who require of him a bond of only $200,000, or speaking arithmetically, one-twentieth part of the cash handled. This county asks a bond of $40,000, when there has hardly been a day when such an amount has been in the treasury; and furthermore, permit me to observe that in three months from this date I verily believe there will not be over $2,000 to bother either myself or the numerous busy-bodies, whose chief delight appears to be that of worrying their shallow brains about other people's business.

I would further call your attention to the feeble but malicious statements made by one or two county officials regarding the manner in which affairs in my office have been conducted. Parties arrogating to themselves the power of public censors have, with a most ungenerous profusion (to place it in the mildest light), scattered through the county inuendoes reflecting derogatively to my character as a county official—the following grave (?) charges being the principal: That packages of coin paid into the treasury by the Sheriff and subsequently paid back to him by other parties were recognized by him to be identically the same. This terribly serious criminal charge is thus accounted for: On January 3 ultimo Sheriff C. Mulkey paid into the treasury the sum of $22,084 67, with the understanding (in presence of his deputy, Wm. L. Moore, Esq.) that as another large payment was to be made in a few days, I should not apportion it to the different funds until the promised second payment should be made. On January 8, at about 8 o'clock in the evening, Sheriff Mulkey paid in $3,897 23, making a total of both payments of $25,981 90. I immediately set to work and apportioned the money, retiring at 3 o'clock in the morning. The following day, January 9, I redeemed a large number of warrants, among them some $5,000 worth held by the firm of Messrs. Harris & Rhine (who, by the way, possess about one-third of the floating debt of this county). In that payment those suspicious, identical packages of coin formed quite a portion. What they did with that money was no business of mine.

About the three per cent. charged on the money sent down to Sacramento, wherewith I had to effect my semi-annual settlement with the State Treasurer, I would simple state that if (?) it was paid your humble County Treasurer had to foot the bill out of his own private purse. In examining my statement you will find that neither the county or any one else is charged with that extraordinary extortion.

But to cut short reference to these silly but malignant accusations, I will inform you that I hereby demand of you, as the county guardians of the treasury, a strict and searching inquiry into all affairs connected with my office; and after such search and inquiry, should you as upright gentlemen—having the interest of the county at heart—think proper to suggest to me a more responsible place for the security of the public funds than the safe of Harris & Rhine, and a more trustworthy firm, until the county is ready to furnish me with its own office and safe, I am ready to obey your commands in the premises—and you will find me

Your most obedient servant,

HENRY M. ISAACS,

County Treasurer.

P. S.—While my friends hereabouts have so kindly (?) spoken against me, 'tis rather refreshing to be able to place before you the following communications from two of the heaviest tax-payers and most responsible gentlemen in the county:

INDEPENDENCE, Feb. 3, 1873.

H. M. ISAACS, County Treasurer: Dear Sir—Yours concerning the possibilities of an increase in your official bond is received. In answer, I propose to offer you my services as bondsman (in case of necessity) for any reasonable amount on a reasonable bond. Respectfully yours.

M W. BELSHAW.

INDEPENDENCE, Feb. 3, 1873.

Mr. HENRY M. ISAACS, County Treasurer. Dear Sir—Your favor regarding the increase of an official bond that may be required of you has been received. You may command my services for any reasonable sum as bondsman required in your official capacity as County Treasurer.

Yours truly,

V. BEAUDRY.

The Horse Disease.

It is quite easy to tell when a horse has it. He will cough for a few days and will then run at the nose a green-yellow matter, and frequently his eyes will be watery. It is useless to write a lengthy article on the subject, as every paper in the country has had something to say about it for weeks past. Rest and comfortable care is the most that is needed.

The disease in the East has now appeared in the form of dropsy, and is proving quite fatal. More is to be feared after the disease seems to disappear than while it is raging. It is quite certain that horses should not be worked while they have the disease, and ample time should be allowed them after they recover to fully recuperate. We offer what a distinguished physician and surgeon of Lexington furnished the daily press in regard to the treatment:

The best treatment for the horse epidemic now raging is as follows, viz.:

1. Keep the horse quiet.
2. Well sheltered.
3. Well blanketed.
4. Good air.
5. Exercise gently once or twice a day.
6. Feed soft feed dampened.
7. Give a good old-fashioned dose of castor oil when symptoms show themselves.
8. Rub the neck and chest daily with soap liniment.
9. Use carbolic acid and lime as a disinfectant in the stable.
10. Once a day give the horse an inhalation of chloride of lime in a pitcher. This is easily given by pouring water on the lime and let the horse infected breathe it once a day or even twice.
11. The horse should be groomed once a day with alcohol and water, half and half (tepid), and then rubbed dry.
12. Use flax seed tea when the wind is not free and correct.
13. Use mustard drafts occasionally on the lungs.
14. The disease runs it course in seven days, but leaves the horse weakened, and he should be then built up. The secondary symptoms are those of dropsy.

The above treatment succeeded in a large stable in New York city.

"Why should we celebrate Washington's birth-day more than mine?" asked a teacher. "Because he never told a lie," shouted a little boy.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Sargent's Grazing Lands Bill.

It provides—as there are in different parts of California public lands neither mineral, agricultural nor timber lands, but fit for grazing purposes only, lands which are of little value, yielding comparatively but little pasturage, and mostly in possession of parties who have improved them for purposes of pasturage—that any citizen or any person who has filed his intention to become one, of age, who at the passage of this act shall be in the exclusive possession of any of these grazing lands, may purchase not exceeding 640 acres, at the rate of fifty cents per acre, upon application at the proper Land Office. The balance of the bill is a matter of detail and precaution—providing for the survey, at expense of purchaser, of such of these lands as are unsurveyed, the survey to be only such as shall establish location and boundaries; for the determination by the Surveyor General whether the surveyed land is grazing land within the meaning of the act; for an oath by purchaser that the purchase is not made on speculation, but in good faith for the exclusive use and benefit of purchaser; and that no agreement of any sort, direct or indirect, has been made by third parties by which the title shall inure, in whole or in part, to the benefit of any other than the purchaser; prescribing penalties of perjury for those who swear falsely, forfeitures of money, land, etc; and leaving detail of regulations to the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Earthquakes.

San Jose had a heavy earthquake at 3 A. M., February 3; it was felt at San Francisco, Santa Cruz and other places along the coast, at the same hour. The Island of Samos, in the Grecian Archipelago, was terribly shaken up about the same date, causing a considerable loss of life and property. A New York dispatch of February 4, gives this:

A Calcutta dispatch states that the city of Lohuree, in the Territory of the Sinde, was nearly destroyed by an earthquake. The calamity came with such suddeness that escape was impossible. On the first alarm the inhabitants rushed from their houses into the streets, where many were killed by falling buildings. Upwards of 500 persons are supposed to have perished. The earthquake was felt for many miles away. The inhabitants of Lohuree, after the first consternation, fled with their goods to the mountains. Lohuree, in the Department of Sinde, British India, is a town of 8,000 people on the left bank of the Indus, occupying a declivity near the mountains. The streets are very narrow and the houses lofty and crowded.

A Small-pox Remedy.

I herewith append a receipt, which has been used to my knowledge in hundreds of cases. It will prevent or cure small-pox though the pittings are filling. When Jenner discovered cow-pox in England, the world of science hurled an avalanche of fame upon his head; but when the most scientific school of medicine in the world—that of Paris—published the receipt as a panacea for small-pox, it passed unheeded. It is as unfailing as fate and conquers in every instance. It is harmless when taken by a well person. It will also cure scarlet fever. Here is the receipt as I have used it to cure my children of scarlet fever; here it is as I have used it to cure the small-pox, when learned physicians said the patient must die, it cured: Sulphate of zinc, one grain; half a teaspoonful of sugar; mix with two teaspoonfuls of water. When thoroughly mixed, add four ounces of water. Take a spoonful every hour. Either disease will disappear in twelve hours. For a child, small doses, according to age. If counties would compel their physicians to use this, there would be no need of pest houses. If you value advice and experience, use this for that terrible disease.—Cor. Stockton Herald.

Got the "Epizootic."

The following comes from Vallejo: Snacke was complaining to his friend Nicholas, a vender of fire-water in that classic burg, of a "dam bad cold," which for two weeks had deprived him of the ability to taste or smell. "Tell you what, Nick," he feelingly remarked, "if this head don't thaw out before long, I shall begin to think I have the 'epizootic.'" "Very likely, very likely," was the meditative response; "a jackass is as liable to have the disease in this country as a horse! If I were you——" But the remainder of that sentence has never been heard from.

The Spanish Language.

In the House of Representatives, Washington, there was an interesting debate on the 7th instant on the question whether the Spanish language is of more use prospectively to an officer in the United States army than the French or German. The Spanish party carried the day on the presumption that we will at some time not far distant acquire Mexico and Cuba, and very close relations with the Spanish South American States. Whether that be the case or not, it has occured to several hombres in this section that the Spanish is of more practical use here than any other foreign language, and are putting their belief into execution by forming classes with intent to learn the same. We will state here for the information of these and others who read that tongue, that there is a very excellent Spanish semi-weekly paper, "La Cronica," published at Los Angeles, and being the only one in the southern portion of the State, is worthy of support.

Writs of Certiorari.

[From The Sacramento Union, Feb. 4]

The Supreme Court has recently granted two writs of certiorari upon the petition of F. F. Gallardo of Inyo county—one to review the proceedings of the County Judge of Inyo county, and the other to review the proceedings of the Judge of the Sixteenth Judicial District. The petitioner represents this state of things: Juan Lago attempted to appeal from a judgment rendered against him, in a suit before a Justice of the Peace, in favor of Alejo Baldenebro, but filed an insufficient undertaking. Notwithstanding this and the plaintiff's objections to the document, the Justice forwarded the papers in the case to the County Court. The County Court denied a motion to dismiss the appeal, and the case came on to be tried de novo, the plaintiff demanded a jury. The court required the prepayment of a sum of money before issuing a venire. Gallardo advised the plaintiff not to pay it, and joined him in an affidavit to support a motion for a change of venue, stating the reasons for desiring the change. The County Judge thereupon ordered the petitioner to pay a fine of $50 or be imprisoned in the county jail for five days, and afterwards directed the clerk to enter an order adjudging him guilty of a contempt of court in making the affidavit. The petitioner then purchased the judgment in favor of Baldenebro and had it assigned to himself. With full notice of this the County Court annulled the judgment and dismissed the appeal, at the cost of Baldenebro. The writ to review these proceedings is made returnable April 14th, 1873. In the other case Gallardo had a suit in the District Court, in which the Judge sustained a demurrer to the complaint but refused to permit the plaintiff to amend the complaint, and refused to enter a final judgment. At the last October term of the Supreme Court Gallardo obtained an alternative writ of mandamus to compel the Judge to enter judgment. In another case he sued the Sheriff for false imprisonment. The court, he says, unjustly denied his motion for judgment on the pleadings; allowed the defendant to withdaw a demurrer and answer after the time for answering had expired; refused to certify to a bill of exceptions, and said in open court that if he (the Judge) had been the County Judge when the affidavit for a change of venue was filed, he would have ordered the petitioner to pay a fine of $500 or be imprisoned until it was paid at $2 per day. The petitioner says that afterwards, in the town of Havilah, the Judge threatened that if he insisted upon having the alternative writ of mandamus served, he would have the petitioner put in jail the first time he caught him at Independence.

Pioche Items.

A letter just received by a Pioche firm from Durant & Cutting, Salt Lake City forwarders, says: "Have no uneasiness about transportation. The horse disease is light and will soon be all over."

Work on the narrow guage railroad is drawing to a close. The only grading remaining to be done is on that part of the road just back of the mills at Bullionville. If the road is not completed and in running order by the 5th of next month, lack of iron and ties will be the cause. The passenger car is receiving the finishing strokes. It is neat in design, and will be as comfortable as elegant.

Judgment was rendered by his Honor yesterday on the motion for injunction in Raymond & Ely Mining Co. vs. Pioche Phenix Mining Co., sustaining the the same, defendant being enjoined pending the trial of the right of property; plaintiff is required to give an imdemnity bond in the sum of $10,000. All the legal points involved in the pending case were doubtless discussed and passed on in the injunction adjudication.

District Attorney Goldthwaite has caused posters to be circulated offering a reward of sixteen hundred and fifty dollars for the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who killed Chas. Swanson in this city, on the 29th of last December.

ARGUMENTS AND AUTHORITIES.

Here are the arguments which ruined "that petition." We interline a few remarks of our own, but of no particular importance, however. This the PETITION.

To the Honorable the Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, State of California:

The undersigned petitioners of said county, being desirous of removing the county-seat thereof from the town of Independence, the place of its present location, respectfully petition your Honorable body to order an election to be held as provided by law, for the purpose of determining to what place such removal must be made. For which removal and order of election your petitioners ever pray.

One or two peculiarities will be noted in this in addition to those pointed out to the Board. It says "your petitioners pray the removal," etc. A good many of them didn't pray anything of the kind; only their right to an election. A similar fiction is embraced in the closing sentence where the "removal" is prayed for in advance of the election. As a carefully drawn, truthful document, involving the rights of some hundreds of people, this is not a success.

Mr. Reddy objected to its acceptance because it nowhere alleged its signers to be qualified electors of Inyo county, which allegation is imperatively required in Sec 3977, Political Code of California, which reads:

"If the petition is signed by qualified electors of the county equal in number to at least one-third of all the votes cast in the county at the last preceding general election, the Board must within five days after receiving such petition, order an election, naming the day on which it must be held, not more than sixty nor less than thirty-five days from the time of calling it, specifying its object."

That, as the petitioners themselves do not allege that they are qualified electors of Inyo county, or represent themselves in that character to the Board, no other person has the right to do so for them, therefore there was no petition from the class named in the foregoing section, without which the Board has no authority to order an election.

That, the petitioners having failed to allege that they were qualified electors of Inyo county, they could not be permitted to prove that fact. In support, these authorities were cited: Green vs Palmer, 15 Cal., page 413. Wilson vs Cleveland, 30 Cal., page 192. Racouillot vs. Reone, 32 Cal, page 455, which says: "A party must prove every fact "which he is bound to prove, and will "be precluded from proving any fact "not alleged." But, admitting them to prove themselves to be qualified electors at the time of signing the petition, it must be proven by competent testimony like any other fact, as decided by our Supreme Court, January 25, 1873, in the "Alameda case," in which this order is entered:

"It is ordered that the following question of fact be determined: Was the petition (alleged in the application for the writ to have been presented to the Board of Supervisors of Alameda county) signed by as many as thirteen hundred and fifty-five persons, who were at the time of such signing qualified electors of the county of Alameda?

It is further ordered that the aforesaid question be tried before a jury in the District Court of the Twentieth Judicial District, in and for the county of Santa Clara, as soon as the current business of the court will permit; that a certified copy of the petition on file in this court, praying a writ of mandamus, together with a certified copy of this order, be transmitted forthwith to the Clerk of the said District Court of the Twentieth Judicial District, in and for the County of Santa Clara.

And it is further ordered that the said District Court, upon the application of either party, by subpena, duces tecum, or appropriate order, cause the original petition and such other records of the Board of Supervisors of the county of Alameda as may be necessary, and also the Great Register of the said county of Alameda, if the same be necessary, to be produced before the said court at the trial of said question.

He also cited the case of the People, ex. rel., vs. Knowles, et. al., decided in the Court of Appeals, New York, February 6, 1872. The Court held:

It must be proved that those who signed the petition were made acquainted with the contents of the petition; that the signers were of the class mentioned in the statute. That the statute gave rights to the class named in the statute which must necessarily affect the rights and property of other parties than the petitioners themselves, and therefore the petitioners must sign the petition personally, or if they authorize another to do so for them, the authority must be in writing and annexed to the petition. Also, that inasmuch as the statute required a written petition, the mere oral consent of a petioner was not sufficient and, therefore those whose names were subscribed to the petition by a third party in pursuance of a previous verbal authority, could not be counted as petitioners. The indentity of each petitioner must be proved.

Mr. Miller argued that, if the names subscribed to the petition were identical with the names of electors found on the Great Register, it was sufficient proof of the identity of the signers, and of their qualifications as electors when they affixed their names to the petition. He sustained his position by no cited authorities, nor is it likely such can be produced. He here submitted affidavit No. 1, as follows:

[AFFIDAVIT NO. 1.]

F. K. Miller being sworn, deposes and says that: The petition hereto attached asking the Board of Supervisors to order an election submitting the removal of the county-seat to a vote of the qualified electors of said county, was signed by the parties whose names appear thereon in the presence of affiant.

EXCEPTION 1.

The name of Walter William Adams, whose name is signed by J. L. Garrettson, who stated to this affiant that Mr. Adams aforesaid authorized him (Garrettson) to sign for him (Adams) in the presence of (witnesses) Mr. James Chamberlain and others. Mr. James being present at the time of the signing of Mr. Adams' name stated to this affiant that he heard Mr. Adams authorize Mr. Garrettson to sign his name to the petition.

EXCEPTION 2.

The following names signed by request by this affiant and were signed in the presence of and under the direction of said following named parties respectively to-wit. F. K. MILLER.

[Here follow names.]

Reddy claimed that this affidavit did not show upon its face that the affiant was competent to testify, because it did not state that the affiant was over ten years of age. (The new Code disqualifies children under ten years as witnesses except under certain conditions.) That it is not stated therein that the signers are qualified electors of Inyo county, or that they knew the contents of the petition when they signed it. Mr. Miller then introduced affidavit No. 2, of which this is a copy:

[AFFIDAVIT NO. 2.]

On this Sixth day of February, 1873, before the undersigned County Clerk of the county of Inyo, personally came F. K. Miller, who, first being sworn, on oath says that he is a resident tax-payer and qualified elector of said Inyo county.

That during the months of October and November of the year 1872 he circulated in said Inyo county the annexed petition praying for an election to vote upon the removal of the county-seat—that each and every person who signed said petition was, before signing thereof, by this affiant informed of the qualifications of an elector in said county. That each and every person declared to this affiant that he was a duly qualified elector of said county of Inyo before signing his name to said petition.

This affiant further deposes and says that there appears on said petition the names of more than one-third of the persons registered on the Great Register of the county of Inyo polled at the last general election of the State of California, holden on the 5th day of November, 1872.

That the whole number of votes pollen in said Inyo county at the last general election aforesaid was the three hundred and ninety-three, that there is signed to said petition the names of two hundred and five qualified electors of said county of Inyo.

That the said petition was filed with the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors on the twelfth day of September, 1872.

F. K. MILLER.

As a matter of form for an important legal document, it will be seen that Affidavit No. 2 also presents some curious features. First, the given number of signers does not equal one-third of the registered voters, as stated, by several. The printed Register contained 705 names and the supplemental some 60 more. If he meant to say what he does not say, to-wit: that the number of signers was in excess of one-third of the number who actually voted at the last election, it is all right. Another query is: How did he proceed to instruct every one of those signers as to their qualifications as voters, when he previously states that a number of them signed by proxy, especially the one furnished by his ally Garrettson? Being a signer himself how did he proceed to instruct himself on this important point? And the same in regard to the declarations on the same point made by "each and every one" of ditto? And what became of the other six signers that were on the petition in excess of the number (205) sworn to here? And wasn't it straining a point for him to swear that every one of them were qualified voters of this county, even if they each had told him so, considering the other little discrepancies? However, these trifling points were not laid before the Board that we are aware of so we will proceed with those that were.

Reddy claimed that the above affidavit was insufficient since it did not show that the signers were qualified electors; though it showed that the affiant had instructed each signer as to his qualifications as an elector it did not prove or state that Mr. Miller himself either was, or knew the qualifications of a witness or an elector. This Board could not accept unalleged facts as evidence. They could not assume that Mr. Miller was a competent person to go forth to instruct others as to their qualifications as electors, even though he had alleged or proved his own, which he had nor could not now be permitted to do. If this portion of the affidavit proved anything it was the bad taste in putting it in at all, as it certainly was a very sad commentary on the intelligence of the petitioners. "That they, after hearing his explanations of the qualfications of an elector, each declared to him that they were electors," was not legal evidence of the fact; it was at most but hearsay evidence, and further, but a declaration in favor of the party making it.

We are obliged to pass without notice other points bearing on the case, but what we have given ought to be sufficient.

Stokes.

The counsel in the Stokes case, in the event of a failure to obtain a new trial from Judge Boardman, will apply for a stay of proceedings, thereby to secure a review of the case by a full bench of the Supreme Court, and on failure there will go to the Court of Appeals.

—A Colorado paper says: "We hope our next Legislature will vote funds enough for the establishment of a hospital for the deluded individuals who come to this State to die. This is too healthy a climate for such people."

A PRIVILEGED QUESTION.

With the last issue it was our intention, and surely our desire, to close the discussion upon the "bone question" in all its bearings, except to give some pertinent legal points then promised.

But circumstances sometimes alter cases and ruin good intentions as well, and now we arise to a privileged question, premising that we shall touch upon the questions before us very briefly.

We are notified by one gentleman (Mr. Garrettson), that we must stop our "abuse" of him "forthwith." We hope he will allow us to remonstrate with him a minute or two on the absurdity of that demand, and then he can easily infer how far it will be complied with. In the first place we have had very good reasons for believing him the open and active advocate of a matter of public policy which concerned a great many other people besides himself. His success in his aims was absolutely certain, in our opinion at least, to prove very inimical to the general welfare, to that of our own and his own localities particularly. In short, with respect to his own locality we say without intending it in its offensive sense, that he was playing the role of traitor. We think he was honest enough in his object respecting his own perhaps, but not so much so in the measures by which it was to be attained. A successful issue fo the cause which he is supposed to represent was almost wholly contingent upon the effective abuse of certain opponents and, to a material extent, in matters entirely foreign to the question at issue. That system was and is the strength of his side of the question. We acknowledge the force of no system of ethics guaranteeing immunity to one party only in the use of a certain class of arguments offensive or defensive. When we rush furiously into an arena with a view of taking a hand in a free fight going on therein we expect to abide the consequences. If we get flung over the fence with a peeled nose and barked shins we will try and haul off and repair damages without sitting down to bellow in impotent rage. If we succeed in hoisting the other gentleman out body and breeches the decent thing for him to do is not to set up a howl. If he hadn't come in there he wouldn't have been thrown out, or otherwise injured.

But perhaps Mr. Garretson wasn't in this hypothetical ring at all; that the opposite assumption was all a mistake. When satisfied that we were in error on that or any other point we will make the amende honorable with great pleasure, and will state in advance that our efforts in intent have been as much as possible directed at the cause rather than the supposed representative for whom in general and especially as the open advocate even of a bad cause we have a good deal of respect. But it must be borne in mind that this a free fight, and that each side is held responsible for the acts of its own guerrillas, a most despicable class in any kind of a fight. We have no apologies to offer for doing what we considered our duty according to the lights before, but will say that we regret having placed Mr. Garrettson in an unnecessarily ridiculous light in a matter itself of no importance, considered in connection with actual facts now first apparent.

Two weeks since we published a "Notice" entitled "Marm G." We stated in the introduction that it was "extensively stuck or posted up throughout the northern end of the county." We were fully justified in that statement by apparent facts presented at the time. If it was, as we had good cause to believe, such a public matter it was a dirty, though covert, fling at this paper and no less towards its fictitious or nominal author. But on account of its supposed peculiar publicity we gave it place when if we had known all the facts we should not have noticed it at all. As it was we treated it according to its ostensible spirit, and accept no responsibilty about it. We were as well satisfied as to its authorship then as now, but of course not as to this fact: That Sneden, as a joke on his friend, wrote and stuck it up temporarily in his own establishment where he intended and where it did remain but a short time when it mysteriously went from the gaze of beholders, and was not "extensively stuck up" at all, except subsequently in these columns, upon which it was a libel, but in no degree equal to the later unequivocally false charge that we garbled it to suit ourselves. We gave it in full without altering a word, line or syllable. We have enough to do to answer for our own sins without assuming those of others.

This is the question of privilege to which we speak on this occasion. We will merely add that we have in this issue only met like with like and in the very nature of the case could have done no less. When men have no higher acknowledged aim or motive in view than to inflict injury on others without prospect of attaining any good in any shape to even themselves save the fun of the thing, they mustn't take on should their own feathers be slightly ruffled in the operation. We attribute such a motive as the above only to its active advocates, or such as have substantially admitted it their incentive. These need no additional specification.

As proof positive that THE INDEPENDENT has not been actuated by local and especially self interest in its narrowest sense we have only to point to the record of its own columns. If policy in that narrow sense had been its rule of action it must strike any common understanding that a very different course would have been pursued. We wish this to be borne in mind when we ask those gentlemen in the northern end of the county who accorded their sympathy against us in the matter now in hand, who is their better friend? In whose success are their general and individual interests nearest blended in the pending issue? Have we made a fight for ourselves only, or for them as well?

Nuff ced!

MR. MULKEY'S STATEMENT.

In this issue will be found Mr. Mulkey's statement in reply to that of Mr Isaacs last week. Under ordinary circumstances there is nothing more of interest to the public in the subject matter of these communications, or rather the business transactions of the firm of Harris & Rhine in the matter of discounting checks or transacting any other banking business in kind, than there is in the price per pound at which they sell sugar or any other article of merchandise. We certainly do not believe that they have transcended their legal rights in a legitimate business in the one case any more than their moral rights in the other, or in either, but that is a matter we defer to their own consideration and explanation.

The whole ground work and cause is summed up in Mr. Mulkey's concluding remarks, and on these grounds only have we now, or ever had heretofore, anything to do with it. This, and other matters of a like nature have been dragged in and made to do duty as an "argument" in favor of the county-seat removal. In right and justice it should have no more to do in the determination of that question than the alleged or established criminal acts of any resident, permanent or transient, of the town of Lone Pine or any other place. But we have to deal with facts as we find them, and we find that the alleged misdoings (not excepting our own) of certain individuals living in the present county-seat are set up as a sufficient and almost the only cause justifying a removal. Such being the nature of the arguments we have had to combat, it is sufficiently obvious that the evidence in rebuttal must be of the same nature, and, as a matter of course, the acts of private individuals transacting their own peculiar and private business, and though no wise connected with the main issue, become a legitimate part of such testimony or "arguments."

In that connection the allusion to the price of scrip was made. Mr. Mulkey states, in effect, that our conclusions on that point last week were not justified by facts. We maintain that they were, although we admit the truth of all he says in relation to Mr. Rowley. Mr. Rowley did purchase scrip, and doubtless at one time caused its advance to a certain figure (60 cents), but after that he nor no other bidder, save the one firm, so far as we know were in the market, though it (the scrip) was maintained for several months at a price ten cents higher. We, of this paper had dealings in that commodity to a limited extent with both the parties alluded to, and though not prepared to give exact dates just at this moment in proof, know of our own knowledge that our statement in the main was true. We do not nor never have said or intimated that Harris & Rhine were the only purchasers, but we do mean to intimate that all the facts go to show that if they had not been bidders the price of scrip would not have reached, or at least been long maintained, much above the current rates at the time Mr. Rowley entered the market. If we are "to render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's" in every detail and in every statement made, we will commence by according Mr. Rowley the credit claimed in this instance (and in many others not claimed), and at the same time claim a share of the same for ourselves, to this extent: We, in payment for work (printing) done for Inyo county, charged it at cash rates, mill for mill the same as to private individuals for similar work. We received in payment county scrip, the current value of which up to that date was 50 cents. Knowing that it was intrinsically worth more money than that, we gave our reason in print for that belief, and afterwards received the thanks of a few individuals for having materially assisted in causing it to sell at its approximate value. In making out the above bills (there was two, three months intervening) we valued the warrant to be received at 60 cents, though knowing full well that, being obliged to dispose of it at once, we would not get to exceed 55 cents if so much, the current rate being 50. But the firm of Harris & Rhine did pay us 55 cents for the same on the first occasion and on the second Mr. Rowley, under similar differences (55 and 60), paid us the latter figure. To that extent at least we contributed towards the fulfillment of our teachings, and to the extent named, and perhaps more, Mr. Rowley, and possibly others, was instrumental in effecting the same object. But Mr. Rowley soon reached the limits he deemed proper, and withdrew from the field, and we never had any occasion to repeat the operation, so we apprehend neither one or the other is entitled to but a proportionate amount of the credit, such as it is.

In regard to the privilege accorded us by Mr. Mulkey of trying "to make people fall down and worship Harris & Rhine," etc., we have just this to say: That whenever we attempt anything of the kind his permission may be of some value, but it is altogether likely it will not be asked for, thanking him all the same.

Shooting in Cerro Gordo.

Only for the difficulty of obtaining the particulars in detail, Cerro Gordo is a prolific source of the "man for breakfast" order of items—sufficiently so to satisfy the yearnings of the most enthusiastic reporter. The latest affair of this nature comes to us as having occurred at that point on the night of Wednesday last, after this prelude:

A week or so since four men, bearing respectively the names of Walker, Clark, McCarty and Johnny Stewart, arrived in the lower end of this county, the two former from Columbus, we believe. In Cerro Gordo they joined in on an extended and rampageous drunk. During the whole time their especial dislike and animosity was manifested toward the Mexicans, as a class, upon whom they heaped the worst insults and vituperative abuse. On the evening mentioned the ball opened by a rumpus in Hughes' saloon, but serious consequences were prevented by Al. Briggs, the bar-keeper, hustling out the crowd and closing up the house. About 10 o'clock the four, with flourishing six-shooters, started down the hill to a dead-fall dance house known as Madam Moore's, or "Waterfall's." McCarty and Stewart, the latter having a few months ago had occasion to shoot a Mexican in Lone Pine, probably scenting trouble in the air, concluded that "discretion was," etc., and continued their walk so far past the "Waterfall" place that they finally reached Lone Pine. Walker and Clark, however, entered the establishment and announced that they proposed to run the machine for a while. The Mexicans, having been informed by the "landlady" that their assistance was not desirable, concluded, after the jeers and threats they had withstood for some days, not to heed the intimation, but to settle the matter in their own way. At this point Americans other than Walker and Clark, have occasion to remember being assisted out. This move effected, a Mexican stepped up and placed a pistol almost in contact with Walker's head and fired, while the latter was brandishing his own weapon—a six-shooter. But the ball only coursed around the skull and did not kill him. The firing became general, in due course of which Clark got a dose of lead that knocked him hors du combat, receiving a bullet in the groin. Clark has been brought to the hospital at Camp Independence; Walker remains in Cerro Gordo. The Mexicans, armed with pistols, knives and rocks, are represented as having went in for blood, but the public sympathy seems to be very generally with them, nevertheless. During the same night, at another dance-house, that of Lola Trevis, two young Mexicans got into a quarrel concerning one of the women. The father of one of them interfered and received a shot through the abdomen, which is likely to prove fatal. In those rows where the principals are killed outright we have a sort of morbid satisfaction in so reporting it, but when they are only maimed and become expensive public charges, it is a bad go. But frequently innocent parties are the victims; and if there is law to do it these affrays should be stopped on that account, if no other.

Quite a Blow.

About daylight on last Thursday morning the wind blew from the northward for a short time with great violence. From the accounts of parties who were in circulation at that early hour, we judge that the prospects for the whole county seat being removed bodily to Lone Pine were, for a short period, exceedingly numerous. As it was, Huff's barber shop did start, but fetched up in the channel of the creek, with one end several feet or two higher than the other—no great amount of damage being done, however. But the town narrowly escaped total destruction by fire, since the smouldering embers in the capsized stove communicated with the floor of the light building and would soon have enveloped it in flames, but for the timely arrival of Judge Hanson and others. Mr. Huff, the gentlemanly tonsorialist, now holds forth in Lentell's old establishment.

The Big Damage Suit.

Corner Lank yesterday served upon the defendants the papers issued out of the District Court of the Sixth Judicial District, in the case of Peter Peerson vs. County Judge Hannah, County Clerk Hammarstrand, Sheriff Mulkey, Under Sheriff W. L. Moore and F. K. Miller and P. Reddy, their attorneys, for false imprisonment—the damages being laid at the modest figure of $100,000. This is the work of F. F. Gallardo, a mischief-maker and monomaniac on matters of law, who will probably find himself effectually squelched before he recovers for his client the full amount of damages he sues for. He is great on damages, is Galliardo but he has yet some things to learn before shuffling off this mortal coil. When the game busts Peerson wont have a splitter.

Deep Spring.

It transpires that our item of a week or since concerning the supposed desertion of Deep Spring was somewhat of an error, since only those immediately interested in Lida have left the district. As we intimated the mines never looked more favorable that at present, and it is expected that active operations will be resumed thereon early in the coming Summer. All the Crooked Creek claims are yielding good ore, which will insure Deep Spring's success.

Funny.

A correspondent of THE INDEPENDENT residing way up in Nevada, but within the range and jurisdiction of said paper, takes occasion to write an amusing communication concerning alleged doings in his neighborhood, whereupon scores of wiseacres in Inyo make every sentence of it apply as intended references to parties within our midst. We are sorry to dispel the illusion, but the writer of that article never saw this county.

Stabbing Affray.

At Lida, on the night of the 6th instant, an affray occurred between two Mexicans, which resulted in the stabbing of Abram Altamarino, he receiving a severe wound in the left breast, and a slight one where the breast bone arrested the course of the knife. Had the blade struck but an inch lower the wound would have proved fatal; as it is, however, the man will doubtless recover.

Started in Again.

S. G. Sneden, of Bishop Creek, with characteristic energy, is opening out a store in Ditsworth's saddler shop, to which he is building an addition. During the coming Summer he will rebuild the burnt property, and deserves infinite credit for his consummate pluck and enterprise.

At Columbus.

Dr. F. C. Smith, the surgeon so well known throughout this inner country, has, as shown by his professional card, located himself at Columbus, Nev., for the practice of medicine.

The report of County Treasurer was examined, accepted and ordered published in THE INYO INDEPENDENT.

Resignation of M. S. Clark, Justice of the Peace of 4th Town-hip, accepted. On petition, G. W. McCrosky was appointed to fill said vacancy.

On petition, Robert S. Peterson was appointed Justice of the Peace and Henry Stevens Constable, for the 3d Township.

Petition from Big Pine praying for a division of Milton School District and the establishment of a new one at Big Pine, was granted.

WEDNESDAY, February 5.

Reports of Roadmasters J. Alexander and J. S. Bodle passed as informal and incomplete, not being accompanied by unsold tax receipts.

Petition of citizens of Bishop Creek for a change in the boundaries of Irving School District was granted.

Petition for the removal of county seat, presented by F. K. Miller, taken under advisement.

THURSDAY, February 6.

Present—A. N. Bell, F. H. Burroughs and T. K. Hutchison, President.

Removal petition taken up and considered at length (proceedings reported elsewhere) Rejected.

FRIDAY, February 7.

Full Board present.

The Big Pine bridge was ordered accepted from contractor's hands as finished and completed, and balance of $2,500 due on the same was ordered paid.

Ordered that the sum of $5,000 be paid to E. Chaquette, contractor, on Court House.

Two petitions from Bishop Creek concerning roads were granted. A. C. McDonald, J. R. Smith and Lyman Tuttle were appointed viewers.

Ordered that the Sheriff be allowed the sum of $3 per day from and after the 28th day of January, 1873, as Jailer's fees.

Ordered that the County Assessor be allowed two deputies for the ensuing year, and that he be furnished with the necessary blanks.

Ordered that an application be made to the Surveyor General to order a survey of county boundary lines.

SATURDAY, February 8.

After filling the jury box the Board adjourned for the term.

Lida.

We are informed that times are lively in Lida, Nev., notwithstanding the recent storm, during which the snow fell from one to three feet in depth, varying in places. The "epizootic" has made its appearance, but it is stated that H. H. H. is a certain cure. The camp abounds in bunged eyes, big cheeks, peeled noses and noses set to one side. A man can can always get "mansarded;" in fact they have a free fight at any time, to suit the convenience of parties concerned. Nor do they confine themselves to any particular mode or code, but kick, strike, chaw, scratch and swear. This being the case, our senior will shortly pay that region a visit.

Shut Down.

The heavy snow in the mountains having entirely prevented the obtaining of logs, the Black Rock Saw Mill has been compelled to close down for a time. Meanwhile the boys up there are taking it easy, but are "enterprising," nevertheless. We have been favored with several ingenious specimens of the whittling art, which are curiosities in their way.

Cottonwood.

Col. Stevens has completed a fine trail up Cottonwood canyon to the timber and the point where the flume is to head, and the work is otherwise going on satisfactorily. We understand that the Colonel and Mr. Van Arsdale will shortly set out for San Francisco and Carson, in the furtherance of the enterprise.

No Go.

Out of respect for "Dad" Moore, and in order to prevent several young ladies from "putting a nose on him" (since he hasn't much they couldn't conveniently pull his hair), we considerately refrain from giving the result of his investigation of the love letter business.

Spanish.

Attention is called to the notice given elsewhere by Mr. Werner, regarding the formation of a new class in the study of Spanish. Frank is a linguist of no ordinary attainments, and students placing themselves under his tutelage can scarcely fail of mastering the "lengua."

New Justices.

Mr. W. G. McCrosky has, upon petition, received the appointment of Justice of the Peace for Bishop Creek precinct, vice M. S. Clark, resigned. Also, R. S. Peterson was appointed as an additional Justice for Lone Pine precinct, with Henry Stevens as Constable.

Lost.

The honest finder of a lost breast-pin is requested to return it to this office and receive his reward. Mr. Miner also gives notice that he has lost a school land certificate and will apply for a duplicate.

Columber.

As we predicted, Dr. Columber has re-appeared in Lone Pine, all right side up with care; but we are not informed of his movements during the time when his absence gave rise to the surmises of his friends.

Died.

The Mexican whom we mentioned as being at the County Hospital suffering from cancer, is dead. We did not learn his name.

The Painting.

The contract for the painting of the new Court House has been awarded by the builders to Messrs. Willson & Gage.

Accepted.

The new Big Pine bridge has been officially accepted and paid. We shall endeavor to describe the structure next week.

THE COUNTY FUNDS.

Sheriff Mulkey's Reply.

MESSRS. EDITORS.—In an article in your paper of last week you write in a strain which calls for a reply from me. In the same issue you publish a communication from H. M. Isaacs, County Treasurer, addressed to the Board of Supervisors, which I deem it my duty to myself to answer.

Mr. Isaacs, after throwing dirt at one or two county officials for making, as he says, "feeble but malicious statements regarding the manner in which the affairs of his office have been conducted," proceeds to reply to a rumor in reference to certain packages of coin, and makes a statement of the manner in which certain rolls of coin which were paid into the County Treasury by me were afterwards put in circulation by Harris & Rhine. If the gentleman had made a true statement and had not rushed into print and courted publicity and challenged investigation I should not have made a reply—but as I made certain statements in reference to rolls of coin that were paid into the Treasury by me, and am one of the persons, I suppose, to whom he alludes when he says, "Parties arrogating to themselves the power of public censors have, with a most ungenerous profusion (to place it in the mildest light), scattered through the county innuendoes reflecting derogatively to my character as a county official," I have concluded to make a correct statement of the matter in reference to the rolls of coin and leave the public to judge how far the "feeble and malicious statements" (as he calls them) are true, and how far "reflecting derogatively to my character as a public official."

On the 3d day of January I paid into the County Treasury $22,084 67. Part of this money was silver coin in rolls or packages of $20 each. It was understood at the time of this payment, both by the County Treasurer and myself, that no apportionment would be made for three or four days, until I made another payment.

On January 8th, I made another payment to the County Treasurer of $3,897 23. He says in his communication to the Board of Supervisors that he apportioned the money that night, and that on the next day (the 9th) he redeemed many warrants, and that in that payment those "suspicious, identical" packages formed quite a portion. I have asserted and now reiterate it and am prepared to prove that one of the packages of silver which I paid into the County Treasury on the 3d day of January was paid to me on the 4th by another person for taxes. I also assert that before I made my second payment I received several other packages of coin which I recognized as having been paid into the Treasury by me on the 3d. I further state that I went to Mr. Rhine to collect a license before I made my last payment to the County Treasurer. He took from his safe a roll of silver coin, opened the wrapper and took out $4, leaving $16, the price of the license, in the wrapper and handed it to me. This was one of the "identical" wrappers in which the silver was rolled which I paid in on the 3d to the County Treasurer. It will thus be seen that I have asserted, still assert and am prepared to prove that one (at least) of those "identical" rolls of coin paid into the County Treasury by me on the 3d was paid to me by another party five days before the County Treasurer made his apportionment, and commenced paying warrants according to his own account. I will further state, in order that you and the public may be enlightened that Mr. Rhine proposed to me at the time the taxes were being paid that when parties came to pay their taxes and had checks, that he would shave the checks three per cent—that the County Treasurer would accept their (Harris & Rhine) order and receipt to me as for so much money and that he (Rhine) would divide the percentage with me. I made no reply to him at the time; afterwards he came me and offered to pay me my share of the percentage on somebody's taxes. I refused to receive it and told him I did not want any money made in that way, and that when my office would not pay me without doing that kind of business I would resign. He then said, "Well, I will make you a nice present out of the store." I walked off and left him and have never spoken to him on the subject since. Mr. Rhine was Deputy County Treasurer at this time and so situated that he could have carried out his programme if I had agreed to it. I leave it to you and the public to judge how far the the words "County Treasury" and "Harris & Rhine" are synonymous.

Before I close this allow me to correct a statement which you make in your last issue in reference to scrip. Harris & Rhine did not raise scrip from 55 cents to 70 cents. They were buying scrip at the same rate as others (fifty cents) when J. B. Rowley commenced buying scrip. He advanced scrip to 60 cents and posted printed notices that he would pay at that rate for it and bought several thousand dollars of scrip at that rate before Harris & Rhine raised the price to 70 cents.—"Render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's." Give Harris & Rhine any credit that is their due but if others deserve credit render it to them.

If Harris & Rhine are public benefactors and you can make the people see it in that light all right. Let the people fall down and worship them if they please. For my own part I claim the right of thinking and acting for myself and if I think proper to go contrary to the interest of Harris & Rhine or any other person on the county seat question, or any other question, I intend to do it; and if I use such weapons as my adversaries place in my hands to defeat them and advance the cause I wish to see succeed it is fair and proper that I should do so.

C. MULKEY.

Water for Cerro Gordo.

It is with more than ordinary gratification that we learn of Cerro Gordo's flattering prospects of obtaining the one additional great desideratum—water. For particulars as to the parties having the undertaking in hand, we refer to our Cerro Gordo correspondence. We have received no definite report of the survey or estimates of distance or cost, but understand that some twelve miles or more of piping will be required, and that at the outset the water will have to be forced up a perpendicular hight of about 1,700 feet. Two powerful engines at different altitudes will, we suppose, be required for this purpose, as the weight of water per square inch is but little less than 800 pounds. The company will probably secure the Belshaw & Beaudry spring, from which the water will have to be raised 700 feet; and in this event the water supply will be ample for all present purposes. The company is incorporated upon a capital of $1,000,000, and composed of thoroughgoing, practical men of means, who mean business. As an expression of our individual opinion, however, we would suggest to the engineers of the company the propriety of investigating Col. Stevens' plan of a tramway for supplying water and carrying ores. With proper connections, we believe that method will prove much the cheapest and most effective plan of accomplishing both purposes.

Accidental Shooting.

On Wednesday evening last, David Naylor, the well known store-keeper of Big Pine, while carelessly manipulating a pistol, accidentally discharged it, the ball landing in his foot, making a painful but probably not a dangerous wound. The sufferer was brought to the hospital at Camp Independence and placed under the able treatment of Dr. White.

Letter from Cerro Gordo.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

MESSRS. EDITORS: New and extensive operations are in active progress for the improvement and opening up of Cerro District. A mining camp can not make headway, nor never be well and thoroughly prospected, unless it is plentifully supplied with that essential element—water. We have for years paid ten cents per gallon for water, a fact which has made it almost impossible to ascertain and develop the true mineral wealth of the country. Two or three companies have proved what immense wealth lies buried in the mountains surrounding Cerro Gordo, although the expenses are so heavy that many miners would have pronounced it an impossibility to work these mines to any advantage.

We therefore learn with pleasure the gratifying fact that an enterprising company has commenced operations to bring in a large stream of water from a spring about ten miles distant; and Mr. Boushey, the originator of the company, informs me that the water will be here in about four months from the time work is commenced.

Messrs. Boushey and L. Seebold—the latter a practical surveyor from Los Angeles—have investigated the situation of the spring, and find that the work can be completed in about the time stated, and that the quantity of water is sufficient to supply all the wants of this place. With plenty of water at low rates this camp will soon be in the most flourishing condition, and everybody interested in the welfare of the county will certainly wish the company all possible success.

The Cerro Gordo Tunnel Company have already commenced work on their tunnel, situated half a mile southeast of the town. It will be, when completed, 3,000 feet in length.

The Boushey Silver Mining Company are energetically pushing things, working day and night. A few more such enterprising men as Mr Boushey will materially change the appearance of this camp, and demonstrate the mines to be the best on the Pacific coast.

The other and better known companies carrying on operations here are progressing about as usual, of which I may speak in my next.

MINER.

New Machinery.

Belshaw's furnace, Cerro Gordo, is being supplied with a new engine and machinery. The proprietor thereof is gone on a predatory excursion to the bay.

Improved.

"Put's" saloon, the Headquarters, has been treated to a new floor of Oregon pine, which materially improves the appearance of the institution.

Tired of it.

Tweed said his trial was merely a political one, and that they never would get a jury to convict him. He was tired of the business. A juryman says they pledged themselves to divulge nothing occurring in the jury-room. From forty to fifty ballotings were had, and nothing was learned from an interview with several jurors to show that any were influenced by improper motives. Tremaine, counsel for the prosecution, says the panel of jurors from which the jury was selected was prepared in the interest of defendant. One of the jurors, he says, was a bummer, provided with a new suit of clothes, and procured for this trial. Another boasted he would make money if on the jury. Another had served in a Virginia prison for violation of the revenue laws, though pardoned. These things were not discovered until after the jury was sworn.

Supreme Court.

We find these two items of Supreme Court proceedings in The Sacramento Union of the 8th instant. Parties versed in the law can interpret them quite as well as we, if not a little better:

People ex rel. Linden vs. Board of Supervisors Alameda county.—Motion of Foote for a peremtory writ of mandate for an order of court for the recovery of the costs denied. Ordered that notice of said motion be given to respondents, returnable Tuesday, February 11th, at 10 A. M.

Ex parte F. F. Gallardo on habeas corpus—On filing petition and affidavit, ordered that a writ of habeas corpus issue, returnable before R. C. Clark, County Judge of Sacramento county, at the court-room in the city of Sacramento, on Saturday, February 8th, at 10 A. M.

Salt Lake News.

Dates from Salt Lake to the 30th ultimo say:

The snow-drifts on the Union Pacific Railroad [not the Western, as the types made us say last week—EDS INDEPENDENT] in some places are sixteen feet high. Old railroad men say the weather is the most terrible ever experienced. At Granite Canyon three section hands were frozen to death, two at Bryan, and a number of others are reported as having perished while shoveling snow. Great credit is due to the employees of the company in breaking the blockade so speedily. Passengers have suffered no hardships.

Snow is ten feet on the level in Little Cottonwood Mining District.

Another scheme is on foot to build a railroad from this city to connect with the Union Pacific at Echo.

The epizootic is as bad as ever.

Eighteen shots were fired. Great excitement prevails.

Pussling a Doctor.

Dr. M., an army surgeon, was fond of a joke (unless perpetrated at his own expense), and had, moreover, a great contempt for citizen soldiers, who were more renowned for their courage than their scholarship. One day at mess, after the decanter had performed sundry perambulations of the table, Capt. S., a brave and accomplished officer, and a great wag, remarked to the Doctor, who had been somewhat severe in his remarks on the literary deficiencies of some of the new officers:

"Dr. M. are you acquainted with Capt. G.?"

"Yes, I know him well," replied the Doctor, "he is one of the new set. But what of him?"

"Nothing in particular; I have just received a letter from him, and I will wager you a dozen old port that you cannot guess in six guesses how he spells cat."

"Done! It's a wager."

"Well, commence guessing," said Capt. S.

"K, a, double t."

"No."

"K, a, double t, e."

"No."

"K, a, t, e."

"No, try again."

"C, a, double t, e."

"No, you have missed it again."

"Well then," returned the Doctor, "Ca, double t."

"No, that's not the way; try again—it's your last guess."

"C, a, g, h, t."

"No, that's not the way. You've lost your wager."

"Well," said the Doctor, with much petulance of manner, "how does he spell it?"

"Why, he spells it c, a, t," replied S., with the utmost gravity of manner, amid the roar of the mess; and almost choking with rage the Doctor sprang to his feet, exclaiming very harshly:

"Capt. S., I am too old a man to be trifled with in this manner!"

The Colorado Desert.

In an article in The Overland Monthly, Dr. J. P. Widney says that this desert is in its central portions several hundred feet lower than the river, and this is the case with the most of it in a less degree. It would not be difficult to turn the river into it, and thus create a great inland body of fresh water. This, he believes, would lower the summer temperature of the southern part of the State considerably, increase the rainfall and flow of the springs and streams. A climatic change of this kind would be an improvement, and fit for the home of a larger population, like that which once occupied these regions and have left their evidences in the ruins of habitations, smelting works and other remains. The experiment would not be expensive as a Government undertaking. If the rainfall of the southern part of this State were increased in quantity, the luxuriance of the growth of the natural grasses and other vegetations on its plains and hills and mountains would be unsurpassed in any part of the temperate zones.—Los Angeles Express.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, IOWA, Feb. 1, 1873.

MESSRS. EDITORS: We reached this place yesterday at 2 P. M., and being too late to connect with the eastward train, were compelled to lay over till this morning. Though this is dated at Council Bluff you will please understand I am writing on the cars as they move. We were just five days from Sacramento here, which is pretty fair time.

"COLD, YOU BET."

The thermometer here is now 20° below zero. The people, though, feel much encouraged as they note and enjoy the increasing warmth, as but a few days ago the mercury stood at 24 below. They are proud to think that it is on such a rapid up-grade, although they know it could have gone yet a few degrees the other way without congealing entirely. The natives profess to like cold weather, and consequently have a wholesome dread of a hereafter, on which account an active missionary would find this a most encouraging field, save with respect to the hotel keepers; they (particularly those of Omaha), are hopeless cases, given to their idols, and it is better that both travelers and missionaries should let them alone.

A resident of your genial clime, who has never experienced the beauties of Winter in such as this, can have no proper realization of how cold even 20 degrees below zero is. Yet it gets lower down than that, many degrees, and then one of them will sometimes admit that "it is pretty cold, you bet."

INTERESTED.

Among others here who had many questions to ask about your country, were Mr. V. Gregg, a former resident of Inyo, a lawyer here in high standing, and Mr. Platner and family, relatives of the Messrs. Shepherds of your valley.

LONE PINE AND INDEPENDENCE.

These two towns, Omaha and Council Bluff, are rival would-be cities. The former is in Nebraska, the latter across the Missouri river in Iowa and but four miles distant from each other. One year ago both places looked quite prosperous; now, they do not. Both aspire to be a grand railroad center, and are extremely jealous of each other.

HARD TIMES.

Corn sells at from 12 to 17 cents per bushel and other produce in proportion. There is a universal complaint of hard times and oppressions, and when the people get tired of talking upon these subjects they have an unfailing resource in the Credit Mobilier scandal, and the rascals in Congress. We are, after listening to these discussions, brought to the conclusion that man may, and sometimes does err. These high officials who bit at the glittering bait and took hook, line and all, are but men after all, much as they try to induce a different belief. A twitch on the line and they are snatched from their ideal sea of honor in which they have dwelt in fancied security so long, and now find themselves landed in the mud, veritable suckers!

FELT GUILTY.

Hearing so much talk about Credit Mobilier I felt in my pockets to see if it was possible any of it could be found about me. I did find a railroad pass and after looking at it for a time I fancied it was mobilier, so I determined to leave that road and go down through Pike where no such things existed. Took the Kansas City & St. Louis road and, rolling on at good speed, took comfort in the belief that I was going through a country where honest men dwelt.

AN EX-REPRESENTATIVE—"BIG MAN, ME!"

There was a great variety of people getting on or off the cars at each station. Some with long hair combed back, some with it brushed straight up in fierceness, others just from under the barber's hands, sweet and lovely, but the larger number gave no outward indication that they had ever seen basin or comb. Among these was one grave looking gent whose self importance welled over in his every word and move. He was morbidly fearful people would not note his presence or be aware of the fact that he—"ugh! big man, me!"—had just concluded a term in the Legislature! After hearing him for a time I concluded he must be chief of that region, and had been nibbling at that hook. I will take no more cross roads but go straight forward.

NONE FOR ME, THANK YOU.

I am decided on this point: No more passes will I take. They are dangerous things, and you are ever subject to call by those fellows. To pay our regular greenbacks and no discount, is the fixed determination of yours truly,

INDIANA.

NUMBER TWO.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 3, 1873.

I stopped over at Kansas City yesterday, and with some relatives, had a regular old fashioned fine sleigh, striped robes, strings of jingling bells, prancing steeds, hot bricks and, with babies and all, a sleigh full of people on pleasure bent. It was an enjoyable and highly enjoyed affair, though the ice was two feet thick.

ANOTHER VERY FINE MAN.

On the cars, after leaving Kansas City, we had another interesting crowd as before. One fine looking fellow attracted attention. Drawing from his pocket a twist of national leaf, he took a bite altogether too big for comfort, and then proceeded to tell all about Senator Pomeroy's attempt to buy up the Kansas Legislature. He told the story in such a forcible manner that I thought I could see a fresh grave over a politically defunct Senator, but no epitaph that could possibly be construed as flattering. During the whole of the relation that big quid kept me constantly uneasy for fear it would roll down upon and ruin his shirt bosom, but with consummate skill and extended cheeks he managed it with safety until to the end of his story when he with great success landed it without accident in the spittoon. It was a general relief and gave me time to observe, as the conductor punched tickets, that our dignitary presented his regular pass! No use hunting in Pike.

AN HONEST STATE.

Being now on the road again we will soon cross over the river and be in the honest old state of Indiana. Her people I know; there I drove oxen, plowed and hoed corn, and after it was raised, gladly received 10 cents a bushel for it. Even at that there would be a surplus which, year after year, we flat-boated to New Orleans. Then, with a fair proportion of our hard earnings before returning home, a Sunday suit had to be purchased. I well remember my first. Flaming red bandana, straw hat, spotted shirt, etc.

A TALE OF A SHIRT TAIL.

The clerk was a lady. While she sewed a ribbon to my chip hat I retired to an adjoining room and hurrying some to don my new clothes, went too far through the pants and shirt, too. The coat didn't fit and pulling it up the narrative of the under garment above mentioned came above the waistband of the unmentionables, the lady kindly came to the rescue and tucking it in properly, greatly admired the fit. With a companion similarly dressed for execution, we strode grandly away to procure a deck passage on a steamer for a return to the land of corn, reaching which with store clothes unimpaired, we fancied ourselves the observed of all observers, as indeed we were, being so elegantly attired. In these days of shoddy and high pressure modes it is a pleasure to recall those things, trifling as they may appear, and it is more of a pleasure to feel that in a few hours I shall again be among the very people, honest and old fashioned now as when our flat boats moved down the Wabash to return no more to their gaze, except in shape of fine clothes and meagre purses.

INDIANA.

Tar-Heels.

The Credit Mobilier reminds one of a story—as the "late lamented" used to say. In old times, when the copper was about the size of a dining plate, the chief amusement of the colored race was pitching pennies. In one of the towns where this was practiced an enterprising darkey, by coating his heel with tar, managed to enrich himself at the expense of his companions. At last he was detected, and after that whenever the game was played, word was given out: "Any gemman wat's got tah on de heel please step out dis ring." Have any of our good little boys in Congress got "tah on de heel?" —Gold Hill News.

Japanese Cleaning Cream.

The following receipt is said to be infallible: Take three ounces castile soap, shave it fine; put it in a quart of water and boil till dissolved, then add three quarts to it; then add three ounces of ammonia, three ounces ether, two ounces glycerince, three ounces alcohol. Put all together and it is ready for use.

SCHOOL MATTERS.

We wish to call the attention of the citizens of this school district to the fact that on Saturday next an election is to be held for the purpose of laying a tax for school purposes. The necessity for this action needs some explanation. The law makes it obligatory upon every school district possessing a certain amount of taxable property and a certain number of children, to maintain a school eight months each year. Independence posseses both these requisites, but not more than half the amount of State and county school money necessary for the purpose. The County Superintendent laid the matter of this deficiency before the Board of Supervisors in due season, but from some uncertainty as to their duties under the new Code, no tax levy to make up the anticipated deficiency was ordered at the proper time. Notwithstanding the best efforts of the District Trustees, nothing was done about it until the late meeting, at which time the Supervisors thought the better plan would be to submit the matter to a vote. In conformity with this the election has been ordered, but more as a matter of form than as a legal necessity, since according to a recent decision of the courts in another county on precisely similar issues, it was decided that the Board had the right and power to lay such tax at any time after the 1st of September, the day fixed by law, if through error or accident they had failed to do it. In the expectation that this tax would be laid according to the recommendation of the County Superintendent and the obvious necessities of the case, the District Trustees—Messrs. Squires, Reddy and Chalfant—entered into contracts to maintain the school the required period. To accomplish this as cheaply as possible, they also agreed to make it a union school, Milton district being the other party in the contract. The union school was to be maintained for a period of six months. The necessary expenses for teacher's salary, repairs, fuel, etc., are to be born in equal share by the two districts. Previous to this arrangement, and during the present school year, this district had maintained a school four and one half months, which entirely exhausted the funds. The object of the proposed tax is to obtain the means for sustaining the school half the six months time. It will be seen from this that the children of this district enjoy the privileges of a first-rate school for ten months and a half, at the cost of one for seven and a half, or one half month less than the time required by law. The district is legally (and morally) bound to fulfil its contracts. If not done now it will have to be done next year, with costs and interest added. The amount to be raised is fixed at the lowest possible sum, and considering the necessary costs of assessment and collection, will hardly be sufficient for the purpose. The money could have been raised without recourse to this method, but it was deemed the fairest and most just, as the burden of maintaining the school here has fallen upon a very few, some of whom have borne a larger share than is exactly right, even if holding an immediate interest in the school itself, which they do not. The sum to be raised is a mere trifle for the the financially next to the strongest district in the county. It ought to maintain within its limits not only a common but a first grade school, and we do not doubt but that it will do this in good time. There is an Assessor and Collector to be voted for at the same time, and it is to be hoped that all friends of education in general and of proper local pride in particular, will turn out and do something to prove themselves to be such.

Tally One for Sam.

Sam Brannan sails in lively against some of the parties to whom he donated town lots in Calistoga, for not patronizing their local paper. He says: "The men who own property in a town, who do business there, and whose interests and the interests of the town are identical, and who yet ignore the benefits to be derived from a local newspaper, OUGHT TO EMIGRATE!" Sam always was sort o' funny.

Slightly Contrasted.

In a sleepy, sombre old town of Germany there has been no murder or bloodshed for two hundred years. In Virginia city about four hundred murders have occurred in a dozen years—to offset which one man was legally hung. Cerro Gordo and Pioche, also, can not be considered the exact prototypes of the ancient city in Der Faderland.

A LOOK AHEAD.

As times here are not just as flourishing at the present moment as they might be, it is well to take a look at the cause, in connection with future prospects. In Cerro Gordo, now and in times past our main-stay, times are unusually dull. Immense piles of bullion have accumulated in excess of the transportation facilities, and as a consequence the furnaces are running "light." This greatly diminishes the demand for wood and coal. Besides this no night crews are now put on in the mines, and from these causes, quite a number of persons are thrown out of employment, and also, as the returns on bullion is necessarily limited, money is much scarcer than usual and hence the "hard times." But all this will soon pass away, as both Mr. Belshaw and Mr. Beaudry contemplate a material expansion of their respective operations, which alone will soon more than restore "times" to their pristine vigor.

In consideration of this and other facts that we shall mention, we are fully justified in the belief that Inyo county is soon to enter upon the most substantially prosperous era it has ever yet experienced. There are four or five new and distinct enterprises virtually in course of execution, either one of which is sufficient of itself to vastly increase the general prosperity.

First in order is the Cottonwood fluming operation. This, if successfully carried out in detail, the practicabilty of which we have no doubt at all, will essentially revolutionize the mining and other interests of the lower end of the county. By materially lessening the cost of reducing ores, which, for several reasons it is quite sure to do, the quantity produced will be considerably increased in mines now being worked, and tend to the opening of new districts then rendered easily accessible. The chances are decidedly favorable for a realization of the main part of this anticipation within the year.

Next we have the Boushey Water and Mining Company of Cerro Gordo. That company will expend large sums in supplying water, the essential condition to the development of numerous new and old mines within that district. The accomplishment of the objects of that corporation betokens for that camp a degree of prosperity and permanence second to no mining community on the coast. Suffice it to say in this connection that their plans, in both of the chief objects, are in course of actual execution, and no doubts need be entertained but that they will be fully carried out.

We have it direct from trustworthy authority that Kearsarge Mountain will be the scene of operations of two (and probably three) incorporated companies, both of which will proceed to active operations within three months. The Virginia Consolidated and the Silver Sprout companies own a series of mines which, were they situated in one of the favored Nevada districts, would cut high figures in mining circles and in the Stock Board. But their intrinsic value is just the same, nevertheless; and during the coming season the companies will demonstrate their wealth of minerals by systematic prospecting, and by transporting the ores to the Kearsarge mill and subjecting them, in quantities, to the satisfactory test of actual mill process. In this respect, all the known facts decidedly favor the most satisfactory results, and should their anticipations be realized, a 10-stamp mill will be built as near to the mines as practicable.

The new Kearsarge company will hardly allow their magnificent property to hang upon their hands as dead capital, when it is well known that, by proper management, it can be made a dividend-paying concern. The necessity of their reduction works—the lack of which was the prime and sole cause of the past disastrous failure—is roasting, or reverbatory furnaces for the richest, selected and rebellious ores. Being practical men, the present owners will doubtless adopt this plan; and then, if they see fit to buy rock to work, each recurring Summer will find hundreds of prosperous miners delving in the almost numberless rich mines on the hill. We are assured, moreover, by parties who ought to know, that the Kearsarge mine contains thousands of tons of fair, second grade ore, which would pay well for working. In the meantime, the mine is to be opened by a deep adit, tapping the ledge at an immense depth, and dumping the ore on the ridge immediately above the mill—a work that will do away with that useless tramway; and there are many who are sanguine in the belief that the developments of that tunnel will astonish the world. That is a result most devoutly to be wished for, but not essentially necessary towards sustaining our prospective advantages, as here pointed out.

On the other side of the valley, on the eastern slope of the Inyo range, is situate Waucoba district, soon to become the theater of operations co-extensive with the enormous smelting business of Cerro Gordo. We some time since made a personal visit of inspection to these mines, and to judge from the appearance of at least a dozen huge ledges or deposits partially opened, in quantity the argentiferous galena is simply inexhaustible. As to the quality of this lead, we have the statement of Mr. Polkinghorne, assayer of the Eclipse company, that from a series of eighteen assays the results ranged all the way from 230 to 520 ounces silver per ton. In lead ore there is no opportunity for the miner to deceive himself by selecting for assay the richest specimens for the "average." Knowing the facts in the case, it would hardly be a matter of surprise to us should the district eventually prove superior to any west of the Rocky Mountains. The present though not formidable difficulties of the district are its isolation and difficulty of access, although the company now have a roundabout road via. Big Pine. By reference to an item elsewhere will be seen the names of the Trustees, all of whom are men who mean business. Under the present incorporation laws of the State the company must now have a paid up capital of $20,000. Their success, in which we have the most unbounded confidence, is a matter of especial interest to the residents of the upper end of this valley, and in common with the other extensive operations mentioned, of the greatest importance to the entire county.

In some degree, if not in full, all of these things will ere long be actual realities, in which event it occurs to us that Inyo county will assume such colossal proportions that the biggest in the State might well be proud.

Whence the Name.

The "Credit Mobilier" derives its name from a great loan and banking association once flourishing in Paris, but broken up years ago. Its purposes were aiding the progress of public works, promoting national industry, consolidating into common stock the shares and bonds of trading companies—in short, as Pereire, one of its founders, characterized it, playing with respect to fixed capital employed to industry, a part analagous to that which banks of discount fill with respect to circulating capital. Its transactions were colossal, and it was aptly characterized by the late great advocate, Berryer, as "the greatest gambling house the world has ever seen." This it was which the American "Credit Mobilier" was formed to imitate. The name is pronounced "Cray-dee Mo-be-yay," and signifies "moveable, or changeable, loan."

The End of Polygamy.

The present attitude of the Government indicates a decided policy towards that "peculiar institution" known as polygamy, or Brighamy. If gentle means, similar to those used by the old gentleman with the bad boy in his apple tree, fail to bring this baneful and disgraceful institution to the ground, stones of the most flinty character will be used. The anticipation of this stony fact greatly perturbs some of those lustful old reprobates in Utah. One of the younger Brighams threatens dire results to the good (and bad) people of these United States if they persist in interfering with the corner-stone of the religion of the Latter Day Saints. Another of Brigham's sons, however, thinks that one wife only is much the best, and therefore publicly renounces the multiplicity doctrine.

Looks Interesting.

The Mormon community in Utah are greatly excited over the President's asparent disposition to deal with the Mormon question. It is stated, however, that an unusually large number of polygamous marriages are taking place. The Tribune, a liberal Mormon paper, declares that polygamy is chargeable to a ring of old Nauvoo Mormon priests not exceeding one hundred in number.

Lower California.

The new Governor of Lower California has set about inaugurating law and order on the peninsula, by making the Chief of Police at San Rafael recapture five murderers who broke jail under threats of personal imprisonment and a heavy fine. There was a pretty sure ground for belief that the police were in collusion with the desperadoes.

Nominated for Congress.

A. H. Stevens of Georgia has accepted the nomination to fill the vacancy in Congress caused by the death of Gen. Ambrose E. Wright. Stephens declares himself a Democrat of the Jeffersonian school.

The Vote of Louisana.

Louisiana's vote will probably have to be counted for Mr. Greeley after all, as Gov. Warmouth, who signed the returns, was the legal Governor. The returns in favor of Gen. Grant were signed by the Secretary of State.

The Electoral Vote Counted.

On the 12th instant the electoral vote cast in November for President and Vice President was counted by both houses of Congress. Objection was made to counting the three votes of Georgia cast for Greeley as he was dead when the electors assembled, and therefore was not a person within the meaning of the Constitution. Objection was also made to the vote of Mississippi. The two houses separated as by rule required. The House then adopted a resolution that the three votes of Georgia cast for Greeley be not counted, and that the vote of Mississippi be counted. The Senate decided that the votes of Georgia cast for Greeley be counted. Objection was made to the certificate of the vote of Texas; after separation both houses overruled the objections. When the certificate of Arkansas was presented it was objected to on the grounds that the official returns of the election in that State show that persons certified by the Secretary of State as elected were not elected; and because the returns were not legally certified. The Senate decided that the votes of Arkansas and Louisiana be not counted. The House voted to receive the vote of Arkansas and to reject the returns from Lousiana. After the Senate again returned the Vice President announced that the votes of Arkansas and Louisian were excluded; and declared that Grant, having a majority of the electoral votes, was duly elected President for four years; and that Henry Wilson was elected Vice President for four years.

The Irrepressible.

F. F. Gallardo is still "on it." Somehow or other he has imbibed the notion that it was possible for him to be damaged in reputation, and that in the aggregate the cash value of the damage thus sustained must, in justice, foot up to very many thousands of dollars. He commenced his third damage suit in the limited space of two weeks ending on the 4th instant, in the Sixth District Court. This time it is Patrick Reddy of Inyo county, who inflicted damages upon the said Gallardo to the full value of $50,000 worth in having called him a "pettifogger, etc." There is nothing said about shysters in the complaint, that we are aware of. Mr. Gallardo might, for the nonce, dispense with his ancient edition of the Practice Act, and study up the new law lexicon, which defines the meaning of the word "shyster." It would give him grounds for many hundreds of damage suits, and in the end insure him a receipted board bill, anyhow.

The Modocs.

The proof that the Modocs have been outrageously treated is constantly accumulating. The commissaries and Indian agents in their greed to rob the Indians and plunder the Government have starved and cheated the Indians until in self-preservation they have been obliged to take up arms. Facts show that the Indians were desirous of peace, but were forced to fight or be starved to death. It is the old story of false reports to the Government, of supplies charged as given to the Indians but of which they never received one particle.

The Duty of Assessors.

The new Code makes it the duty of the Supervisors of the several counties to see that the Assessors collect and report the industrial and agricultural statistics of their respective territories. If Assessors are guilty of non-compliance with this act a portion of their compensation can be withheld. It also requires that Assessors must do their work during the time intervening from the first Monday in March to the first Monday in July.

The Epizooty.

At Edwards Creek, 30 miles west of Austin, a disease has broken out among the cows, similar to the epizooty; out of a lot of 60 cows, 5 died in one day last week. It is to be hoped that this affection will not prove epidemical, as there are over 700 head of cows in that vicinity. Should the disease spread eastward into Reese River Valley, the loss to stock owners will be considerable. The people in that valley are more or less affected by a disease similar, and even in Austin we have heard of some cases of the kind. Thus far we have not heard of a single case of epizooty proving fatal among the horses. Austin Reveille, Feb. 10.

Another Recipe.

Some horses belonging to the Jackson Company having been taken down with the epizootic, the Secretary telegraphed to Superintendent Caldwell as follows in reference to their treatment, and advising other owners to apply the same to their animals: "SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 10, 1873. E. Caldwell, Superintendent of the Jackson mine: In epizootic advise people to rub the whole head, neck and chest of the horses thoroughly with coal oil. Sprinkle the same around the stable and feed box, and a little in the food of horses, to prevent contagion. H. C. KIBBE."—Eureka Sentinel.

Canada begins the construction of her Pacific Railway soon.

Atlantic and Pacific Railroad.

[From The St. Louis Republican.]

We are informed by Mr. Talmage, General Superintendent of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad Company, that, through the earnest efforts of Mr. Pierce, the late President of the company, Mr. A. B. Stockwell and other large capitalists have taken an interest in the company, and have invested several millions of dollars in its securities, and we may now expect to see the work of extending that road soon commenced and diligently pushed forward to completion—thus giving a trans-continental railroad so far south as not to be obstructed with heavy snows, with St. Louis and San Francisco as the termini.

On Saturday last Mr. Pierce resigned the Presidency, and was given the general management of the affairs of the company under the name of "General Manager," and Mr. Stockwell was chosen President. Mr. Stockwell is one of the wealthiest and most successful men of the day, and is at the head of several other great enterprises. Much credit is due to Mr. Pierce for his indomitable energy and perseverance in perfecting the arrangements of this great public enterprise. In giving him the general management the most perfect confidence has been expressed in his integrity and judgment.

Special Session of Congress.

Gen. Butler is reported to be moving for a special session of Congress, beginning on the 4th of March next, and charged with the specific duty of thoroughly investigating the alleged Pacific Railroad frauds and punishing those who took part in them. We hope this report is well founded, and that Butler's movement may succeed. There has never been in the history of this Government a more imperative demand for a special session of Congress than this case presents. To adjourn it after a partial investigation, until next December, would be to allow the conspirators against the Government to mature a plan to have it indefinitely postponed or compromised in some way that would admit of the escape of the guilty Congressmen and help the corporations and their "rings" to make away with what they have stolen. The subject is now at red heat, and it ought to be blown on till a white heat is obtained, and no time allowed for the fires to die out.—Sacramento Union.

A Case at Law.

A very curious legal question has been agitating Justice Gunnison's court for a few days past. An account of some preceding transactions are necessary to give a fair understanding of the merits of the case, and also a proper appreciation, or depreciation, of the word "cheek." Some time since a poor, but "honest," man named George Smith (probably a relative of "Henry") went to Cerro Gordo, and feeling that there was no proper self-enjoyment for him in this world unless he could become a boarding house keeper, he explained his embarrassing impecuniosity, which alone stood between him and anticipated happiness, to Mr. Barrows and his gentlemanly clerk, W. R. Johnson. Mr. Barrows agreed to assist this ambitious Smith, and did so by giving him an extended credit for a complete boarding house outfit, amounting in all to something over $400. Soon, however, Smith became satisfied that neither as a means of grace or pecuniary happiness was a boarding house likely to prove a success, ordinarily managed, so he suddenly changed his mode of operations by disposing of his property for what he could get, borrowing a piece here and there from whomsoever he could, and then making a bold strike for liberty by running off without taking even a formal adieu of his creditors. Mr. Johnson started in pursuit, and having some reason to think that Smith had joined forces with certain of the murderous gang who left Cerro Gordo about that time, he armed himself and on reaching Lone Pine got "Russian Steve" to accompany him. They overtook Smith at the Half-way House, on George's Creek; Smith attempted to conceal himself under a bed, but with poor success. At Johnson request he "came out of that," brandishing a revolver; at this Johnson drew his own, and told Smith that he did not want or intend to hurt him, but that he must return to Cerro Gordo and do what he could towards making restitution of the money he was virtually trying to steal. Smith replied that he did not want to rob Mr. Barrows, who had befriended him in time of greatest need, and if Johnson would not insist on taking him back to Cerro Gordo he would do all he could toward liquidating the debt then and there. Johnson acceded to this, and received in payment of the $400 about $250. Smith then came to this place and swore out a warrant for highway robbery against both Johnson and Steve, and upon which they were subsequently arrested and brought here for examination. Smith went to Messrs. Reddy, Bennett and Snelling, each in turn, to secure their services in prosecuting the case. They knowing the unimpeachable high standing of the defendants, and that they were morally justified in securing their own from an unmitigated swindler, declined to touch the case. Next he went to the District Attorney who, we will suppose, took the case by virtue of his office as prosecuting attorney. The complaint was heard before Justice Gunnison on Thursday, Mr. Reddy appearing for defendants. The complaint was dismissed at once on technical grounds. Mr. Van Decar then threw up the case, and Judge Snelling took it up and presented a new complaint which, the same day, and for similar reasons, went the way of its predecesssor. On the following day (yesterday) a third complaint was argued, but it too went "up the flume," whereat the prosecuting witness became discouraged, and perforce will hereafter lock his complaints in his own virtuous bosom where no lawyer is ever Reddy to ruinate them. Mr. Smith is much troubled in his own mind as to how it comes that men who permit themselves to be bilked and swindled can't be punished for the same. In fact, as the highwaymen were honorably discharged, and he himself arrested and taken back to Cerro Gordo to be tried for swindling, he begins to have a faint conception that an ex-boarding house keeper can be both a fool and a knave. The thought that he is a fool is what frets Mr. Smith; he feels quite easy on the other point, having become accustomed to it as an indisputable fact.

Judge Reed.

We note the arrival here of Hon. Judge Reed, from Havilah. As the Judge belongs to that anti Gallardo "ring" it is possible that he has come up to confer with his partners in iniquity, but "on the other hand" it is quite likely he didn't come for anything of the kind. In or out of rings Judge Reed is always a welcome visitor.

Phœnixing.

It is altogether likely Mr. Sneden is getting somewhat tired of playing "Phœnix" and "rising nobly from his ashes," but at the same time he persists in doing so yet, though it is the third time. He has already received several wagon-loads of new goods, and has now gone to the Bay for a full stock.

All Right Again.

We are pleased to note the fact that Mr. Naylor of Big Pine has almost entirely recovered from the effects of his accidental shooting, some account of which we recently published, and also that he is opening out his store on the broad gauge. See his new "ad."

Adjourned Meeting.

Members of Lodge No. 250, I. O. G. T., are hereby notified that an adjourned meeting will take place at the Hall on Monday evening next.

Farewell Party.

Mrs. M. A. Barry, the popular landlady of the Lone Pine Hotel, Lone Pine, extends a general invitation to her friends throughout the county to attend a farewell party on the evening of the 27th instant, a few days after which the lady leaves for Columbus, where she will permanently take up her residence. Circumstances make no allowance whatever in favor of overworked printer men, therefore we are compelled to express our real regrets that it will be impossible for us to be present on the occasion, but if our best wishes will assist, the affair will be a brilliant one. It occurs to us that a little testimonial of remembrance from her friends would be the appropriate thing on the occasion.

Ye Bold Highwaymen.

The many sympathiizing friends of the Cerro Gordo "highwaymen," feeling their bowels of compassion extensively moving within them at the thought of the forlorn and dessicated condition of the aforesaid foot-pads while watching Mr. Smith's complaints go hence, have sent down a word of encouragement numerously signed by a string of names, pretty, appropriate and otherwise, together with contributions, on paper, of from 5 to 10 cents each, with which it was fondly hoped that the aforesaid forlorns might obtain the wherewith to remove the sharp edge of their personal dessicated condition, etc., all of which the recipients acknowledge as unguis in ulcere. And hence these tears.

Freight.

The following shipments of freight for this county were made during the week ending February 8, by Olinghouse & Osher, Los Angeles:

A New Road.

Messrs. James and John Sheppard and J. L. Darrah got ashamed of that stretch of road anent the Alabama hills, so with their own proper means and expense they went jointly to work to dig and grade and haul manure on the high ground next to the foot of the hills, and have constructed a firstrate high, dry and hard road along there. The new road is about three miles in length, and avoids the whole of that impassable alkali flat passed over by the old road. The proper thing for this county to do is to take this road and pay these gentlemen for its construction.

More Shooting.

In Cerro Gordo the night following that when Corea was shot another shooting match took place between two Mexicans, names to us unknown, in which one of them got a ball through his leg and the other one through his arm. If such poor shooting as this is unfortunately to be the rule, some active measures will have to be adopted by well disposed citizens if they hope to satisfy any morbid desire they may and often do have, to attend funerals. It would seem that the statutes ignore all such miserable attempts to take life. Horse thieves had better go very slow, however.

Incorporated.

The Waucoba Mining and Smelting Company filed a certificate of incorporation December 11. Location of mines, Waucoba district, Inyo county, Cal. Capital stock, $2,000,000, in shares of $100 each. Trustees—James Brady, of Inyo, Harry L. Haskell, Camp Independence, Harry C. Egbert, Camp Independence, Wm. Alvord, Nathan Porter, Albert Bierstadt and John Hewston, Jr., of San Francisco. Elsewhere will be seen the call for the first regular meeting of the stockholders.

Died.

The old Mexican whom we mentioned last week as having been shot shortly after the big melee in Cerro Gordo, died the next day of his wounds. He was about 80 years of age, and has been known by the name of Corea——. The shot was fired, we understand, by Frank Murandi, to fame of a certain quality not entirely unknown, but was intended for another person.

Down to a Point.

Sheriff Mulkey informs us that the total amount of unpaid taxes, to be raised on delinquent sales, is not likely to exceed $350, if so much. If any other county in the State can show a closer collection than that in a tax list of over $36,000 or any other approximate amount, we should be pleased to hear from it.

The Epizootic.

This equine disease has made its appearance here sure enough. Two or three of Ullrick's stage horses and a few others have it, but in a mild form. There also one or two animals affected at Camp Independence.

The Trespass Act.

In answer to inquiries as to when the trespass or no-fence law for Inyo goes into effect, we will state that it is in full force from and after the fifteenth day of March to the fifteenth day of November each year.

Vacation.

Mr. Hardy, teacher of the Union school, gives a fortnight's vacation from Monday next. The first half of the current six months' term ended yesterday.

Birthday Celebration.

As a rule people after getting on the shady side of thirty are not at all ambitious to call attention to the fact that they once in a while do have a birthday which might be celebrated. Why this is thus with old maids and old bachelors is easy enough to understand, but not so in regard to the great majority of man and woman kind who have faithfully and literally obeyed the Divine injunction respecting their posterity in line direct. It may be it is a tacit acknowledgement or consciousness of the general fact that, individually, wisdom and common sense and useful deeds are left many years in arrears and the less said about it the better. However that may be, there is an occasional courageous exception, one of whom is Mr. P. Reddy. At thirty-five he is not ashamed to celebrate. But he is married, to which fact we attribute the most successful birthday celebration we have yet seen, considered in relation to its general get up and management, and as tending to the universal enjoyment of the guests present. Older people than he might be proud to celebrate birthdays with such a wife for major domo. We are resolutely determined not to attempt a detailed account of what was said and done. It is enough to say that it occurred Saturday evening last; that there were present worthy (modesty would dictate one exception) representatives, some in duplicate and triplicate, of our commercial, judicial, legal, military and "press" interests, to say nothing of those in general of the fair sex, the representatives present of which we particularly indorse. We forbear the toasts to each, for fear it would be voted a mutual admiration society. Some were deserving, some warn't, and that's enough on that point, except to note a remark of Paul Bennett's in response to the "Pioneers" and the "Pioneer ladies." In substance he simply rendered a just tribute in praise of one of the Inyo pioneers, whose generous hand and brave heart, as exemplified in the trying times of 64-6, entitles him to a high place in the estimation of all of those days as well as of the present, but which due acknowledgement is in no sense made manifest, since the pioneer alluded to lives yet amongst us pursuing his ways in quietness, but almost forgotten. The speaker was convinced that W. A. Greenley is far more deserving than many who have received much higher rewards. The host very feelingly and appropriately toasted the "Pioneer ladies," among whom the hostess was a whole host, and entitled to a full share of the meed of praise accorded to the brave and self-denying ladies who shared the hard and uncertain fortunes of their husbands in the "taboose, pumpkin straight and bloody days of Inyo." Bennett told of one these ladies, a resident of "Bend City," who, during the progress of a scrimmage with the Indians not far away, gave him a gun, her only weapon of defense, and told him to use it, "she would take care of herself," but he forgot to say which way he went with that gun. However it may be in regard to her courage, it is an open question whether the judgment displayed in that act was very good or not, but we will give her the benefit of the doubt and admit that it was all right.

The Birthday Ball

At the Inyo House last night was a great success. So far as the general enjoyment was concerned we doubt if it was ever excelled in this place on a similar occasion. The supper table was loaded to profusion with the very best of everything. In matters of that kind the new landlady of the Inyo, Mrs. Wallace, has no superior, and in justice to her efforts it would have been extremely gratifying to numerous friends if the number who set down to that table had been more nearly equal to the supply. As it was there was about thirty couples present, each and all on pleasure bent. There was nothing whatever to mar the general enjoyment, unless we except the fears of one or two legal gentlemen concerning the epizootic, for which on one or two occasions we had to personally prescribe a prophylactic. Just what possessed them with the idea that they were in danger from that equine epidemic is more than we can undertake to explain, but the fear was effectually wiped out by the prescription and nobody the wiser. The music was very good, indeed, and dancing was kept up until nearly morning.

Serenaders.

Mark Twain gives the following advice to serenaders: Don't stand right under the porch and howl, but get out in the middle of the street, or better still, on the other side of it. Distance lends enchantment to the sound. Don't let your screaming tenor soar an octave above all the balance of the chorus, and remain there, setting everybody's teeth on edge for blocks around; and above all don't let him sing a solo. Probably there is nothing in the world so suggestive of serene contentment and perfect bliss as the spectacle of a calf chewing a dish-rag, but the nearest approach to it is your reedy tenor, standing apart, in sickly attitude, with head thrown back and eyes uplifted to the moon, piping his distressing solo. Now do not pass lightly over this matter, friend, but ponder it with that seriousness which its importance entitles it to. As soon as you start, gag your tener, otherwise he will let off a screech now and then, to let the people know he is around. Your amateur tenor is notoriously the most self conceited of all God's creatures.

Sentence Commuted.

Gov. Booth has commuted the death sentence on K. H. Keeny, convicted at Visalia for the murder of Levi M. Fletcher, to imprisonment for life.

BISHOP CREEK AND ROUND VALLEY SCHOOL MONEY.

Messrs. Editors:— Permit me through the columns of The Independent to call the attention of parties interested to the provisions of an act of the Legislature of this State, approved March 11, 1872,—Statutes 1871-2, pages 316-17—which is substantially as follows: That the Treasurer of Mono county, within thirty days shall notify the Superintendent of Common Schools of Mono county of the amount of State School Fund, or any other fund, subject to apportionment on the 28th day of March 1870. The Superintendent of Schools of Mono county within ten days thereafter shall apportion all the school money of Mono county to the several school districts as they were established on the 28th day of March 1870, and shall notify the several school districts as they were known and defined on the 28th day of March, 1870, and he shall also notify the Treasurer of Mono county of such apportionment. Immediately after such apportionment, the County School Superintendent of Mono county shall draw his warrant on the Treasurer of Mono county, payable to the Treasurer of Inyo county, for the sums respectively due to the Bishop Creek and Round Valley school districts.

The Treasurer of Inyo county, on receipt of said school money, shall credit the same to the Bishop Creek and Round Valley school districts, with the amount due each.

I called the attention of the Board of Supervisors to the provisions of this act, and was one among other reasons for reducing the rate of tax. I am not informed whether or not the whole or any part of the school fund due from Mono county has been paid to the Treasurer of Inyo county. If not, I suggest that application therefor be immediately made.

E. H. Van Decar.

Didn't Want it Done.

The other night a fierce young man in an abstracted state of mind peculiar to a limited class, put in a few moments in shooting holes in the floor of Dan Williams' saloon in Lone Pine, which was all well enough except that the floor was quite new and the owner didn't want any holes in it, neither did he like to see ammunition wasted when there were so many about whose diaphragms might be perforated with it advantageously to the community. By presenting the matter in this light he finally succeeded in restoring the fierce young man to his normal condition of mind.

Preaching.

There will be preaching at the school house here to-morrow at 11, A. M.

Inyo Independent.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday,...February 22, 1873.

In Congress.

In the Senate, February 4, Mr. Hill of Georgia introduced a bill raising the salary of the President to $50.000 and of the Vice-President to $10,000, and asked an immediate consideration.

Mr. Sherman objected, and the bill was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

At 1 o'clock the consideration of the Finance Committee's substitute for Mr. Buckingham's Specie Resumption bill was resumed.

Mr. Buckalew said that specie payment was the most pressing necessity of the times, not merely as affecting the convenience, but as affecting the morals of the country, and expressed the opinion that the widespread pecuniary immorality exposed by the recent painful developments was in a great measure due to the want of currency of intrinsic value. He also thought that the national debt was one billion greater than it would have been if we had not made the mistake of resorting to inconvertible paper issues.

Mr. Morton of Indiana regarded the bill as altogether in the interest of bankers and brokers in the great cities. He expressed his disbelief in the benefits of an elastic currency.

Mr. Thurman's amendment, reducing the rate of interest on the bonds to be exchanged for the greenbacks to two per cent., was rejected.

Mr. Buckingham advocated an elastic currency as tending to prevent business embarrassment.

Mr. Fenton of New York offered an amendment, providing that twenty per cent. of the greenbacks received for bonds shall be retained and permanently retired from the circulation, provided the amount so retained shall not exceed $3,000,000 monthly. He expressed his belief that it would be impossible to return to specie payment without reducing the volume of the currency.

Mr. Sherman maintained that the bill was the best measure yet proposed to secure the objects aimed at. He considered it a solemn duty that something should be done this season to secure a return to specie payment. The Senate had four years ago pledged to do that, and not one solitary measure had been taken towards it. If it was postponed till next Winter political issues would be brought in, and the probability is nothing will be accomplished.

The amendment of Mr. Fenton to the pending bill was then rejected. Pending further discussion the Senate went into executive session and then adjourned.

AN EX-PRESIDENT'S DESTITUTE DAUGHTER.

The Speaker, from the floor (Mr. Dawes being temporarily in the chair), said he had a few moments since had an interview in the Speaker's room which had deeply touched him. It was the widow of Robert C. Wood, late Assistant Surgeon in the United States Army, and a daughter of Zachary Taylor, late President of the United States. She presented a petition which he would now have read, as it presented a state of affairs that ought not to exist. A daughter of Zachary Taylor was in need of assistance. He had assured her that he did not believe there would be a vote against the bill which he now presented. He then introduced a bill granting Mrs. Wood a pension of $50 per month, to date from the death of her husband, March 28, 1869, and it was passed by unanimous vote.

It is understood that three of the Military Committee oppose the Goat Island Bill and three favor it with amendments. The subject is postponed until Monday next, when Osborne will return from Florida, whom the lobby expect to capture.

The Conference Committee on the sloops-of-war bill has agreed to recommend to the two Houses that eight new sloops of war be built. The House had provided for six and the Senate for ten sloops.

The Wilson Credit Mobilier Investigation Committee has several propositions to report to Congress. The first is to annul the charter of the Union Pacific Railroad, the second is that the Government take possession of the road, the third is to compel the road to pay their accrued interest and interest as it shall become due, and also to set aside, as provided by the act of Incorporation, five per cent. of their net earnings for the redemption of their bonds when they become due; also prohibiting the road from appealing to the courts. Thus far there is no indication which of the propositions will be adopted by the Committee.

In the House a motion by Sargent to table a resolution declaring it inexpedient to cede any part of Goat Island for railroad purposes was lost—77 to 102--a majority against the railways of 25. Afterwards Sargent tried to arrest the passage of the resolution by raising a point of order against the presence of McRuer on the floor of the House. He was put down in a most pitiful manner, and the resolution was adopted without division.

The New Rule.

The all absorbing topic to-day is the report of the President's so called aggressive policy towards Utah in the transfer of troops to this vicinity. The News, Mormon organ, is evidently very much alarmed and says that if the dispatch be true, those who are faint-hearted would do well to embrace the present opportunity to get away, but those determined by the help of God to endure to the end, will welcome this occasion to prove their being faithful through, even until death. The Evening Journal, Gentile, says that there is terror in camp by this indication, and stern determination to enforce laws in Utah, and loyal people were never more encouraged and hopeful than now. It is fully expected that Congress will apply the necessary legislation this year.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

J. WALKER, Prop'r, R. H. McDonald & Co., Druggists and Gen. Agts., San Francisco, Cal., and cor. of Washington and Charlton Sts., New York.

LETTER FROM WASHINGTON.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

EBBITT HOUSE, Feb. 9, 1873.

MESSRS. EDITORS: We reached this place Thursday last. Old friends on whom we can rely say that, without doubt, small doses of mobilier have been dealt out to some officials.

MY DISCOVERY.

I find the reason that all people looked Pikeish to me through Missouri was because I was looking through Pike eyes myself. There are to be seen here old practitioners of both parties talking "corruption," looking wise, and wanting admittance under the cloak of honesty! They have grown gray in iniquity, but these old rats had better stay in their holes. Is there an All Seeing Eye arranging the affairs of this Nation? I think so. There is a hand mightier than man's clearing away the foul depris of the old structure ready for a new and massive one more in keeping with the true spirit of the age.

A MORAL QUERY AND DEDUCTION.

Can either of the old parties charge all the blame upon the other? Look back but a few short days and we see the land marks of good old Democracy. Are their robes spotless? Was there even an attempt to punish their shortcomings? No! emphatically. But this new structure will be built by honest, earnest, working men. All those who, after being weighed in the scales and found wanting, will be unceremoniously rejected. Many will cry out "monopoly and corruption," and on these hobbies hope to ride in. It won't do, gentlemen. Sterling worth and full patterns we want. These only will be used by the builders.

A DIG AT SAN FRANCISCO.

We are asked here about Goat Island. We answer, "It's no fight of ours of the interior; it is only between San Francisco and the railroad." "How's that?" they ask. We answer by enquiring, "What has San Francisco done for the interior? Does she build railroads for our agriculturists, our miners, her supporters upon whom she levies daily tribute to enable her to grow rich? Does she give back a single dollar to assist in developing the sources of her own wealth and power? Does she not cripple commerce by exorbitant wharfage? Does she aid immigration, so much needed to people our vacant places? Do not her traders and importers do their best to prevent the establishment of home manufactures lest they may lessen their profits on importations? She has her millions of money upon which her citizens lay back with folded arms and say, 'come to us; you must not stop at Oakland nor Goat Island with your railroad, for it must touch our wharves, or we cannot fleece you on your bullion and wheat. Otherwise we will be ruined with your railroad monopolies.' Ask them to aid immigration, and they tell you the Mechanics' Union stands in the way. They court their votes, you see.

They want us to continue as of yore about our old camp fires toiling and digging to build them a city! In that we would succeed—we would build a city commesnurate with the glories of our incomparable Pacific coast were its own citizens to half way reciprocate our efforts. But, no; their motto is to 'Get all we can and keep all we get. We will help you develop your mines and the country by gambling in stocks, and by furnishing you supplies at advanced rates, and that is enough for us to do.'" This is not enough, gentleman, to secure our sympathy and aid a fight, which, if decided on its simple merits and in your favor, cannot benefit us in the least. It matters not to us whether our goods pass over your wharves or those of Oakland, except in the latter case the handling won't cost so much. We are to have a new deal, and if we are to dig for you, you must do a little scratching for us if nothing more, you understand. We must go faster or be left, and as you can't lead and keep of out the way, stand aside, or hat in hand hold the stirrup for men of progress to mount. That is your fitting duty. Railroads are what we want and must have, and these you stock gamblers and dog-in-the-manger men will never build. The hight of your ambition is to be able to keep clear of the track that you may not be run down by the locomotive, but all of your kind are not confined to San Francisco alone.

SOME RANDOM SHOTS.

This is Sunday, and though very cold, there has been an unusual crowd of Honorables in the grand reception room, and button-holing in knots here and there. Many of them, great and far-seeing men, seemed to draw conclusions at a glance. Others, more of the peacock family, strut and admire themselves and wonder what the world would do if they were to suddenly drop off. Many fat and heavy looking belong properly and probably to the snob and shoddy families. There are here some of the completest frauds and bogus pieces that were ever put in circulation as "smart men." I see here among rest many Californians and old acquaintances, some with axes or hatchets, some with neither so far as I can see.

EARLY TO BED, ETC.

To-morrow is Monday and farmers that expect a crop this season, must get up early and prepare for work, so good night. INDIANA.

A Senatorial Nose Elongator.

[Cars n Correspondence of The S. F. Chronicle.]

A few evenings since United States Senator J. P. Jones (who is now in your city, I believe) met on the street a well known newspaper correspondent, a resident of Carson and Journal Clerk of the Senate, and after the compliments of the evening, the conversation turned upon financial matters, the correspondent aforesaid claiming that Jones owed him a certain sum of money for services rendered, etc., and the Senator claiming that he had paid him more than the bargain call d for and more than the services were worth, or something of that sort. The lie passed, when the Senator seized the Clerk by the nose. The Clerk (who is an ex-Justice of the Peace) took advantage of this slight assault and hauled off to set the Senatorial nose a notch or two higher up on the Senatorial forehead, when bystanders seized him and prevented the effusion of blood. The Clerk, correspondent, etc., was considerably exasperated, but would probably have been mollified by the reflection that he had been thus familiarly treated by a United States Senator, had it not been that Jones afterward remarked in a barber shop that in closing the elliptical apertures by pressing the external parts against the cartilaginious membrane, he for the moment labored under the hallucination that he had hold of one of those flat and elongated pieces of wood sometimes found on a pivotal nail driven in the front and near the principal aperture of a certain edifice—or words to that effect. This was, as the assaultee claimed, adding insult to injury, and how the matter will end your correspondent will not pretend to predict, but Dan. Patterson, Sheriff of White Pine county, was reminded of a little incident by the occurrence, the relation of which may convey Dan's idea of how the difficulty may be settled. When you tread upon an Indian's toes, or injure him in any way by accident, the first thing he does is to offer to compromise for a small sum of money. Patterson is married and resides in Hamilton. To keep water cool in Summer, his wife has a barrel buried in the ground under the kitchen window, the top being level with the surface of the earth, and in Winter the water is kept in the house—the barrel outside being left with a slight covering which is soon overspread with snow. Not long since a Shoshone squaw, with a papoose strapped upon her back, appeared at Dan's residence, and stuck her ugly mug up against the window of the kitchen, hoping that Mrs. Patterson would give her something to eat in order to get rid of her. Directly the barrel cover gave way under her feet, and she went into the barrel of cold water ker-souse—up to her waist. Mrs. Patterson ran out to assist her, but as she turned the corner of the house the squaw regained her foothold on the shore, and shaking the icicles from her rabbit skin robe, extended her great, greasy paw, and said (about the only English words she knew), "Two bits!",

In Straightened Circumstances.

The daughters of the late Chief Justice Taney are in straightened circumstances, being compelled to earn their subsistence by working as copyists for lawyers in Baltimore. Members of the legal fraternity throughout the country are about starting a fund to relieve the necessities of these ladies—the children of a man who for thirty years held the highest judicial position in the country and died poor.

—As John Smith stood up to be married in Webster City, Iowa, the other day, he refused to have the ceremony performed unless the sister of the intended bride would then and there wed one Peter Brown, who was present. Although the sister had never spoken to Peter previous to this occasion, she blushed and consented, and a double marriage occurred. Peter "put John up to it," it seems.

—"Murder is a very serious thing, sir," said an Arkansas judge to a convicted prisoner. "It is next to stealing a horse or a mule, sir, and I shall send you to the State Prison for six years, sir."

THE NEW POSTAL LAW.

As the press has measureably forced Congress into the abolishment of the franking privilege, Congress returns the compliment by putting a pretty heavy tax, in the shape of postage, upon the press. After July next the postage on all printed matter, including newspapers of all classes, has to be prepaid at rates on regular newspapers varying from 5 to 30 cents per quarter. This apparently trifling addition to the cost of running a newspaper will affect many of them worse than the epizooty does horses and—mules. Some of them will disappear, to be seen no more of men, and perhaps not of women, unless when preserved in panniers or what-do-ye-call-'ems.

It is supposed that Congress voted this tax upon newspapers and knowledge to get even for compelling the pure, immaculate members to hereafter get their shirts washed at the capital of the nation, instead of, as heretofore, franking them to and from their respectable and respective homes for that purpose. For a reason somewhat similar, this abolition of the franking privilege will be a good thing for stationery dealers in certain localities, which Congressmen can no longer supply to the detriment of the local dealers ad nauseum, free gratis and for nothing, except the trifle of transportation and first cost, which little matters our venerable Uncle Samuel has always looked to himself.

It is equally certain that whole families will not hereafter be so often affected to tears, and some of them be made to feel like they wanted to steal something, through receiving the sweet romances entitled "Agricultural Reports," from the thoroughly honest gentleman and "M. C."—More Cash—of their particular locality.

All this will prove an undisguised blessing, no doubt; but we fail to see the exact propriety of viciously taxing the engines which not only forced this change in the spirit of their dreams, but placed the component parts of this highly perfumed body in the seats which they occupy. Papers to exchanges, hitherto transmitted free, come under the postage requirement; and the lists of each journal must be materially lopped off, or else the owners thereof must come down handsomely with the 'squivilants. There is probably not a periodical published in the land which does not purchase, or cause to be purchased, an immense number of stamps, and in that way do more in support of this branch of the public service than any other business interest, as a class. Without the free circulation of these papers, many mail lines would oftentimes have no existence. These papers each and all do enough in the support of mail facilities to at least entitle them to the simple right of mailing a paper to a regular subscriber without having to prepay the postage upon it. It is one of those trifling additions to the cost of each paper, too small to add to its subscription price, yet quite large enough to swallow up fifty per cent. of the publisher's profits. Heretofore the subscriber paid the postage at the delivering post office; under this law he will be relieved of that expense, but not of the expense of carrying the mails, the cost of which will remain just the same, regardless of the amount of matter in the mail bags.

Postal Cards.

The postal cards, which are cheaper and more convenient for conducting correspondence than the ordinary letter, are described by The San Francisco Bulletin as follows: "They measure three by five and one-eight inches, and are made of bond paper, stock, cotton and linen mixed, worked together in a solid sheet without pasting, and suitably calendered on both sides for writing in ink or pencil. They weigh at the rate of sixteen pounds per thousand. One side of the card bears the name "United States Postal Card," and the rules and the directions for the address, and the other is blank. The card has a handy look."

Petered.

Our Gold Hill gas works have fizzled out altogether. Had no gas the last three nights, and the company say they are going to furnish no more—that it don't pay. Gold Hill is being run on coal oil now.—Gold Hill News, Feb. 15.

Organized.

The Pioche Vigilance Committee has perfected its organization, and we may expect soon to hear of its babtismal in blood.

A HIGH OLD PEACE COMMISSION.

This is the title popularly given to the Modoc Peace Commissioners Messrs. Applegate, Meacham and Case. With one of these Commissioners, Meacham, we have had the honor of an intimate acquaintance almost from childhood, and certainly have always considered him an honest and a good man in its broadest sense. But in consideration of his relations, as Superintendent, with the Indians, and the low estimate in which he appears to be held by them, a no more unfitting selection than himself could not apparently have been made, always excepting old Applegate, his confrere. They are both associated in the minds of poor untutored Lo with all the wrongs he has suffered at the hands of the whites for many years past. He knows to his sorrow that they speak with forked tongues, and his people will only, as the very last extremity ever place themselves again in their hands or in hands of their selection. The entire Applegate family are poor Lo's especial abhorrence. For many years past and upon all occasions that family, with old Jesse, the Commissioner, at its head, has ridden him down, trampled him in the mud, starved and lied to him. Meacham was Superintendent at the very time the Modocs were forced to flee the Yanoix Reservation to escape a lingering death from cold and starvation. Of Mr. Case it is enough to say that he is at present Superintendent of an Indian reservation some hundred miles away. This triumvirate means woe to Lo, if it means anything. It means a continuation of the war, and fat supply contracts for the Webfeet so long as their country can afford oats at $5 per bushel and other things in proportion. We are glad to say, however, that Gen. Gillem has moved his headquarters across the line into California, and has contracted with Californians for his supplies, which are to be furnished at decent prices.

The absurdity of selecting these men as commissioners will be fully appreciated when it is understood that it is an important part of their duties to examine and report upon their own transactions previously with the Indians while occupying official relations with them. Of course the quarter blankets in lieu of a full pair, the rotten pork issued as rations, and other similar matters of complaint, will all be properly accounted for. But it is more than probable that Mr. Odeneal, the the present Superintendent, and whose friends ousted Meacham to procure him the place, will have numerous little peccadillos to explain.

Odeneal was originally appointed on this commission, and to have been appropriately in keeping he ought by all means to have remained, but Meacham refused to serve with him; hence we have old Jesse. It is an Oregon institution, this high old Peace Commission, and when its history is truly written up will reflect about as much credit upon the American people as that of the Credit Mobilier.

In the meantime Gen. Gillem, while staying all aggressive operations pending the negotiations with Capt. Jack, Shack-nasty Jim, et. als., is making every preparation to clean out that lava bed, and feels confident that he can do it, but expects reasonably enough to have many less soldiers immediately afterwards to command than he now has.

The Kern County Election.

The county seat election, which took place on Saturday the 15th instant, was very closely contested. The total of all the votes cast was 702, of which 352 were for Bakersfield and 350 for Havilah. Though this shows but a majority of two for the former place, The Courier claims the election for it by eleven votes. Havilah will contest the election, and it is thought will prove that it was illegally conducted.

Spain a Republic.

The news of the abdication of King Amadeus and that Spain has become a Republic is confirmed. As soon as his abdication was determined upon, the Cortes adopted a Republican form of government by a vote of 259 to 32. This is an event of extraordinary interest in the political world, and may lead to strange complications.

Think They'll Emigrate.

It is understood in Salt Lake City that Brigham Young and the Mormon priesthood are contemplating the necessity of another great exodus of the Faithful, and the Mormon papers are discussing the subject. Doubts are expressed whether the the great body of members of the Mormon church can be induced to migrate again.

Thanks.

We are indebted to Senator McClinton, of Esmeralda, Nevada, for a bound copy of United States Senator elect, J. P. Jones', famous speech before the Nevada Legislature at Carson.

A NEW INDIAN RESERVATION.

President Grant, upon the representation of B. R. Cowan, Acting Secretary of the Interior, has ordered that the following described land in California be set apart as a reservation for the Tule river, King's river, Owens river, Manche Cajon and other scattering bands of Indians: Commencing on the South Tule river, four miles below the Soda Springs on said river; running thence north to the ridge of mountains dividing the waters of South and Middle Tule; thence east to the dividing line ten miles; thence south to the ridge dividing the waters of South Tule river and Deer creek; thence west on said ridge ten miles; thence north to the place of beginning; the said described tract of country being about ten miles long and six miles wide.—Sacramento Record.

In view of possible contingencies the establishment of this reservation is all proper enough, perhaps, since the Government has never made any such provisions for its many wards composing at least one or more of the above named tribes, and if any lands are to be set apart for their use it should be now while the title remains in the Government. The old Tule river reservation was gobbled up by Gen. Beale by virtue of a Spanish grant which he floated upon it, and we presume a similar fate awaits the new one as soon as it receives improvements enough to make it any object.

In the meantime, if the desire of certain San Francisco and other speculators is complied with, a few hundred of our Owens river Indians will be gathered up and driven over the mountains to this narrow-contracted reservation, and in company with other hundreds equally unfortunate and inoffensive, there be corraled long enough to take the census. They can go then, or as soon as the amount of supplies required for that number for the ensuing year, can be safely sworn to by the thieving agent in charge. That is all these Applegates and Odencals want. The Indians then, big and little, can return to the fields and kitchens where, in certain duties their help is indispensible, and there remain earning and invariably receiving good wages in coin, until the next annual rodeo. To keep these Indians on that reservation it will have to be well stockaded all around and then guarded by a full regiment of well armed soldiers. To attempt to force them there is simply to attempt an unmitigated swindle upon the Government, an outrage upon the Indians and scarcely anything less upon the whites among whom they live. Their labor is of essential importance in public economy, and supplies a want in that direction that no other can do as well. On this account their presence is a general benefit and the people here will universally protest against their removal, particularly as they are capable of much mischief if pushed to extremes as were those Modocs, and as they will be if a similar class of speculators and rascals are permitted to dictate the policy of the Indian Department. These Indians as a tribe are industrious and contented peaceable and well disposed, and so they will remain, if designing scoundrels will let them alone. All that citizens here ask is that the Department will see that these Indians are not interfered with at all by reservation agents in any manner; don't allow them to get in the hands of those birds of prey. The value of, and demand for their labor, both field and household, insures them good treatment at the hands of the whites, and a support free o cost to the Government.

Compulsory Education.

In accordance with the recommendation of the State Superintendent of Schools in Illinois, a bill has been introduced into the Legislature and is now under consideration for "compulsory education," by compelling parents and guardians to send their children to schools. Severe penalties are provided in case they fail or refuse to do so. It is said that the Senate of Iowa has also adopted a similar law as a part of the code of the State. It is contended by the advocates of the measure that if ignorance is a prolific cause of misery and crime, which is doubtless true, it is clearly the duty of the State to exercise its full powers in the direction of popular education by first establishing free schools; and in the second place compelling all children to attend them. If this could be done in every State, and especially in our cities and large towns, there would be a great many less hoodlums or Pixley Arabs in our midst and less destruction of juvenile character.—Sacramento Union.

Another Narrow Gauge.

There is a proposition on foot to build a narrow gauge railroad across the Sierras, connecting Oroville and Reno. It is said the maximum grade will not exceed 65 feet to the mile, and as the road will tap an immense timber region, there is little question but that it will prove a paying institution. The estimated cost of the road is $2,000,000.

—It is said that the newspapers are the means of a great many ladies "getting their backs up." The best conducted newspapers often make a great bustle among them, and nearly every pannier is a newspaper waist basket.

SHERIFF'S SALES.

Through a pressure brought to bear by the press of that State, a bill has passed the Legislature of Nevada which requires due notice by publication of all Sheriff's sales, including those of personal property sold under execution. In support of the law it was demonstrated that the old method, the same as now followed in this State, of giving notice of such sales by simply posting a written announcement on the Court House door worked a great wrong to all parties, inasmuch as it failed to attract the attention of the very ones most likely to become bidders at such sales. Under the old system it was a natural consequence that the attendance at such sales were always limited in numbers, and of a class who purchased only for speculative purposes, or, in other words, at about one-fourth the current rate of such articles, or what would be received for the same if purchased for actual use. It rarely happens that a Sheriff's sale of personal property does not include many articles of daily use by farmers and others, but few of whom ever have or can have any knowledge that such sale is to take place except through a better system of advertising than two or three obscure written notices can afford. But few will take the time or trouble to decipher these notices, even though they should fall directly under their eyes. So such sales are always extremely private in their nature, greatly to the loss of the debtor, whose property is thus ruthlessly sacrificed at the end of the law. Of course such a law would to a certain extent be advantageous to newspapers, but it would be vastly more so to all those unfortunates who from the nature of the case would have the printing bill to foot. It would have to be a very trifling amount of personal property, indeed, that would not bring at public vendue five or ten dollars more when well advertised in the manner proposed, and that amount, as a rule, will pay all the cost of such advertising.

Stand Back, Apaches!

The San Francisco Alta makes the following remarks in relation to the appended extract. All we have to say is, that in comparison to the lecherous old Mormon cut-throats we consider the Apaches a noble and magnanimous race of men:

A Gentile newspaper, published in Salt Lake City—The Mining Journal, we believe—tells a story of horrible ferocity, resultant of the Mountain Meadow Massacre, of too atrocious a character for belief, except upon evidence of unimpeachable nature. It purports to be an extract from a lecture delivered by Judge Wandell, the night previous to the issue of the paper referred to. If the statement be not true, it should be denied and refuted. The Journal says: "Why don't somebody say, 'it is not true?'" It will be remembered by those who read the reports of that fearful massacre, that twelve or fourteen little children, who, it was thought, were too young ever to be able to betray the perpetrators of that slaughter, were spared from the general destruction that was wreaked upon the rest of the company. One of them was the subject of the following extract from Wandell's lecture, delivered in Salt Lake City. We hope it may be satisfactorily proved false for the sake of humanity. If no one denies its truth, what is the world to think of it? In speaking of a little girl saved from the massacre the lecturer said:

> She had recognized her mother's dress on a Mormon woman at Cedar City. The child was at once suspected of knowing too much to be permitted to live. A council of the Priesthood was called, who took her out to a convenient place, and after considering her case, doomed her to die. A priest, who had received his "endowments," was ordered then and there to execute the sentence. He seized her, dashed her upon the ground, planted his knee upon her abdomen, with his left hand seized her by the hair, and with his other hand drew his knife and cut her throat.

Wallapai.

A Cerbat (Wallapai) correspondent of The Arizona Miner, February 15, gives the following in reference to that promising mining region:

Severel capitalists are said to be on their way here from San Francisco, and if the infernal Indians remain quiet we look for lively times the coming Summer. Col. Baker's furnace and reduction works, at Chloride, have proved, under his excellent management, a complete success. It is reported that the Colonel has purchased the furnace erected in Cerbat last year by Elder, and people hope the report is true, because he possesses, in an eminent degree, both the practical and scientific knowl- to insure success. Calvin White and Mr. Webster, our new mail contractors, together with Maurice Lindsey, are here, preparatory to the commencing of the carrying of the mails between Prescott and Hardyville, via. Cerbat and Mineral Park. The people are all much pleased at the prospect of having a mail direct to Prescott. We are having a heavy storm of wind and rain, which commenced last night. The rain is much needed, as the ground had become very dry, and the prospect for grass was not very good; but now it will be all right.

—On the consummation of a recent marriage in an up town family, a visitor unwisely remarked to the youngster: "You're a brother-in-law now, Tommy." "Yes," said Tommy, puffing out his cheeks offensively, "but ma says I will be an uncle by and by."

The Floods in Europe.

[From The Sacramento Record.]

The succeeding mails bring more and more serious accounts of the widespread disasters by floods in England, Ireland and on the continent of Europe. In Ireland the Shannon has overflowed its banks, and the unfortunate inhabitants were rescued in boats in pitiable condition. The low lying neighborhoods of Athlone are submerged. The river Barrow has overflowed, standing four feet in the streets of Carlow. The accounts report great misery among the people. In England the state of affairs is hardly better. All over the midlands and the north of England the floods and hurricanes have been disastrous. The meadows bordering the Thames are submerged. The Cherwell, Leam and Avon have all inundated the country. Proceeding west along the Cambrian railway, many miles of country are seen to be under water—only the hedgerows visible. As The London News of January 20th says: "In fact, taking the river Thames as a boundary, nearly the whole of England north of that river is at this moment suffering from very unusual, though not perhaps altogether unexampled, floods." On the continent things are not much better. The Baltic countries especially have suffered. Thousands of acres of the most fertile lands of Pomerania, Mecklenburg and Schleswig-Holstein have been laid waste. In Denmark it has been found necessary to organize a relief association. Much of Belgium is under water, and thousands from the country took refuge in the city of Ghent. Floods have been prevalent in France, and the lower streets of Paris have been submerged from the Seine. Meanwhile the prices of food and other necessaries are maintained at a range that raises the aggregate cost of living higher than ever before. Nor is there any early prospect of prices being reduced. The stock of breadstuff has not been so low (with one exception) for many years, while the outlook for next year's harvest is most discouraging. On all hands governments and societies find themselves confronted with serious and difficult problems in connection with making necessary provision for the poor. As yet there is nothing like actual famine, while there is great and widespread distress. Almost the only source to which Europe can now look for an unusual contribution to her food supplies is the Pacific with its three exporters—California, Chili, and perhaps Australia, of which only California is important. Whether or not the American "West" will be able to contribute largely this year it is too early to know. But in view of the possible injury to Winter sown wheat from the late extreme cold, there is reason to fear that the surplus available for export thence will not exceed an average. The question in Europe is whether wheat now worth 12s. per cental will not in a few months be worth 18s., and if so, how the masses are to get means to pay for it.

A Scene in the House.

A Washington special to a Chicago paper has the following description of the scene in the House on the 18th instant:

All the others save Field had a sullen look that did not pass away till the weight was lifted and the committee had declared that they did not propose to even censure them. Then they assumed an easy air. Oakes Ames sat beside Job Stevenson in the nearest seat to the Clerk's desk, with his face as rigid as ever, till the Clerk read that portion where he is spoken of as selling and buying votes. He turned up his bushy head and gave a derisive grin, but soon screwed his face into inflexible wrinkles again and received his sentence stolidly enough, hardly wincing as the Clerk read:

"Resolved, that Oakes Ames be and he is hereby expelled, as a member of this House."

Another special says of the feeling in regard to the report: "As soon as the matter had been disposed of, and Speaker Blaine had resumed the chair, the buzz and hum of conversation was resumed with unwonted energy. Members retired in knots to the cloak-rooms and lobbies, and the sundry civil appropriation bill, which came up next, was left to be managed by the members of the Committee on Appropriations. 'Well, what do you think of the report?' was the common question. This form of interrogatory was uniform from one end of the hall to the other, but the responses were not always the same. There was, however, a wonderful unanimity on one point, to wit: that the report was far from being satisfactory. There were those who stigmatized it as a whitewashing document so far as those members are concerned who are exonerated. While it is generally voted as severe and one-sided in the case of Ames and Brooks, there was a general murmur of complaint that no allusion had been made to Vice-President Colfax. It was generally expected that the committee would at least present the facts in Colfax's case and leave its disposition to the House. The omission is explained by the fact that the committee is not yet through with Colfax. It is understood that since his late appearance before the committee the Vice-President has addressed them a couple of letters which will necessitate his reappearance. This is expected to-morrow. The probabilities are that in his case they will make a separate report."

Cure for Epizootic.

The following from Hon. W. H. Hooper has been received by Gen. Eldridge:

To prevent the epidemic epizootic among horses; used in President Grant's stables with perfect success: Dose for four horses: One tablespoonful of chloride of potash in a bucket of water. To be given when the disease approaches and continued until its entire disappearance.

Pacific Coast News.

Epizootic of a mild type has appeared at San Francisco.

Mr. Stewart, on the 17th instant, introduced a bill in the United States Senate to permit Nevada to surrender her sixteenth and thirty-sixth sections of school lands for one million acres of such other lands as she shall select within her borders.

Visalia has been the scene of another tragedy. On the 14th ultimo, Walter I. Goddie was shot and mortally wounded by George Hodges, in a Spanish dance house.

The California Mutual Life Insurance Company of San Francisco has been disincorporated.

Collisions and other serious accidents are said to be of almost daily occurrence on the Virginia & Truckee Railroad. The company is charged with employing too many bummers and hoodlums on their road; hence these expensive "accidents."

The Board of Supervisors of Alameda county have ordered an election to take place on the 29th of March, for the removal of the county seat. It is now at San Leandro, but Oakland wants it, and the contest will be a close one.

Salt Lake.

A dispatch dated Salt Lake, February 19, says:

Charles A. Benson, who shot David W. Crockett at Logan City February 14, was arrested yesterday afternoon and lodged in the Court House of Logan. A large mob of citizens assembled and overpowered the officers, seized Benson and hung him on a sign post in front of the Court House. The Coroner's jury certified to the facts but criminated no one. Great excitement prevails there.

Miss Julia Morrill, fiancee of Benson, fell dead from apoplexy, resulting from excitement occasioned by his horrible death.

Gov. Woods will cause an inquiry to be made in the affair and will endeavor to bring the leaders of the lynching party to justice.

The Gentiles are unusually pleased with the prospects of Congressional legislation. No public meeting has been held to protest against the Bar memorial as reported. Such report was pure fabrication.

Tolerably Cool.

A correspondent of The Sacramento Union, writing from Wayne county, Iowa, under date of February 3, says:

Words are too weak to afford you any correct idea of the intense coldness of this Winter. Doubtless your roses are in bloom, while our thermometer is 30° below zero and trying to get lower. To a Californian it does seem as though the spirit of desolation had complete possession of the land. Not a green thing to greet the eye. But Summer will come sometime! Yes, and with it the scorching sun, and the fever, and the ague, and the doctor and death. In this county of ten thousand inhabitants it is safe to say that there are as many drugs sold as there are in Sacramento. The tone of a family here is known by the length of its doctor's and undertaker's bill. And out in the sickly parts of the country they say that one who has not had the fever can no more get into good society than can a woman in Chicago who has never left her husband.

Foreign Items.

A bill has been introduced in the English House of Commons for the purchase of the English railroads by the Government; also, one to enable women to vote.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Vamose.

During the latter part of last week, a Mexican, whose name we could not learn, came from Cerro Gordo to Lone Pine, and being tired of this country and not possessed of the necessary means to leave it, persuaded a son of Lola Trevis, a boy of thirteen, to go with him. The couple, not content to pursue their way on foot, secured two horses and a mule, the property of Lola, from Johnny Lucas' pasture; and while the Mexican, with one horse and the mule, was working about two miles below town, the boy borrrowed a saddle and bridle and joined his companero. They are supposed to have taken either the road to Visalia or Los Angeles. A few days afterwards Lola despatched a Mexican after them, with a warrant, to bring the fugitives back to justice. Thus far, nothing has been heard from either party. Consequentamentally, the lovely Lola is out and injured.

Smith.

The gentlemen bearing the above somewhat remarkable cognomen, which he carries around with a prefix of George, and who preferred the charges against Johnson and Stevens for highway robbery, was taken to Cerro Gordo, under arrest for obtaining money under false pretenses. Arriving at that point on Saturday, he demanded an immediate examination, which was accorded him on the following day—Sunday! Being held for trial by the Justice, the gentleman by the name of Smith was returned to this place for safe keeping; but, wonderful to relate, he was somehow released, chiefly on account of that Sunday business, and has since made himself very infrequent hereabouts.

Salaries of County Officials.

The District Attorney has served a writ of mandamus upon the County Treasurer, the object being to have a decision of the District Court respecting the right of the District Attorney to have his salary warrants paid in coin on sight—that is to say, the District Attorney claims that his salary should be paid in cash, and not in scrip as heretofore. If decided in his favor other salaried county officials will be included in the same category, and the result will be that the general fund will be kept pretty effectually cleaned out. The question presents several points of interest, but we do not think that, in the absence of a regular salary fund, the county can be made to favor or prefer that or any other class of creditors.

Borax.

Ex-County Clerk S. P. Moffat and T. F. A., etc., Connelly, of this place, have been for a week or two down in the Indian Wells country, after borax fields. We have heard nothing direct from the outfit, but understand that Connelly reports that a San Francisco party of twelve had got in just ahead of them and had located only five miles square of the borax. But we are led to infer that those modest Friscoites failed to cover quite all the ground that may be made to pay—but they come as near it as possible without getting themselves hopelessly out of shape.

An Upset.

Through awkwardness, or possibly carelessness, a wagon load of young ladies were, a day or two since, promiscuously spilled upon the ground by the upsetting of the conveyance in which they were riding, near Camp Independence. Although making a very narraw escape, the damage was not more serious than an general distribution of bruises, sprained ankles and black eyes, with quite a destruction of dresses, panniers and things. Having gone out for an airing, they got it.

Returned Home.

We notice upon our streets Mr. B. F. Welch, of the firm of Welch & Stevens. We have a distinct recollection of having published a notice of his marriage, or words to that effect, during his absence; but, as yet, he has not brought his better-half to the land of thrift and sage brush, which fact militates somewhat against his judgment in the premises.

Keno.

One of the resorts of our town bibulanters has been made attractive (to some) by the presence of a keno game, in full blast; nightly the air is enlivened by the cheery sounds of "keno!" and "oh, pshaw!"

Not Arrived.

From deep snows, epizooty or something, the northern stage due on Thursday last has not yet (noon, Saturday) made its appearance.

Letter from Lone Pine.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

MESSRS. EDITORS: Commencing on Sunday last our quiet town was made rather lively for a time, by the celebration of a holiday known as a season of fun and enjoyment observed by Mexicans generally. Towards evening all the Mexican women and children in the surrounding country came into town with sacks and half sacks of flour, and, together with those of that nationalty residing in town, pretty effectually stirred up "los americanos" by sprinkling and rubbing with flour every one with whom they came in contact. Bevies of them proceeded up and down the streets, and calling at the houses of acquaintances, favored all with the same amusing, flowery attentions. Thursday afternoon, on the third and last day of the celebration, was observed in what I may call a little "higher toned" style. They all came to town in wagons, with decorations of flags, handkerchief and banners, took a drive through town and alighted at their rendezvous—Frank Duprat's. As they came sailing through town, sprinkling and covering everybody with flour, some of the boys took quite an interest in the play, and came out scarcely recognizable. They also invaded the saloons, where the "lovely barkeeps" and all who happened to be within got their share. The celebration ended with a sociable dance at Duprat's Hall. Three days are generally the limit of these performances, and to-day they will observe the religious ceremonies pertaining to Ash-Wednesday.

A "LITTLE AFFAIR"

Transpired here on Monday, during which one George Watson indulged in the amusement of promiscuously slinging around threats and six-shooters. In return for his pleasantry he was invited by Justice Peerson, to whose attention the matter was brought, to pungle $20 and costs. You will doubtless consider this little transaction a step in the right direction; and I understand that the good citizens here are henceforth determined to enforce the principles of law and order.

EVETS.

Not So.

There is a rumor current to the effect that Brown's stables, in this place, are "chock full" of epizooty (as it is called), and that a number of horses have died with the disease at that place. It is entirely a mistake as to the deaths, and to a material extent as to the prevalence of the disorder. Some horses in that stable, as well as in nearly every other in the county, have been afflicted with this influenza, but in a mild form. All of those attacked are convalescing rapidly, and the epidemic no longer excites alarm as to future serious consequences. Since the disease appeared we have heard of the death of but one animal, a horse belonging to Frank Dillon. This one was out on a ranch, and there are some doubts as to the exact nature of the disorder which set our Assessor afoot.

The Court House.

The entire frame of the new Court House structure is now up, and most of the window and door frames are in position. The building presents the appearance of a bewildering maze of timbers, braces and studding, and would doubtless remain intact if it were balanced on any one point or corner. We understand that there is a movement on foot by our citizens to give a grand free ball and banquet to the people of the county upon its completion, as a sort of inauguration arrangement.

The Epizootic

Seems to have attacked the feline family. So far as a family of the aforesaid connected with this office is concerned something resembling that disease has certainly made its appearance, no less than four of them having succumbed thereto. The last victim, "Snorkey," was supposed to be proof against it, having been sent to the mountains to pass his kittenhood; but, notwithstanding all the medical skill of our senior, he has joined in the train which have gone to listen to the mewsic of the haven of cats.

The Farewell Ball.

According to the reports of the participants from this place who attended the ball given night before last at Lone Pine, by Mrs. Barry, the affair was, as we predicted it would be, a "brilliant success." Some fifty couples enjoyed the fun amazingly, and we understand that the crowd, by a unanimous vote, protested against the proposed departure of mine hostess.

A Good Man.

Mr. J. N. Newland, of Big Pine, has a truer conception of printers' needs than anybody we know of. The other day he dumped two big sacks of big spuds into our shop, and we don't hesitate to vote Mr. Newland a good man.

County Court.

A regular term of the County Court begins on Monday next, at which time, also, a Grand Jury will assemble. From all appearances, the business of the term will be light, there being but one or two criminal charges to investigate.

Assessing.

The work of assessing the county for the present fiscal year begins on Monday next, Assessor Dillon having gone to the lower end of the county for the purpose of beginning operations.

Registration.

Parties whose names are not already on the Great Register, and who are entitled by law to be placed thereon, can be registered by the Assessor when that official is upon his rounds.

Eastern News.

Robert Emmet, a nephew of the Irish patriot Emmet, died in New Rochelle, New York, on the 15th instant.

The President and Vice President elect were, on the 15th instant, officially informed of their election.

Judge Davis rendered a decision on the 16th instant, granting a stay of execution in Stokes' case, which amounts to another year's lease of life for Stokes at least.

A ring of conductors and ticket agents on the Pennsylvania railroad, between Cincinnati and Pittsburg, have been caught in a plan of fraud by which they have fleeced the company out of $100,000 in the last two years.

The Treasury Department, February 14, commenced the issue of the five per cent. bonds for the new Syndicate, and up to the Saturday night following had issued eight millions dollars of them.

The President contemplates starting on the 20th of March accompanied by nearly all his Cabinet, besides many distinguished gentlemen, Senators, Members of the House and others, to make the tour of the Southern States. His proposed trip to this coast is postponed in consequence for a year at least.

The Committee on Public Buildings reports in favor of a new Presidential mansion at Washington, and that the present one is unfit for a President to live in, but may be used for executive offices.

Col. Bogy, Senator elect in Missouri, is being seriously charged with corrupting members of the Legislature to vote for him, and a full investigation has been ordered by a Democratic caucus, much against the private wishes of Bogy.

By a close vote the House Committee on appropriations has adopted Edmunds' amendment withholding Government compensation from the railroad companies for transportation till they shall have paid up the interest account due the United States.

A family of seven persons in Cleveland, Ohio, are afflicted with trichinæ.

Dawes swore before the Senate Committee that Alley told him the Union Pacific Company gave Harlan $10,000 in checks, while Harlan was Secretary of the Interior.

The Democrats in the House will introduce a resolution for the expulsion of other members besides Ames and Brooks, whose expulsion is recommended by the Committee.

Caldwell's election as Senator from Kansas is reported back by the Committee as invalid and illegal.

A sudden rise in the Monongahela, at Pittsburg, in connection with a violent storm, caused the destruction of a large number of canal boats and coal barges, and loss of a number of lives. This occurred on the 17th instant.

A Very Beautiful Paper.

We are just in receipt of the February number of The "People's Monthly" of Pittsburgh, which, now that it is printed in its new type, and on tinted paper, boldly claims to be the most beautiful illustrated paper for the home published in this, or any other country. This number certainly seems to bear out the claim. It has no less than eight engravings, some of them—and especially the frontispiece—being very beautiful. The two famed poems the "Wonderful one-horse Shay," (O. W. Holmes), and the "Barefoot Boy," (Whittier), are both illustrated in this attractive number. The "Household" and "Boys and Girls" departments are as full and valuable as ever, and the whole table of contents is varied and entertaining In brief, we can say that The "People's Monthly" is a pure, wholesome and attractive home paper, and well deserving a hearty and generous Western support.

Musical Journal.

We are in receipt of the February number of The Musical Echo, a monthly journal devoted to music and its literature. In mechanical appearance, The Echo is a gem of art, and its contents are both amusing and instructive. Besites an interesting and cleverly written story, it contains several columns of well made up art notes, critiques, etc., and concludes with three beautiful pieces of music. The Musical Echo is published at a subscription price of only one dollar per year, currency, by H. N. Hempstead, Wilwaukee, who is well known, not only as an extensive music publisher, but as one of our best composers. Such of our readers as have taste for music would do well to subscribe for the Musical Echo. N. H. Hempstead, 408, 410 and 412, Broadway, Milwaukee, Wis.

Let it be Done.

We hope that Congress will grant the aid, about to be asked for, to turn a portion of the Colorado river into the Colorado desert, in order to produce a body of water, which is already named in advance, the Widney sea. A memorial is now being circulated here in Southern California for this object, and we hope that Arizona will lend her generous aid to the object. The expense of a scientific commission would not be great, and the information derived from it would be of great value to the general government. The cost of turning the river and trying the experiment, in case of a favorable report, would not be great; and, in case the final result should prove a failure, a thousand dollars of expense would again restore the volume of water to its original channel in the bed of the Colorado river.—Los Angeles Star.

The New Postal Bill.

The following is the text of the new postal bill telegraphed to The San Francisco Bulletin as having passed the House on the 11th instant:

The following is the text of the bill to amend the new postal law which passed the House to-day:

Be it enacted, etc., that on and after the first day of July next, on all mail matter which is wholly or partly in writing, except books, magazines and newspaper manuscripts and corrected proofs passing between authors and publishers, and excepting, also, the correspondence or postal cards, on all printed matter which is so marked as to convey any other or further information than is conveyed by original print, except the correction of mere typographical errors, on all matter which is sent in violation of law or regulation of the department respecting enclosures, and all matter to which no specific rate of postage is assigned, postage shall be charged at the rate of two cents for each half ounce or fraction thereof, and this provision shall include all letters commonly known as drop or local letters delivered through the postoffices or their carriers, and magazine manuscripts are hereby declared to belong to third class mailable matter.

SEC. 2. That from and after the first day of January next, under such regulations and in such manner as the Postmaster-General shall prescribe, the postage provided by law to be paid upon printed matter of the second class, shall in all cases be prepaid and collected at the offices respectively where such matter shall be mailed, and the postage on daily papers not exceeding four ounces on each copy, in weight, shall be charged and collected at the rate of 15 cents per quarter, provided that weekly newspapers within their respective counties where the same are printed and published, and none other, may pass through the mails free of postage, as provided in the eighth clause of section 184, of the act to revise, consolidate and amend the statutes relating to the Postoffice Department.

SEC. 3. That any person who shall take any letter, postal card or packet out of the postoffice or branch postoffice or from a letter or mail carrier or which has been in any postoffice or branch postoffice or in custody of any letter or mail carrier before it shall have been delivered to the person to whom it was directed, with design to obstruct correspondence or pry into the business or secrets of another, or shall secret or embezzle or destroy the same, shall, on conviction thereof, for every such offense forfeit and pay a penalty not exceeding $500 or be imprisoned at hard labor not exceeding one year, or both at the discretion of the Court.

Anecdotes of Children

A little Bridgeport boy who lost three fingers in a drop press, only remarked: "I'll bet mother will cry when she sees that."

A little girl, when her father's table was honored with an esteemed guest, began talking very earnestly at the first pause in the conversation. Her father checked her very sharply, saying: "Why is it that you always talk so much?" "Tause I've dot somesin to say," was the innocent reply.

A little girl was reading the parable of the wise and the foolish virgins, when she suddenly paused. "Well, what did they forget?" asked the old teacher encouragingly. "They forgot their kerosene," responded Miss Five-year-old.

The very boy we have heard about, who disobeyed his father and went a swimming, and his father said to the wicked boy: "You've been a swimming." The wicked boy said: "I hain't." The pa said: "You have sir, and you have got your shirt on t'other side out." "P'shaw!" said the wicked boy, "that shirt got turned wrong side out getting over the fence."

The following characteristic prayer from the heart of a little boy. He had evidently had a little unpleasantness with Aunt Effie: "Please, God, bless papa and mamma—and—and—and if you're a mind to, you may bless Aunt Effie; but I don't much care."

A certain little damsel having been aggravated beyond endurance by her brother, plumped down upon her knees and cried: "O Lord, bless my brother Tom. He lies he steals he swears; all boys do; us girls don't. Amen."

A little boy the other day was put into long trowsers for the first time. Some one asked him why he had changed. "Well," he replied "the boys made fun of me; and I wasn't going to wear my pants at half mast any longer."

A little boy being asked, "What is the chief end of man?" replied "The end what's got the head on."

A little girl was sent to the pasture to drive home a cow. While thus engaged she treated herself to climbing an unnecessary fence, from which she fell and was severely scratched and bruised. On returning home she was asked if she cried when she fell. "Why, no," she replied, "what would have been the use? There was nobody to hear me."

—The clerk of a San Francisco lawyer guarded against the possibility of forgetting the secret of the combination by writing it upon a piece of paper and pasting it upon the knob of the safe. He found it hard to dodge the well bound law books that were thrown at his head when the lawyer discovered it, and is now seeking a desk in another office.

—An actress has been teaching accentuation to the school children in Carson City, and now every young one in town says "the nobul juke" and "beeyoutifool skeeyi," and the old folks can't get their mouths straightened out.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Beecher on Signing Names.

"I have bro't yer riverence a paper which I hope yer riverence will sign for a poor man."

This he says as he fumbles in his pocket for a paper. He pulls out a cotton handkerchief, then a crumbled mass of newspaper and certain queer and crumbled bits of white paper—white once, at any rate, but dirty enough now. It is not there. Another pocket is emptied. In a third is found the "dockyment."

It is a request that Pharoah McCrum be appointed "on the police." It goes on to state that each one of the signers is personally acquainted with the candidate—that of his own personal knowledge he is a man of good morals and upright life, temperate, industrious and every way fitted for the trust solicited for him.

"Well, my friend, what do want of me?"

"If your Honor would sign the paper ——"

"But I am not acquainted with you."

"Yes, yer riverence; but these gentlemen that have signed knows me, and sure they wouldn't mistake."

"Yes, they sign for themselves; but how does that give me a personal knowledge of you for ten years, and how do I know you are sober or industrious or trustworthy? I hope you are; but I know nothing about it. I have never seen you to my knowledge till this moment."

"Yes, sir, that's true; but you might know from thim," pointing to the names. "Sure they wouldn't sign anything that was not true."

"My friend, I cannot sign the paper. It would be a falsehood. I should say I knew a man I never saw. No, no; you need not plead. I will not sign it."

The man goes away in a bewildered state. He has heard, he assured me, that I was I kind-hearted gentleman; and he could not imagine why I would not help a poor fellow, and no doubt reported when he got home that I was not the man he took me to be.

Another man says: "If you would be kind enough to give me a letter to Mr. Claflin, I know that he would give me a place."

"But, sir, I do not know anything about you, and cannot recommend you."

"But here are papers, sir, that certify my character."

"Very well; go and show the papers to Mr. Claflin, and if he needs another man and is satisfied with your credentials he will take you in."

"But your name, sir, would settle the matter."

Not long after it was understood that I certified things or recommended men that I knew nothing about.

These things are not peculiar to me. They happen to all men of any position or influence. Men are solicited to lend their names in a manner that cannot be justified by honor.

The fact is now notorious that men have put the signing of their names out of the ordinary code of morality. Men will sign merely to get rid of a man. They will recommend a book which they know nothing about rather than hurt some one's feelings by a refusal. They will recommend men as highly fitted for positions which they postively know they are utterly unfitted for. Nay, men will give to candidates the strongest letters for an office, and then write secret letters to headquarters to say that the letter is not to be regarded. Indeed, it is said that in certain cases politicians find it necessary to have it understood at headquarters that no letter is to be regarded unless it have some distinctive signs upon it which have been agreed upon.

Is there not need of a better public sentiment on the subject of signing names? The laxity of practice is fast taking all value from documents bearing eminent names. Such a loose policy as is now pursued ought to be ranked with falsehoods, deceptions and conspiracies to defraud.

—A portion of the wording of the indictment against Miss Susan B. Anthony, for illegal voting, charges that she "was then a person of the female sex, contrary to the form of the statute of the United States of America, in such case made and provided."

The Laughing Plant.

Palgrave's work on Central and Eastern Arabia furnishes something new for botanists. A plant is described under the same name of "laughing plant," the seeds of which produce effects very much like laughing gas. It grows only in Arabia, attaining a hight of only about six inches in Kaseem, while at Oman it raises three and four feet, with wide spreading branches, being woody and the leaves green. Its flowers, in tufts, are yellow. Two or three black seeds, much like French beans in size and shape, are produced in a soft, wooly kind of a capsule. They have a sweetish taste, with a slight flavor of opium. The odor from them is rather offensive, producing a sickening sensation. The essential property of this extraordinary plant is in its seed, which, pulverized and administered cautiously, soon begins to operate in a way to create astonishment. The person begins to laugh boisterously, then he dances, sings and cuts fantastic capers of a ludicrous character. Such extravagance of manner was never witnessed from any other dosing. It is uproariously funny for about an hour. It is a common amusement to charge food with the powder for the harmless enjoyment of his capering antics. When the excitement subsides the exhausted exhibitor falls into a profound slumber. In another hour, on waking, he is totally unconscious of what has occurred. It is a common expression that there is nothing new under the sun. Surely to men of science this is something new demanding their careful investigation of such extraordinary properties of a vegetable growth that exercise such potent influence on the human brain. But it is morally certain that this recently discovered vegetable growth, so extraordinary in its potent influence on the human brain, is something new to science, demanding the attention of dispensatory makers, as well as those professors of Materia Medica who are supposed to know all that is to be known of plants, from the cedars of Lebanon to the hyssop that springeth out of the wall.

The Vienna Exposition.

A correspondent writes from Europe that there is every prospect that the International Exposition at Vienna will be the greatest affair of the kind yet known. The immense structure for the purpose, situated in the Prater, a beautiful park on the outskirts of the city, near the works in progress for the new bed of the Danube, is about completed, and goods will soon begin to pour in. The demand for exhibition room is enormous and beyond all expectation. To accommodate visitors thirty new hotels are under construction, to be ready for occupation by May 1. Among other preparations for visitors, a railway conference has been held to arrange a special reduced scale of fares to and from the Exhibition, and offices will be opened at all the Vienna stations for providing visitors with lodgings. A special department is to be set apart in the Exposition for women's work. It will be divided into four sections: one for women's schools, one for household work, one for industrial and artistic work, and one for literary work. Our correspondent hints that intending exhibitors in California will do well to hurry forward their applications and articles.—S. F. Bulletin.

A Novelty in Telegraphing.

Prof. Loomis, of Yale College, has proposed something novel in the way of telegraphing. His plan is to telegraph from any given high peak to another at long distance, using an upper stratum of air as a means of electric communication instead of the ordinary wires. The plan, as we understand it, is to erect upon such hights a tall tower or mast, the tops of which will be connected with an apparatus capable of generating a large amount of electricity which will be carried from point to point along this upper stratum of air. Ground connections will be used to complete the circuit as with wires. It is supposed that the slighest pulsation of the electricity of one tower will produce a similar pulsation at the other.

A bill is reported as having passed both Houses of Congress giving some special privileges to a company organized to carry out this scheme, the object of which is described to be the development of the unutilized principles and powers of natural electricity, to be used in telegraphy, generating light, heat and motive power, and otherwise operating machinery run by electricity for any purpose. The name of Prof. Loomis as its originator is the only thing at first sight that attaches any importance to the scheme.—Ex.

True Charity.

Mark Twain says he went to Mormondom with the idea of exterminating polygamy, but he adds: "My heart was wiser than my head. It warmed toward the poor, ungainly and pathetically 'homely' creatures, and as I turned to hide the generous moisture in my eyes, I said, "No—the man who marries one of them has done an act of Christian charity which entitles him to the kindly applause of mankind, not their harsh censure—and the man who marries sixty of them has done a deed of open-handed generosity so sublime that the nations should stand uncovered in his presence and worship in silence.'

—St. Paul has more pork than it wants.

The Evils of Intemperance.

We give below from Scribner's Monthly, says The Colorado Miner, a picture of women's sufferings from drunken husbands, that is more forcible than any we have yet seen. And it is drawn true to the very life. Let those misguided husbands who are continually hanging around saloons, and who are not yet so far gone that they may not recover, look at this picture, and think of their poor wives and children. And let young women take care of those young men who spend all their spare moments in the billiard hall—for they are sure to become drunken husbands. Of all the calamities that can befall a woman on earth, the most direful is to marry a man that turns out to be a drunkard! The prayer of every woman should be, "O God, save me from ever becoming a drunkard's wife."

Dr. Holland observes: The appetite for strong drink in man has spoiled the lives of more women—ruined more hopes for them, scattered more fortunes for them, brought to them more sorrow, shame, and hardship—than any other evil that lives. The country numbers tens—nay, hundreds of thousands—of women who are widows to day, and sit in hopeless weeds, because their husbands have been slain by strong drink.

There are hundreds of thousands of homes scattered all over the land in which women spend lives of torture, going through all the changes of suffering that lie between the extremes of fear and despair, because those whom they love, love wine better than they do the women they have sworn to love. There are women by thousands who dread to hear at the door the step that once thrilled them with pleasure, because that step has learned to reel under the influence of the seductive poison. There are women groaning with pain, while we write those words, from bruises and brutalities inflicted by husbands made mad by drink. There can be no exaggeration in any statement made in regard to this matter, because no human imagination can create anything worse than the truth, and no pen is capable of portraying the truth. The sorrows and harrows of a wife with a drunken husband, or a mother with a drunken son, are as near the realization of hell as can be reached in this world at least. The shame, the indignation, the sorrow and the sense of disgrace for herself and her children, the poverty—and not unfrequently the beggary—the fear and fact of violence, the lingering, life-long struggle and despair of countless women and drunken husbands, are enough to make all women curse wine, and engage unitedly to oppose it everywhere as the worst enemy of their sex.

Senator Nye.

[From The Gold Hill News.]

Hon. James W. Nye, United States Senator from this State, has made fully as good a representative as the average of his illustrious contemporaries in the halls of the nation at the present time. We do not know that we can point at any very brilliant official achievement of his during his present term of office, yet as a general thing he has done very well—somebody else might have done worse. He has made a creditable mark, and sustained the honor and integrity of our young and thrifty State as well as advocated the general interests of the Pacific coast in a commendable manner, and the influence of himself and Mr. Stewart has been strongly felt in all legislation for the interests of this section. Nye's speeches in the Senate have been distinguished by a degree of sensible wisdom, eloquence, practical effect and soundness of argument, commanding deferential respect, yet there as here, his natural geniality of disposition will occasionally crop out in the form of a joke or humorous demonstration. Nye, like the lamented Lincoln, will have his funny stories, and hold his own when in congenial company, and some of his jokes are eminently practical and square-toed, as witness the following from one of our Washington exchanges: On hearing of Mr. Patterson's purpose to go before the Poland Committee again and "explain" his letter of January 4, 1873, to Oakes Ames, Jim strolled over to the New Hampshire Senator's desk, slapped him on the back, and uttered winged words as follows: "Patterson, if I wanted to take out a patent for a d—d fool, I'd send you to the Patent Office for my model."

A Long Word.

Attention has recently been called to the special advantage which the Germans derive in international telegraphy from the fact of their language lending itself almost indefinitely to the use of compound words. Thus what in English we should call the "Rhine and Neckar Steam Navigation Company," could only be described in French by "Compagnie de la Navigation par bateaux a vapeur sur le Rhin et le Neckar," while the Germans, summing up the title in one single word, would say, "Rheinneckardampfschiffahrtgesellschaft!"

—Recently a proof sheet of the list of members of the Michigan House of Representatives was given out, on which corrections were to be made if any errors were discovered. Soon after, the compiler of the manual received the following note from one of the single gentlemen: "In proof-sheet of the manual in House, I see you say I am married. Please correct, or send the woman around, and oblige."

No Extension.

A friend in Washington writes us under date of February 19, that on that morning Representative Houghton had stood for one hour on the floor of the House with his papers in his hand, vainly trying to obtain the attention of the Speaker in order to get the bill passed extending the time for pre-emtors in this land district to make their payments. Mr. Houghton and Mr. Kendall, the writer states, were both "working like beavers" to get this bill passed, but it was feared they would not succeed in the hurry and press of business attending the close of the session.

We have heard it stated here that the bill did pass, but if so we have been unable to find any account of it, though we have the dispatches in our exchanges up to the 27th of February. It should be borne in mind that, unless this bill has become a law, the time for payment on pre-emption claims expires on the 22d of this month, after which, according to the ruling of the Commissioner, the same parties will not be permitted to re-file on Government land. Interested parties must make the best preparation they can to take the bull by the horns in the belief that the extension has not been granted.

The Conditions.

The Peace Commissioners have all reached "the front," and, as soon as an interpreter could be obtained, would proceed to have a "hi-you" talk with Captain Jack, but the Commissioners have but little hopes of making a satisfactory arrangement. Here are the conditions they will submit to Captain Jack, and they are supposed to be the ultimatum:

First—Unconditional surrender of Captain Jack and his party.

Second—The trial and conviction of the murderers by the civil authority.

Third—The removal of the remaining Modocs to distant coast reservations.

The King's Cabinet.

It may not be generally known that three of the four members composing the Cabinet of the new King of the Sandwich Islands are Americans, and therefore may be supposed to exercise quite an influence in favor of American institutions. One of them—the Attorney-General, A. Francis Judd—was born in Honolulu, but his parents were Yankees. He was educated at Yale College. The Cleveland Herald says he visited that section of country last year and was married at Geneva, N. Y., to a daughter of Rev. Dr. Boyd of that city, who is the grand-daughter of the late Colonel Elisha Camp of Sackett's Harbor, who was regarded there as one of the most worthy citizens of the place.

All a Mistake.

According to numerous witnesses before the Congressional Committee, Mr. Pomeroy did not authorize the use of any money to secure his election, and in fact positively refused to allow it thus to be used. So that son of York was entirely in error about where he got his $7,000. We are inclined to think Mr. Pomeroy is right, since he being a very sanctimonious sort of a man it would be quite impossible for him to authorize a thing wholly unauthorizable.

The "Chicken."

This nice bird, sometimes known as "Johnny Devine,' is now undergoing his second trial in San Francisco for the murder of August Knapp about a year ago. On his first trial he was found guilty and sentenced to death for murder in the first degree, but the Supreme Court granted the interesting young man another show for his life.

Caldwell's Case.

The Senate refused to take up the Caldwell case in its order on the 24th ultimo, and this refusal is regarded as practically postponing the matter until the next session, when, no doubt, Caldwell will escape altogether.

Pahranagat.

The first shipment of bullion from Pahranagat for two years reached San Francisco a couple of weeks since. It was from the Crescent mill, and amounted to 2,400 ounces of silver bullion.

Rejoicing

A bill having passed the Nevada Legislature creating the new county of Eureka out of Lander, the Eurekians are excessively proud, and can't get enough of mutual congratulations, especially those of a liquid nature.

Riot.

A bloody riot took place in Quebec February 24, in which ten men were killed and many wounded. It was in regard to political nominations for candidates for Quebec East.

THE SUIT IN BANKRUPTCY.

We learn that Judge Hoffman of the United States District Court, has finally allowed the claim of Van Gorder & Winters against the bankrupt estate of the Kearsarge Mining Company, of which they were the principal owners The amount of this claim is $75,000, we believe. The honest claims against the same estate—that is to say, claims of creditors, other than those of the owners, for materials furnished—was, in round numbers, about $17,000, which added to the above makes $92,000 against the said bankrupt estate. At the Assignee's sale about a year ago the property brought $23,000, which would have been applied in liquidating the indebtedness of the concern ere now, had not the owners insisted on the biggest share being paid on their $75,000 claim. To test the legality of this claim everything else has been held in abeyance. This claim is allowed; so that making no allowances for expense, the amount each creditor will receive will be as $23,000 is to $92,000—say 25 per cent., but as there are some little drawbacks to be considered, it is hardly worth our while to figure this down to a nicety just yet. We are not advised as to the exact amount of these drawbacks, but are quite sure they will already foot up to some thousands, and as the case is to be appealed, are just as sure to foot up to some thousands more, so that before we are through with it the prospects are extremely flattering for an Irish dividend to the tune of about a ten per cent. assessment. Next to an interest in a Brazil gold mine, we know of nothing more pleasant to have than an interest in a first-class suit in bankruptcy.

There are some curious features connected with this business, and in view of possible assessments, as above, some that need a little consideration. We will briefly state that Van Gorder offered to pay Mr. J. S. Rothschild, the assignee of all the claims other than the $75,000, the full amount in gold coin (or its equivalent, being W. S. Hobart's note for the amount: one of the wealthiest and most responsible men on the coast) for all the claims he held against the estate. If this offer had been accepted the creditors would have all received nearly the full amount of their claims long ago, and this town would have been nearly $15,000 better off, that being the amount due here. The ownership of the mine would not have been involved or changed at all from necessity, and the mine for months past would probably and most likely would have been in full operation. It is now and ever has been wholly beyond our comprehension why Mr. Rothschild refused this settlement. The reasons assigned by some for his apparent obstinacy or short-sightedness are in no degree flattering to his standing as a business man, but a statement of facts not yet made plain may fully justify his decision so far as the principle is involved, but it is hardly possible to make it appear that it was good policy.

It is not likely that we or any of these creditors will ever receive a dollar of our claims. As a matter of mere pecuniary policy we would have done better to have waived this in toto long ago and permitted the work on the mine to have been resumed, as would have been done in all probability. But if Rothschild had done what he apparently should have done, there would have been no need of waiving these claims, or any loss but what would have been more than made up by the advantage this town would have derived from a prosecution of the work on the mine. So far as the mite we have involved in the affair is concerned, we consider it so well settled that we do not design to pay any assessments in trying to unsettle it. Our "loss" column don't need any additional entries to make it look well.

No Removals Except for Cause.

The Postmaster-General has received recent instructions from the President which disclose the determination to rigidly exclude all political reasons in the considerations of removals. Though this has reference directly to Postmasters, yet it is understood to apply to all the minor offices held by appointment. Henceforth for four years whenever it is desirable to have one of them removed, some good cause other than political will have to be shown or it is no go. A strict adherence to this rule insures a much better administration of the affairs of these offices than was possible under the previous system, when real merit gave no better assurance of a continuation in office, when opposing political reasons could be brought to bear, than rascality or incompetency. Of course many of the "outs" and zealous partisans will condemn this rule with great fervor, but it will meet the general approbation, nevertheless.

BOARD OF EXAMINERS.

During a portion of the present week the County Board of Examiners (School Teachers') consisting of County Superintendent Symmes, M. S. Clark and George H. Hardy, have been in session and have examined several applicants for teacher's certificates, with what results we are not prepared to say. As there is a disposition manifest in certain quarters to censure the County Board for what we may call their "rigidness" in the examinations, we shall endeavor to explain the extent of their responsibility, and when that is properly understood it will be seen that this censure is entirely unwarranted; that they are governed by arbitrary rules over which they have no more control or option in decisions than they have over the acts of Congress. The whole matter and line of their duties is fixed by the State Board and by the laws of the State, under which they act, and by which all the public schools are governed.

The school law specifies the studies in which applicants for any grade of certificate must be examined. We shall only consider those for a second or third grade county certificate. They are, with their respective scale of merit, as follows:

Arithmetic, 100; Mental Arithmetic, 25; Grammar, 100; Oral Grammar, 25; History of the United States, 50; Geography, 100; Spelling, 50; Defining (Word Analysis), 25; Reading 50; Methods of Teaching, 50; Physiology, 50; Natural History, 25; Composition, 25; Penmanship, 25; Drawing, 25; Vocal Music, 25. Total, 775.

For county certificates the minimum percentages are: First grade, 80 per cent.; Second 75, and Third grade 70 per cent. The instructions of the State Board are that the County Boards must not grant certificates upon a lower percentage than the one fixed by the State Board as above, though any County Board may raise the percentage of any or all grades.

Has our Board exercised the latter right? They certainly have not. But first we will notice some more of the requirements of the State Board, all of which we find in the February number of "The Teacher," which contains a number of facts pertaining to school matters to which we shall take occasion to allude more in detail soon. The examination questions are sent sealed to, and are not to be opened by the County Superintendent until the regular meeting of the County Board of Examination, and in the presence of at least one other member of the Board. The result of any application, or report in full of the same, must within fifteen days be forwarded to the State Board, who re-examine the papers, and if a State certificate is involved, grant or reject the application in accordance with the facts presented. This is sufficient on this point to show the limit of the powers of the County Boards, and if applicants have failed it is not fair nor reasonable to charge their failure upon this Board.

It is perfectly evident that the degree of merit required by these rules is higher than they should be, considered in reference to existing circumstances in outlying districts like our own. In more instances than one applicants have fallen a little short on their examinations and failed to obtain certificates in consequence, though it was well known that practically they were as capable and competent to teach in the public schools here as any one almost who ever received his sheepskin.

But some fixed degree of merit must be known in regard to the scholastic attainments of teachers, and fixed high enough to insure a proper use of the public money, given not for the especial benefit of teachers, but for the pupils, many of whom, were the standard for teachers left to accident as we may say, would soon reach that point where all such benefits must cease. But the present percentage required works a hardship in the opposite direction. Teachers of the required attainments cannot be had, either here, from the Normal School or elsewhere, and in consequence several districts are likely to be deprived of schools altogether. The County Superintendent, than whom a more zealous one cannot be found in the State, has repeatedly used his best endeavors to supply this deficiency, but so far without avail. Under this state of affairs, and in the certain fact that the establishment of such schools could not do him or any of the Board any harm, even supposing them to take no pride in the cause they represent—under these conditions we say, is it reasonable to suppose that they would do anything they were not obliged to do towards depriving these districts of teachers?

Not long since an applicant passed a partial examination and received the required amount of credits (70 per cent.) that far without trouble, but for some reason best known to himself, and before he made any failure at all, declined and postively refused to go any further—and this circumstance is made a base of complaint against the Board to the extent that they thereby did deny a worthy gentlemen and doubtless a competent teacher a certificate. The long and short of it is they didn't do anything of the kind, nor could they have done so, except upon facts yet to arise, which facts they had no reason to anticipate from any preceding ones.

WORTH KNOWING.

The Sacramento Union of the 18th ultimo, in alluding to the tax suits brought by the Central Pacific railroad Company against the Tax Collectors of certain counties, a statement of which will be found elsewhere in this issue, brings out some facts worthy of attention:

By an act "to aid the construction of the Central Pacific Railroad and to secure the use of the same to this State, for military and other purposes," approved April 4th, 1864, California agreed to guarantee the payment of the interest on $1,500,000 of the railroad company's seven per cent. twenty years bonds. The act provides, Section 1, that this interest shall be paid semi-annually, on the first of July and January, of each year on and after July 1st, 1864, "at the State treasury," in gold coin of the United States. In Section 2 it is provided that an annual tax of eight cents on the $100 shall be levied on all the property in the State to secure a fund for the payment of said interest, the same to be continued for twenty years. If this special tax shall at any time prove insufficient, then the deficiency must be supplied from the general fund in the State treasury.

So much for what the State is bound to. Now for the condition of the bond. Section 4 declares that "the said grant to the said company is made upon the express condition and consideration that said company shall and do at all times when required, from and after the passage of this act, transport and convey over the said railroads all public messengers, convicts going to the State Prison, lunatics going to the State Insane Asylum, materials for the construction of the State Capitol building, articles intended for public exhibition at the Fairs of the State Agricultural Society; and in case of war, invasion, or insurrection, as well as at all other times, also transport and convey over their said railroad all troops and munitions of war belonging to the State of California, free of charge, and without any other compensation than as herein provided." They were obliged to file a contract within ninety days after the passage of the act, in the Secretary of State's office, agreeing to comply with these conditions, and to do certain other things, which being foreign to the purpose of this article, we do not recapitulate. Finally, Section 4 provides that "in case said company shall fail and refuse to do and perform said conditions and the said agreement on their part, they shall be liable to repay to the State the amount which shall have been paid by the State under this act."

The Union thinks it doubtful whether any Sheriff when conveying a convict or insane person, etc., ever damanded a free pass in accordance with the above conditions. It is altogether likely that it has never been done by our Inyo Sheriffs, each of whom in turn has made frequent trips to Stockton and San Quintin in performance of the duties named. As such trips are especially expensive from this county, and as we pay our regular share of the above interest tax, without receiving any direct benefit in return, we hope that our Sheriff, upon the next occasion of taking a convict below, will go prepared to assert his rights to a pass over whatever portion of the Central Pacific his route may lie. The article referred to closes as follows:

To constitute a legal refusal there would have to be a legal demand proved. We have also heard complaints at several State Fairs that the railroad neglected the freight of exhibitors. Our purpose in writing this is to counsel Sheriffs and their deputies, and all other persons who may have been in this way aggrieved, or who may have been charged for the transportation of freight, which this company is bound on demand to carry free of charge, to bring forward their proofs. If it can be shown that the company has done these things, then, under the last sentence of Section 4 of the act of April 4th, 1864, the Attorney General may sue them for a breach of contract with the State, and force the corporation "to repay to the State the amount which shall have been paid by the State under this act." That amount now foots up to $892,500. If the State could manage to secure this sum on a suit for breach of contract, it will compensate her for the losses which she will incur by the meanness of the coporation in refusing to pay its just and honest share of the taxes in certain counties where their road has been assessed.

Dead.

Postal telegraphy is dead for this session of Congress. The bill passed the House, and is now in the hands of the Senate Postal Committee, where it is said it will remain. Also, the bill to reduce letter postage, and that requiring prepayment of newspaper postage.

It is stated that the authorities of the Royal Gun Factories, Woolwich, England, have designed and are preprepared to construct a 70 ton gun, which shall throw a projectile of 1,400 pounds.

Eastern News.

In a speech in the House recently Gen. Banks asserted that the son of ex-Queen Isabella would soon become King of Spain.

The Speaker and another member of the Alabama Legislature have been arrested for conspiracy to prevent the election of a United States Senator on the day fixed by law.

President Grant's house, six miles out of St. Louis, was burned February 21.

On motion of Sargent the House has voted an appropriation of $10,000 for a statue of Col. Baker for the National Capitol.

A resolution for the impeachment of Vice-President Colfax was defeated in the House, February 21, by only three votes in a total of 215. Colfax's explanations of his connection with Ames are considered very thin, indeed.

Ames defies the House to expel him. He thinks the committee has a better chance to be expelled than he.

Eighty-eight bronze cannons captured by the Army of the Cumberland, are to be moulded into an equestrian statue of Gen. Geo. H. Thomas.

Gov. Hart has called an extra session of the Legislature of Florida to pass a bill for a $1,000,000 loan.

Cuban questions will not be pressed on the Spanish Republic by the United States for fear of embarassing that new power.

The Wilson Committee submitted their report on the 21st. They say they have found frauds enough to justify the United States in seizing the Union Pacific Railroad and declaring it forfeited. They will submit a bill to enable the Attorney-General to sue and reach and recover the stolen property from the swindlers.

Suits to Avoid Taxes.

Suit has has been commenced in the United States Circuit Court by C. P. Huntington, Charles Stanford and H. H. Hollister (in reality the Central Pacific Railroad Company), against the Central Pacific Company and Martin Corcoran, R. S. Farrelly, N. S. Harrold, Mike Bryie, James Moore, W. L. Munson and A. Goldsmith the Tax Collectors respectively of the following named counties: Santa Clara, Alameda, San Joaquin, Sacramento, Placer (First and second districts) and Nevada—for technical purposes of the suit so far as the Company is concerned and as affects the Tax Collectors, to restrain them from collecting taxes upon the assessments made on the Central Pacific Railroad in these six counties named. The attorneys for complainants are McCullough & Byrd; and the notice to defendants states that a motion will be made before Judge Sawyer for an order of injunction in the above entitled cause. The bill filed occupies seven large, closely printed pages. Section 1 of the complaint states that C. P. Huntington is the owner of 4,510 shares in the Central Pacific Company: that Charles Stanford is owner of 2,000 shares; that H. H. Hollister owns 600 shares, all of which are "of the value of more than $50,000."

Foreign Items.

Spain is considering a proposition to send ministers to Chile, Peru and other South American Republics.

The Japanese Embassadors lose $60,000 by the failure of Bowles Brothers of Paris. The only available assets are from Nathan Appleton's estate. The Bowles set seem to have been naked swindlers.

Thirty to forty miners were killed by an explosion in Staffordshire, England, February 18.

A Little Error Somewhere.

A Washington special says that Mrs. Wood, daughter of Gen. Taylor, who was recently voted by the House a pension of $50 per month, is the mother of John Taylor Wood, who commanded the rebel cruiser Talahassee and who is now a well-to-do commission merchant at Halifax. It is also said that Mrs. Wood was a bitter secessionist during the war and moreover that she has been living in Paris some time in magnificent style.

Kern County.

The vote in this county on the removal of the county seat, shows a majority of seven for Bakersfield. The Supervisors, however, turned out three precincts for informality, which gives Havilah three majority. The courts will have to decide the case.

Corralled Them.

The Los Angeles Star of February 26 says that, two days previously, Constable Hare arrested a man and a boy from Inyo county, on a charge of horse stealing. These are the same, no doubt, whom Lola was so much interested about a few weeks since.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

His Honor's Charge.

We commend to notice His Honor Judge Hannah's charge to the late Grand Jury, the main points of which are given in another column. It does not appear, however, that the Jury spent as much time in the investigation of these shooting matters as their importance would seem to demand, as nothing is said about them in the report. We presume no witnesses were present, nor these things otherwise formally brought to their notice, or could be without spending several days in waiting. It is extremely irksome to jurors and disastrous to their private interests to be compelled to remain from their homes so long, but at the same time they fall short of their duty if they cut short their investigations in matters of such vital importance to the peace and welfare of the community where it is done merely to save a little time. There may have been and probably were good and sufficient reasons independent of these for the apparent non-action on this point, which of course neither we nor the public have any means of knowing anything about, but it looks like facts of such notoriety as some of the crimes alluded to in his Honor's charge, were worthy of some conclusive action. We do not wish to be understood as finding fault with this jury for anything they did do, for so far as we are able to judge they done their duty well and truly.

The total amount now delinquent and yet uncollected on the whole of the Assessor's returns, which amounted to $36,118, is only $216, and a portion of this small delinquency is collectable. This shows a closer collection and a smaller per centage of delinquency than any other county in the State.

A Stiff Breeze.

From these two circumstances we infer that it blew a pretty stiff gale a week ago last Sunday: Two gentlemen were riding along that morning between Round Valley and Bishop Creek, when the "breeze" struck them full on the quarter, as a sage brush sailor would say, and before they could heave to or haul in a stich of canvass, horses and riders were fairly lifted and carried fully one hundred yards off the road! They (the riders, if not the horses) were so astounded at results that they didn't even try to do the subject justice by swearing until some hours afterward. The same morning Denton's house, some six miles above the Post, was lifted from its foundations and, with contents, blankets, kettles, pans and two men, was scattered promiscuously over the plains.

The Election.

Pursuant to notice an election was held in this School District on Saturday last, for the purpose of voting for or against a special tax for school purposes. There were but 24 votes cast, but every one of them were in favor of the tax, which shows that our best citizens and heaviest property holders take a very clear and proper view of the educational question. Mr. J. B. White was the candidate for Assessor and Collector, for which position he received every vote save one—his own. The thanks of this community are due the following named gentlemen, who composed the Election Board, as each and all of them volunteered their services for a day, free of charge: Frank Werner, T. A. Gardner, J. Schalten, Geo. H. Hardy and Judge Van Decar.

A Serenade.

A great many virtuous people in this burg were awakened from their innocent slumbers about the dead hour of 1 o'clock yesterday morning to listen to an A. 1. No. 000 serenade, instrumental and vocal. It occurred about the time the northern stage arrived and if B. L. is not since deceased it will be well enough to give him some of the thanks for this treat. It was lugubrious, being keyed mostly on Z flat.

Accident.

Henry Schwartz the other day, while essaying to jump from the seat of his wagon while in motion, got his feet entangled in the lines, which were tied to the brake, causing him to fall under the front wheel, which passed over both feet, injuring them severely, though no bones were broken, we believe. He was taken to the Post Hospital, where Dr. White will soon set him on his pins again.

County Court—March Term.

J. A. Hannah, Judge.

Court met in regular term March 3, 1873.

Following are the names of the Grand Jurors as sworn in:

L. Van Reed, W. J. Covington, E. Chaquette, Jas. H. Cook, Thomas Kehoe, Terence McKeown, Fred. Schabbell, Julius Roper, Richard Hessian, Hugh Mann, B. H. Roberts, Henry Giles, E. P. Baker, Geo. Hoover, Jacob Gunter, J. G. Birchim, G. W. Reynolds and D. H. Williams, Foreman.

The Jury were charged by the Court as follows:

Gentlemen of the Grand Jury—I desire to call your attention to various provisions of law touching your duties as Grand Jurors, and incidentally I will mention the fact that the laws of our State require me so to do.

I would remark that since the adjournment of the last Grand Jury of this county, crime has been exceedingly prevalent, and seems to have run rampant in certain portions of the county, especially at Cerro Gordo, where human life has recently been sacrificed, and the lives of innocent and law-abiding citizens jeopardized by the acts of lawless characters and the reckless and unjustifiable use of deadly weapons; and so far as I am informed the guilty parties have never been brought to the bar of justice to answer for their misdeeds, and are still at large.

And now, gentlemen, I wish to impress upon your minds the necessity of the strict enforcement of the law against the parties engaged in those murderous affrays which have recently occurred in the place above referred to. It is your duty under the law, and the interests and well-being of the community imperatively demand that you exhaust, if necessary, every means known to the law to protect the peaceful citizen from these lawless ruffians, who with murder in their hearts and the implements of death strapped upon their persons, congregate in the public places, ever ready to discharge their death-dealing weapons upon the unoffending and unarmed citizens. Men who thus set at defiance our laws and exhibit such an utter and wanton disregard for human life, must be made to know that such crimes can not be committed with impunity, and will not be allowed to go unpunished; and in this matter I charge you to give it your especial attention, in order that the offending parties may have meted out to them that punishment which the law attaches to such outrageous crimes.

I wish to call your attention to the present condition of the public highways in this county, that you may take such steps in reference thereto as will prevent parties from flooding them with water, and thereby rendering them in many places almost impassible; and further that you examine the accounts of the various officers of this county having in charge the collection and disbursements of monies belonging to the road funds of the county. I mention this fact to you for the reason that the monies annually collected for this purpose amount in the aggregate to a large sum, while from an examination of the highways of the county it is hardly possible to discover how and where the monies so collected have been expended. This branch of the business of the county seems to have been heretofore sadly neglected, and it is now high time that some interest in this matter be manifested.

You must inquire into all public offenses committed or triable within the county, and present them to this Court, either by presentment or indictment.

A presentment is an informal statement in writing by the Grand Jury, representing to the Court that a public offense has been committed which is triable in this county, and that there is reasonable ground for believing that a particular individual named or described therein has committed it.

An indictment is an accusation in writing presented by the Grand Jury to a competent Court, charging a person with a public offense.

In the investigation of charges which may be brought before you, you will receive none but legal evidence, and the best in degree, to the exclusion of hear say or secondary evidence; and you will receive no other evidence than such as is given by witnesses produced and sworn before you, or furnished by legal documentary evidence, or the depositions of a witness who has been preliminarily examined before a committing magistrate, and the testimony taken down by question and answer in the presence of the defendant who has either in person or by counsel cross examined, or had an opportunity to examine, the witness.

You are not bound to hear evidence for the defendant, but it is your duty to weigh all the evidence submitted to you, and when you have reason to believe that other evidence within your reach will explain away the charge, you should order such evidence to be produced, and for that purpose may require the District Attorney to issue process for the witnesses.

You ought to find an indictment when all the evidence before you taken together, if unexplained, or uncontradicted, would in your judgment warrant a conviction by a trial jury.

If any member of your honorable body knows, or has reason to believe, that a public offense, triable within this county, he must declare the same to his fellow jurors, who must thereupon investigate the same.

You must inquire into the case of every person imprisoned in the jail of the county on a criminal charge, and not indicted; into the condition and management of the public jail within the county; and into the wilful and corrupt misconduct in office of public officers of every description within the county. * *

The Grand Jury refused to find bills as follows:

Against Frank Russell, under commitment for passing a forged check; against J. R. Turner, held under bonds for drawing a deadly weapon. By order of the Court Russell was discharged from custody, and Turner's bondsmen released.

Frederick Alberes, on testimony of Joseph Schalten and Henry Firmin, was admitted to citizenship.

On Thursday, March 6, the Grand Jury, having completed their labors, were discharged. Following is their report:

To the Honorable, the County Court of the County of Inyo, State of California—We, the Grand Jury for said county, respectfully report that we have discharged all of the duties assigned to us. We have ignored two cases; we have found two bills of indictment; we have examined the books of the Sheriff and Tax Collector, and find that there has been collected from the various sources of revenue and paid to the Treasurer the sum of forty thousand, three hundred and sixty dollars and eighty-five cents during the past year. We find the new Court House in course of completion. That the Big Pine bridge is impassable, and call the attention of the Hon. Board of Supervisors to the fact that the said bridge is not yet in a condition to accommodate the public.

D. H. Williams,
Foreman of Grand Jury.

The Big Pine Bridge.

The Grand Jury reports the Big Pine Bridge "impassable" and not in a condition to accommodate the travel. The report is correct so far as it goes, but only goes far enough to convey or leave a wrong inference as to where the fault rests. The bridge itself, as well as the approaches so far as they extend, are not only passable but are fully up to or materially better than the contract required. The Board of Supervisors thought that after a bridge and approaches 250 feet in length was built it would be cheaper and better to finish the latter by earth fillings, and which might and ought to be done by that road district. The contract was let and finished accordingly, but the approaches do not extend to the high ground nor has the filling in been done, except a small amount at each end, by the contractors, so that to get upon the bridge at either end a very abrupt raise of from four to six feet has to be made. That is about the sum of this trouble, as we understand it, and supposing it to be all, it certainly would not be a very serious undertaking for the people of that district to go to work and remedy it, otherwise, if the county has it to do two or three months must elapse before anything can be done towards it.

For Perjury.

It seems the Grand Jury were much inclined to the opinion that Justice Peter Peerson had drawn a very long bow in his complaint filed in his big damage suit. By citation from the County Court, served by Under Sheriff Moore, he was required to come up and explain how it was. Unfortunately for Justice Peerson he was laboring under an attack of the molligrubs at the moment that paper was served upon him, and informed the Under Sheriff that he did not recognize any jurisdiction of this Court in the premises, and "consequently, would not appear." However, the Jury got along very well without him; finding an indictment for perjury against him, and upon which a warrant was issued and served by Sheriff Mulkey, who is a very good man for prescribing or administering remedies in complaints of this type. He thought a few days of quiet reflection in the Sheriff's hotel here would be benificial in this case, and accordingly Justice Peerson came along and went into the prescribed retirement, but to what effect as regards the molligrubs, will not be known before Monday next, when the pleadings will be heard.

In Cash.

We learn that Hon. Theron Reed, Judge of the District Court, has made an order to the effect that hereafter the salary of the District Attorney, and we believe that of the County Judge, is to be paid monthly in cash, whenever the requisite amount is on hand in the general fund. The other salaried county officials will doubtless make the same demand. The result will be that the said general fund will become and remain greatly attenuated, and during the warm summer months preceding the annual tax gathering will require very careful nursing and strong diet if it don't decease entirely.

The Borax Hunters.

Messrs. Westerville, Moflat and Connelly, who have been down about Indian Wells on the look out for borax, have returned; and they report that in the Slate Range, some 40 miles south-easterly from the Wells, they discovered borate of soda in considerable quantities. The value of their find is yet to be determined. On the trip their horses were taken with the prevailing disorder, which forced them to cut short their explorations.

Garden Seeds.

J. B. Rowley is in receipt of a variety of garden seeds, and now is a good time to see him about them, particularly the ladies, who generally have to see after the garden themselves. Owing to the infrequency and irregularity of the mails our worthy P. M. has plenty of time to exhibit his goods, which will demonstrate their own virtues.

Attention!

We invite attention to J. B. Rowley's new advertisement. He is spreading himself in the way of trying to keep his store well stocked with a good supply of groceries, books, stationery, fruits, goodies of all sorts, and an abundance of etceteras, all or any of which he will sell cheap enough to suit anybody, barring growlers, we will say by way of a saving clause.

Matters About Fish Springs.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

Fish Springs, Feb. 27, 1873.

Messrs. Editors. In regard to this locality there is so little of public interest going on that it may seem hardly worth a letter, but here goes for what there is.

Mr. J. W. McMurry has sold his interest in the Fish Spring, or "McMurry" mines, to John Bell, his former partner, for the consideration of 20 tons of ore out of the said mines and $800 cash. The rock at present is looking well, and is supposed to pay $50 to $60 per ton. This is from a new ledge that they have struck lately, and which is from ten to fifteen inches in thickness. The rock is soft and easy to work in the arastras. The mine is two miles distant (northwest) from the arastra, and, at present, employs six men.

Though Mr. McMurry has removed to Big Pine the store formerly kept by him will be continued by Messrs. Bonds & Crough, who also keep a first class country hotel.

There was quite an excitement at the mine last Sunday. A man that was cooking for Mr. Bell was discharged and paid off at the store. After he (the cook) had spent all his money he concluded to go back to the mine and get his blankets; there being no one there on his arrival he turned to and broke up all the dishes and then started for Independence. Soon after Mr. Bell arrived at the camp and seeing how things stood he went after the aforesaid cook. He soon overtook and walked him back to the camp, where some proposed to grease him, but after they got the lard melted and set out to cool a little, before "doping" him, the camp dog came along and grabbing the dish, grease and all, ran off with it! So Mr. Bell let him go, after fixing a good sized head on him.

There are six horses here affected with the epizooty, but in a mild form. Should this disorder get among the farmers' horses it will be pretty serious, just at this time when the farmers are putting in their crops. The new grass is springing up, and the ground is in splendid condition for plowing.

Don Pablo.

[As the above is from a point but 20 miles distant and only reached us yesterday we infer the epizoo is extensively abroad. However, we hope to hear from Don Pablo frequently.—Eds.]

Seed Potatoes.

Parties desirous of obtaining seed potatoes, the best and most prolific of any yet brought to the valley according to all accounts, will do well to apply soon at Rowley's store, Independence, or at Naylor's, Big Pine, and secure some of the "Peerless" variety advertised by Mr. Glover.

A Good Chance for Business.

Mr. L. Schneider offers for sale the desirable property now occupied in part by him as a butcher shop. This is an excellent chance for any one desiring a good business stand, either as a shop, store or restaurant building. See advertisement.

Register Butler.

We understand Register Butler will honor us with a visit Monday or Tuesday next.

The Peace Commissioners.

The Yreka Journal of February 20 has this in reference to the Peace Commissioners:

A. B. Meacham, who will undoubtedly be the chief man on the Peace Commission, arrived in this town direct from Washington last Sunday evening, and left early Monday morning to meet Gen. Canby, Jesse Applegate and Case, who are now at Dorris' place waiting for him. In a conversation with him, we learn that when a Cabinet meeting first proposed a Peace Commission, he kept away, not wishing to be one of it, which we suppose accounts for the dispatch sent to L. M. Foulke in reference to organizing a Peace Commission of Californians. At a second meeting, and by request of Secretary Delano, Meacham accepted the position with Jesse Applegate and S. Case to join him. He laid the whole blame of the Modocs leaving the reservation to being unfairly dealt with by Capt. O. C. Knapp, who had charge of the reservation in 1869-70, the Modocs having gone there in 1869 and leaving in 1870. In the first place the Klamaths, who always fought the Modocs in olden times, still persecuted them on the reservation, and bothered them in various ways, so far as to take even a string of fish from a Modoc when they caught any. The Modocs made complaint, but got no satisfaction further than an abusive answer for coming to Knapp with complaints. In the next place, they did not receive what the Government allowed them. Meacham said he did not blame the Modocs for leaving the reservation, and that if he was a Modoc he would have fought to the last before he would stay there, and believes now they cannot be induced to go to Yainox Reservation. The Modocs evidently dread the jeers and persecutions of the Klamaths at Yainox, and would probably rather die than go there. We remarked that had a sufficient force been sent, the Modocs could have been put on the reservation, and murder of settlers prevented. Meacham replied that no force could have taken them there, but they might have killed them. Meacham was formerly Superintendent of Indian Affairs in Oregon, and had a great deal to do with the Yainox Reservation, and says he had no trouble with the Modocs. He is also confident of making a treaty with them if Capt. Jack has the authority. He thinks it unfortunate if Scarfaced Charlie rules and dictates, as it is reported, he being a very excitable and bad customer to deal with.

Horrible Accident.

We have to chronicle one of the most distressing occurrences that ever fell to our lot to record. This morning about half-past 1 o'clock, Mrs. Amelia McKay, wife af the engineer of the Gould & Curry hoisting works, while on a visit to her husband at the works, had her dress caught in the machinery, and was most shockingly bruised and torn almost to pieces. From the right hip to the knee the flesh was entirely stripped to the bone, the right shoulder was badly shattered, and the bones broken. She existed only twenty minutes after the disaster, when death relieved her from further suffering. She was only 15 years of age when thus suddenly called into another and we trust happier state of existence.—Virginia Chronicle, Feb. 27.

VARIETIES.

—A retired clergyman sends The Danbury News an account of a little affair that happened in his place. It appears that there was a young woman, a fine spirited girl, engaged at a wash tub, opposite an open door. Just behind her was a young man, as is generally the case, and in the yard an old buck, allowed the freedom of the premises, which is not always the case, we are glad to say. Well, this buck came up to the door and looked in, and the young man going close behind the young woman, pointed his finger straight at the buck, and the old fellow, recognizing at once the pressing character of this mute invitation, put down his head and dashed forward, and the miserable man stepped one side and fled, and the young woman, all unconscious of the arrangements, received the awful shock without warning and passed over the tub, and the air for an instant appeared to be full of slippers and wet clothes and hot water and suds. And the next minute that goat came flying out of the door at a dreadful speed, bald the whole length of his spine, and a wild look in his eye. And for an hour afterward he stood behind the barn, scratching his chin, and trying to recall all the circumstances in the unfortunate affair.

—Since Napoleon's death, country physicians are going crazy over the cases of embolism developed throughout the land. Last week, in Ohio, a young lady died from what a round-headed old doctor said was "heart klot or embryoism of the main flue of the hart," but she revived in an hour, and it was found had been temporarily choked by a chew of gum which she had swallowed —Decidedly the most cheerful institution we have heard of is a suicide club. The members meet once a year with feast and brimming cups and jovial song, but to the fortunate member who draws the poisoned almond from the cake, at dessert, this convivial scene is the last of earth. He eats it and dies. This is in Paris, of course.

The editor of The Des Moines Republican told his wife that he thought the cat didn't steal the sugar. The servant girl, whose mother lives near by, overheard this significant remark and vowed revenge. The next time the quill driver had occasion to don a clean shirt he found it starched all down the back.

—An Albia (Iowa) girl, who leans toward the Sorosis, found a nice pair of pants in her stockings on Christmas morning. Upon which we have only to remark that a limb demanding a stocking of that dimension is honestly entitled to the trowsers.

—A match-making machine in Philadelphia has been invented that will make a thousand matches a minute, but even with these advantages, the Chicago divorce mill will continue to grind as usual.

—The troubles of Tennessee doctors are greater than they can bear. If a patient recovers, he never pays his doctor's bill, and if he dies his relatives kill the doctor.

—That was an unhappy editor who wrote that "white pique costumes are now popular," and was gravely informed by the proof next morning that "white pine coffins are not popular."

White Pine Items.

We are gratified to learn from the most reliable sources that the mining interests on Treasure Hill are commencing to show renewed life. The Aurora and Eberhardt company are constantly adding to their force of men; the tramway of the company is constantly at work, and the mill in operation. Besides this company other valuable properties are being put in shape to work. The merchants are doing better than for weeks past, and money is more plentiful. Our informant states that the mines, particularly the Ward Beecher, are daily improving in appearance. There is a feeling of confidence in our future in which we share, and when travel opens the old days of '70 will be again be witnessed.

During the coming Summer much activity will prevail among the owners of base metal mines in this district. We hear of a company to be formed, if not formed already, who propose to erect furnaces and commence operations on a large scale. Success to them, we say; and failure is impossible if advantage be taken of the experience gained in our neighboring town of Eureka.—White Pine News, Feb. 15.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Old California.

The following is from the lecture of Amos Bowman, of the Geological Survey, published in The Pacific Rural Press. The pliocene sea once occupied the region now known as the Sacramento Valley, and extended from near Shasta on the north to the extreme southern limit of the Tulare valley on the south:

Standing upon the top of some jutting rock, about midway up the slope of the Sierra Nevada, and looking westward, before you lies this vast departed sea of the period of the ancient rivers, embraced in one grand sweep of vision, extending some two hundred miles in length, and covering some 30,000 miles of area, with a depth of over a thousand feet below the present bed of the Sacramento river, as it is shown by the Stockton artesian well which yielded golden sands near its bottom. The Marysville Buttes were then a fiery island, like Stromboli, of the Meditterranean. Farther to the north was Mount Shasta, built up to a hight of 11,000 feet by its erupting lavas. Still farther north was Mounts Hood and Baker--twin brothers of Shasta--presenting their lofty summits, belching forth fire and smoke. Directly in front of the observer were Mounts Diablo and Tamalpais, between which were the straits which connected this gulf with the ocean. In the rear and not far distant might have been seen a long line of volcanoes flaming up from far into Oregon, and following the present summit of the Sierras as far south as Silver Mountain, Mono and beyond. This ancient sea was separated from the ocean by a range of low hills or islands, along what is now known as the Coast Range. The waters stood on the flanks of the Sierra Nevada at an altitude some 600 feet above the present base of the foothills--near the level of where is now Shasta City; above Horse Town; not far from Oroville and Timbuctoo; somewhere between Pino Auburn; above Knight's Ferry, and not far below the base of the Tuolumne and Calaveras Table Mountain. The shores of this ancient pliocene sea, the adjacent islands and the gentle slopes of the Sierras (not then as high as they now are), were clothed with forests, differing materially from those now in that locality, and embracing countless numbers of palms. Huge turtles wallowed in the shallow bays, and strange antediluvian animals --huge elephants, twice as large as any now existing, oxen of proportionate size, and mastodons, tapirs, and camels roamed through the forest. Horses were then natives of this continent, and primeval man, differing materially from any present races, was then existing, and with the animals joint possessor of the soil, and a witness of the great physical phenomena to be described. He alone, however, of the animals named was enabled to survive the convulsions of nature and changes of climate; and this he did by his well known independence of geographical range and condition, and his superior capacity for guarding against the vicissitudes of time and change. At this time these famous rivers, the gavel filled beds of which are now affording such abundant harvests of mines, were pouring their waters into the pliocene sea. Such was the physical and topograpical condition of things in this portion of the world in the pliocene era--a hundred thousand years ago, more or less. But as change is Nature's law, this state of things could not exist forever.

The Outlook.

Los Angeles promises to outdo herself this season. The prospect for a very bountiful yield was never greater than now. Our prolific lands, grateful for the timely rains and propitious winds, will bear most abundantly. The alfileria and other grasses cover the county with an emerald mantle, the cereals are all in good condition, the rose bushes bud beautifully, fruit and nut trees will be heavily laden, and the live stock are enjoying a feast upon the verdant hills. A season of prosperity is in store.—Los Angeles Express.

Home Influence.

[From The Dial.]

It may be that the problem of the day—"What shall we do with our boys?"—has been solved in so many ways that the question is as confusing now as it has ever been. We do not wish to enlarge upon a theme that has been worn threadbare; but we will venture one suggestion that seems to us not unworthy of some consideration.

We say, make home attractive for your sons and they will not leave it for the poorer consolation of the streets How many of you are making home attractive? And how are you accomplishing that end?

We know of some worthy parents who return from business wearied, dispirited and impatient. They bring into their homes an atmosphere of discord that is immediately felt by every member of the family. They are silent at the table, and withhold that sympathy which is the nourishment of domestic love. The wife feels this, and is chilled by the indifference or actual antagonism of the husband; and there is no possible harmony in that home so long as these conditions exist.

The son who asks sympathy and encouragement, who lives upon and whose nature must have it, is driven to the companionship of other boys, who are at least fraternal, if nothing better. There is a cry for reformation in that household. Let the father put aside business cares and troubles when he crosses the sacred threshold of his home. If he enters into his home circle with this spirit, he will find consolation and support in the midst of it.

Let there be cheerful and instructive conversation. There are multitudes of social games that will relieve the monotony of the long evenings. Why not invite the young friends of your son to visit him at home, where all the workings of that youthful mind may find rapid and full development under your very eyes. You will find as much entertainment in the society of your son as you could hope to find anywhere; and the effect upon him will show itself almost immediately.

Prove this problem at once, and thank heaven that you discovered in season one of the greatest sins of our social economy—namely, the lack of healthy, hearty and holy home influence.

The Louisiana Legislator's Idea of Law.

As the Black Templars in the Momus procession rode down Canal street on New Year's Eve, a squad of ebony lawmakers, standing on the corner, held high speculations on the subject:

"Tell you, sah, dem's Kukluxs, sure!"

"Oh, you git out wid such foolishness, dat's a lawful 'sembly. If twant Judge Doorell ud come on 'em mighty quick wid a provision of seezur, an' up dey goes."

"May be so, but when I see Jim Idgram, thar's bound to be a committee ob inquiration. Kase you see, gwing 'bout dis yere way wid dere faces kivered up ain't right no how; it's got to be stopped. Some ob dese nites dem white trash come an' pull yer outer yer bed, an' dey make yer see h—l. Den dar's no satisfaction ain't possible; kase you can't tell on 'em—who dey is."

"Can't tell on 'em? Why you is a fool; you can swear an' affidamit at de custom-house, and bust up anybody's house wid it."

Struck with the importance of this view of custom-house law and affidavits, the writer hereof hastens to warn the public.—New Orleans Picayune.

One Better.

An old joker, who was never known to yield the palm to any antagonist in telling a knotty yarn, was put to his trumps on hearing a knotty traveler state that he once saw a brick house placed upon runners and drawn up a hill to a more favorable location somehalf a mile distant. "What do you think of that, Uncle Ethiel?" said the bystanders. "Oh, fudge?" said the old man; "I once saw a two-story stone house, down East, drawn by oxen three miles!" A dead silence ensued; the old man evidently had the worst end of it, and he saw it. Gathering all his energies, he bit off a huge piece of pig-tail, by way of gaining time for a thought. "They drawed the stone house," said the old man, ejecting a quantity of tobacco juice toward the fire place, "but that wasn't the worst of the job, for after they had done that they went back and drawed the cellar!" The stranger gave in.

--Oscillation has a wonderful effect upon even powerful bodies if not frequently broken in the vibration. We have frequently seen notices placed at the ends of large suspension bridges, that processions must break step in crossing; this has to be done to insure safety. It is stated in illustration of the phenomena in question, that when the first suspension bridge was building in England, a fiddler offered to fiddle it away. Striking one note after another, he eventually hit its vibrating note, or fundamental tone, and threw it into such extraordinary vibrations that the bridge-builders had to beg him to desist. Only recently a bridge went down under infantry in France who had not broken step, and three hundred persons were drowned. The experiment is well known of a tumbler or small glass vessel being broken by the frequent repetition of some particular note of the human voice.

—Baked-bean festivals are making nights sleepless down in Maine.

Giraffe's Affection.

The giraffe in Mr. Barnum's menagerie shows wonderful affection for its keeper. It will allow no other to handle it; and grows nervous and uneasy whenever the young man is away from its side. The keeper even has to sleep in the cage with the giraffe. It is a handsome cage; and in one end of it the young man has his bunk. When the giraffe is lying down its head nestles close to the face of its keeper, and thus the two slumber lovingly side by side. The young man has had charge of the animal only since it landed in this country—a short time ago. It is a male, three years old; and as the female which started with it was lost on the voyage across the Atlantic, the affection once reserved for the dead mate seems to have been transferred to the man who first received and caressed it on the vessel's arrival at New York. The giraffe must naturally be of an affectionate disposition, or it would scarcely have become so fond of a human being in so short a time after leaving its native wilds.—Turf, Field and Farm.

—The watering troughs in San Francisco were recently covered with a thin coating of ice, and the next day the leading papers contained long sensational articles on the horrors of Winter.

INDEPENDENCE, CAL.:

Saturday.....March 15, 1873.

The New Congress.

The Forty-third Congress dates officially from March 4. The Representatives from California are Clayton, Page and Houghton, Republicans, and Luttrell, Democrat. Hon. A. A. Sargent, who completed his third term in the lower house with the outgoing of the Forty-second Congress, became a Senator upon the date mentioned, succeeding Cornelius Cole. He will have for a colleague Eugene Casserly until March 4, 1875, unless, at this late day, the Senate shall inquire into the alleged bribery by which his election was effected. The Senators who hold or claim seats in the Forty-third Congress against whose right charges of bribery or other improper practice have been publicly preferred are Casserly of California, Cameron of Pennsylvania, Caldwell and Ingalls of Kansas, Jones of Nevada, Spencer of Alabama, Patterson of South Carolina, and Pinchbeck of Louisiana. Eastern papers have intimated that investigations will be ordered in a majority of these cases.

Compulsory Education.

The Nevada Legislature has passed a law compelling parents, guardians and other persons having control of children between the ages of eight and fourteen years to send them to school at least three months in each year, under penalty for non-compliance of $50 to $500 fine. Proper exceptions are made, so that none are compelled to attend school under this law except such as are able, mentally, bodily, etc. Exceptions are also made of those living over two miles distant from a public school, of all who attend private schools, or who are too far advanced in their studies to come within the requirements laid down. It is a good law.

March Fourth.

"Pursuant to notice" on this day the Forty-second Congress adjourned sine die and President Grant was inaugurated for his second term. The day was bitterly cold, so much so, indeed, as to force the military to return to their armories as soon as possible to prevent freezing. The ceremonies were witnessed by an immense concourse, military and civic and altogether was the grandest affair of the kind Washington has yet seen. The President read a short, direct, but comprehensive address defining his views of public policy. His addess is highly commended by the press.

New Mail Routes.

Included in the long list of new post routes established during the closing days of the last session of Congress, we find the following relating to this portion of the public domain:

California—From Bakersfield to Tehechepi; from Bishop Creek to Round Valley; from Benton via. Columbus to Wadsworth, Nevada; from Lida Valley via. Palmetto and Fish Lake to Columbus, Nevada; from Bodie to Aurora, Nevada.

Nevada—From Wadsworth to Greenfield; from Hamilton to Troy; from Columbus to Troy; from Columbus to Alida.

French Electors

The French National Assembly deputed to a committee a short time ago the task of framing a new electoral law. This committee has adopted the principle of fixing 25 years for the minimum age of electors and 30 for the minimum age of deputies—but no elector can vote unless he can prove a three years' domicile.

More Investigation.

The Philadelphia Press, in a recent editorial article, states that the Senate will investigate the election of several gentlemen claiming seats in that body—among them, those of John P. Jones of Nevada, J. J. Ingalls of Kansas, and Patterson of South Carolina.

Undoubtedly.

The Boston Transcript, discussing corruption in offices, suggests that the remedy for this evil is intelligence in low places. A truer remark never was made. Education of the masses is the best cure for political and most of the social evils.

His Adieu.

At the adjournment of the Forty-second Congress, Vice President Colfax, on retiring from the chair in the Senate, made a very graceful speech and was succeeded by the Vice President elect, who was both sensible and brief.

We want to know!

THE EDUCATIONAL INTEREST.

The day is not far distant when the State of California will rank among the very first in the Union in regard to the relative number and general excellency of her schools. Her legislators, to their credit be it said, have ever recognized the importance and need of aiding the cause of education by all the means available. By liberal endowments of lands and by taxation, a system of public schools has been established which places it in the power of every child in the State to obtain a fair education at a mere nominal cost. Not content with providing the means for what may be called a common education, the State also tenders, through her University, the highest degrees of scholarship to all willing to devote their time towards their attainment.

Besides the public school system, our State can begin to take pride in the number and rank of her institutions of learning of a private nature. There are but few counties in the State that can not boast of one or more of these institutions, ranking from a high school or academy to a college, and so far as the public may judge, all are flourishing. But among the very few exceptional counties our own is numbered, and for some years to come is likely to be, unless we, as a people, take some decided steps in the matter. There is no question but that Inyo county needs an intermediate or high school, now and at once. The public schools, which are all we have, though perhaps as good as those of any other county, do not supply our needs. At the present time there are twelve or fifteen children of both sexes attending the high schools in distant localities, and in two or three years hence this number must be more than quadrupled. The cost of maintaining pupils at any of these distant schools can not be less than $500 each per annum, and in some instances more. Probably it does not require that sum sum for board and tuition alone, for these items form but a small portion of the total expense. The cost of travel is to be considered; it is not only the traveling expenses of the pupil, occurring at the beginning and ending of the course and in coming and going during vacations, but also those of parents and guardians who feel it a duty to make frequent or occasional visits to their charges. These expenses, first and last, amount to $6,000 or $7,000, in the aggregate, each year, and though borne by a few as individual costs, yet it is a public tax. It is a public tax and a dead loss, since it is the virtual sinking or withdrawing of that much of our working capital, already sufficiently limited by other and similar drafts. This money, or at least the greater portion of it, can all be kept at home, and to that extent be made to redound to the public benefit, and at the same time diminish the outlay of those who are now forced to bear it or deprive their children of desired advantages.

We ought to have a high or an intermediate school of our own—one capable of fitting pupils for the University, or of imparting a practical, scientific or business education. These things can be done here on this side of the Sierra Nevadas just as well as upon the other, and, directly and indirectly, much cheaper. We believe that such a school can be established and put in good working order for a sum not exceeding $10,000, and after the first year can be made self-supporting.

We will, in due course, give our reasons for this belief, and also our views as to how the desired object may be attained, etc; but, whether our ideas are practical or otherwise, this is a subject worthy the attention not only of those who have children to educate but of all who wish to promote the educational and business interests of the county. We believe this to be the embodiment of a scheme which is perfectly feasible, and one that will do more towards the general benefit than anything else within our reach, as a people.

Aurora.

By act of the Nevada Legislature the county seat of Esmeralda county is to be removed from Aurora; but to what place, when or how, we have been unable to ascertain from the Nevada papers It is perhaps left to a vote of the people, or is possibly contingent upon the event that the new boundary line throws Aurora within this State, when Mason's Valley and Columbus will become the contestants for county seat honors.

Found Guilty.

John Devine, "the Chicken," has been found guilty of murder in the first degree, the jury being out but forty minutes. Judge Tyler, his counsel, is going to move for a new trial. If the rope breaks (taking care to provide a good strong one), this second new trial ought to be granted; otherwise not, if half the stories told about this hardened wretch are true.

THE LAVA BED SITUATION.

Things are somewhat mixed up there in the lava bed. An honorable peace had apparently been satisfactorily concluded, Capt. Jack agreeing to accept lands, grub, etc., at some point in the southern part of this State, for himself and all his tribe, when, without any obvious cause, a change came over the spirit of his dream, and now he is clearing his decks for action. In other words, the Modocs will agree to terms of peace if they are allowed lands in the vicinity of their present location, but in this State. They like the Californians well enough and think they can live with them always, but the "Webfeet" are no good, and they don't want anything to do with them. Judge Steele, Riddle and Otwell were deputized to visit Capt. Jack at his residence. They passed the night in the lava bed in mortal fear of their lives, from the treacherous movements of many of the braves during this, the second interview. Scar-faced Charley and Capt. Jack slept at the feet of their visitors, to prevent treachery. The Commissioners will try to effect another interview, and offer protection to all the Indians who choose to come out, if terms for the whole tribe can not be arranged. In the latter very probable event, Gen. Canby will "let loose the dogs of war," and ere this thing ends there will be but mighty few Modocs left to tell their tales of war.

Opium Smoking.

A recent French medical journal contains an interesting paper on opium smoking. The habit so prevalent in China has been introduced in France, and it is stated that a club of young men has been formed in Paris for the purpose of indulging in this dangerous practice. The habit subjects the beginner to serious inconvenience, such as nausea, vomiting, giddiness and violent headache. The opium for the pipe is prepared according to secret formulas and acquires a semi-fluid consistency resembling a dense oil, possesses a sweet taste, and has the appearance of the extract of juniper. The dose for a day's smoking in the beginning, amounts to 150 grains. The effects of this drug are to excite in the smoker first loquacity and next stupid joy, ending in a profound slumber, lasting several hours, during which the pulse falls very low. The opium smoker becomes indolent, loses the inclination for work, and at last ends as a confirmed idiot. In the latter condition the opium smoker has no appetite for food, becomes very lean, and his complexion assumes a peculiar hue.

The "Resources of California."

The publication bearing the above title is hereafter to be published monthly. It is the very best paper in its particular field in the State. Its title gives a fair idea of its objects. All classes of our citizens, whose interests are identified with the State, can, and should assist its development, and help to build up their own business by the circulation of "The Resources of California," as every number contains more information of the kind required by strangers than can be obtained in fifty letters. The February number has a fine representation of the famous Calistoga Springs and a map of the State, together with a great amount of statistica information in tables, and descriptions of many localities, all of great value to inquirers at home or abroad. Send $2 to Wentworth & Co. San Francisco and get a copy of "The Resources" for a year. It will be a good investment for anybody's two dollars.

Spain.

The Carlist disturbances are increasing. Advices from the districts of Catalonia, Alvente and Murcia say that the movement is rapidly spreading. The people are dissatisfied with the Government, and are joining the Carlist ranks. The Government troops at Catalonia have become insubordinate, and it is apprehended that many may desert and join the Carlists. The Spanish Government will shortly ask of the Cortes a credit of four millions pounds sterling, to arm volunteers and enable the Government to continue the war against the Carlists. The prospects for the permanency of the Republic are not bright.

The Eureka (Nev.) Daily Sentinel is to be enlarged, this month, to the size of The Sacramento Union. That speaks well for that mining camp, and we hope may prove a profitable change for our esteemed contemporary.

Pacific Coast News.

A singular disorder—a sort of a spotted plague—has broken out on Deer Creek, Tehama county. A gentleman who arrived in Sacramento a few days since says: Of the thirteen deaths which have occurred from sickness, the majority are children under 17 years of age; that only one person older than that had died of the disease. Medical practitioners say it is bilious pneumonia of a congestive type, the liver, lungs and brain being in a state of congestion; that it is confined strictly to the locality where it first made its appearance, and that there is no danger of its spreading. Residents of that vicinity are becoming less fearful of the disease, not recognizing it now as epidemic.

In Gold Hill, Nevada, March 2, a boy named W. A. Cook thought he could stand against a bulkhead on the side of the track and allow a train of cars to pass without being much discommoded. He hardly lived long enough to realize the error in his calculations of space.

The Pioche Record says that the engine for the narrow gauge road that had been anxiously expected for a number of days, was found stuck in the mud some distance from the railroad terminus, deserted by the teamster who was to deliver the machine on time. Narrow gauge is always uncertain.

The same paper also states that the prospects are that the Denver & Utah Railroad will soon be extended to southeastern Nevada. The Colorado people are pushing the road with great vigor.

Who Dabbled in It.

The New York Tribune thus sums up the matter of those Congressmen and heads of the nation who are charged with dabbling in Credit Mobilier stock:

John A. Bingham of Ohio received the stock and the dividends; was not conscious of having been influenced by it, and was not ashamed of the transaction. The only member who held it and did not try to squirm out of it.

James A. Garfield of Ohio had ten shares; never paid a dollar; received $329, which, after the investigation began, he was anxious to have considered a loan from Mr. Oakes Ames to himself.

Glenni W. Scofield of Pennsylvania had ten shares and received dividends thereon; became dissatisfied and returned it to Ames, receiving back his money and interest.

William D. Kelley of Pennsylvania was very much confused in his memory; thought at first it was a very proper thing for Congressmen to hold, but denied that he had any of it; thought he had borrowed $1,000 of Oakes Ames, which Ames, on the contrary, said he had paid him as dividends from Credit Mobilier. Upon discovering that stock actually stood in his name, changed his mind about the honesty of the transaction, and turned it over to the United States Government.

Henry L. Dawes, of Massachusetts, who wrote a letter during the campaign denouncing the statement that he held Credit Mobilier as a libel, had ten shares, which he paid for and afterward sold back, getting the amount paid and interest at ten per cent.

Secretary Boutwell had it offered him, turned it over wistfully with a stick at arm's length, and decided to keep out.

Henry Wilson, who during the campaign stood by consenting to the statement of Gen. Hawley, which conveyed to the people the impression that he had no knowledge of the speculation, is discovered to have held stock in the name of his wife for awhile, and then, frightened, as he says, at a prospect of a lawsuit, to have returned it to Oakes Ames, getting back, like the others, his investment and interest at ten per cent.

Senator Patterson, of New Hampshire—ah, well! his case is known already. There is nothing to be added.

And Schuyler Colfax——!

Eastern News.

Several parties called on Governor Dix in behalf of Foster. He received their petitions, but declined to make any response to their supplications. In answer to repeated inquiries the Governor replied that he had come to no decision in the matter, and required further time to examine all of the phases of the case; meanwhile preparations are being made for his hanging.

In the House February 28th a resolution was adopted to impeach Delahy, U. S. District Judge for Kansas.

Wilson of Indiana presented a bill in the House directing the United States Attorney-General to begin suits for the United States to recover what has been stolen by the Credit Mobilier. The Union Pacific Company is made the defendant. The bill was adopted by the House under suspension of the rules as an amendment to an appropriation bill.

The House rejected the amendment increasing the salaries of the President and other officers of the Government.

The Committee on Public Buildings reported adversely on the bill appropriating $200,000 for public buildings in Sacramento.

Vice President elect Wilson is censured by the Senate Mobilier Committee, for causing a statement to be published in the papers, on the 15th of last September, not strictly true as to his connection with Mobilier stock transactions.

At Richmond, Virginia, and Charleston, South Carolina, preparations are making to receive President Grant on his proposed southern tour.

The amendment reported by the Committee on Commerce, reducing the appropriation of $250,000 for the completion of the Wilmington breakwater, in California, to $150,000, was adopted by the Senate by a vote of 23 to 21. Casserly made a strong effort to prevent this action, and several votes were taken before the final decision.

It is expected that Commissioner Drummond will decide that the locators of the State swamp lands in the big meadows of California are entitled to three-fourths of the aggregate of the amount claimed. Besides the questions of fact, some legal principles are involved, as in the Mountain Meadow case recently decided by him.

New California Land Office.

[From The Sacramento Record.]

The following letter outlines certain changes in land districts in this State and Nevada. Mr. Sargent has recommended that the changes indicated be made, believing that they will be for the public convenience:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR. GENERAL LAND OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C., February 20, 1873.

HON. A. A. SARGENT, House of Representatives: Sir—Since my personal interview with you respecting the creation of a new land district in the State of California, I have further examined the matter, and have arrived at the conclusion that, under subsisting laws, without further legislation, the desired change can be accomplished.

By the Act of March 3, 1853, (U. S. Stat. 10,244), the President is invested with general powers to change the location of a land office, and by the Act approved June 29, 1871, (Vol. 16, p 71), he is authorized to change the boundaries of land districts.

The matter could under these provisions be accomplished by, 1st, removing the land office from Aurora, Nevada, to Independence, California; and, 2d, by attaching that portion of the Aurora land district lying in Nevada to the Carson City district, and then adding to the so-called Aurora district that portion of the Visalia district lying west of range 32, Mount Diablo meridian. By referring to the Act creating the Aurora district (Sec. 3, June 8, 1868, Vol. 15, p 68), it will be seen that further authority is given for changes like the one proposed.

An application to meet these suggestions will be favorably considered and recommended by me for the reasons: 1st, I am of the opinion that the convenience of settlers will be better subserved; and 2d, that it would obviate much difficulty in the details of the work of this bureau, which arises from having a land district located in two States. Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

WILLIS DRUMMOND,
Commissioner.

Work Ahead.

For several months past the various companies owning mines on the Comstock lode have been making preparations for carying on mining operations on a grander scale than ever before. New and improved machinery of the most powerful description has been introduced into many of the mines, and at the same time numerous hoisting works have sprung up everywhere over mines as yet only partially developed. In a few weeks the work of extracting the precious metals from the earth will be entered upon with renewed vigor, thereby creating an increased demand for labor. The gigantic undertaking inaugurated by the water company of conveying water from the Sierra Nevada across Washoe Valley by means of a huge inverted iron syphon and high up along the side of Mount Davidson, will also give employment to a large number of men, as the work, when resumed, will be prosecuted vigorously, with a view to its completion early in the Fall.—Gold Hill News.

Passed.

The bill postponing the election of Congressmen in this State until 1874 has become a law.

Bloody Times in New Orleans.

A special New Orleans dispatch to The San Francisco Chronicle, dated March 5, has the following in reference to the war of the factions:

At a late hour last night the McEnery State militia took possession of the Fifty-seventh and Algiers Police Precinct. They are under command of Capt. Jewett. His arms consist of various patterns, double-barreled shot guns making up a considerable portion. Capt. Jewett has under his orders men who are making arms. He will maintain his position at all hazards. At the time of the attack only a few men were on duty. A large force of McEnery men have been formed into a police organization for the purpose of seizing the remaining precincts. A strong force of the Metropolitan Police are armed with muskets. Firing has commenced between the McEnery militia and the police at the Jackson square Precinct. LATER—A severe fight has been going on all night between the militia and the police. Everything is in the utmost confusion, and it is impossible to obtain definite particulars. So far, one man has been killed, and a large number wounded.

—The color of the wind was discoverd by the man who found it blew.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

About Water.

There seems to be some trouble on the minds of an individual or two here about water. Judge Gunnison received a sweet-scented "billy-dux" the other day, warning him and J. B. White not to interfere with the water that runs through this town any more if they don't want to "be sent to h—l" instanter; also, threatens to burn them out root and branch, by the God which created the writer, him or her or it. The information is also volunteered that the writer would not give "A pie" for the said said gentlemen's chances of escaping the threatened fate, and adds that the author has six men to back him, her or it (whichever it may be) in the execution of the nice little plans. All we have to say about it is that the whole thing is extremely foolish; people are not apt to be frightened out of their rights by anonymous vulgarities from crazy writers.

Cottonwood.

We received a call from Col. Stevens on Thursday last, who arrived here that morning on his return from the Bay, where he has been on business connected with his Cottonwood fluming operation. He has obtained all necessary machinery for cutting timber for the work, and expects to have it in place and in full operation inside of three months. He was accompanied by Mr. A. V. Brown, Engineer, who will proceed at once to make the necessary surveys, and as soon as the material can be obtained, to construct the flume. The entire work will be pushed forward as fast as circumstances will possibly allow. The Cottonwood flume may be considered an established fact, and a fact portentious of very important results to the general business of the county.

Cerro Gordo.

The large steam pump which Messrs. Belshaw & Beaudry design for their new water works is on the ground, and in a very few weeks will be in place and in full operation. This pump is to force the water up a hight of 700 feet, after which it will be conveyed through some five miles of piping to the furnaces, having a total grade of 1,200 feet. The town and works are now supplied from snow water, but this source will soon be exhausted, when packing on mules or burros will have to be resorted to to keep the furnaces running until the pipes are in operation. It is feared the animals referred to will be incapable of performing the required duty, on account of the zipozoo, which is particularly rough on the burros, the most of which it sends hence.

The Court House.

Work on this building is progressing finely, under the superintendency of Mr. Gerrish. All of the timbers of the frame are in place, including those of the roof and fire wall, and about one half the siding is on. There is no question but Mr. Gerrish is doing full justice to his work in every particular, but if there are any who have any doubts on the subject, now is the time to go and examine for themselves, before the frame is closed in as it soon will be. A flag-staff with its truck 80 feet from the ground is to be placed on the front gable. If no unlooked for delays occur to prevent, the building will be ready for the May term of Court.

Another Enterprise.

In order to further his mining operations, or bullion and ore shipments, Mr. Belshaw has recently purchased in San Francisco some thirty wagons, which, we suppose, are to be usued in a bullion fast freight—a quarto daily—line to the railroad. At least we understood some time ago that he and Mr. Beaudry had in contemplation an enterprise of this character. But these wagons will be needed in hauling ore from Cerro Gordo to the Lake for reduction as soon as the Cottonwood flume is completed.

Personal.

Mr. Beaudry, of Cerro Gordo, has been sojourning in town for a few days trying to recuperate his health, which is considerably shattered by recent over-exertion and exposure. He is, however, rapidly convalescing. Register Butler of the Land Office was here during the beginning of the week, but has returned to Aurora. He has half a notion to make this his place of future operations, and should he do so will be heartily welcomed.

Ball.

By reference to advertisement elsewhere it will be seen that it is proposed to celebrate the anniversary of the natal day of Ireland's patron Saint by a ball at the Inyo House. The parties recently given by the hostess of the Inyo are spoken of in the highest terms by those present, and doubtless the affair of next Monday will be fully up to the standard. Burnish up your store clothes.

Business Change.

Mr. George Stevens has purchased the interest of B. F. Welch in the stove and tin ware business formerly run by the parties named as a firm, and will continue the conduct of the institution. Stevens is deserving of a liberal patronage.

Deputy Assessor.

Assessor Dillon has appointed Mr. J. B. White as one of the two Deputies he is allowed by the Code.

The Stock Law.

To-day the trespass law for this county goes into effect, so look out for your bovines.

County Court—March Term.

J. A. Hannah, Judge.

March 10, 1873.

This being the day set to hear the pleadings of Peter Peerson, under indictment for perjury, the defendant appeared in Court, acting as his own counsel. When asked to plead guilty or not guilty, he declined to do either; moved that the indictment be set aside on the ground that the depositions admitted by the Grand Jury were not indorsed by the deponents.

On motion of District Attorney Van Decar, P. Reddy, P. W. Bennett and R. B. Snelling were admitted as assistant counsel for the prosecution, to which the defendant interposed his objection, on the ground that the law does not require so much assistance to the prosecution.

Motion also objected to by defendant on the ground that his motion of dismissal, being first in order, should first be disposed of.

Objections overruled.

Motion to dismiss was denied, not being sustained by proper proofs.

Defendant excepted to rulings of the Court, and filed a demurrer to the indictment, which he argued at length, followed by Bennett for the prosecution. Demurrer overruled, and exceptions entered by defendant. Thereupon defendant entered a plea of not guilty as charged in the indictment.

Defendant asked for a change of venue, on the ground that his Honor was a witness in the case and an enemy of defendant.

The Court stated that he never intended to try this case, but to bring it before a Judge from some other county. Permission was given to defendant to select any County Judge he desired to try the case.

Accordingly he selected the County Judge of Tulare, who is to come to this county and hear the case.

Prisoner was remanded to the custody of the Sheriff.

Archibald Livingstone and Augustus Walker were admitted to citizenship.

Court adjourned to Monday, March 17th next.

A Tin Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Rhine celebrated their tin wedding on Tuesday evening last. It (the celebration) was done in this wise: Twe or three score of ladies and gentlemen congregated at the Inyo House, armed and equipped with all manner of tin vessels and implements, and starting thence in double file with these things a jingling, and two musicians at the head playing "Haste to the Wedding," they invaded the domicile of the happy pair, who, in proper wedding costume, stood at their parlor door, receiving compliments, tinware and advice from the invaders as they filed past. Soon after came wine and something stronger and cake, each and all of a most superior quality. About this time B. L. Brown presented to the bride a 'baby quieter" that ought to be patented. He stated that if the bride "ever should—(here he made an abortive attempt to blush) ever should have a baby that annoyed people by crying, the annovance from that source would cease instantly if she would set her worser half vigorously to work with this 'quieter,'" and here the truth of this was demonstrated as he swung and rattled an immense tin rattle, filled with gravel stones or something, around his head. People stopped their ears, and it was evident that no baby yet invented could ever annoy anybody by yelling while that thing was kept going. If used about a hotel, however, it would probably cause the most profitable class of the boarders to blubber for their bills, or have that "music stopped." These ceremonies over, the whole party, bride and groom included, adjourned to the Inyo House, where they fell to dancing with as much vigor and enjoyment as though they had just witnessed a real instead of a tin wedding. The occasion was greatly enjoyed by all present, and it could not well have been otherwise when such an able generalissimo as Mrs. P. Reddy takes such matters in hand.

Promoted.

First Sergeant Charles Butler of Co. "B" has been promoted to Sergeant-Major, with orders to report at once for duty at Angel Island, San Francisco Bay. This promotion is well deserved, and the Sergeant will accept the best wishes of his numerous friends in this locality for his early success in obtaining a commission.

Bullion.

At this writing there are not less than 17,000 bars of bullion at the furnaces and Cartago landing, awaiting shipment. Those bullion contractors will have to stir their boots pretty lively soon, or there will be a dearth of circulating medium observable in this section.

A Hint.

About sunrise Wednesday morning last there was quite a perceptible little temblor here—the first that we, individually, have noticed this A. D. 1873. We take it that this is a hint to people not to get too careless concerning 'dobes and sich.

Real Estate Transfer.

P. W. Bennett has purchased from P. Reddy the residence now occupied by Sheriff Mulkey, together with the surrounding grounds. The consideration was $1,000—a very small price for the property, we should think.

Jas. McDougal.

There is a registered letter for the above named party at the Olanche Postoffice. As it will be returned if not called for, this item is made in the interest of the party addressed, whose whereabouts are unknown.

Running.

Hiskey & Walker's new mill at Lida is now in full operation, turning out fair quantities of bullion from the rich ores of that district.

The Homestead Law.

[From The "Resources of California."]

For the benefit of the numerous parties who are now selecting homes in this State, we publish the following condensed statement of the provisions of the United States Homestead Law:

Any person who is the head of a family, or twenty-one years of age, and is a citizen of the United States, or has declared his intention to become a citizen as required by the naturalization laws, is entitled to the benefit of the homestead law.

The right of homestead extends to one hundred and sixty acres of surveyed minimum lands, or eighty acres of double minimum.

A party, to obtain title to a homestead, under the provisions of this law, must, after selecting the tract of land he desires to enter, file at the District Land Office an application to enter upon the land and pay the fees and commission allowed. He must then occupy and cultivate the land for a period of five years. At the expiration of the five years, or within two years thereafter, he must make satisfactory proof at the District Land Office of settlement and cultivation, and pay the final commission.

Filing the application will hold the land for six months, within which time the party must occupy and improve the land. In connection with the application the party must make affidavit, "That said application is made for the purpose of actual settlement and cultivation; that said entry is made for my own exclusive benefit, and not directly or indirectly for the benefit or use of any other person or persons whomsoever; neither have I perfected or abandoned an entry heretofore made under this act."

If the party is actually residing upon the land and for good causes cannot personally appear at the Land Office, this affidavit may be made before the clerk of the court for the county wherein he resides.

The proof of settlement and cultivation required, is the affidavit of the party supported by two credible witnesses.

Upon proof satisfactory to them, and payment of final commission, the land officers will issue a certificate to the party, and make return to the General Land Office. A patent will then issue and the homestead settler becomes owner of the land in fee.

Homesteads are not liable for debts contracted before the issuing of the patent.

A homestead settler forfeits all rights to the land, by absence therefrom for more than six months at one time during the five years, if the fact of such absence is satisfactorily proven to the land officers.

In case of the death of the homestead settler before perfecting his claim, his widow, or, in case of her death, his heirs may continue the settlement and cultivation and, upon making the requisite proof, obtain title. Should both parents die, leaving minor children, the homestead is required to be sold for the benefit of the minor heirs, and the purchaser will receive title from the United States.

The fees and commissions required to be paid are as follows:

No. of Acres.	Price per Acre.	Commission. Payable when entry is made.	Commission. Payable when certificate issues.	Fees. Payable when entry is made.	Total Fees and Commissions.
160	$1 25	$4 00	$4 00	$10 00	$18 00
80	1 25	2 00	2 00	5 00	9 00
40	1 25	1 00	1 00	5 00	7 00
80	2 50	4 00	4 00	10 00	18 00
40	2 50	2 00	2 00	5 00	9 00

And for reducing final proof to writing, fifteen cents per one hundred words.

In California, Nevada, Oregon, Colorado, New Mexico, Washington, Arizona, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming and Montana, the commissions are fifty cents greater. The fees are the same.

[Since the foregoing was in type, we observe that Congress, just previous to adjournment has practically repealed the existing pre-emption laws, and instead we have a uniform Homestead Law, by which the public domain is reserved to the actual settler. We have not the space in this issue to give even a synopsis of the new law, but shall do so next week.—Eds. Independent.]

To Business Men.

All persons desiring to keep posted in commercial affairs, prices current, etc, in San Francisco, should subscribe for The Mercantile Director, a 16-page weekly, especially devoted to commercial affairs; it is published in San Francisco by Murray, Dewey & Co. There is no other commercial paper printed on the Coast, and as we believe this one will be of value to our readers of the above class, we will undertake to have The Director sent to any address in this county for one year on the receipt of 60 cents.

The Narrow Gauge.

Everything goes on swimmingly with the narrow gauge. Stock is being taken liberally in all directions. Messrs. Jacob and Hyde, the two resident Directors are confident, even certain of the success of the enterprise. We consider that it has now passed beyond room for uncertainty or doubt. The stockholders meet in Stockton on the 26th inst. to effect a permanent organization and adopt by laws for its government. Subsequently to this it is stated that work on the road will be begun at once.—Tulare Times.

Dissolved.

Al. Wabelhorst has bought out Col. Putney's interest in the Headquarters saloon, at this place, and proposes to run the concern on his own hook. The Colonel has located himself in Columbus, having gone into business at that point.

South to the Colorado.

[From The Eureka Sentinel, Feb. 27.]

Alternate tracts of mineral and agricultural land will be traversed by a railroad southeasterly from Eureka to the Colorado river. Passing the mines of Secret Canyon and Sierra Districts, and crossing the valley to Quinn Canyon we come to the Tem Piute and Pahranegat mines, in the latter being located already two considerable settlements, Hiko and Logan City. Proceeding a little east of south from these we come to Bullionville and Pioche, in Lincoln county, two well-known mining centers. The next mining districts are Yellow Pine, Clarke, El Dorado Canyon, Timber Mountain, Southeastern, Groom, Highland, Pennsylvania and Chief. Still further south we come to a rich agricultural district, which is the valley of the river Muddy. The route previously traveled intersects several rich tracts, suitable for cultivation, but in Muddy valley we have a country not excelled for agricultural purposes by any other in the world. It lies about one hundred and twenty-five miles from Pioche. It was visited by a pioneer about ten days ago, in search of a farming location, and he found the grass from six to eight inches high. Wheat and barley were up from three to four inches, and preparations were being made to set out vegetables. As many as thirty farmers are already located, and there are thousands of acres still open to pre-emption. The thirty farms located extend down the valley for fifty miles. There is plenty of timber within twenty miles. The Pioche Record says that the valley is the only pass for a railroad to the Colorado river, and is on the direct route to the valuable coal, iron and salt deposits in the extreme southeastern part of the State. Two crops of grain a year can be and have been raised. The climate is Italian in character, and all the semi-tropical fruits can be abundantly produced. It cannot be possible that these magnificent lands will be unclaimed much longer. The mountains north and south of the valley are rich in mineral wealth; and when a railroad shall be built through this magnificent country, a teeming population will spread over every acre of its fertile soil.

Tulare Items.

Gaddle, who was shot by Geo. Hodges, about three weeks since, died suddenly last Monday night; and Mr. Rice is reborted as still in a critical condition. Deceased was supposed to be nearly out of danger until a few hours before his death, when the cavity of the chest becming surcharged with suppuration from the wound, dangerous symptons set in, running a rapid course resulting in death. We understand that Gaddle had no recollection of the affair in which he was shot.

Patrick Fisher, a young man aged about 25 years, died suddenly in Visalia last Monday afternoon, from an over dose of medicine, said to contain strychnine. He was attended by Dr. Russel, who, we understand, ordered one pill at the time before meals. Fisher has been for some time afflicted with partial paralysis, and withal not considered very sound of mind. Instead of taking the pills as ordered he took half a dozen at once and was soon a stiffened corpse.—Visalia Delta, Mar. 6.

A Thick Skull.

A shooting affray occurred on the evening of February 21st at a ball near Kingston. A quarrel arose between J J. Betts and Dudley Boyd, from an old feud between the parties, when Nelson Allen, a brother-in-law of Ketts, interfered to assist Betts, ahd received a ball in the forehead from a deringer in the hands of either Dudley or Charles Boyd. Statements differ as to which fired. Immediately after the shooting the brothers Boyd made their escape and have not yet been captured, though officers from here are close after them. The ball has been extracted from Allen's skull. It struck him on the forehead and flattened out on his skull. He congratulates himself that his head was so thick on that occasion. He was not seriously injured.—Tulare Times.

A Fast Freight.

The Kern & Inyo Forwarding Company are establishing stations for a fast freight line between Tipton and Bakersfield. By the 20th inst. this line will be prepared to take all the freight, to the exclusion of slow trains. It will be continued toward Owens Lake as fast as arrangements can be perfected. The delays in the movement of freight have been caused by the unusual amount of the rainfall this Winter, and the necessarily slow progress of supplying new teams and wagons. Persons engaged in freighting, also, are averse to taking contracts until the inclement season is passed, and they have a certainty of profit from their engagements.—Bakersfield Courier, March 8.

Recaptured.

A letter received by Judge Hupp from the District Attorney of Nye county, states that Sampson, who broke from the Belmont jail a short time since, ha been recaptured by the Sheriff of that county; also a Mexican who made his escape at the same time. The capture was effectd by Sheriff Caldwell at Lone Pine, Inyo county, California.—Reese River Reveille, Feb. 25th.

—The New York News, edited by Ben Wood, declares that cheap whisky and impure liquors cause nearly all the crime committed in the great metropolis. The maddening effects of such liquor, says The News, is attributable to something more than alcoholic stimulation, and must be sought for in the pernicious ingredients with which they are adulterated. The News argues that if a Board of Examiners is necessary to shield us against the errors of incompetent druggists, there is convincing evidence of the necessity of a Board of Chemical Experts to protect drinkers against the dangers of adulterated liquors.

Fatal Affray Near Los Angeles.

A Los Angeles dispatch dated March 3d says: On Saturday last at Azusa, twenty miles from this city, a man named Nelson was killed in a quarrel by a young man named Parker. It seems Nelson had said Parker swindled him in a transaction about some wood. Parker hearing this met Nelson and demanded an explanation. Nelson reiterated the statement. Both parties had shotguns. Parker says Nelson kept advancing on him with his gun half-raised, although he warned him to halt several times. Finally Parker raised his gun and shot Nelson dead.

Change of Time.

The Nevada State Journal says it is understood that a change will be made in the time of the overland trains on or about the first of this month, by which the Eastern-bound train will leave San Francisco at 7 P. M., instead of 7 o'clock in the morning, as heretofore. This will bring the trains to Reno in the daytime—something long wished for.

—Another teamster was rebuked for his profanity by a young girl returning from camp meeting. "Why, Miss," said he, "you don't call that swearing, do you? Why, you ought to hear Bill Jones exhort the impenitent mule."

—Mark Twain, in speaking of cannibalism, grows serious for once, and solemnly declares, that, for his own part, "he would rather go hungry for two days than eat an old personal friend.'

The Malva Tree.

We find the following in The San Francisco Alta of a late date. We think it will be of interest to our readers in this county:

As some considerable comment and inquiry has been evoked regarding an article on the cultivation of the malva tree, in The Alta of Sunday morning, we will say a few words more on the subject. We have put forward no chimera but facts, based upon actual study and familiarity with the properties of the malva tree. Some sixteen years ago we were led to plant a row of the seed around a one-acre lot, for the purpose of breaking the force of the wind, knowing that it was a rapid grower. In two years the trees had attained an average hight of fifteen feet, and grew very luxuriantly. At that time we bought two cows which we turned loose in the lot to feed upon the clover. They left the clover and ate only the large, juicy leaves of the malva. At the end of each leaf, where it joined the branch, lay a tiny leaf folded in, and as soon as the other was nipped off the new one took its place, leaving still others behind that. Thus a perpetual supply was left. The cows could not reach above seven feet, and we used to cut down many of the upper branches for them. After the first year, cattle can be allowed to feed upon the young trees with impunity. The trees that surrounded that acre lot fed those two cows Summer and Winter for eight years. In the meantime we tried the experiment of feeding it to pigs, goats and sheep, all relishing it alike. All this while the branches were hung with the crimson, bell-shaped flowers, and literally swarmed with the bees of a near neighbor, who told us that the hives were running over with honey. Chickens eat the seeds with avidity which fall to the ground. About the Winter of the eighth year after planting the seed, most of the old trees were of an average diameter of eighteen inches in the body and about twenty feet in hight of solid wood. During the Winter of the tenth year many of the old trees blew down and lay there untouched till Spring. One day, happening to need some firewood, we took an ax and tried to cut one, but found to our surprise that the ax merely crushed but did not cut it. On looking we found that the whole tree stump was one mass of fiber, fine and strong. It was longer than any other now known, and could be peeled off the tree in layers, one after another, as delicate and fine as lace. We then took a portion of it and pounded it, and it broke up as fine as tow. We then compared the broken fibre with manilla, and found this to be stronger and more pliable besides being more than twice as long. We then made a rope of it, and found it in those respects better than manilla rope, being smoother and more pliable. We then made some twine of it, but found it was not as strong as linen twine until waxed. We then put some of the broken fiber in the sun, and bleached it by putting water on it day by day, and it became a delicate creamy white, still retaining its strength. We then took an old chair and of it made an impromptu loom, in which we wove about half a yard square of material—very coarse, but very like the grain sacks now in use.

Those experiments, which we have have related so at length, demonstrate the capacities of this tree to become an article of great value. It can be planted around a farm where nothing else will grow, and from what trees would encircle a 160 acre farm can be obtained more fibre for commerce than could be obtained during all those years if flax were sown over the whole farm. It, in that case, would benefit the climate, and through that the farmers. In low lands it keeps away disease, affords a pleasant variety to the scenery, and would sustain dairy cattle, or even horses, in times of scarcity, for this never fails.

California has long needed something which could be depended upon as a feed for cattle during all seasons, and this tree is doubtless the best, considering all things, of anything yet discovered; for this will grow when grass will not, and it is so nutritious that a little hay, or even straw, is all that is required to keep cattle in good condition. From experiment, it was found that silkworms will exist on the young leaves of this tree, but whether they will produce silk or not, is not known. The experiment was tried, at our suggestion, by Mr. Prince, of Altaville, in Calaveras county, when his mulberry crop failed. The leaves bruised and steeped in cold water, are given to people ill of fevers and Summer complaints, and adds one more to the long list of the benefits of the malva tree.

Indelible Ink.

The French Government, it is reported, has just purchased the secret of the composition of an absolutely indelible ink, which resists the action of every known chemical agent. This ink will not only be used on all stamped paper in the postal service and revenue service, but in the recording of all acts of the Assembly; it will also be sold with stamps in all the small shops.

—The flowery reporter of an Eastern paper says: "In the pale translucent moonlight which now lightly bathes the earth, the distant roar of the falls, the weird note of the peacock, and the hoarse snort of the bull-calf make life in town a perpetual romance."

—An Appanoose county squire concludes the marital knot ceremony thus: "Them that the Court hath joined together let no man but asunder; but suffer little children to come unto them, so help you God, and may Heaven have mercy upon your souls."

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

The True Story of the First Telegram.

[From Scribner's Monthly.]

The bill met with neither sneers nor opposition in the Senate, but the business of that house went on with discouraging slowness. At twilight on the last evening of the session (March 3, 1843) there were 119 bills before it. As it seemed impossible for it to be reached in regular course before the hour of adjournment should arrive, the Professor, who had anxiously watched the tardy movements of business all day from the gallery of the Senate Chamber, went with a sad heart to his hotel, and prepared to leave for New York at an early hour the next morning. While at breakfast, a servant informed him that a young lady desired to see him in the parlor.

There he met Miss Annie Ellsworth, then a young school girl—the daughter of his intimate friend Hon. Henry L. Ellsworth, the first Commissioner of Patents—who said, as she extended her hand to him: "I have come to congratulate you."

"Upon what?"

"Upon the passage of your bill."

"Impossible! Its fate was sealed at dusk last evening. You must be mistaken."

"Not at all," she responded. "Father sent me to tell you that your bill had passed. He remained until the session closed, and yours was the last bill but one acted upon, and it was passed just five minutes before the adjournment, and I am so glad to be the first one to tell you. Mother says, too, that you must come home with me to breakfast."

The invitation was readily accepted, and the joy of the household was unbounded. Both Mr. and Mrs. Ellsworth had fully believed in the project, and the former, in his confidence in it, and in his warm friendship for Prof. Morse, had spent all the closing hours of the session in the Senate Chamber doing what he could to help the bill along, and giving it all the benefit of his high personal and official position.

Grasping the hand of his young friend, the Professor thanked her again and again for bearing him such pleasant tidings, and assured her that she should send over the wires the first message as her reward. The matter was talked over in the family, and Mrs. Ellsworth suggested a message, which Prof. Morse referred to the daughter for her approval, and this was the one which was subsequently sent.

A little more than a year after that time the line between Washington and Baltimore was completed. Prof. Morse was in the former city, and Alfred Vail, his assistant, in the latter—the first in the chamber of the Supreme Court, the last in the Mount Clare depot, when, the circuit being perfect, Prof. Morse sent to Miss Ellsworth for her message, and it came:

"WHAT HATH GOD WROUGHT?"

It was sent in triplicate, in the dot and line language of the instrument, to Baltimore, and was the first message ever transmitted by a recording telegraph.

Oxen Beginning to Arrive.

About 11 o'clock last night four yoke of oxen came lumbering along C street past this office. They came in from the north, probably from Truckee Meadows. They were huge, fat, contented looking fellows, and as they sauntered along chewing their cuds and glancing carelessly from side to side of the deserted street, seemed to say, "Bring along your epizootic, who's afraid!" So welcome was the sight of these lusty and docile beasts entering our plague stricken town, that half a dozen persons, one upon the heels of the other, rushed up the two flights of stairs leading to our den to shout in breathless glee, "The oxen are beginning to come in! Four yokes are just passing your door. Great, fellows they are!" Had a train of elephants marched into the town the excitement would probably not have been more intense. As we gazed upon the honest, old, bicornous brutes we were constrained to exclaim, "Hereafter let no man despise or abuse the ox."—Gold Hill News, March 12.

How to Tell an Honest Man.

A hotel-keeper gives the New York correspondent of The St. Louis Globe a rule for detecting honesty, which he thus recounts: Talking with a hotel-keeper the other day, I remarked that, in a large city, he must lose a great deal by transient customers, who would go away and forget to pay their bills. He replied: "Oh, no; I never loose much by folks of that sort. I have made it a rule in my house, whenever a man wants a room and has no baggage, to demand pay in advance, as usual. If he manifests no objection, and puts his hand into his pocket for money, I tell him it is all right; that he can pay just as well when he goes away. That kind of a man always pays. But there is another sort of a fellow who, when informed of the rule, pretends to be very indignant, insisting that he is a gentleman, by ——, and is not in the habit of having his name questioned or his honesty doubted. In such a case I invariably insist on the production of the funds, for I know I if don't get them then, I will never get them in the world. Men who talk about their honor and assume to be insulted when requested to pay, can be depended upon as first-class dead-beats."

How a Dog was "Sold."

Here is a true dog story: A family down town having a false grate in one of the rooms of the house, placed some red paper behind to give it the effect of fire. One of the coldest days this Winter the dog belonging to the household came in from out of doors, and seeing the paper in the grate, deliberately walked up to it and laid down before it and curled up the best way to receive the glowing heat as it came from the fire. He remained motionless for a few minutes; feeling no warmth, he raised his head up and looked over his shoulder at the grate; still feeling no heat, he arose and carefully applied his nose to the grate and smelt of it. It was as cold as ice. With a look of the most supreme disgust, his tail curled between his legs, every hair on his body saying, "I'm sold," the dog trotted out of the room, not even deigning to cast a look at the party in the room who had watched his proceedings and laughed heartily at his misfortunes. That dog had reason as well as instinct.—Troy Times.

A Myth.

The miners who have returned from the Death Valley stampede, says The Pioche Record of March 5, all give concurrent reports. They say that Death Valley is a dried up, desolate timberless region, and that Breyfogle's gold deposits are a myth. But little gold was found in a canyon running down into the valley—"colors so fine and few," as one of them expressed it, "that it would take a thousand to weigh a mill, and a million pans of dirt to weigh a dollar." A number are still prospecting in the Death Valley Mountains, and declare their intention to find paying deposits of silver or gold before coming back, if they have to prospect until this time next year. The Death Valley region may disclose something yet.

How it Was Managed

A former subscriber who discontinued his Republican because he could not make it say just such things as he though it ought to say, has, we learn, recently expressed considerable surprise to his friends that the paper should keep running—since he has withdrawn his patronage. It was pretty close work for a while, we confess; but by omitting to put sugar in our tea, and by buying a cheaper grade of paper collars and reversing them for the second and third time, we managed to rub along until a new subscriber came and took the place of our respected but disgruntled friend—and then Richard was himself again. Nothing but rigid economy will carry one safely over such a calamity as the loss of a subscriber. Republican, Lyons, N. Y.

The World's Fair.

Many of our readers have doubtless heard that six thousand men are employed on the buildings for the great Vienna Exposition. This is a vast number, but it may serve to show why there are so many, if we explain how they work. They have to drive piles in some places to get a good foundation. In this part of the world we do that with a machine, driven either by steam or by gunpowder. But in Vienna they employ thirty men and thirty ropes to raise the weight or hammer to the top of the framework, from which it falls on the head of the pile. By this ingenious arrangement the thirty men are able to do in three hours about as much work as an American "pile driver" would do in ten minutes.

Buffalo Hunting.

It is estimated that there are over 2,000 buffalo hunters now pursuing game in Western Kansas, and they average bringing down about fifteen buffalo daily. One man near Dodge City killed 100 in a day, the hams and meat bringing him in the handsome sum of $300. At Dodge City the hams are worth one and a half and two cents per pound, and the hides from one dollar and a half to two dollars and half apiece. Notwithstanding the immense business which is being done, there seems to be no diminution in their number, and trains are frequently stopped by them.

—An old sort of a Ship—Courtship, which has two mates but no captain.

VARIETIES.

—It is related that a New Hampshire minister recently portrayed the history of Jonah after this style: "I seem to see Jonah passing along the road to Nineveh; I seem to see him entering the ticket office, buy his ticket and pay for it; I seem to see him walk upon the vessel; I seem to see them lift their anchor and the stately ship move gradually out upon the broad Atlantic."

—The maddest woman in the United States of America is the one who lives at Jackson, Maine, and recently lent her fifty-dollar muff to a female acquaintance, who sported it at a small-pox funeral and sent it home with a neat little note stating that fact and this, that as she "had sprinkled it with benzine the owner need not be afraid of catching the disease."

—Do you know how to tell what size of glove you need? Take a tape and measure your hand around the knuckles. The number of inches and quarters of an inch it measures is exactly the size of a glove. That is, if it measures five inches and three quarters around, you want glove No. 5 3-4.

—"Where was the fire?" asked a lady of her beau, who rushed out of the opera-house the other night the moment the curtain fell on the first act. "It was a false alarm," said he, chewing cloves vigorously.

—Philadelphia having abolished steam whistles people who live near factories are clamorous for a law against the gongs, which have been adopted instead.

—A Justice at Vernon, Iowa, wound up a marriage ceremony by saying: "And now I send you to the county jail for thirty days." He was thinking of another case.

—The latest verdict recorded was upon a gentleman who expired in a fit of inebriation. The jury returned: "Death by hanging—round a grog shop."

—Western women are grumbling terribly because the managers of agricultural fairs don't give at least a year's notice when they offer prizes for the finest babies.

—A lawyer ordered a waiter in Gaston's restaurant, at Memphis, to "bring me a dish of my native fodder." He was promptly supplied with cabbage.

—Prof. Tyndall's face is "long, thin, fringed with whiskers, without mustache or goatee, leaving his mouth, like the embrasure of a fort, clear for action."

—An ingenious jailor down East gives his prisoners three pounds of Epsom salts per week to prevent them from breaking out.

—A Cincinnati editor asks, "Are we fire proof?" He'll find out when too late to profit by the knowledge.

Gloves.

Probably no gloves are more expensive than silk. To speak within bounds, without doubt, a good pair of kids will outlast a dozen pairs of silk gloves. Never buy cheap kids unless you have more money than you know what to do with. Kids can be bought of the different shades, and when soiled dyed black and look as well as new. I give a recipe we have used: Steep three handsful of logwood chips in an earthen vessel until the strength is well extracted; add a little copperas and a little alcohol. Put the gloves on the hands, brush over with the mixture, and rubbing gently let them dry there, which they will soon do. If not black enough, brush over a second time and dry as before.—N. E. Homestead.

The Muddy Filling Up.

Our items and articles directing attention to the large extent of unoccupied farming land in the Muddy Valley have not been without effect. A number of farmers and stockraisers are going in there from White River, Nye county, and other contiguous regions. A number of families are also going into the Muddy Valley from Los Angeles county, Cal. The agricultural interests of Lincoln county will soon be important.—Pioche Record.

His Plan.

E. N. Davis, a Mississippi planter, having a large tract of unproductive land on his hands, did not sit down and bemoan the hard times and growl at the negroes, but quietly divided it up into small farms, erected little comfortable houses on each, then secured twelve families from North Carolina to occupy them, and is already rejoicing in the success of his experiment.

Cleaning Window Blinds.

Strong soap will destroy green paint more readily than other colors, having the same effect that it has with grease. Many rooms are soiled by the ignorance or carelessness of wash-women, in the application of strong soap water. Much better use whiting on the soiled places and weak solutions of soap in cleansing, by which the lustre will be preserved.

Potatoe Yeast.

Boil a potatoe till it breaks to pieces. When the water is nearly cool, pour it off. Add to the potatoe a desert-spoonful of coarse sugar, and a teaspoonful of common yeast. Beat the compound with a wooden spoon, and the yeast is made. Common yeast is only wanted the first time; what sticks to the wooden spoon will afterwards supply the place.

—A Stonington, Conn., man stopped his paper, and took out his "one square ad," because the little black-and-tan dog of the editor nipped a pet cat in the bud by chewing her tail off. Let Congress step in now and decide whether a newspaper man has any rights.

THE "GUNSIGHT LODE."

Most of our readers have heard of the famous "Gunsight Lode," of Death Valley, and no doubt, most of them are disposed to consider its existence as mythical as the no less famous "Blue Bucket" diggings of Eastern Oregon. Such it may be, but from certain circumstances within our personal knowledge, dating back to 1849, and just brought to mind by a paragraph elsewhere given in this issue, we believe the legend of the Gunsight Lode discovery to be substantially true. The paragragh referred to is entitled "A trip to Death Valley;" among those composing the expedition we observe the name of the Rev. Mr. Brier, and thereby hangs a tale which, having a partial relation to the subject of this article and our own knowledge of the facts relating to a "mountain of silver,"—or the Gunsight Lode as we now take it—we shall briefly relate.

Among other belated emigrant trains which, on the 6th of June, 1849, rolled out from the shores of the Missouri where now stands the city of Omaha was one of 45 wagons, and known as the "San Francisco" train. It was systematically organized and governed with Constitution, By-Laws and a full of officers with military titles, the lowest ranking as Captain. Its Chaplain was the Rev. James O. Brier, a preacher and camp-meeting exhorter of some renown, both in Indiana and Iowa and since 1851, in various portions of this State. He was accompanied in his pilgrimage by his wife—a little, fragile creature—and their children, three or four in number, all small, the youngest barely able to toddle alone. Now, Mr. Brier was a good man and zealous Christian, without doubt, but he possessed some curious attributes, one particularly—we will call it contrariness—that was productive of some curious results and most wonderful experiences ever endured by any family of California emigrants where all lived to tell the tale. But we can only give the main points here, and as a half-forgotten tale heard twenty years ago. Here, we will remark that, as a boy, we were a high private in the train of which Mr. Brier was for two brief weeks the Chaplain, John Brophy and Judge Haun, late of Marysville, respectively Colonel and Adjutant, and other prominent men of this State Majors and Captains.

For the period named Mr. Brier fulfilled his duties in the train with zeal and ability. Then came three days of arduous, dangerous work, of which he performed more than his share, in fording the nearly impracticable Loup Fork. As everybody knows, "crossing the plains" developed not only previously known, but dormant streaks of meanness, the existence of which had never been even suspected by the parties, objective or posssessive, and to a most wonderful degree. There were no exceptions of persons to these developments (barring boys of course, and they were no exception in the "objective," if our memory is not defective on the latter point—which it isn't.) These streaks began to crop out obviously and generally among the force of officers and others who bravely stood on the banks those three days telling how it ought to be done, as the few waded and swam and pulled and tugged at the long ropes attached to the lead yoke of the double team of oxen used on each wagon in turn. When well manned those long ropes served to drag the long string of cattle with noses under water into a straight line and shallow water, after being swept into a graceful curve down the stream, the wagon, with its pale-faced occupants, swinging after and kept from destruction by a similar rope extending back from the rear axle. The men on the ropes worked all the time from waist to neck deep in the water, and among them was Mr. Brier. In the course of time this watery process will soak all the charity and good nature out of any man, even a preacher, and in the same ratio, slights, real or imaginary, are magnified. The gentlemen who kept their pants dry could devote their whole time in forwarding their own interests, or wagons rather, in turn or out of turn. In consequence of this fact Mr. Brier's wagon, though the first in order, was the last to be crossed, and he waxed wroth and unforgiving in proportion. His was not one in the usual corral of wagons that night nor ever after. With a sublime faith, or an unwarrantable fool-hardiness, he moved on, he and his wife and little ones, alone and unprotected, save that when convenient, he would pitch his camp at night in the vicinity of others. To the spirit here manifested, commendable or, otherwise, we attribute his subsequent misfortunes and sufferings, and yet to the same spirit of contrariness, he is indebted for his narrow escape from the terrible fate which befel so many of his later fellow pilgrims, and which gave not only the title but full significance to the name of that desert expanse within our county lines which is known as the Valley of Death. That is to say every member of the original San Francisco Company, except the Brier family, by taking the northern or Lassen route, reached the goal of their hopes that same Fall, and, comparatively, without suffering. It is true those streaks above alluded to developed on a scale graduated with each day's progress, and as a natural result and notwithstanding Constitution, By-Laws and sounding titles, it advanced in full as many divisions and sections as there were Captains, Majors, etc.; it is also true that many of them were two or three days longer in getting over the Lassen Pass than was compatible with comfort or safety, so a number of fine wagons remained to mark the spot of their abandonment for years after, and with this we bid adieu to the San Francisco Company.

Mr. Brier, as did many other families, alarmed at the lateness of the season and the weakness of their teams, bent his steps for Salt Lake, intending probably to remain there until the following Spring. Previous to his arrival there, however, he for a short period each, joined his fortunes with two other trains, but soon dissolved partnership with both—one, on his own volition as before, the other, it was said, on request.

The Mormons told them that as soon as the Winter's rains started the grass, the Mormon trace or Southern route to Los Angeles would be practicable. A goodly company of fifty or sixty wagons, one half or more carrying women and children, was organized, a guide procured and paid a large sum in advance, and early in the Winter the journey to suffering and death began. Besides Mr. Brier, his children and highly esteemed wife, there were a number of our townsmen and former friends, two or three of whom lived to bear witness of the horrors of that journey and of that mountain of silver. To one of these, Dr. McCormick, in 1850 and years after a well known resident of Rough and Ready, Nevada county, we are indebted for the facts to follow, which we received from him at the time and place last mentioned.

For a few weeks the emigrants made fair progress; then their guide deserted them and their troubles began and increased with every mile's advance in the great American desert. Soon, as a matter of course, differences of opinion arose as to the proper direction to be pursued and similar matters, and in consequence, the "trace" was abandoned for a straight course for San Francisco by compass. In scattered bands the main party finally reached the desert region neighboring upon the Valley of Death, and a hundred miles or more north of their proper road. In the midst of a desert stretch in which they one day found themselves in a famishing condition, two or three of the party went to a range of hills or small mountains a mile or two off the line of travel, in search of water. They came back and reported that they had found no water but a mountain of silver or something they believed was silver. But water was of more importance then than gold or silver, and with despairing hearts and weakening steps, those people wearily plodded on another day and night, and then they came to a spring of bitter waters. But there was feed for their few remaining cattle, so they remained in that camp for many days. A party of young men, among whom was Dr. McCormick, Willie Webster and one or two others of our personal acquaintances, resolved to go back and see for themselves whether the story of that silver mountain was true. The result we will presently relate. We do not think that Mr. Brier accompanied this party, as besides having his family to look after, he was held in some indignation as the leader into that route of woe and despair, and by the same rule, must be considered the prime cause of the great legendary discovery, which now, twenty-three years later, he starts out to prove real.

The disastrous experiences of the last desert had placed the pilgrims in a most sorry condition, mentally, materially and physically for deliberate action or further advance. Entire teams had perished, necessitating the abandonment of wagons and contents. Supplies of food were almost totally exhausted so that numbers had to resort to the shadowy carcasses of their cattle for enough to sustain life.

When they broke camp at this spring of bitterness for the most of them it was for the last time. The main body took a course down the valley at the southern end of which their bones lie bleaching on the desert sand. Twelve years after a party of our acquaintances were there and reported the wagon tracks on "Furnace Creek," as they named it, as easily discerned as when made by these unfortunates.

Others, in parties of twos and threes, loaded themselves with as much of this "beef"—dried on the bones—as they could conveniently carry and struck out afoot for—any place, and but few of them were ever heard of more. Among these last was Willie Webster and two others we knew. And now was proved the advantage of our minister's independence, obstinacy or whatever it was. He would go his own road the others could go theirs. They perished, but neither did he or any of his family.

A few days and his worldly goods were all carried on the backs of his two remaining, staggering oxen. And now comes in the story of that little weakly wife and mother, whose sustaining faith, love and courage alone prevented her big six-foot husband, her helpless little ones and herself from perishing most miserably. The heroine of the plains of '49 was this delicate little woman, Mrs. James O. Brier. She it was, when blank despair had settled around her husband's heart, that bore the brunt of that fight against death in its most terrible forms—thirst, fatigue and starvation! Day after day for a whole month they toiled feebly along, she and her babies and husband, through the heavy sand. She attended to the oxen, packing and driving them, and when they succumbed as they soon did do, to cutting out enough of their flesh to load herself and her husband whose obstinacy and ambition, too, were now things of the past. Well, it is enough to say that this family one morning in the early Spring had their eyes gladdened by the sight of a human habitation! It was only a few miles away but the entire day was consumed in reaching it by that brave little woman and her family. But for the sight of that house (its location we do not know, except that it was near Los Angeles) at that opportune hour that day would have closed the earthly career of the Brier family, and with it that of one of California's most eloquent preachers, and her bravest woman.

We tell this story, so far as it is told at all, as it was told to us many years ago but, in part at least, do not vouch for its absolute correctness. It will serve to give some idea of Mr. Brier's prospects in the pending expedition for finding that mountain of silver. With this long introduction we will now give the principal reason we have for believing in the subtantial existence of a "mountain of silver," or the "Gunsight Lode" (no doubt one and the same) of the current legend.

In the Fall of '50 the writer, while prospecting around Rough and Ready, paid a visit to his former townsman and fellow emigrant of '49, Dr. McCormick above mentioned. In due course he related the story of the trip to Los Angeles, and of the silver mountain to which we have stated he and others returned. He described the mountain as being in many places literally seamed with strings or wires of silver. But, in his opinion, it could never be made of much value as it was situated in the middle of a most horrible desert some three hundred miles in the wilderness (Los Angeles was the nearest settlement), the nearest water being 25 or 30 miles distant, and that of such a degree of badness that it was wholly unfit for use when packed so far. Besides this, the rock was so hard that the services of a blacksmith would be required constantly in repairing tools to work it, even if they could be made to stand at all. He thought however that he would sometime organize a company and go out there and see what could be done, but this the doctor never done or attempted to do, so far as our knowledge extends. He said that in many places the rock fairly glistened with silver.

Though working under such adverse circumstances this party obtained a number of pieces of the silver rock and carried them to camp, where they pounded the rock out of the labyrinth of silver wire with which each piece was literally bound together. As the result of his own work, or piece of rock, the doctor showed us a full handful of this wire silver—in various lengths, angles and curves, bright and shining as a silver dollar. Silver it was without doubt, and we have no doubt whatever of the truth of the doctor's statement in relation to the existence of such a mountain of silver, i. e., the "Gunsight Lode." Certain it is that the wires of silver he exhibited were any of them abundantly large enough for the forward sight of a rifle. Silver in those days was of secondary importance; not worth looking after and especially when bound up in flinty rock, wherever it might be. And, though there were no Washoe stocks then, the Comstock existed all the same in the wilds of Nevada as does the Gunsight Lode within those of Inyo to-day.

THE NEW HOMESTEAD LAW.

There is some diversity of opinion in regard to the late repeal of the pre-emption laws, and the adoption of a uniform homestead law instead. The Sacramento Union concludes that, as the change was effected through the agency of Senator Pomeroy of Kansas, there must be some rascality—i. e. a railroad grab—in it. The Sacramento Record says the uniform policy of the Government in dealing with the public lands has been to dispose of them to actual settlers—to offer them at a low or nominal valuation to such settlers as a bonus to induce them to acquire and cultivate the public dominion. The pre-emption Act of 1841 was passed with this avowed object, under which citizens of the United States were empowered to enter a claim, each to his 160 acres, and subsequently to purchase the tract. As time developed some of the shortcomings of this law, a supplemental "Homestead" Act was passed, under which an actual settler was empowered to enter his quarter-section of land, and at the end of five years' continuous occupancy of it, to receive a title to it without price. The principle of this Act was qualified by allowing the settler at the end of six months' residence to commute by a money payment the remainder of his term of residence. Under both these Acts it has been found practicable—and has, in point of fact, been customary—to defeat the policy of the law, while large tracts were being occupied by speculators for speculative purposes. For instance, a party hired for the purpose, would enter his claim to a quarter section under the pre-emption law. This did not debar him from entering his claim upon another quarter section under the homestead law. He would erect a cabin (costing perhaps forty dollars) and reside in it for six months, at the end of which term he became entitled, by making a money payment ("commuting his term," as this was called), to receive a patent for the land. A number of parties in the employ of speculators would thus acquire title to large tracts of desirable lands, which were then transferred to their employers and held by these for speculative purposes, although no permanent improvements had been made on the tract nor any bona fide "settlement," as intended by the law, secured. In view of these practices, and their effect in defeating the land policy of the Government, the Forty-second Congress in the last hours before adjournment, passed a bill radically changing the United States land laws. It enacts in its stead a uniform homestead law, by which the public land is reserved to the actual settler. The principle of "commutation" is preserved, but as a limitation on its liability to abuse the claimant is allowed to avail of it only after eighteen months residence on his quarter section. This restriction, it may be observed, will effect in California all that is desired of it. A man can hardly be hired to take up and hold land at an expense of less than $40 per month; and this expense at the end of eighteen months would amount to $720—equal to $4 50 per acre for the whole 160 acres! The Act appears to be carefully drawn in its provisions for saving the equities of those who have already acquired titles or rights in the public lands, Settlers now occupying unappropriated public lands may enter the tracts now occupied by them to the amount of 160 acres. Application is to be made within two months after receiving the plat of the township survey at the land office, or, in cases where the surveys are already on file, within two months from the time of settling on the land. Parties now owning and residing upon public lands may enter adjoining unappropriated public lands which, with the amount already occupied shall not exceed in the aggregate 160 acres. It is provided that only one entry under the new Act shall be made, "provided, that no person shall be debarred on account of benefits received from the old pre-emption laws." Other provisions of a minor character appear to be conceived in the same general spirit of substantial equity. The only remaining sections of general importance are those which allow the entry of tracts not exceeding forty acres for mechanical, commercial or manufacturing purposes upon proof of the fact of occupation for one year's time; and the concluding section, which enacts that the law shall go into effect January 1, 1873—that is to say, is in full force and effect already. The explanation of this concluding provision no doubt is, that the bill was introduced at the last previous session of Congress and was expected to be then passed. It did pass the Senate but remained as unfinished business in the House, and then was passed in the concluding rush of business with the concluding clause unamended either through oversight or because an amendment would send the the bill back to the Senate where it must have been lost for lack of time to reach and pass it. As passed, the bill is a blow to would-be-speculators in public lands, and appears calculated to accomplish what has so long been aimed at—the preservation of the public lands for bona fide settlers and no others.

Left Him.

Alf. Doten, of The Gold Hill News, has lost his old time friend and everybody else's enemy in the departure hence of his little dog Kyzer, "the oldest and dog-gondest dog in the State of Nevada," as Doten says of him in the course of a long and touching obituary. Kyzer died at noon, March 7, of old age. He crossed the plains with an emigrant train from Iowa in 1862, and was an old dog then. He soon after joined his fortunes with this editor man through the force of a natural affinity (sometimes the polite term for stealing), and since that date he (Kyzer) has let no waking hour pass without marking a challenge at every canine larger than himself that he happened to meet. War was all that Kyzer wanted; he cared nothing for results. It was all the same to him if he got licked forty times a day; so he could have his regular war, and therein he differed from his master, who goes to war only when he hopes to win.

The Election in Sacramento.

The City of Sacramento held an election March 11th for municipal officers. The principal fight was on the office of Trustee, for which there were three candidates; two Republicans, one, H. Adams, representing the railroad interest; J. McCleery, the other, running in opposition. The Democrats also had a candidate in the field, but most of their votes were given for Adams, who received 2,140 votes to 1,359 for McCleery, People's candidate and 248 for W. B. Ready, Democratic nominee. This is a decided victory for the railroad company, and may end in their securing the control of the entire water front of the city, which will bar out all opposition both by river and rail. The remainder of the ticket elected was Republican. However, the successful candidate as well as the railroad company, declare that they have no such desire or object as alleged against them Elected.

Boutwell, late Secretary of the Treasury, has been elected United States Senator from Massachusetts which gives that little State the intellectually biggest representation in the Senate of any State in the Union, if we are to believe certain newspapers. Her Senators are Boutwell and Sumner.

School Taxes.

By a recent decision of the Supreme Court the matter of extra school taxes in any school district is wholly subject to the order of the Trustees thereof. That is to say, the Board of Supervisors have no authority to order the levy of such tax except it be uniform in all the districts of the county.

Not Changed.

The bill to reduce letter postage to two cents failed to become a law, as also did the amendment requiring the prepayment of newspaper postage. On both these points the law stands as before.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.

A CARD.

TO THE PUBLIC: I DESIRE TO VERY RESPECTFULLY inform the public of the following incident which occurred to myself, in order that the travelers especially may know what to expect under similar circumstances: On the 17th instant I engaged passage on down stage from Cerro Gordo, which was to leave on the following morning. Arriving at the hotel, I discovered that the stage had been gone some five minutes, and I attempted to run down the cañon and overtake it. With my coat and luggage in my hands, I ran as rapidly as possible to the lower toll-gate, some six or seven miles, where I inquired of the amiable, gentlemanly and accommodating [how much so will appear] toll-gatherer, who is known as Jack Fleming, how long the stage had been gone, and received the answer that it had passed some 15 minutes before. With my heavy load and long run I was completely tired out, and my lips were parched with thirst. I asked the man Fleming for a drink of water—WHICH HE REFUSED TO GIVE ME! I begged for but a drop, but met with only flat refusals. I then gave him my opinion of such a selfish scrub, and toiled on to Swansea. I am an old man and prospector. I carry a canteen in the mountains, but I never have yet seen the day but that I would divide its contents with one who stood in need of it. The foregoing facts are related in order that the public may know what kind of a man the Swansea Toll Road Company keep at their gate.

Freight.

Following is a partial list of the freights for this county now lying in Los Angeles. Because of the prevalent zipozoot the forwarders are unable to state when it will set sail for Inyo:

Turned Back.

There is a vast amount of freight now stopped at various points on the road between Los Angeles and its destination in this county. The teamsters, it appears, were taken with a panic in regard to the epizootic, and without waiting for an attack, unhooked their teams from their wagons and started to Los Angeles. The failure in the arrival of this freight will prove a serious inconvenience in many cases if delayed much longer, as it is likely to be.

The Australian Gum Tree.

We are pleased to announce the fact that Postmaster Rowley has received several ounces of the seed of the famous Australian gum tree—the most valuable and rapid growing tree yet introduced into this State. The seeds are quite small, and though costly, fifty cents or a dollar will purchase enough of them for quite a nursery. Parties from a distance desiring to set their farms off with these beautiful trees will do well to send to Mr. Rowley at once for some of the seeds.

From Gold Mountain.

We received a visit during the past week from "Uncle" Roth and Mr. F. Helling, of Gold Mountain. To the latter gentlemen this office returns a unanimous vote of thanks for favors received. Both these gentlemen are highly elated with the prospects of Gold Mountain, believing that it is wonderfully rich, and as it most assuredly is judging from the specimens richly flecked with gold which they exhibited. We shall refer to their mining operations again soon.

The Horse Disease.

We believe that every horse and mule in the county has been afflicted with the prevalent disorder, but it has proved fatal in only a few cases. All appear to be recovering, and without secondary attacks, business of all kinds, interrupted by the disease, will soon go on as before. Many persons are complaining of a disease generally considered the epizootic. It has proved quite severe in some cases, but fatal in none.

The Stages.

The Northern Stage Line, which for a short time was somewhat interrupted in the regularity of its trips by the epizootic, is again running on time and conveying passengers as usual. The Southern Line, more recently attacked, declines to take passengers just at present, but it is not likely this will be the case for more than a week or so, at the most.

Citizens.

On the 17th the County Court admitted to citizenship Eleuterio Diaz, Juan Mesa and Conception Flores—the latter a woman, who proposes to become a land-owneress under the U. S. Homestead Law. The Court will be in session again on Monday next.

Completed.

J. B. White, Assessor and Collector of the special school tax in Independence school district, has finished listing the property in said district. The total amount is slightly in excess of $200,000.

Patents.

John and James Shepherd and R. M. Shuey, of George's Creek, have received from the General Land Office full patents for their lands.

CONGRATULATORY.

[COMMUNICATED.]

INDEPENDENCE, March 21, 1873.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—We glean from the recent Congressional proceedings that our valley is at last to have, what it should have had for years past, the located in this town. This is owing to the untiring exertions of one of our most public spirited citizens, who is now at Washington. We also learn with pride and satisfaction of the appointment, and confirmation by the Senate, to the office of Receiver of Public Moneys for this district of one of our most worthy citizens, the senior of THE INYO INDEPENDENT, Mr. P. A. Chalfant. Modesty, dear sirs, may deter your journal from speaking with due credit of the new appointee. It is true we are greatly given to grumbling generally, but I will assert that in this case hardly any one can be found withholding his approval of the appointment. We have no doubt that orders will soon be received from Washington for the removal of the Land Office to its new location, and as a matter of congratulation in connection therewith, we are in hopes of adding a new and valuable citizen to our population in the person of the present incumbent of the office of Register. Yours very truly. NEW COMER.

The facts stated in the above in reference to the appointment of the senior of this paper as Receiver of Public Moneys, and the complimentary personal remarks accompanying the same, place the said senior under very great obligations to certain kind friends; and, also, in an entirely new attitude—the first which involves a return of thanks for the reception of any official appointment or election to any office of high or low degree, always excepting that of School Trustee. He can say with truth that he is truly grateful for the well meaning deeds and good wishes of the aforesaid friends, and more especially as the honor received was wholly unsought and, save by a recent indefinite hint, wholly unexpected. In point of fact our first and only knowledge of the matter was contained in the telegraphic dispatches of The San Francisco Alta of the 14th instant. Therefore, not having expected this or any official position, but having received one of honor, if not of great emoluments, the said appointee hereby disclaims all responsibility for the incompetency and consequent derelictions of duty mayhap of this new Receiver and bloated office holder. For the present we will only say that he will try to do his duty in the appointed position, and in conclusion will congratulate the people of this county on the early location of the Land Office in their midst, where the general convenience requires that it should be.

War in Nevada.

The late Nevada Legislature for some reason best known to its own members, perhaps, legislated Lieutenant Governor Denver out of the office of Warden of the State Penitentiary, but the Lieutenant Governor thought there was a little mistake somewhere and declined to surrender the office. Gov. Bradley and the Prison Commissioners and other State officials went to the Prison and made a formal demand for possession. Denver ordered the prison guard to fire on them, but before the order was executed the Commissioners retired in good order. The Governor issued a requisition for the State militia, three companies of which, well armed and with a three-inch cannon, reported for duty at the Prison March 14. Gov. Bradley made a peremptory demand in writing for the surrender, which demand the Warden, "under fear of his life and the safe keeping of the prisoners," finally complied with, so the prison was not battered down in accordance with the conditional orders of the Governor.

Suspension.

Van Bokkelen & Co., Stock brokers of Virginia City, Nev. have suspended or failed for a considerable amount. A defrauded depositor attempted to shoot Van Bokkelen, but failed to accomplish his object. The suspension of this firm created a great excitemedt in the streets of Virginia.

Loss of Cattle.

The snow lies so deep in Steptoe Valley, Nevada, that the cattle are all starving to death, one man having lost 700 head. There is no hay in the country and the cattle are too poor to be driven elsewhere.

Epizootic.

This horse disease has reached Mexico and has become very prevalent though not a fatal nature.

The Difference.

An exchange informs us that a Chinaman who got snow-blind while working on the Central Pacific railroad recently, applied for official permission to have himself shot. These Celestials are peculiar. If he had been an American he'd have gone into a gin mill, drunk half a dozen eye-openers, and then declared himself able to "clean out" any man in the room.

The Earthquake Region.

Jonas Pinchower, of Virginia City, has just returned from a two months' visit in Inyo county, California. This locality is distant about 150 miles from Virginia in a southerly direction. Mr. Pinchower was obliged to make his return on horseback, all the stage lines having drawn off in consequence of the horses being down with the epizootic. Although the great earthquake occurred a year ago, Mr. Pinchower says the ground continues to shake at intervals. All the fish in Owens river, he says, were killed by the lava which was thrown up at the time of the earthquake. Mr. P. brought back with him a lava specimen. It is of a darkish color and has the appearance of molten glass. From Independence to Lone Pine, a distance of 10 or 12 miles, he says the earth has cracked open for the space of two feet in width, the fissure extending downward an interminable distance. At present there is no suffering among the ranchers residing in that locality, but their agricultural prospects are not flattering.

The foregoing is from The Gold Hill News of March 10. We do not believe that our contemporary would intentionally publish a pack of falsehoods to the injury of either persons or localities, but it has allowed itself to be egregriously imposed upon is this instance to the extent that substantially in regard to effects, there is not a sentence of truth in the whole story, not even as to distances. To allow itself to be humbugged by a piece of lava, probably 10,000 years old, as a portion of that thrown up in the bed of Owens river on the late occasion, evinces a surprising degree of gullibility. There must have been some hissing and steaming when that lava was thrown up in Owens river that we nor no one else, save Mr. Pinchower, perhaps, noticed at the time nor since, on account of the fright, maybe. We like number one lies and sensational items well enough in their proper places, but have received a surfeit of both in regard to the Inyo Earthquake, and begin to think it is about time hard-up newspaper locals should find some other subject with which to regale their readers.

Sanitary Hotel and Agricultural College.

A Los Angeles correspondent of the Sacramento Union writes as follows concerning an Institution with the above title: It gives us a morsel of gratification to perceive that a movement is on foot to organize an immense Sanitary Hotel and Agricultural College, for which lands have been set apart in this section. As near as can be ascertained it is the design of the promoters of this very important enterprise to establish a resort that will be most desirable for invalids from all parts of the world, and at such terms as will place the benefits of the institution within the reach of any that may come thither—as pupils, guests or patients, as the case may be.

This sanitarium it is expected will be so arranged that any class will find apartments to their taste, for the plans of construction are somewhat novel, likewise the treatment. Elements heretofore unused in the healing art by any class or school now in existence will be brought to bear to overcome the thousand "ills that flesh is heir to." A thousand acres of land are to be allotted for the building and grounds of the Sanitary Hotel, which, by the experience of its projectors, is thought to be little enough, considering that it is to be arranged in form of a village or series of village residences, to meet the wants of different classes, and all so harmoniously planned that persons of different tastes and conditions in life can be accommodated with board and treatment, baths, recreation, amusement or useful employment, as may be required by the circumstances of the applicant.

There is a person interested in this truly useful and philanthropic institution who has had large experience in such matters and who will go to Europe the coming Summer to perfect the arrangement, so that there shall be nothing lacking—not even capital—to make the enterprise a success in every particular.

The Entire Swine.

They never do anything by halves up in Virginia City, Nev. An engine company is about to give an anniversary ball, and makes the following announcement: "A marked improvement will be made in the arrangements of the dancing floor, and the rear converted into a palatial garden scene, where feathered songsters will warble their sweetest notes. Shrubbery and flowers will be placed on greensward with pathways and purling streams from silver fountains, and seats of repose. The center will be set with figures, busts and groups, producing a grand effect, and forming a pleasant retreat from the terpsichorean maze!" Who would believe that this could be done in the land of the Washoe canary and sagebrush? Where is Mark Twain?

New Army Swords.

The blades for the new swords ordered for the United States Army have just been finished at the Springfield Armory. They are perfectly straight, 31 inches long, and handsomely decorated with designs in asphaltum varnish. The sword will be very light and much more convenient than those in use at present.

Discharged.

The habeas corpus case of F. F. Gallardo, who was recently held by Judge Gilmer of the Police Court to answer in a charge of libeling Wm. Melendez, came up for hearing in the County Court yesterday morning, and resulted in the discharge of the defendant.—Sacramento Union, March 13.

Tides of Owens Lake.

A friend who signs himself "Nimrod" records his observations upon the tidal movements of the waters in Owens Lake, as follows:

At 4 P. M., March 11, I visited the lake shore, and while on the wharf observed that the water near shore had floating in it a substance resembling moss, in nearly round masses, from the size of currants to that of rosebuds and cherries, the latter size being most abundant, and in flakes as large as the hand. By these being present I was enabled to discern a movement in the water to the southeastward. I timed the rate of movement as it passed under the wharf, and found it to be four feet in ten seconds. At the outer end of the wharf—500 feet, more or less—there was scarcely any of the floating material, and the water seemed to move very slowly northwestward.

On the following morning I visited the shore again; found the water free from the substance floating in it the previous evening—that being such as covers the bottom and ground near shore here—and did not observe any movement generally; but noticed water running slowly into the lake in a small channel, through a bar, from a basin behind the bar; was told by one of three men who had been camping there three or four days, "the water has run in at that channel and out the other part of each day since I've been here." The other two men said, "the water appears lower here sometimes in the day than at other times."

At 3:30 I was at the shore; saw the the same amount of floating mossy material; the same movement of the water in the lake, but the water was running faster than it ran out at 9:20 A. M., toward the land in the channel through the shore bar.

Near 5:30 P. M. there was a streak about three feet wide of somewhat concentrated floating moss (if it is moss) some three hundred feet from, and nearly parallel with the north northeastern shore, which appeared to accompany a neutral line, the floating particles on the shore side could be plainly seen to glide past those outside of this line.

This streak advanced from one hundred or more feet on shore side of end of wharf to outside of same in a few minutes, and kept on.

On going to shore, found the water moving more directly from shore, in a soutwest direction, and some was passing slowly outward in the channel from the basin behind the bar. Measurement showed near half an inch greater depth of water than two hours earlier, when there was a more rapid current landward in the bar channel. Do not know how much difference there may have been.

Some may affirm that these movements were caused by the wind. "There was not a ripple on the lake," in whose perfect mirror surface were magnificent representations of the western and eastern mountains, and even the minutest haziness in the atmosphere. And at the same time the smoke from the smelting furnace a few hundred feet away, was shooting straight up in the air, and, part of the time, moving northward, a direction opposite and different from that of the water's movements. Besides the pieces of matter floating were not on the surface only, but plentifully disseminated from top to bottom, and marked a motion the whole depth. If we judge peremptorily from these limited observations, we will be firmly of the opinion that there are tides in this, our inland sea!

The Adroit Swordsman

Pulaski, as it is well known, was as adroit a swordsman as he was perfect in horsemanship, and he ever rode a powerful and fleet charger. During the retreat of the American army through New Jersey, in the darkest hour of our national adversity, he was pursued by a small party of British cavalry, the leader of which was a good horseman, and mounted as well as Pulaski. Pulaski rode in the rear of his detachment and the British Captain rode in front of those he commanded.

The morning sun was shining brightly, casting oblique shadows, and the pursued party entered a long, narrow lane. Pulaski having satisfied himself of the superior speed and command of his horse over that of his pursuer, slackened his pace and kept his horse to the side of the land farthest from the sun. The pursuing officer came up in hot haste, so as to make the decisive cut upon Pulaski as soon as he could reach him.

Pulaski rode as though he heard not the advance upon him, yet he kept his eye warily upon the ground on the side of his horse toward the sun on the right.

As soon as the shadow of the pursuer's horse gained upon him so that his horse's head, by his shadow, had gained about half the length of his own horses' body, he gave the sudden sword cut of St. George with his powerful arm and saw the decapitated head of the English officer following his stroke.

His mathematical eye had measured the distance by the position of the shadow so accurately, that the pursuing officer lost his head before he even suspected that his proximity was known or that a blow was meditated.

—Engaging photographer—"Just ook a little pleasant, miss! Think of 'im!"

Borax.

We note that Judge Hanson and S. P. Moffat, Esq., have started back to the borax fields in the vicinity of Indian Wells with a view of giving them a thorough prospecting.

Personal.

We notice the return from San Francisco of Seth G. Sneden of Bishop Creek, and M. W. Belshaw of Cerro Gordo, and Judge Hanson of this place from Los Angeles.

Preaching

In the school house to-morrow at the usual hour.

Going to Death Valley.

A party of Oroville gentlemen, says The Marysville Appeal of March 8th, consisting of Senator G. C. Perkins, County Recorder W. H. Chappel, Dr. Stearns, and Rev. Mr. Brier, took the cars yesterday morning for Visalia, bound on a silver lode expedition to Death Valley, which lies on the borders of Inyo and San Bernardino counties, about fifty miles east of Owens Lake, and thirty miles west of the Nevada State line. This valley with its sombrous name, covers a sunken territory about twenty by fifty miles in extent, and is 175 feet below the level of the ocean. It contains no living animal or vegetable matter, and is of volcanic origin. The above named party of explorers were to be joined at Sacramento by Ford H. Rogers of San Francisco. They propose to provide themselves with an outfit at Visalia, and start out on horseback and full equipage under the guidance of Rev. Mr. Brier, who has visited that section on a former occasion. The trip overland from Visalia to Death Valley will be about 150 miles, over the roughest country in the State. The party are after mineral wealth, as nothing but gold or silver in big lumps would inspire such a tedious and perilous journey. They seek the locality of the celebrated "Gunsight Lode," which is known to lie in Death Valley, and believed to be extraordinarily rich. This trip is expected to be made in about two months.

Out of Bonds and in Again.

The Colusa Sun of March 8th gives to its readers this story of crime, affection and romance: We mentioned the case of the young man Labree, who was committed to our County Jail on the charge of stealing a horse in Yolo county, and attempting to sell the animal at Vallejo. Upon his being incarcerated he stated that he was to have been married in a short time, and he offered the horse for sale in order to obtain funds to carry out the proposed enterprise. The young lady who had made an impression on the young man's heart withdrew not her smiles; but, on the other hand, endeavored to cheer him in his misfortune. A few days ago Labree was set at liberty on bail, and lost no time in gaining an interview with his life's treasure. On Wednesday evening last, he led her to the altar, and the two were made one. No bars of iron could obliterate those ties of affection which linger in the human breast, and the true devotion of woman was most truly exemplified.

A Warm Birth.

A London reporter has recently died who for thirty years devoted himself to the single department of writing up fires. It is to be hoped he won't be called upon to follow out the Spiritualistic theory of indefinite progression in his business in the other world.

Passed.

The Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake Railroad bill passed both Houses of Congress. It grants the right of way and use of stone and timber.

The Deformities of Children.

[From Hearth and Home.]

No child is more tenderly loved than the unfortunate one, if the misfortune be blindness or deafness, or physical malformation. The mother who could come to hate a child on account of his natural misfortunes, would be a brute indeed. But few mothers reflect that the child's ill-temper, irreverance, or even graver faults are also the result of natural deformity, and that the child who is always under censure for bad qualities is in reality an object of pity. Not until a parent can be brought to see the matter in this light can there be a right relation between parent and child. Temper is an inherited quality and cannot be broken all at once. The child whose blood is poisoned by some ancestral taint, which may have lain dormant in the generation immediately preceding, needs the comfort and sympathy of father and mother, and gets the rebuffs only. Ingrained trait can only be combated with any success where they are combated with infinite patience and kindness. That "grievous words stir up anger" is as true now as in Solomon's time, and as true when the grievous words are spoken by a parent as by a stranger. "But I cannot wink at the child's badness." Certainly not. That would be an indolence. But you can show the child that you have a full appreciation of his misfortune, that you have a sympathy with his struggles and his difficulties. When you have done this you have taken a grand step toward helping him out of his trouble. Nothing is of more importance, in dealing with a difficult child, than prompt praise of his earliest endeavor to overcome his fault. Do not measure your commendation by his success, but by his endeavor. The selfish, indolent parent pities himself. "That child will kill me." "I have got to endure his temper year in and year out." Ah! yes; but what has he got to endure! If he lives until he is one hundred, there will be something left of the old battle yet. If you work from no higher motive than to relieve yourself from annoyance you cannot succeed. But if you so develop the self-control of your child that he will have a permanent advantage in the life-long warfare with his besetment, you have delivered him from a life-long bondage. Consider the patience of teachers in institutions for imbecile children. In some cases weeks are spent in persuading a child to make one awkward mark with a piece of chalk. Reflect on the time spent in taking the successive steps that bring the brooling idiot up to the level of a man able to take care of himself. And is not the victory worth the battle? Is not your patient endeavor to cure a moral defect rewarded by any measure of success, however small? Wherefore take your share of the heavy burden of your child, and, by bearing it bravely, help him to bear his life-long load.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA
Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the power of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

How to Obtain Surveys.

The following circular instructions from the General Land Office, giving the method by which settlers may obtain official surveys, is furnished us by Register Butler, with request to publish:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GENERAL LAND OFFICE,
February 25, 1873.

GENTLEMEN: By an act of Congress approved March 3, 1871, entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to reduce the expenses of the survey and sale of the public lands in the United States,'" approved May 30, 1862, the following became a provision of law:

"SECTION 11. And be it further enacted, That in all cases where settlers shall make deposits in accordance with this act, to the credit of the United States, for public surveys, such amounts so deposited shall go in part payment for their lands situated in the townships, the surveying of which is paid for out of said deposits, and effect shall be given to this act by regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office."

In order to carry the foregoing into effect, the following regulations are prescribed for your observance, viz.:

When one or more settlers on public lands shall apply to the Surveyor General of the district within which such lands are situated, for the survey of a particular township, at his or their expense, that officer shall furnish to said applicant or applicants two separate estimates, one being the cost of the subdivisional survey of the surveyable portion of the entire township, and the other to cover the expense of platting the survey as required by the 10th section, act of May 30, 1862, and the resolution explanatory of the same of July 1, 1864 (U. S. Laws, vol 12, p. 410, and vol. 13, p. 414, respectively).

Settlers availing themselves of the provisions of the above quoted section shall deposit with a United States designated depositary, to the credit of the U. S. Treasurer, on account of surveying the public lands and clerk hire in the Surveyor General's office, in the district in which their claims are situated, the sums estimated as aforesaid, as the cost of the field and office work.

The Surveyor General will take precaution to estimate adequate sums, thereby preventing any deficiency in payment of deputy surveyor, as well as for clerk hire involved in the service.

Where several settlers desire the survey of the same township, the necessary deposits to cover all expenses of the survey and platting may be so subdivided as to be proportionate to the amount of lands within the township claimed by each settler; this, however, is a matter to be regulated by parties applying for such surveys; but all applicants should be informed that the law makes no provision for the refunding of any excess of the deposit over the value of the lands taken. The excess, however, if any, over and above the actual cost of the survey in the field and office work, will be refunded as heretofore, under the resolution of Congress of July 1, 1864 (U. S. Laws, vol. 13, p. 414).

No certificate of deposit can be received in payment by the Receiver for more than the cost of the land at Government price, and when the certificate is for more than that amount the Receiver will indorse the amount for which it is received, and will charge the United States with that sum only, not as cash, but in the manner prescribed in the last paragraph of these instructions, and not with the sum named on the face of the certificate.

The Surveyor General in all cases will be careful to express upon the Register's township plat the amount deposited by each individual, the cost of the survey in the field and office work, and in case of excess of deposit over and above the field and office work, to mention the amount that is to be refunded and to whom. The Surveyor General will also furnish this office immediately with like information.

The Receiver in accepting certificates of deposit will be guided by the data expressed upon the township plat, and particularly in cases where a portion of the sum deposited is to be refunded to the depositor.

Where the amount of deposit is, however, less than the cost of the land, the certificate will of course be received at its face value, subject to the deduction therefrom of the sum to be refunded as aforesaid, and the remainder of cost of land paid for in cash.

Assuming that the estimated cost of survey (both office and field work) is $850, which amount the party deposits, and the actual cost is $800; the party will be entitled, under the act of July 1, 1864, to the $50 thus deposited in excess of the actual cost of the field and office work; but he will not be entitled to the return of the $600 deposited in excess of the Government cost of one hundred and sixty acres at $1 25 per acre (amounting to $200).

If, however, there are several applicants, the amount deposited by each can be equitably arranged among themselves, provided, of course, the aggregate deposits cover the estimated expenses of the survey and incidental clerk hire.

The Surveyor General shall distinctly state to the applicant that the application for survey and depositing of the money will give no preference right to the land where adverse claims exist, and that all contests relative to lands applied for, whenever they arise, must be investigated and passed upon by the proper local land office before pre emption entry can be allowed or the deposit credited to the depositing settler, as the benefits conferred by the act of Congress approved March 3, 1871, hereinbefore cited, inure exclusively to pre-emptors under existing laws.

In making his monthly and quarterly returns, the Receiver shall designate the lands in payment of which certificates of deposits were used by settlers under the law, describing separately in his receipts the amounts of such payments and the balances paid in cash if any occur, crediting the United States in said returns with the acres and purchase money of the lands embraced by the class of entries alluded to, and immediately opposite such entries debiting the United States with said certificate of deposit, which must accompany quarterly returns as vouchers, at the same time being careful to give the number of the certificate, date, amount, by whom and with whom deposited, and the actual sum for which it was received.

Very respectfully,

WILLIS DRUMMOND,
Commissioner.

To the Surveyor General, Registers and Receivers.

A New Volcano in Lower California.

Moleje is a name given to a town in Lower California situated on a bay of the same name opening into the Gulf of California, about midway between the mouth of the Colorado river and Cape San Lucas. Moleje was so called from an Indian camp found there by the Jesuits some time earlier than the year 1730. The distance to Moleje from this city by the old Spanish mission road leading to Cape San Lucas is about 670 miles. The bay is almost 20 miles wide, and has an average breadth of about five miles. After La Paz, farther south, it is considered the best bay on the eastern coast of Lower California. It is famous for the extent of its pearl oyster banks, and was resorted to by the divers from the Sinaloa coast as far back as the time of Cortez. The country in the vicinity of Moleje is rich in deposits of argentiferous galenas, and pure sulphur occurs there in abundance. Copper and other minerals are said to be plentiful. We are in receipt of information from Moleje to the effect that recently a volcano was discovered within twenty leagues from the town, and between two and three leagues from the gulf coast, and about the same distance from the old Spanish Mission road. On the mountain side are over twenty vent holes from which smoke is emitted in jets a yard or more above the surface. Lower down the side of the mountain than these vent holes, streams of water issue forth.—San Diego Union.

The Malva.

Farmers tell us that this tree recently praised so highly in The Alta, grows in this county, and is not of value, but rather the reverse. It does not grow to any great size, and is of very little account for purposes of fuel. Stock will eat the leaves, but do not thrive on them. They do not answer as feed for milch cows. In a word, the malva tree is considered by many a nuisance, which they have great difficulty in weeding out of their cornfields.—Los Angeles Express.

Surveys.

The Fox surveying party has completed the survey of a line through San Jacinto potrero and San Gorgonio. They remained for several days with Mr. Estudillo at his ranch. They profess to believe in the existence of an understanding between Stanford and Tom Scott.—San Bernardino Guardian.

Don't Like it.

The German papers publish severe strictures on President Grant's inaugural message, and regard it as insulting to monarchical Governments.

—A number of young ladies at Yonkers, N. Y., have decided to organize a club under the name of Mermaids, with the view of engaging in aquatic sports.

Heavy Forgeries.

"The old lady of Threadneedle street," as the Bank of England is termed, has lately been heavily victimized by some American sharpers, led by one Frederick Warren. London papers of the 3d and 4th instant give the following details, though later dates put the total amount of losses at higher figures—$500,000:

It was discovered on Saturday that bills to an enormous amount had been forged upon all the principal houses in London, and that bills had been discounted at the Western branch of the Bank of England, Burlington Gardens, which does an entirely different kind of business from the parent establishment in the city. It is intended for the convenience of gentlemen and ladies and West End tradesmen who might find it inconvenient to journey to the city in order to transact their occasional business. It is not, therefore, ordinarily connected with the large bill transactions of city commerce, and in consequence is less bound by strict regulations in dealing with any business of that nature which might accidentally be brought to it. The conspirators must have been aware of this, and laid their plans for approaching the Bank of England by this weaker portion of its defense.

Warren, an American, who managed the plot, was in no hurry, and took care to gain a good footing before he ventured on his ultimate enterprise. He behaved for some time just like an ordinary customer of good resources. He drew upon his balance and renewed it, but kept it always at a good figure. After a while he deposited some bills: they were good and genuine bills. Still he was careful not to be hasty, and he continued his transactions with the bank until he had acquired the reputation of a person engaged in legitimate commerce, and of being throughly trustworthy.

At length the moment came for the presentation of the forged bills. They were discounted without hesitation, and the authors of the fraud had to all appearances succeeded in safely pocketing about £100,000. All these arrangements were masterpieces of ingenuity and patience, but the bills themselves must have required a great amount of labor. In the first place, many of the large firms upon whom the bills purported to be drawn, are in the habit of issuing a peculiar kind of paper, with certain water-marks and printed matter. All this would have to be imitated, and as the bills were drawn on more than one firm, there must have been several imitations. There remained the drawing of the bills and affixing of the signatures, and each bill must have required a series of feats in successful forging. Some of the bills were backed by several acceptors, so that there might easily be as many as half a dozen signatures on a single bill; yet the bills were so perfect that not one of them was questioned on the ground of the acceptances not appearing genuine.

But the men who had exerted a skill, foresight and perseverance sufficient to insure the unhesitating acceptance of these forged bills could not escape one trivial blunder which revealed the whole plot. They presented two bills in which the date of acceptance had been omitted. Inquiry was of course made of the firm whose acceptance was thus undated, and it was discovered that the bills were not genuine, and the whole series were then found to be forgeries.

—Thirty years ago a man entered the city of New York in an almost penniless condition and without a single acquaintance in the great wilderness of houses. To-day his name is known wherever humanity breathes. It is spoken in every hamlet, is known in every city and is as familiar to the workers in the mines as to his brother in the mills, and wherever language is known and ideas expressed the name of this penniless, unknown and uncouth lad of thirty years ago is uttered. It was John Smith.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENTS.

Three thousand tons of base bullion have been shipped from this county within the past twelve months, the product of three small furnaces running on Cerro Gordo ores. In Utah Territory, whose mines have a world-wide celebrity, the total number of tons of bullion shipped in the same period was but six thousand tons, or only twice as much from Utah's forty furnaces as from Inyo's three. Notwithstanding this favorable showing, Inyo is hardly ever mentioned as a mining country—in fact it is scarcely known at all except as a place where they get up some number one earthquakes, which, by the way, are not half as dangerous or so numerically fatal as the avalanches in those same Utah mines. Parties thoroughly familiar with all, unhesitatingly declare that the Union mine in Cerro Gordo is a bigger, more productive and consequently more valuable mine in every respect than either the famous Emma or Flagstaff of Utah. Yet who, outside of the county, knows where the Union mine is, and who don't know all about the Emma? One is near a railroad and, of course, near the center of the world; the other, though in a much better country in many respects, is two or three hundred miles from any where, and that is all there is to account for the prominence of one and the apparent insignificance of the other. This, however, will all come out right ere long.

A Farmers' Union.

The San Joaquin farmers have formed "The Farmers' Co-operative Union of San Joaquin Valley." The capital stock is fixed at $300,000, divided into three thousand shares of $100 each. The sum of $19,000 was subscribed on the spot, and $11,000 afterwards. The object of the association is to procure grain sacks for its members and to devise a plan of getting produce to domestic and foreign markets without having it to go through the hands of so many middlemen. These clubs are springing up all over the State, and are doing much good. Members profit by the knowledge and experience of each other, which is drawn out by free discussion and general consultation. The good results to ensue from this need no extended comment.

Novel Method of Prospecting.

Gen. Williams, of Virginia, Nevada and Mr. Schultz, of the Bullion mine are trying a new method of prospecting for ore. On some level ground situated half a mile east of the Ophir works, they have set up some machinery similar to that used in sinking artesian wells, and have commenced boring for ore. The boring is done with a diamond drill about two inches in diameter A miniature shaft has already been sunk to the depth of 400 feet. If the artesian plan of searching for ore proves a success, it will have a tendency to revolutionize present methods of prospecting; the idea is not an entirely new one, however.

An Indication.

President Grant is reported saying that no changes will take place in the Cabinet beyond that which Boutwell's resignation will occasion. Nevertheless, his financial policy will not be changed. He hopes to see a republic in Spain well established, and thinks that by the end of the year the independence of Cuba will be secured. No trouble is expected with the Haytiens, and the President thinks that the Samana Bay scheme will result in the development of that country, so that our Government will ultimately annex it for something like ten or fifteen millions.

Women's Rights.

We are in receipt of a copy of The Woman's Journal, published at Boston, Chicago and St. Louis, under the editorship of Julia Ward Howe, Lucy Stone and others of more or less note among the "suffragists." It is a square, consistent advocate of the educational, industrial and political rights of woman, and being free from the taint of immorality distinguishing other journals of its class, challenges a fair consideration of its side of the question.

Another Ocean Cable.

A new cable is about to be laid between Plymouth, England, and Rye Beach, New Hampshire. Its charter prevents any consolidation with existing companies, and as a result cheaper cablegrams will ensue.

Ventura County.

At the election for county officers in the new county of Ventura, the Democratic ticket carried the county by a small majority.

POLITICAL.

As in years past, the greatest interest and warmest contest of the political fight of this Fall will center upon the question of the United States Senatorship, the winning man, in this instance, to succeed Eugene Casserly, whose official term expires March 3, 1875. Already the partisan papers of the State are discussing the outlook, each from its own stand-point, and local journals are warming up to the subject of nominations and how to make them. Congressional Representatives are not to be chosen until 1874, but a general election of State and county officers (with the exception of Governor and executive officers) occurs on the first Wednesday in September next, followed by a judicial election on the third Wednesday of October.

Newton Booth and Eugene Casserly are the rising men of the respective parties for the Senatorship, though there is a general weakening and disposition to sunder party lines as they have stood for the past decade. The great railroad and monopoly influences will make almost unheard of efforts to defeat, with somebody, both of the gentlemen mentioned, but so far as we have observed, their prospective candidate is yet but vaguely mentioned. Casserly is to-day one of the most honored men in Congress, his unsullied record standing out the brighter from the dark surroundings; and his unwearying and generally successful efforts in behalf of his constituency have well earned for him a favorable support. Of Booth's well known enmity to grabbers it is unnecessary to speak, and in view of the general growth of a sentiment hostile to the profligate legislation which now marks the times, we doubt not but that one or the other will be called upon to "stand off" Sargent in the Senate.

In the contest for local, county officers—beyond the regular nominations by parties—we do not believe that anything like strict partisan dogmas can be made to prevail, or strict party men be made to win solely on account of their politics. Little talk has been indulged in, but so far the unusual spectacle is presented of leaders in both parties appearing indisposed to make contests upon purely political grounds, and unless equally good men are placed upon both tickets the votes will run no nearer "straight" than at the last election.

The date for making nominations is yet some time to come, and suggestions may be in order as to how such candidates shall be put up. In view of the premises, our vote would be for one or both parties to do away for once with the rotten convention system, and make the principal nominations on the primary system, or the "Crawford county plan." We think the public would be interested in some opinions on the subject, and for this purpose our columns are open to all hands.

APPLETON'S CYCLOPÆDIA.

We are in receipt from the well known New York publishing house of D. Appleton & Co., Appleton's New American Cyclopædia, complete in sixteen volumes of about 1,000 pages each. The work was published under the supervising editorship of George Ripley and Charles A. Dana, and, since 1857, has received the attention of about all the noted or special class writers and historians of America. It has been said of this work that the authors have undoubtedly accomplished their aim, i. e., "an acurrate and impartial account of the development of opinion in the exercise of thought, of the results of physical research, of the prominent events in the history of the world, of the most significant productions of literature and art, and of the celebrated individuals whose names have become associated with the conspicuous phenomena of their age." Throughout the work presents indisputable evidence of the most exhaustive research and inquiry, and its exactness makes it of the greatest value as a compendium of universal knowledge. Some reviewers have accredited it with possessing a greater perfection than the "Encyclopædia Brittanica," and it certainly does present facts more pointedly and compactly than that ponderous affair, constituting a small library in itself and gracefully touching things in detail without spreading out a bewildering "paucity of information." John G. Hodge & Co., San Francisco, are the agents for this coast.

One More "Bloated."

John H. Dennis, of The Reese River Reveille, has been appointed County Commissioner of Lander, vice somebody resigned. His partner mournfully bewails John's determination not to have any more thieving bills allowed The Reveille office.

Hefty.

A steal of $800,000 has been unearthed in the New Orleans Postoffice, and a whole host of the thieves placed under arrest.

ARTESIAN WELLS.

We have had occasion heretofore to refer to the practicability of and immense advantages to be derived from the boring of artesian wells in this valley; and, in view of their importance as demonstrated in localities elsewhere, will again refer to the subject. Taking the natural features of the country into consideration, it is hardly possible that boring would not result in flowing wells. The permanent advantages of such property needs no enlargement to illustrate their value—further than the obvious fact that almost every acre of land in the valley can be brought under cultivation and made productive by this method. We believe that there is no country in the world, of equal extent, which presents topographical features so favorable to their success as this. A spring is a natural artesian well, and in view of the great numbers of them, who shall say that we cannot introduce and utilize at will the inexhaustible supplies of pure water now lying in the lakes on the summits of the mountains? In Los Angeles county, according to The Express, the number of flowing artesian wells is steadily increasing, and as a natural and beneficient consequence, the area of cultivation is being considerably extended. The latest successes in boring are reported from the Cayote rancho, on the Anaheim road, where water has been obtained at a depth of one hundred and thirty feet. In the same neighborhood there were already a number of other flowing wells. Every supply of water thus obtained is of great value to the county, giving a new impetus to the blessed work of irrigation. Other parties, in different localities, are boring for water, with a good prospect of success. The day will come when, by means of the wells thus obtained and the more careful and judicious use of the springs and running streams, every foot of their agricultural lands will be brought under regular cultivation.

There being no question as to the success of a venture in the artesian well business, it only remains to be considered how an experiment of the kind is to be got under way and carried to completion. It has been proposed, and unless a more favorable plan be hit upon, will doubtless be carried out, that a reservoir be constructed some 3,500 feet above Independence, and from this lead to town a complete set of mains and pipes for a supply of water for fire and domestic purposes, at a total cost of about $5,000. The water flowing through town is owned by private parties, who propose to accept a bonus from the citizens of $4,500, put in the pipes and sell water for domestic purposes and donate that required for the extinguishment of fires. We have no estimate of the cost of an artesian well of 200 feet (we are firm in the belief that a flowing well could be obtained at a much less depth), but presume that its cost would not be more than $1,500. For the sake of the immediate advantages and as an experiment so fraught with interest to every citizen of the county, suppose that our townspeople club together, get boring apparatus and sink a well within the limits of the town. A tank could be erected at any desired hight from the ground, and abundant pressure obtained for supplying fire-hydrants, dwelling houses and say a fountain in Court House square—while the surplus could go to the irrigation of land.

Wells in London supply 12,000,000 gallons daily; one in Paris 500,000 gallons in 24 hours; one in Bavaria, 1,878½ feet deep, throws a body of water 4 inches in diameter 58 feet high. These wells are common in New York, Pennsylvania and Virginia, and our readers are familiar with their success and value in the coast counties of the State. In no case recorded are the natural features of the country so favorable for flowing or fountain wells as this, with the snowy mountains rising to an altitude of 12,000 feet immediately west of the valley. The proposition resolves itself to this: We can add untold wealth to the agricultural interest by demonstrating the feasiblity of the artesian plan for obtaining water; we can save our town from its otherwise inevitable fate of destruction by fire, and reduce insurance rates to a minimum—and make Independence the comeliest town east of the Sierras. Somebody investigate and figure, and report to the public through these columns.

Cole and Nye.

The New York Herald's Washington correspondent thus refers to the diplomatic trundle bed for two Pacific coast ex-Senators: It is reported that Senator Cole will, shortly after the expiration of his term, be nominated by the President as Minister to either Portugal or Holland; also that Senator Nye will probably be nominated Minister to China, though his friends deny this, and he is understood to desire the appointment as Minister to Austria.

Swift Justice.

On the 15th instant one Matt Tarpey brutally murdered in cold blood, near Watsonville, Mrs. Nicholson, the wife of a neighbor. The event created a degree of excitement rarely experienced in the State outside of our larger towns or cities. There had been some dispute about the possession of a house and the ownership of land. Mrs. Nicholson, a quiet and peaceable person—at all events, she was a woman—was passing quietly along the highway, and was attacked, without notice, by this armed fiend; and though begging for her life, and supplicating that he would not murder her, he deliberately shot her down—a cold-blooded, deliberate, inhuman and most dreadful murder. The utter absence of all justification, the cool and brutal manner of the murderer, all combined to arouse the people. They resolved at the grave of the murdered woman that her murder should not go unavenged. A vigilance committee seems to have been organized by them. Large numbers of men both from Santa Cruz and Monterey counties congregated at Monterey, to which place Tarpey had been taken, with the avowed purpose of administering summary justice. These men collected from within a circle of thirty or forty miles. On the following Monday they visited the jail, tied the Sheriff, took Tarpey from jail, and after conveying him three miles from town hanged him to a tree.

Dissatisfied.

The English papers are doing a great deal of heavy growling over the fact that while the Geneva tribunal compelled Great Britain to pay us $15,000,000 damages, Congress proposes to pay out only $12,000,000 to the Alabama claimants and keep the rest for the benefit of the Government. They hold that this is a bit of sharp practice; that if the real claims amounted to only $12,000,000 and we received $15,000,000, we cheated England out of the balance and ought to return it to her. Certainly, of course, remarks an exchange, we ought to be honest if we are poor. The people will smole ghastly smiles at the idea of expecting honesty from under the shades of Credit Mobilier. The penitent thieves' conscience fund isn't big enough yet.

Aztectan Relics.

Col. Roberts has discovered wonderful remains of a city in Arizona. The city covers about three square miles. It is surrounded by a wall of sandstone, "neatly quarried and dressed," ten or twelve feet thick, and originally—judging by the talus—fifteen or twenty feet high. Within are the walls of houses, temples and markets, all of solid stone, and showing excellent masonry. These walls bear numerous hieroglyphics, cut deeply into the stone. The whole of the ruins, like most of those of the Orient, and more especially those of Arabia and Assyria, are more or less buried in sand. According to the account, this city is some ninety miles from the boundary between Utah and Arizona, and an equal distance from the Western Colorado line.

Man and Brother.

The Indian agent who was appointed on the Christian principle to make peace with the Shoshones, is not as philanthropic as he used to be. As soon as the treaty had been signed, the principal chief conducted him to a wigwam and made him change shirts on the spot. He pleaded that the chief had the most valuable garment; but it was of no use. The chief had worn it for two years without ever taking it off; and now the agent must be his brother and make the exchange, or be killed by him. The agent finally consented, put on the shirt, and took the next train for a civilized region.

Hanged.

If Foster, the murderer of Putnam, could be summoned from the spirit world and made to reply to interrogations, he would probably contradict, to some extent, his statement that "hanging is played out in New York." At Philadelphia, McElhaney, the wife-murderer, was executed March 21.

He Went for Wool and Got Shorn.

F. F. Gallardo is still in the County Jail on a bench warrant from the County Court of Inyo county. He sent a writ of habeas corpus to a person in San Francisco to have it presented to the Supreme Judges to get an order that it issue, but as yet has received no response.—Sac. Union, March 22.

—A Cincinnati man who suspected his servant girl of using kerosene oil to kindle the fire with, thought he would try her, so he poured the oil out and filled the can with water. When he landed in the dining room the next morning there was no breakfast and no fire to cook it with—nothing but a stove full of soaked wood and the foolishest looking girl he ever saw.

—Here is a letter from a sorrowful mother to The Chicago Times: "What am I to do? My little two-year-old darling is baptized Schuyler Colfax Pomeroy Horton. Was ever a child so afflicted?" And what can we do?

Pacific Coast Items.

In Booneville, Mendocino county, Bill Burke deliberately murdered John B. Owen, his brother-in law, by shooting him with a pistol. Jealousy. It is stated that twenty-four murders have been committed in that county within seven years. One unlucky cuss got hung.

A recent case in Oakland has been occupying the attention of the bay papers for some days, the sickening details of which they spread before their readers with all the gusto imaginable. It appears that one Gordon was arrested for the crime of incest with his daughter, a girl of 13, on a charge preferred by a man named Robinson, a lover of the girl. An intense public excitement was engendered, and for a time it was thought that Gordon would be lynched. At the examination Robinson and the girl swore most pointedly to all the details of the revolting crime, but the more weighty testimony proved a conspiracy, and caused the arrest of Robinson on charges of rape, perjury and conspiracy, upon which he will probably for the rest of his life have an opportunity to concoct jobs in the State Prison. After withstanding the examination the girl, who seems to be a devil incarnate, confessed and made a full expose of the plot.

The Virginia and Gold Hill Water Company expect to commence the work of constructing their big aqueduct from the Sierras to the Washoe mountains about the first of next month.

A mining firm working on Squirrel creek, Plumas county, are taking big pay out of their claims. They appear to have struck the old channel, and it is thought they have an almost inexhaustible supply of rich coarse gold. Among the gold recently cleaned up was a nugget weighing $127; most of the gold is in pieces of from 25 cents to $2 50.

Copper ore, charged with silver, has been found on the island of Coronados, sixteen miles from San Diego.

Money has been subscribed at Olympia to pay the expense of connecting Black Lake with Budd's Inlet by a canal. The fall of 137 feet will furnish a fine water power. The canal will tap one of the finest timber regions on Puget sound, and will float saw logs to navigable waters.

The running expenses of the San Francisco schools is $671,000 per annum, or an average of over $36 to each pupil.

The deficiency appropriation bill appropriates $8,222,828. The total appropriations of the present session of Congress as proposed amount to $181,006,136 29.

Horace F. Clark, President of the Union Pacific Railroad, has issued an order prohibiting deadheadism and free pass traveling.

The ship Chacabuco, from San Francisco for Liverpool, collided near Ormeshead with the steamer Torch and quickly sunk. A portion of her crew were saved. Among those who were lost were some of the wrecked crew of the Aculeo, who had sailed from San Francisco to return home. The Torch also sunk, but not until all on board were saved except one of the crew, who was inclosed in a portion of the wreck and could not be rescued. He thanked the men for their efforts in his behalf and said he was resigned to his fate.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

THE SUBSCRIBER TAKES PLEASURE IN announcing to the people of Inyo county that he has purchased and fitted up as a hospital the Beaudry Hotel Building, adjoining the military post at Camp Independence. All the adobes have been removed and their place supplied with lumber; the grounds are handsomely laid out with shade trees and clover, and have a pure running stream of mountain water.

There is an excellent bath room and dispensary attached. One room is set aside for the county's sick, leaving ample room for private patients. The Northern Stage Line passes the door, and the place is easy of access from the town of Independence. The charges for board and lodging do not exceed those of any hotel or boarding house, offering equal accommodations, and the establishment has the advantage of having competent help and medical advice always at hand, being close by the house of the post surgeon at the camp.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

A Little Pasear.

The other day the senior of this institution took a little run down to Lone Pine and Cottonwood Creek, fifteen miles below. He wasn't in search of items this time, but will record a few brief observations. Since the date of his last visit quite a large number of good buildings have been erected in Lone Pine. The new school house is not entirely completed owing to the non-arrival of lumber long over due. When finished and painted up it will be the best in the county, and is well fitted up with good furniture made in San Francisco, and well suited to the requirements. The number of pupils attending school is about forty-five, the largest number, we believe, of any of our schools. Mr. McKay, the teacher, is well qualified in every respect, we are told, and very popular. Of the three hotels we can only speak of one from personal observation this time—the "Union"—the stage house, kept by F. P. Ball, who is one of the most accommodating landlords in the country. The house is quite new, hardly finished, and is doing a good business, as also were the others, the "Orleans," and "Lone Pine," both newly fitted and in new hands. Dr. Gelcich, at the "Inyo Drug Store," is in occupation of his new quarters—store and residence combined—which with a little additional finishing will be the nicest and about the best building there. Though times are extremely dull in Lone Pine, as everywhere else just at present, the Doctor and everybody is extremely hopeful as to the future, and certainly with good reason for numerous reasons. Dan Williams has vacated the large and commodious saloon recently occupied by him, in favor of Bob Peterson, who is opening out on the broad guage, which Williams also proposes to do in a new building in another portion of the town. However, we don't design a detailed account of all we observed during our short stay there, and will only say that save a growl now and then about dull times, chargeable mostly to the epizoo, everybody seemed to have entirely recovered from all fears and doubts, superinduced by certain adverse circumstances, dating back for commencement just one year previous. Even Charley Begole and John Alec. were smiling and satisfied and full of business, so Lone Pine is bound to go ahead without doubt. The Cottonwood enterprise must eventually tend greatly to the advantage of Lone Pine, and especially to the ranchers in its vicinity. Of the Cottonwood flume there is but little to be said now. Except building trails and preparing for sawing lumber, both of which is now going on, there is little that can be done until the, machinery arrives which is now en route. As soon as that arrives the mill will be put to work in some good fir timber in the canyon seven miles and a half from the lake shore, which will be the length of flume required to furnish any quantity of wood—perhaps 20,000 cords. The mill will then be moved two and a half miles further up so as to command an unlimited expanse of timber for all purposes. The trail which Col. Stevens is building is now nearly completed to the latter point, and on a most surprisingly easy grade. His flume is bound to be a success, and is as certainly bound to give a considerable impetus to business of all kinds about Cerro Gordo, Lone Pine and the lake, and proportionately elsewhere throughout the county.

Hungarian Grass.

We are in receipt of a package of Hungarian grass seed from Mr. B. F. Wallace of Visalia. It is stated of this grass that it will produce more and better hay per acre than any other. It has made as much as eight tons per acre at a single cutting, and a good second and even third crop is often made where the moisture is sufficient. It is a surer late crop than any other, its time for sowing being from March until May after the frost is over. In this valley good hay is high and scarce, principally for the reason that heretofore fencing or guarding a hay ranch has been necessary to obtain a good crop. Under the operations of the present stock law the cultivation of grass for hay ought to be very profitable, and an examination of the Hungarian would doubtless repay the trouble. We understand that Messrs. Harris & Rhine are acting as agents for Mr. Wallace.

Rich Specimen.

Frank Helling, of Gold Mountain, a few days since exhibited to us one or two of the finest specimens of gold ore that we have seen for many a day. They were selected pieces from the Golden Leaf, a claim belonging to Roth, Smith & Helling, and were literally loaded with lumps and flakes of gold. The ledge is from 2½ to 3 feet in width, all the ore being of a very high grade. It is stated that the Manhattan Company of Austin under the Presidency of Mr. Taylor, are about to build a mill at a point some two miles from the principal mines, where water can be readily obtained by sinking.

At Half-Mast.

Last Wednesday, March 26, was the first anniversary of the ever-to-be-remembered "Inyo" earthquake. Its mournful memories, we observed, were very appropriately commemorated in Lone Pine, as it should have been throughout the county generally, by a display of flags—Mexican, French and American—at half-mast.

The Water Supply in Cerro Gordo.

The Boushey Water and Mining Company of Cerro Gordo, have now on the way two powerful steam rams and 75 tons of iron for the water works at that place. The pipes, for which this iron is intended, are to be made on the ground, and when put in place, will be buried in a ditch three feet deep, or deep enough to avoid any danger from frost. The contract for this work has been taken by San Francisco parties, and the works are to be completed by next July. Messrs. Belshaw & Beaudry are now at work putting in their pump and pipes and expect to have the water in town in about two weeks. When these works are completed the camp will be well supplied with the element so essential to its proper development, but there is another thing to be done, the need of which is becoming more obvious every day, as it is admitted, before its legitimate degree of prosperity can be attained—for reasons sanitary the reduction works will have to be located on the lake shore, where there is an abundance of water for daily ablutions, the lack of which has caused more sickness in and about the furnaces than all other causes combined, without a reasonable doubt.

Mail Contract Let.

A contract has been awarded to J. Earl for carrying the mail once each week from Independence to Gold Mountain, via. Lida Valley. Mr. Earl has been carrying this mail regularly since January 1st, from which time we presume his present contract will date. It is said the amount of mail matter going over that route is nearly equal to that coming to this place, besides a heavy lot of gold and silver bullion by every return stage. Lida and Gold Mountain are rapidly becoming important places in public esteem, on a real and substantial basis. Mr. Earl is entitled to much credit for his enterprise and perseverance in furthering public interests in this section by securing the establishment of needed mail routes, and for keeping them stocked at a time when it involved considerable more outlay than receipts, on a very improbable chance of future recompense, but which, we are glad to say, he is now justly assured of.

Epizootic Remedy.

Although the epizooty has about disappeared from this section the following mode of treatment to prevent animals from choking to death, as they are liable to do at a certain stage of the distemper, may be of value. Affected horses after being driven hard and allowed to cool off suddenly will often die in a few minutes unless some active remedy is resorted to at once. According to Mr. George Warden's experience this never fails to give relief: Envelope the head of the animal, leaving the mouth and nose clear, and with a quantity of cow manure, dry and powdered, make a hot fire directly beneath. Give air as required and repeat if necessary. In a few moments the inhalation of the steam and smoke will produce such a copious discharge from the air passages as to give instant relief and all danger is past. The discharge thus produced will frequently be so great as to drown out the fire immediately.

Hospital.

In this country, where nine men out of ten have no other "home" than a boarding house, the matter of obtaining good care, comfortable accommodations and medical attendance when sick, is one of no little importance. Dr. C. B. White, Post Surgeon at Camp Independence, with commendable public spirit and enterprise, has established at one of the prettiest places in the county exactly the institution needed—where the forlorn "bach" can enjoy treatment and attentions next best to that administered by women relatives. Nuff ced. Read the Doctor's card elsewhere.

In Full Blast.

Notwithstanding the fact that the bullion has accumulated on their hands in such immense piles, through the lack of adequate transportation, all the furnaces—Belshaw's, Beaudry's and Van Arsdale's—have been and are likely to be kept in full blast all the time. As no returns are received on the bullion, in quantity months ahead of the teams, epizootic or no epizootic, these furnace men deserve some credit for their energy and "backbone" in keeping things going, otherwise piping dull times would become intensified indeed.

An Inyo Invention.

Mr. J. Inman, living near Lone Pine, has invented a hay press which is said by those who have seen it in operation to be superior to anything of the kind on the coast. If prepared to do so we should not feel at liberty to give a description of it at present, although he has already applied for a patent, and the press has been in use long enough to test its advantages. We hope the inventor may make it a big success.

In Full Operation.

The Telegraph Stage Line southward to the railroad, commenced on Monday last to make its regular trip, on time and carrying passengers. The detention mentioned last week continued but for a short time and everything runs along now as of yore.

Shingle Machine.

T. W. Hill and others have sent below for a shingle making machine, which they will put in operation at a point in Hill's timber claim. The enterprise is a good one, and ought to result in supplying this market with an abundance of good shingles at reduced figures.

To Meet.

The Honorable Board of Supervisors give notice of a special meeting to take place April 4. See notice.

Freight.

Shippers started out five teams from Los Angeles March 20, but were unable to state when they would get through, as those previously started were proceeding very slow:

The worthy Postmaster at Benton may be considered a success as the champion of inexcusable carelessness, as a mild way of putting it, as demonstrated by some of the little irregularities of his office. A few weeks since the through mail for Inyo was duly forwarded to Columbus or somewhere else. The down stage of Wednesday last, instead of bringing the through sack put up at the distributing office at Aurora, brought back the identical bag forwarded from here northward on the day before, and the mail for this county must have wended its weary way back to Aurora. We wouldn't care so much if it wasn't so hard to make up a newspaper without exchanges; and then our senior is a bloated office-holder, and is looking for instructions. Should like interruptions again occur, the people of this region will begin to wonder what kind of whisky is dispensed at Benton.

A Good Chance.

Persons throughout the valley needing the services of a good dentist will be glad to know that Dr. M. W. Parsons (of the well known firm of Fickett & Parsons, Stockton, and a brother of citizen Charley Parsons of Bishop), will spend a few days each in Bishop, Big Pine, Independence and Lone Pine, and will attend to all orders in his line in either of those places. Dr. Parsons has had twenty years' practice in dentistry and will give perfect satisfaction in all cases he undertakes, but as his stay will be but short, all who have old snags to worry 'em had better hurry up. Leave orders at the respective postoffices pending his arrival at the places mentioned.

Sickness.

Several persons about town are pretty severely afflicted with the epizoo, or some such trouble. Among the most seriously affected is Sam Crane, late of Darrah's stage line.

Another Bloated Officeholder.

J. L. Darrah, we observe, has been appointed Postmaster at Lida valley Though somewhat elevated, Darrah ain't stuck up, if he is a bloated what-do-you-call-'em.

One Hundred Thousand Buffalo Killed.

The station of Dodge City, on the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe road, is the principal point of shipment of the buffalo meat and hides in Kansas. They do very little there besides outfit hunters, barter and quarrel over their game, extinguish disputes and disputers at the point of arms, and have lively times generally. The arithmetic of the extinction of the bison of the plains is terrible, and if the statistics be right, it would seem that the flush times in meat and hides cannot last long. The railroad reached Dodge on the 23d of last September, and since that time 43,029 hides have been shipped, and in the same brief period 1,435,290 pounds of buffalo meat. Each hide counts a buffalo slain, and 43,000 hides in three months convey an idea of magnificent butchery that forecasts the speedy extinction of the prairie denizen. The buffaloes that are killed in Summer or early Autumn, in wanton cruelty, miscalled sport, and for food by the frontier residents, are not taken into this count. The greater portion of this meat has been shipped to Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago and other Eastern cities. The above figures, though indicating an immense slaughter, do not represent the total of this season's hunt. The grand total for the season of 1872-3, around Dodge will probably reach 100,000 head.—Denver News.

A Speck of War.

According to a dispatch from Mexico dated March 2d, a demand has been made by the British Government for damages from the Mexican Government on account of raids on the territory of Honduras. The demand is accompanied by a threat to invade Mexican territory if the claim for damages is denied. Mexico answers that a repetition of the raids will be guarded against, but that the claim for damages cannot be entertained. The Government hopes Great Britain will not carry out its threat of invasion, and avers that it has always fulfilled its international obligations as far as possible. If this dispatch is reliable, a conflict between the two countries seems probable. In such a war the United States might possibly take a hand. The general sentiment of both Americans and Mexicans will probably be annexation to the United States rather than conquest by England.—Sacramento Union.

—An absent-minded gentlemen, writing a letter at the breakfast table dipped his pen in his coffee and continued his letter. Noticing his mistake, he put a lump of sugar in the ink, and then his second blunder, poured the contents of the inkstand into the coffee pot to set it all right.

—It is said that the Chinese declare that Noah's real name was Ah Boo, and that he resided in Pekin.

—Among the numerous advantages of the Hoosac tunnel is a profuse outpouring from the rocks of mineral water, more active in quality than Saratoga's choicest tap, and sufficient in quantity to keep the workman drenched to the skin.

VARIETIES.

—The Chenango, N. Y. Democrat tells of an Ellington man who, while he was in a trance, thought that he had died, and found himself at a gate guarded by two angels, but that they allowed him to pass. He entered a room which was surrounded by doors. Here he met a sister who had died on the preceding May, and she was accompanied by two beautiful girls, to whom she presented him, telling him they were his sisters who had died before his remembrance, and had grown up in that beautiful place. They sang him a song and with some difficulty taught it to him. He recalls distinctly the tune and words, and sings them now, though neither he nor any of the family ever heard the words before. He also saw his brother-in-law there. As he did not see his mother-in-law, he thinks he must have been in heaven.

—Two Washington gents who live opposite each other wishing to take an early morning train, resorted to one of the devices of their boyhood, and run a cord across the street, each tying an end of it to his big toe, and solemnly agreeing that he who first awoke should arouse the other. But, alas! both overslept themselves, and the first down town car struck the cord and dragged them from their beds with lightning rapidity. The window sashes have been replaced in their rooms, and when their new boots with telescope additions are finished they will again take their walks abroad.

—The British estimate of the gain to the United States from the award by the Emperor of Germany on the San Juan boundary line ought to gratify us. This award "has only taken from us," an English journal says, "sixty-three thousand square miles of territory, and gold regions rich enough to set any number of limited companies afloat." The value to the United States of this acquisition is estimated by the same authority as at least twenty millions sterling.

—The restoration of the death penalty is agitated in Rhode Island. Capital punishment has been abolished there for nearly forty years. In view of the numerous murders committed recently, and the number of hangings consequently found necessary in various parts of the States, the perpetuation of the death penalty is not only much to be desired, but needs to be more rigidly enforced than it is.

—An exchange says: It is thought that if Diogenes should go prowling around the halls of Congress with his lantern about now, he would either get a head put on him or have his overcoat pockets stuffed with C. M. stock within ten minutes after he entered the house. Nothing but a calcium light and microscope would bring to light any traces of the class of men "Diog." searched for years ago.

—A lady who was urging some friends to stay to dinner, felt disgusted when her eight-year old boy came in and said: "Mrs. Jones says she can't spare no bread, and Mrs. Fox ain't to home, so I didn't get no butter." The friends thought they had better dine elsewhere and the lady thought so, too; but she taught that boy that the way of the transgressor was hard before evening.

—A Berlin despatch states that a settlement of the disputed question as to the rights of German naturalized citizens of this country who return to the fatherland is probable, by a modification of the naturalization treaty, so that a return and two years' continuous residence in Germany after having been naturalized in this country shall be held to be an abandonment of American citizenship.

—A Bostonian has devised a patent, improved, anti-swindling ballot box. By a mechanical contrivance the number of times a box is opened for the reception of ballots is marked. The register shows at all times the whole number of votes deposited, and as it records but one every time the box is opened, undetected stuffing is simply impossible.

—Out in Lancaster, Pa., there is a beautiful young widow who makes no secret of her feelings toward a young and rich bachelor of the vicinity. She says she loves the ground he walks on, as it's worth $2,000 an acre, and adores the house in which he lives, as it's got a brown stone front.

—Secretary Robeson stepped on a lady's train at a ball, and said when he discovered it: "Though I have not the power to draw a mortal from the skies, I have pinned an angel to the earth." He got the same beautiful saying off three times on the same night.

—Said a tipsy husband to his wife: "You need—needn't bl—blame me! 'Twas woman that first tempted man to eat forbidden things." "Woman may have tempted man to eat forbidden things," said the wife, "but he took to drinking of his own accord."

—A professional robber of hen roosts in Ohio testified in court, recently, that he could wring two chicken's necks with each hand at the same time and never permit a single squawk to escape the victim.

—Delphi, Ind., has the following dog ordinance: Dogs that are not collared and labelled, no matter how respectably they are connected, will have their ntrratives amputated one inch south of their ears.

—A youth having devoted himself to the special entertainment of a company of pretty girls for a whole evening, demanded payment in kisses, when one of them instantly replied, "certainly, sir; present your bill."

—It is said that the Chinese declare that Noah's real name was Ah Boo, and that he resided in Pekin.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

No More Sham Champagne.

[From The New York World.]

Although not ostensibly intended for a sumptuary regulation, the act providing a stamp duty upon imitation wines, bids fair to put an end to the trade in spurious champagne and leave the market open either to native production or the genuine foreign brands. The clause providing this duty forms Section 48 of the Internal Revenue act of July 20, 1868, as amended by the act of June 6, 1872, and went into effect on the 2d ultimo. The act provides that the so called "imitation wines" not made from grapes grown in the United States, and in which there was an "infusion of any matter in spirits," should be subject to a duty of 20 cents on the quart, in the shape of a stamp which was to be affixed to the cork of every bottle. This, of course, while it served for a profitable revenue, aimed directly at the spurious brands of champagne and other wines which had for their base cheap claret or sauterne "not made from grapes grown in the United States," which obtained their foam and sparkle from the infusion of spirits of some sort. The effect of the stamp duty would be to dub directly all those wines native, and the omission of the stamp would, of course, render them liable to seizure. Thus the "importer" of these various "Piper Heidsicks" and "Veuves Cliquots," if he avoided the Scylla of proclaiming himself a cheat, would run against the Charybdis of violating the Internal Revenue act. It was still left for the unscrupulous restaurateurs and hotel proprietors to purchase these counterfeit productions, and, removing the stamp, put them on their tables as genuine, but knowing them to be counterfeit, they would not be willing to pay remunerative prices, and again the importer would be loser. The enforcement of the regulation has worked like a charm. Although it is but little more than a month since the act went into effect, it is stated on good authority that all, or nearly all, the manufacturers of imitation wines in this city have gone out of the trade. They have not only discharged their men, but have removed their machinery and leased their premises formerly occupied in the distillation of the cheat. There will necessarily be many and successful attempts to evade the law, and the manufacture of the imitation will be continued in underground and out-of-the-way distilleries but the amount so manufactured will be but a small proportion of the myriad baskets of the same which have heretofore continually been made. Should the law be strictly enforced the market in time will be entirely freed from the hurtful imitations of the harmless products of France. The act does not, of course, apply to wine made with grapes grown in the United States, but is so construed that the introduction of carbonic acid gas after bottling is regarded as an "infusion of matter in spirits" so that the modern mode of manufacture becomes liable to the tax. It is thus construed in the interests of various wine companies of the West, who manufacture after the old method, and thus avoid the tax.

Great Gypsum Discovery.

About seventy five miles south of Pioche a discovery has been made of immense deposits of pure gypsum. They were found a few days ago by Joseph Mayot of this city. A fine specimen of the deposits is now before us. It is a white laminated mass with satin lustre. Pure gypsum, such as we take the specimen before us to be, carries nearly fifty per cent. of sulphuric acid, the balance of its substance being lime and water, the former predominating. It is of volcanic origin, being the product of sulphur gases escaping and the lime of decomposing lavas. In the Mammoth cave of Kentucky, gypsum is found in the form of rosettes or flowers, vines or shrubbery. Burned and ground it forms the plaster of Paris. We cannot see any immediate source of wealth in these Lincoln county deposits; in the future, however, they may become valuable.—Pioche Record.

—A musical burglar—One who breaks into a tune.

A New Musical Instrument.

Several years ago an ingenious person invented a steam musical instrument that could be played by being connected with the steam pipe of a boiler, like a music-box, or by keys like a piano. Many steamers on the Western rivers connected these instruments with their steam pipes, and the new contrivance known as the calliope discoursed popular airs to delight their passengers on their trips. One of the boats recently plying across the bay had one of these instruments fitted up, which was played as she neared either Oakland or San Francisco, and the music of steam inspired pleasant thoughts in the minds of the impatient passengers.

In Ipswick (England), recently, at a meeting of a local scientific body, says an exchange, a Mr. Ford Goddard exhibited an ingenious contrivance, invented and constructed by himself, which he called the "Flame-Organ." The principle utilized in his instrument is that hydrogen gas, when burnt in a tube, emits a musical note, owing to the vibrations caused by the rapid and regular explosion of the gas, with the air rushing into the tube. The same results were obtained before the Royal Institution with ordinary coal gas. The flame-organ exhibited at Ipswich had twenty jets burning in tubes of different lengths, and proportionate sizes, made to produce a chromatic scale of notes. Each tube was capped with a valve which was opened by a connecting-rod attached to a digitorium, and thus beautiful chords could be struck, and simple melodies played at the will of the performer. Owing to the tubes being constructed of glass the action of the flame could be seen. Mr. Goddard, the inventor, played "Home, Sweet Home," and other familiar airs, and his audience were delighted with the correctness and sweetness of the music.

Painful Accident.

We regret to learn that our friend Dr. S. G. George, well known in this county, met with a distressing accident about twenty five miles east of Porterville, in the mountains, one day last week. He was in company with some others engaged in viewing the route of the proposed road to the Owens river country, and one day while out with his rifle espied a deer some distance from him. He followed it, trying to get a shot, climbing steep hills and danger us cliffs of rocks. Finally, he raised his gun to his face to shoot, lifting his foot to step at the same moment. Having his eye on the deer, he missed his footing, it being very difficult to stand where he was even with all possible care, and fell over the cliff a distance of some twenty feet or more, breaking two of his ribs, cutting his head and face badly on the sharp rocks and otherwise injuring him. He succeeded in finding his way to camp, but remained prostrate and insensible for some time afterwards. We are glad to learn that he is now rapidly recovering.—Tulare Times, March 22.

A Suggestion.

A correspondent of The San Francisco Chronicle proposes an entirely original method of dealing with the Chinese question. He suggests the passage of "an immigration law making it imperative that at least two fifths of all bands of immigrants from other countries to this country shall consist of virtuous females. Our Consuls should be instructed to see that this law is complied with." As there are about two women to three men in the immigration from all European countries, he thinks such a law would only affect the Chinese. The fact that the Chinese here have no families depending upon them enables them to work cheaply, and does injustice to our working classes, who are unable to compete with the barbarians.

Eucalyptus.

Doctors are finding new uses for the Blue Gum tree. It appears that the natives of Australia use it as a styptic, in dressing bleeding wounds. French papers inform travelers that Eucalyptus cigars are sold at the railway stations, for the relief of asthmatics and consumptives. It appears that a preparation from the leaves and bark is being preferred by many physicians, as a substitute for quinine.

Considerate.

Young Willie (to whom dear grandpapa has just offered half a dollar): "No, thank you, grandad. You stick to it a bit longer and lay it out at interest and I'll get all the more when you pop off, old man."

—Three Albany young ladies attempted to find from a female friend the secret of a valentine, by doctoring her with ether, under the impression that under its influence she would respond to any interrogatories that might be put. The more ether they administered the more uncommunicative she became, and it was a hard struggle for the doctor's when called, to save the girl's life.

—Gen. Butler once scoffed at the Harvard College Museum of Comparative Zoology as "Agassiz's bug-shop." Prof. Tyndall pronounced it surpassing in completeness the British Museum, and superior to anything of the kind on the continent.

—The fashion editor of an English paper, in a report of a ball, describes the belle of the evening as "pale, pulpy and peaceful."

A Specimen Prime Minister.

[From Mark Twain's Tribune Letter.]

The "Royal Ministers" of Hawaii are natural curiosities. They are white men of various nationalities, who have wandered thither in times gone by. I will give you a specimen—but not the most favorable. Harris for instance. Harris is an American—a long-legged, vain, light-weight village lawyer from New Hampshire. If he had brains in proportion to his legs he would make Solomon seem a failure; if his modesty equaled his ignorance, he would make a violet seem stuck up; if his learning equaled his vanity, he would make Humboldt seem as unlettered as the back side of a tombstone; if his stature were proportioned to his conscience, he would be a gem for the microscope; if his ideas were as large as his words, it would take a man three months to walk around one of them; if an audience were to contract to listen as long as he would talk, that audience would die of old age; and if he was to talk until he said something, he would still be on his hind legs when the last trump sounded. And he would have cheek enough to wait till the disturbance was over, and go on again.

Such is, or was, His Excellency Mr. Harris, his late Majesty's Minister of This, That and The Other—for he was a little of everything; and particularly, and always he was the King's most obedient, humble servant, and loving worshipper, and his chief champion and mouthpiece in the parliamentary branch of ministers. And when a question came up (it didn't make any difference what it was), how he would rise up, and saw the air with his bony flails, and storm and cavort, and hurl sounding emptiness which he thought was eloquence, and discharge bile which he thought was satire, and issue dreary rubbish which he took for humor, and accompany it with contortions of his undertaker countenance which he believed to be comic expression!

He began in the island as a little, obscure lawyer, and rose (?) to be such a many-sided official grandee that sarcastic folk dubbed him "the wheels of the Government." He became a great man in a pigmy land—he was of the caliber that other countries construct constables and coroners of. I do not wish to seem prejudiced against Harris, and I hope that nothing I have said will convey such an impression. I must be an honest historian, and to do this in the present case I have to reveal the fact that this stately figure, which looks so like a Washington monument in the distance, is nothing but a thirty dollar windmill when you get close to him.

Harris loves to proclaim that he is no longer an American, and is proud of it; that he is a Hawaiin through and through, and is proud of that, too, and that he is the willing subject of his lord and master, the King, and is proud and grateful that it is so.

The Latest.

[From The Iowa City Press.]

The latest method of literary sensation is the scientific miracle. A French paper, anxious to exalt Gallic skill, furnished an account of the revivification of two dead Communists. The surgeon injected their veins with calx and then dessicated their bodies in a furnace. When they were nicely dried he laid them away for a few months, when they were brought out and their circulatory systems were injected with fresh blood. One of them had a talent for staying dead and dessicated, but the other came to himself and in a few days was the same fiery Communist he had been before.

This atrocious fable attracted some German ink slinger's attention and he determined that a greater miracle should be wrought by German science. Accordingly he announced that a soldier who was condemned to death was turned over alive to a noted German surgeon. The doctor waited until he got the fresh corpse of a simple beer seller who had died of the heart disease and left a healthy brain behind him; stocked up with this corpse, he chloroformed the soldier, sawed the top of his head off, neatly amputated his old brains, swabbed his skull out with glycerine and frescoed it with carbolic acid, and then filled it up with the peaceful brains of the beer seller. In fact he swapped brains, and exchanged Mars for Gambrinus. The soldier was brought out of his anæsthetic slumber and awoke a peaceable beer-seller. The beer-seller was not so lucky. Artificial respiration and the other appliances of science failed to restore him. This perhaps was as well, for he would have waked up a condemned soldier and been shot.

—Sunflowers are raised in Watowan county, Minn., for fuel. The oily seed in the flowers is found to make a hot fire, and the woody stock, when dried, furnishes a good substitute for timber, which is very scarce in that region. It is estimated that two acres will produce enough to last an ordinary family through a long Winter.

—A female student in a Michigan medical college, getting tired of living single, bought a man for $20 last month. He was dead, and she wanted him to cut up and study over, a piece at a time.

A Reporter Arrested.

Robert D. Bogart was arrested in San Francisco recently by order of the Secretary of the Navy, on a charge of having embezzled $30,000 from the United States Government. It seems that while Bogart was on board the receiving ship Vermont, at New York, some two or three years ago he embezzled $30,000 from the Paymaster's clerk. He had a trial at that time, but nothing could be proved against him. He was afterwards arrested by the civil authorities, but soon again set at liberty, as they could not try him twice for the same offense. He then came to California and was employed on The San Francisco Chronicle, and is said to have written all the sharp, cutting articles that have appeared in that paper and in The New York Sun against the navy. As he was coming out of The Chronicle office he was arrested, and he is now confined on the receiving ship Independence. He was to be taken East in a few days, where he will be re-tried. His friends in San Francisco sued out a writ of habeas corpus returnable March 26, but it was doubtful if the Mare Island officials would pay attention to the writ. The manner of Bogart's arrest is severely animadverted upon by many newspapers.

The Land Office.

The Land Office at Aurora will be removed to this place the 1st of June next. Pending this removal no new business will be transacted at the Aurora office. All that pertaining to that portion of the former Aurora district lying in the State of Nevada will hereafter go to the office at Carson City. Due notice will be given by that office of its readiness to transact such business. These facts we learn through the press dispatches, no instructions, official or otherwise, having yet been received or developed with reference to the Registership of the new office, nor any definite account of the bounds of the Independence Land district, further than that it embraces all of the Visalia district lying east of range 32 east This line will run some 20 miles or more west of Independence and will therefore take into this district that portion of Kern County from Havilah (possibly including that town) eastward to the eastern boundary of the State.

The Funding Policy.

It is stated that the appointment of Judge Richardson as Secretary of the Treasury in place of Boutwell, resigned has another meaning besides adherence to the rule of civil service reform, namely: that Boutwell's new funding policy is to be maintained. The meaning of this is that as soon as practicable the whole debt of the United States is to be funded in bonds drawing interest at five, four and a half and four per cent., and running for a long term of years. It is said that the President desires the country to consider the appointment of Richardson in this light as well as in the interest of civil service reform.

The Artesian Wells a Success.

Several accounts unite in stating that the experiment of sinking artesian wells on the line of the Union Pacific Railroad is becoming a success. Six of these wells have been sunk and are flowing freely. There is to be one well in every 108 miles over the entire line. The respective depths range from 300 to 1,145 feet, and the bore is six inches in diameter. The water as a general thing is a fair article, slightly impregnated, however, with alkali, soda, magnesia and lime, but not rendering the beverage unhealthy.

What Made him Kill his Wife.

The last words of George Driver, who was hung in Chicago a few days since for the murder of his wife, would make an excellent text for a temperance tract. Seizing the rope, and holding it up before those who assembled to see him executed, he said: "Whisky did this for me. When any of you take a drink of whisky hereafter, think of this rope and remember my fate."

Sale of a Railroad.

It is announced that Tom Scott has purchased the Southern Pacific Railroad, whereat San Francisco rejoices very much, as Scott is the most thoroughgoing railroad man in the United States. The price paid was $5,000,000.

Adjourned.

The United States Senate adjourned sine die, March 26.

INDIAN MATTERS.

A few days since some Indians came in from Fish Lake and informed Major Egbert, Post Commander, Camp Independence, that white men were killing Indians out there, and asked for his protection. The Major at once started with his largest available command to the scene of the disturbances. We have received no further account of the matter as facts in detail sufficiently reliable to justify publication. From the statement of these Indian runners it is pretty evident that some lawless white men are doing their best to cause a serious disturbance with the Indians. It is quite possible they will be successful in their object, as aside from the killing of those Indians out at Fish Lake, all of those dwelling here are becoming alarmed concerning their prospective removal to the Tule river reservation. Many say that they will not go; that they will fight first, which they will, and small blame to them either if they should.

We earnestly advise the Indian Department to just let these Indians alone and avoid a far worse and more expensive war than that with the Modocs. If forced into it these Indians are capable of great mischief; if the thieving Indian agents will let them alone there will be no trouble. With few exceptions they are industrious, well disposed and contented. They are largely employed as laborers in various capacities and as such are almost indispensable in both field and kitchen. As such help they invariably receive their wages, it being considered a debt of honor with all their employers, and are paid strictly according to agreement. For these reasons the Indians are well satisfied and are in nobody's way nor is there anybody who wants their removal, but on the contrary are anxious for them to be allowed to remain as they are. By their honest earnings they, as a class, are enabled to live and dress well and many of them take pride in accumulating property. If treated right they will give no trouble, if imposed upon or compelled to do it, they can and will. They make a good living now free of cost to the Government. If the Government feels bound to encourage the farce of a support for them on a Reservation, the very best and cheapest thing the said Government can do, so far as these of Owens river are concerned anyhow, is for it to authorize these Indian agents to draw for the full amount of the funds appropriated for the removal and support of the Indians and let them put it in their pockets at once, without disturbing the objects of their solicitude(?).

It will be a thousand times cheaper more humane and more advisable to buy off those agents and contractors in this way, than to permit their further interference at such a cost in both money and blood. We advise this plan, because it is hardly possible to choke off these leeches any other way, but whether that is done or not, we surely hope no attempt will be made by either the Government or evil disposed persons in our midst to break up the present relations existing between the two races in this section. The necessity for such a removal or change may arise hereafter, but none such exists now or probably ever will, except through bad management.

A NEW ROAD.

The citizens of Round Valley are to hold a meeting this Saturday evening, we understand, for the purpose of devising ways and means to open a new road from that valley direct to Benton. Mr. B. H. Roberts proposes to build the road for the privilege of collecting a small rate of tolls, provided interested parties will donate labor, material or money sufficient to defray a portion of the cost, which otherwise will be too great to justify the undertaking for the tolls alone.

It involves the construction of rather an expensive bridge across Owens river, and considerable heavy grading in various places, the whole of which will cost some $6,000 or more. At least one-third of this amount will have to be raised by donations.

The objects to be gained are well worth the effort if we have been rightly informed on these points: Considered with reference to Round Valley alone, the distance to Benton will be shortened more than one-half, while in comparison with the present route, it will be a saving of from six to ten miles for the travel from all parts of the valley going north. From the proposed bridge to Benton the distance is only 23 miles, whereas, by the present route from Bishop Creek bridge it is about 40, and in long stretches each, of both heavy sand and rocks. The new road will have little or none of either, by far the greater portion being over solid ground, hard and firm enough to increase the freighting capacity of a team, compared to the present road, nearly or quite one-fourth.

This road will certainly be of great value to the farmers of Round Valley and Bishop Creek both, who look to Benton as the market for their produce. It will also be a matter of considerable importance to the stages, and all incoming and outgoing travel by the northern route, for or from all portions of the county, since it saves both distance and much heavy pulling, besides traversing the entire length of the best portion of Owens river valley, now passed by and entirely overlooked from necessity. For the mail carrier it will be a decided gain, as the new postoffice there will be brought directly in line with the others on the route, which is made ten miles shorter, instead of having to double over some fifteen miles every trip as will be necessary as long as the otherwise longer road now in use has to be traveled.

It occurs to us from the facts presented that this enterprise is well worthy substantial encouragement from all portions of the valley from this place northward, besides an earnest effort from Round Valley itself.

FEELS HURT.

We are indebted to Postmaster Hightower of Benton for a letter dated at that place March 31, in which he says:

"I see by your issue of March 29 that you published things that are not the truth: First, that your sack of papers went to Columbus, which is not so, they laid over one trip at this office on account of sick horses [so the stage], could not take it. It is true that the mail sack which was going to Aurora got changed here by some mistake. In the next place I am as clear of being a drunkard as you are."

Here follows a few remarks expressing wonder at such treatment from a paper for which he has worked and always entertained a high degree of friendship, and closes with the request that we will "strike out Hightower & Co.'s advertisement."

Now what we wan't to know is this: First, Whether Mr. Hightower or any other man thinks that a newspaper is to keep "its mouth rigidly closed" in all cases where former friends or patrons are involved, other than by words of praise? Second, Who is the loser or gainer by the withdrawal of business advertisements of business men, the advertiser or its medium? What do business men advertise for? To help their own business or that of the paper exclusively? We don't propose to go into an extended argument on this question, but we do propose to state our position. First, we want no man's advertisement on conditions, such as are implied in the above. Second, we want every advertiser in THE INYO INDEPENDENT, let him be whomsoever he may, to order out his advertisement if he so desire, if put and maintained there merely as a charitable contribution towards a praiseworthy enterprise when it is properly conducted. Third, if there is any advertiser in Inyo county, or out of it, who believes that he does not get value received for the small pittance he pays this paper for advertising or for his subscription to the same, we want that man to make the fact known, and he will be relieved at once. We are ready to make oath of our belief to this effect: That in the course of a year, though small as its circulation necessarily is, "THE INYO" is perused by not less than sixty thousand readers, to whose attention is called the business of every advertiser in it. Is the advantage of this an equivalent for the outlay of $10, $20 or $150 necessary to bring it about for business firms of different degrees? If you think it is money given away in charity only, stop it, and stop it at once so far as we are concerned. And most of all let them stop it who think their patronage purchases a perfect immunity from all notice of their short comings affecting the public interest. We prefer to sail under bare poles rather than carry sail purchased on these terms, and that is not all, we never have nor never intend to "carry sail" on such terms, and especially if it has to be through the aid of men who rear and kick before they are even threatened with the spur. To avoid any misunderstanding in reference to this matter, we reproduce the article to which Mr. Hightower towers so high in indignation:

The worthy Postmaster at Benton may be considered a success as the champion of inexcusable carelessness as a mild way of putting it, as demonstrated by some of the little irregularities of his office. A few weeks since the through mail for Inyo was duly forwarded to Columbus or somewhere else. The down stage of Wednesday last, instead of bringing the through sack put up at the distributing office at Aurora, brought back the identical bag forwarded from here northward on the day before, and the mail for this county must have wended its weary way back to Aurora. We wouldn't care so much if it wasn't so hard to make up a newspaper without exchanges; and then our senior is a bloated office-holder, and is looking for instructions. Should like interruptions again occur, the people of this region will begin to wonder what kind of whisky is dispensed at Benton.

We are satisfied Mr. Hightower in this matter has almost entirely misconstrued its whole tenor. It was in no sense a reflection on him personally in any manner in its intents, for the simple reason that the name as well as the character of the Benton Postmaster was entirely unknown to us. And even if had been otherwise, we deny that the jocose allusion to "whisky" at the close was in any manner a charge of drunkeness against any person.

He admits the truth of the only charge made, that of "carelessness," and about which nothing would or need have been said if it had been the first or even the second mistake exactly similar, for which the Benton office is responsible. We have given this much space to a matter of no especial importance, except as illustrating the experience of every newspaper in this: That it may publish a dozen complimentary and perhaps well-deserved notices, as we have done in this instance, all of which are accepted as a matter of course or are never heard of more; but give place to a single word that can by any possibility be construed as disparaging, even no more grave than a charge of supposed "carelessness," then the said newspaper will hear from it. We have known some very good people who sometimes committed careless acts and didn't go to war, when reminded of it, either.

That Laboring Man.

The result of Gallardo's habeas corpus case, mentioned elsewhere in this issue, is told in the following from The Union of March 27:

F. F. Gallardo, who is under arrest on a warrant from Inyo charging him with subornation of perjury, was taken yesterday afternoon before Justice Niles of the Supreme Court on habeas corpus. Gallardo, who, although a laboring man, has recently been admitted to practice law, pleaded his own cause. The State was represented by G. A. Blanchard. Gallardo contended that the warrant was incomplete, inasmuch as it did not show on its face that the party who issued it was legally qualified to do so. He also contended that it was defective from the fact that it was not directed to the Sheriff of Sacramento county, but to any Sheriff in the State. He reiterated his statement that he feared his life would be taken by the connivance of the Inyo officers, who are for certain reasons embittered against him. Judge Niles took the case under advisement until 7 o'clock in the evening. At that hour the Judge rendered his decision. He stated that he was prohibited by law from going into the merits of the case so far as the charge was concerned. He had examined the only point which he had the authoity to settle—the regularity of the document on which the arrest was made. He was satisfied that the warrant was regularly and legally issued by the Clerk of the court and that it was binding on the Sheriff of this county although not addressed especially to him. He therefore remanded the prisoner to the Sheriff Gallardo then addressed the Judge, pressing one or two points on his own side of the case. The Judge replied that he saw no cause to change his mind and could not reverse his decision. Gallardo then asked for a reduction of bail. The Judge replied that he thought the bail fixed by the Judge below, $5,000, excessive, and ordered that it be reduced to $3,000. The prisoner was then taken back to the County Jail.

Without Civilized Inhabitants.

All doubts that we Inyoites may have hitherto entertained in regard to our status as a civilized people may now be considered at an end. The whole thing is settled under oath of one of our leading (to the Penitentiary) attorneys, F. F. Gallardo, as may be seen from the following which we take from The Sacramento Daily Union of March 25th:

HABEAS CORPUS.—F. F. Gallardo, who was arrested last week to answer to some criminal charge in Inyo county, made application a day or two ago to Chief Justice Wallace for a writ of habeas corpus. The writ was yesterday ordered to issue. It requires Sheriff Bryte to take the prisoner before Justice Niles at 2 P. M. on the 26th instant. The petition of Gallardo states that he is unlawfully held in custody in this county on a warrant issued by the officers of Inyo county, charging him falsely with the crime of subornation of perjury. The officers of the county of Inyo, he alleges, are personal enemies of his, and the Sheriff, C. Mulkey, and Judge J. A. Hannah desire to take him to that county for the purpose of murdering him in secret by secret device. Inyo, he says, is an isolated county, six hundred miles distant, on the border of the State, without civilized inhabitants, where these officers may easily carry out their designs. The complaint further states that Sheriff Mulkey has heretofore exercised improper violence toward those in his power.

Now, we had a little better opinion of Gallardo than this. We didn't think his local pride would permit him to "go for to tell tales out of school," even to save himself a Summer's residence at the seaside. Supposing that Sheriff Mulkey and Judge Hannah have been in the habit of "making away by secret device" with a lying attorney now and then, what of it? Is it right for one of these to go and make oath to the fact and thereby try to injure the locality where he himself has such heavy property and personal interests? To be certainly it ain't. Besides this it is very ungenerous for him to solemnly swear we are an uncivilized people when he knows by personal experience that we are doing our level best to improve in that respect by trying to get rid of the most unblushing perjurer and shyster we have yet had amongst us. It is a pity Mr. Gallardo has no more local pride in a county which has done so much for him already, and is willing to do still more—anything short of furnishing him territory for burial purpose.

It is now denied that Don Carlos is at Geneva, or that he has abdicated. It is asserted that he is preparing a movement upon Madrid.

A band of Carlist insurgents operating in the Basque provinces of Spain, in the Pyrenees, is led by a priest, the Cure of Santa Cruz. This band, led by this priestly warrior, is said to be the most desperate of all the Carlist forces. Among other atrocities, such as refusing quarter and killing captives, he has killed four French officials and carried off four others as captives into the mountains. This has led to a diplomatic correspondence between France and Spain.

The war in Cuba has become more desperate than ever before. The insurgents have raised the black flag, and, having taken sixty prisoners, they shot all but one, and him they sent back to the Spanish authorities to inform them of the policy they intend to pursue. The affairs of old Spain and the ever-faithful Isle are in a desperate condition, indeed, are likely to remain so until our Government takes stock in the fight.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

A Stiff and Rattling Breeze.

Wednesday evening last old Boreas dropped down from the western mountains at a most terrific rate. He came in gusts and went in dust, rags, paper, barrels, cans, shingles, boards and divers other things. A shebang (unoccupied) standing on the rear of Tom Nolan's lot went down in such a shape its best friends would'nt recognize it. The wooden awning in front of Perham's old store house was kept in place for a time by six men standing under it. They stuck to it bravely (chiefly because they dared not let go), till there came a lull; then they went and so did the awning. The high picket fence around Mrs. Hughes' place was destroyed in considerable lengths. R. D. Parker's house was turned bottom up, smashing everything up inside. Fortunately the family were away at the time or it is quite certain we would have had a serious casualty to chronicle. Dick's dog, though, was tied to the corner of the house with a short but strong rope. This canine went into the air but died for the want of it. There are a good many dogs around yet, however, so this loss is not irremediable. At Camp Independence the fine, large new building used for Company's quarters, was moved a foot or two from its foundation. Altogether it was rather a moving time, the dust in their eyes moving the stoutest men to tears, while the ladies whose kitchen, parlors and bedrooms were filled with dust were moved—well, they took on considerably. The old Washoeites thought it was nifty, it reminded them so much of their old familiar zephyrs. So far as heard from at this writing the foregoing is about the extent of the damages sustained, save that there were a number of small outhouses about town that, owning to the position they occupied, were of no practical use for a day or two. But the damage is merely nominal.

A Celestial War.

Thursday evening a Chinaman named Ah Yang demanded the sum of $200 from Ah Wing. The latter denied the debt whereupon the other produced a note in Chinese for the amount and signed by Ah Wing. Mr. Wing declared it to be a forgery. Mr. Yang went to P. Reddy Esq. to obtain legal advice. Taking the word of other Chinamen, Mr. Reddy became satisfied the note was a forgery and declined to bring suit on it. Ah Yang then started for Ah Wing's house with the avowed intention of killing the latter, of which intention Under Sheriff Moore was made acquainted and following him arrived in time to see Ah Yang standing with his finger on the trigger of a cocked pistol pointed directly at Ah Wing who doubtless would have been perforated in an instant more if the Sheriff had not laid violent hands on the would-be shooter. Ah Yang was locked up at once. He has the reputation of being something of a desperado among his countrymen and has been in the habit at various times of chasing Ah Wing and other Chinamen with a drawn pistol. Ah Wing is a quiet, inoffensive Celestial, and it is generally believed that he told the truth in regard to the forgery of the note, and that Mr Yang adopted a poor plan to rob him, whether he intended to kill him or not

A Doubly Fatal Shot.

From Mr. J. P. Taylor, of the Southern stage line, we learn the following particulars of a very strange, murderous affray which occurred at McRay's ranch, a short distance from Wendell's station, South Fork of Kern river: A Spencer rifle was put up for raffle, and during the time a dispute about four bits arose between McRay and a man named Biggs. The latter became very abusive in his language, and both started for the gun. McRay got possession of it and fired at Biggs, killing him instantly. The bullet passed through Bigg's abdomen and struck a bystander named Stillman, formerly a resident of Cerro Gordo. The deadly missile severed the femoral artery, and passed on through the side of the house. Stillman bled to death before medical assistance could be obtained. McRay fled precipitately, and as yet his wherabouts are unknown.

The Epizoot.

Lone Pine has concentrated within her limits a more used up lot of old epizootics of the human family than any place, no bigger, ever had of the equine race. We prepared a touching obituary for a noble old jack which was turned up for the last time in any earthly game on Thursday night, but with an eye to economy, have concluded to preserve it for use when some of the "hereafters" shall bray no more. Of the many afflicted we can mention but a few, the balance being cared for in hospital stables which we did not visit: Bob. Peterson, Sher. Stevens, Curt. Harvey, Bill Covington, Rockwell Loomis, John Belshaw, Jim. Moffit, Fidelio Patten Ball, John Alec., I. W. Hunt and other horses and mules innumerable. They've got it bad, and we know how it is ourself.

Frosty.

Fruit growers throughout the valley were enabled to arrive at some definite conclusion in regard to their prospects for a crop when, yesterday morning they had an opportunity to handle ice a full half inch thick. They don't take so much pride in their precocious little fruit trees as they did.

Mails.

For some reason, epizootic or otherwise, the Postmaster at Sacramento now sends all mail matter for this county by the southern route, the terminus of which is at Lone Pine, and where the mail has to lie over one night. In consequence of this the mail for this place is one day late, as that for Lone Pine, for a similar reason formerly was, as it had to lie over here when it came fromt he north. At Bishop and the other offices north, the mail is from two to four days late under the present arrangment. This trouble can be obviated either by making close connection between the Northern and Southern lines, or by making a proper division of the mail at Sacramento.

Some Rumbling.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock on the morning of April 1, residents of Fish Springs were awakened by quite a rattling little earthquake. It was accompanied by the old time explosions similar to those following the big shake of a year ago, these continuing at intervals for more than an hour. The same occurrence was noted here, 18 miles south, by a few who happened to be awake at the time, but so far as we know, no one was aroused from sleep by the occurrence. At Lone Pine, about the same distance further south, it was not remarked at all.

Time Changed.

Johnny Ullrick's stock having all recovered from the distemper he is now ready to put passengers through to Carson on time, and in good shape as received, if not better. If any man in the county can fulfill his entire obligations to the traveling public that man is John Ullrick, and there is none deserving of more patronage. Until further notice, his stages will leave Independence at 4 P. M. every Monday and Friday, instead of Thursdays and Sundays as heretofore, and will arrive here at 8 A. M. Monday and Thursday mornings.

Paid Off.

That genial gentleman, Col. C. B. Wingard, Paymaster, and Mr. Tilley, Paymaster's Clerk, were at Camp Independence last Saturday settling up with the boys. His extended circuit, to be made every two months, does not permit of a lengthy stay at any one place, so the Colonel started back to San Francisco the same evening.

Gone After Him.

Sheriff Mulkey started to Sacramento last Monday to see if Gallardo would'nt like to come back here on a short visit. It is thought that Mr. Mulkey won't "make away with him by secret device" until he gets him here where Judge Hannah can help some.

Can't Come Till May.

Judge Sheppard, of Tulare County, writes to Judge Hannah here, that he can't get over to try Peter Peerson's case until some time in May. This will give Peter ample time, during his uninterrupted retirement, to burnish up his law points.

Returned.

We note the return of Thos. Laspeyre, Esq., who has been on an extended tour among the villages around the Bay. Hereafter, we may remark here, he and Judge Snelling will be found in their fine law office, up stairs, in Broder's new building.

His Sentence.

Ah Yang, the Chinaman who proposed to wing Ah Wing with his little pistol, was brought before Justice Gunnison yesterday, who, after a full hearing of the case, held him for a misdemeanor. He was sentenced to a fine of $40 or in lieu thereof to reside twenty days in the county hotel.

For Kansas.

Mr. W. S. Matthews, one of the old pioneers of the valley, started by the last northern stage for Kansas, where his wife preceded him some weeks since, and where they propose to locate for the future.

Another Effort

Another effort is being made in Lone Pine to raise the "needful" to enable parties to circulate for signers to a new county-seat removal petition, and to defray legal expenses. Let us have peace.

In Town.

We note the presence in our town of Mr. J. L. Bourland and lady, the pleasant visaged and popular "bosses" of the Bishop Creek hotel.

To Contractors.

Parties desiring to enter into a fuel or forage contract will note Capt. Dove's advertisement.

The Tarpeys.

Since the hanging of Matt Tarpey for the fiendish murder of Mrs. Nicholson in Monterey County by the Vigilantes, his brother Dominick has come out from the East with the avowed intention of taking the law into his own hands to avenge his brother's death. The result will be that Dominick's feet wont be able to reach the ground one of these days. Matt Tarpey is represented to have been a monster of cruelty, not only having been an active Vigilante himself, but to have taken delight in cutting out the tongues of horses and similar acts of beastly cruelty towards other dumb brutes. He was at one time (1861) a resident of this county, but save an undue fondness for gin, which he always carried with him, was nowise remarkable in his actions either for good or evil.

A Severe Blow.

BUTTE RANCH, April 3, 1873.

EDITORS INDEPENDENT:—From 2 o'clock to 8, P. M., yesterday the most terrific sand and wind storm raged here that it ever has been my misfortune to witness. My carpenter got through his job on my house (24 x 12, shed roof) at noon, and in less than three hours it was bottom side up—a total wreck. The damage is $300 and over. Goodale's new house at Fish Springs, which he boasted of as being nearly air-tight, was besmeared with dust through and through. His stable and about a quarter of a mile of fence was blown down, and his peach crop for this year gone with the winds, or where "the woodbine twineth." Hoping that the rest of the people of the valley may have been more fortunate, I remain

Of Value to Holders of Mining Claims.

The following is the amendment to the mining Law of May 10, 1872, giving additional time (to June 10, 1874), for the expenditure of labor on claims located prior to the passage of the above law:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: That the provisions of the fifth section of the Act entitled "An Act to promote the development of the mining resources of the United States," passed May 10th, 1872, which requires expenditures of labor and improvements on claims located prior to the passage of said Act, are hereby so amended that the time for the first annual expenditure on claims located prior to the passage of said Act, shall be extended to the 10th day of June, eighteen hundred and seventy-four.

The Postal Car Question.

The above question came up for consideration in the Senate on the last day of the session when the following action was taken: Mr. Windom of Minnesota asked to take up his resolution, instructing the select committee on transportation routes to the seaboard to inquire into the refusal of railroad companies to carry postal cars after April 1, and whether any legislation is necessary to protect the interest of the Government and the people. The resolution was passed unanimously.

Mr. Casserly of California offered the following resolution, which was adopted:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Interior are respectfully directed to transmit any information in their Departments as to the amount of bonds issued by or to the credit of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, forming a first mortgage or lien upon the Company's road and property, and also the amounts of said bonds issued from time to time and what dates they were issued; also to ascertain and report under what general designation such bonds are commonly negotiated, and all such information to be brought down to the latest dates.

A Horrible Fate.

An Olympia (W. T.) dispatch dated March 26, to The San Francisco Chronicle, has the following horrible news:

A letter dated at Alert Bay on the 10th instant, and published in the evening papers of this city, says that two men and a woman drifted ashore on a raft from the wreck of the George S. Wright, and the men were murdered and eaten by a tribe of Indians known as the Oawatanagles.

Some of the Indians report that the women is still alive and used for the vilest purposes, and is to be sacrificed at a feast on a certain day.

All the northern tribes are practical cannibals, and have been worse for the past six years, as they have had free license during the pendency of the San Juan Island negotiations.

The papers publishing this report vouch for the entire credibility of the writers.

Bakersfield Items.

The stations of the fast freight line of the Kern & Inyo Forwarding Compane are now established between this place and Tipton. Teams leave Tipton on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and, traveling night and day, make the trip in twenty-four hours. As soon as the Epizooty disappears, teams will leave each point daily and the connexion with Owens Lake be speedily perfected.

The Epizooty has nearly stopped the freighting business to Owens River, both from this place and Los Angeles. The disease here seems to be mitigating however, and it is thought that in about ten days the teams will be able to take the road again.—Courier, March 23.

Homicide in Muddy Valley.

Two men, named Pleasant and Moon who had adjoining ranches in Muddy Valley, forty miles south of Pioche, had a quarrel a few days ago about their boundary lines. They agreed to leave it to an arbitration, and while Moon was making his statement in the matter, Pleasant called him a liar. Moon struck at him, when Pleasant drew a pistol and killed him. The murderer was arrested, but while being taken to Pioche escaped and has not yet been retaken.

Alameda.

Oakland beats San Leandro for the County seat of Alameda by over 1,000 majority.

Montezuma.

From a private letter we learn that matters are assuming a lively appearance in Montezuma, or, as it is called by some, the Woodland Mining District. Messrs. Figg & Potter have made every preparation for a long and sucessful run of their mill, which is to start up about the 1st of April. Supplies have been shipped from California for that purpose, and were daily expected to arrive. Prospectors are coming in and the camp will soon present an animated appearance. The Alabama ledge is turning out some very good ore; they have out about seven tons of first class and twenty-five tons of second class ore. The Savage ledge, owned by Plunkett & Co., is one of the best locations in the district; it is large and well defined, and some good ore is now being taken out for shipment to Austin. Fred. Suhr & Co.'s mines are at present idle, the owners having gone to Gold Mountain. A miner's meeting will soon be called for the purpose of endorsing the proceedings of the meeting held December 26, 1872.—Austin Reveille.

Bad News from Tulare.

The grain fields devastated by the black crickets have the appearance of being plowed and harrowed without having been sown, so completely are they stripped of vegetation. In places the crickets have seemingly mown up to a well defined line, beyond which not a spear of grain is cut, but all stands up fresh, full and vigorous as any on the plains. We do not remember to have ever before heard of cut worms destroying a field of grain as we do this season. New land is more subject to insect pests than that under long and thorough cultivation.

Whole fields of grain that were in a promising condition a few weeks ago out on Sand Creek, along Cottonwood and in Stokes Valley, have been entirely destroyed by an army of black crickets, which cover the ground, looking like strewn blackberries. The earth is thickly perforated with their holes.

Spotted fever has been reported as fatal in two or three instances in this county; but, after careful investigation, we conclude that, so far as these particular cases are concerned, the reports are sensational. Yet there is cause for alarm, from the fact that in Mariposa and other points around us, well defined cases have appeared, terminating fatally in most instances. It should be the duty of physicians to furnish the press with reliable information on such subjects, so far as possible.—Visalia Delta, March 27.

—One hundred physicians of Montreal have signed a manifesto in which they declare, among other things, "that total abstinence from intoxicating liquors, wether fermented or distilled, is consistent with and conducive to the highest degree of physical and mental health and vigor."

Shows His Good Sense.

[From The Austin Reveille.]

Mr. A. B. O'Dougherty, formerly a school teacher in this city, but who is at present practicing law at Pioche, having been denominated "Judge" in a report of the proceedings of a public meeting recently held there, writes the following sensible letter to The Record:

EDITOR RECORD: I see in The report of Saturday's meeting at the school house that there has been conferred upon me a title to which I have no earthly claim. The assumption of titles, unfortunately so prevalent among us, has always struck me as being an unworthy and contemptible weakness to which many men of otherwise sterling character and qualities, are too often, and too readily, prone. I am perfectly aware that the inexcusable pretentions and morbid vanity of members of the profession of the bar and army, are perhaps, more at fault for this than the ridiculous flattery of the public that panders to it; but I sincerely trust that the day is not distant when every lawyer, who is not a Judge, will have the good sense and good taste to see that it is not creditable to his true personal dignity to allow himself to be addressed as such; and when every soldier who has worn the blue coat or the gray will have the manly honesty to disclaim the pseudonyms of Captain, Major or Colonel, so plentifully showered upon him. For myself, I emphatically deprecate this silly weakness. I claim no other title (and a higher and prouder title I would not claim) than that of simply American citizen—an honored title which this great country, in her exalted and generous liberality to the alien and the stranger who has found a refuge within her domain, has nobly bestowed upon me.

A Sagacious Dog.

A miner arrived in this city a day or two ago from White Pine county, on horseback, having with him a noble large dog, a cross between a shepherd and Newfoundland, and turned his horse out on the foot hills, hobbled. He then came into town, leaving the faithful dog with the horse. The dog, seeing that the poor horse had a slim show of being rewarded among the sagebrush for his hard day's work, drove him down Meadow Valley street and into the Pioneer stables, acting at the stable as if he wanted the horse fed. When the horse was put into the stall and given a good feed of oats the dog expressed his satisfaction by the wagging of his tail to the best of his canine ability, and afterwards he allowed no one to enter the stall but the man who fed the horse. This is a positive fact.—Pioche Record.

—The following story is told of Rev Mr. Hammond, who approached a man at Burlington, Iowa, the other day, asking him if he was a Christian. "No," replied the other party, "I am a railroad man." "Well," said Hammond, "I know of several conductors in New England who are Christians." "That may work down East all right, but a man can't be both in Iowa," responded the employe.

—Society makes kings of beggars, but nature makes men.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

THE SUBSCRIBER TAKES PLEASURE IN announcing to the people of Inyo county that he has purchased and fitted up as a hospital the Beaudry Hotel Building, adjoining the military post at Camp Independence. All the adobes have been removed and their place supplied with lumber; the grounds are handsomely laid out with shade trees and clover, and have a pure running stream of mountain water.

There is an excellent bath room and dispensary attached. One room is set aside for the county's sick, leaving ample room for private patients. The Northern Stage Line passes the door, and the place is easy of access from the town of Independence. The charges for board and lodging do not exceed those of any hotel or boarding house, offering equal accommodations, and the establishment has the advantage of having competent help and medical advice always at hand, being close by the house of the post surgeon at the camp.

PROPOSALS

....FOR....

SUBSISTENCE STORES.

OFFICE POST COMMISSARY, CAMP INDEPENDENCE, Cal, Feb. 1 1873.

SEALED PROPOSALS IN TRIPLICATE WILL BE received until 12 o'clock M.

Thursday, May 1, 1873,

For furnishing Fresh Beef, Flour, Salt Pork, Smoked Bacon, Hams, Beans and Lard to the troops stationed at Camp Independence, Cal., for one year, commencing July 1, 1873.

The Beef furnished under this contract, must be of good marketable quality, in equal proportions of fore and hind quarter meat, and to be delivered at such times and in such quantities as may be required.

The Flour, Salt Pork, Smoked Bacon, Hams, Beans and Lard to be of the very best quality the country affords, and to be delivered from time to time as required.

The Flour to be fresh ground for delivery. The Salt Meat and Lard to have been cured since Dec. 1, 1872. The Hams to be sugar-cured. The Pork to be either Mess or Prime Mess, which, to be stated in the bid. No more than a six months supply will be received at any one time. Samples of all articles except Fresh Beef required.

Bidders will state the price per pound in U. S. Gold Coin, and are invited to be present at the opening of the bids. They will also state the kind of packages they propose to furnish; price of package to be included in price of article.

Proposals must be accompanied by a proper guarantee, signed by two responsible persons, stating that if a contract is awarded, they will enter into bonds for the faithful fulfillment of contract. A bond of $2,000 will be required from each party to whom a contract is awarded, and a certificate from the Clerk of the County Court, or a Magistrate, to the fact that each bondsman is worth that amount

The contract to be subject to the approval of the Department and Division Commanders. In case of the abandonment of the post, the contract to terminate.

Bids will also be received for the above on the same day by Capt. Thos. Wilson, Chief C. S. Dep't of California, at San Francisco, Cal., No. 565, Market street.

For detailed information, apply either in person or by letter to the Acting Commissary of Subsistence, at Camp Independence, Cal., or to the undersigned at San Francisco, Cal.

The right is reserved of accepting or rejecting any bid, as may be deemed best for the interest of the United States.

Endorse envelopes "Proposals for" (name the article) and address the same to the Post Commissary at Camp Independence, Cal.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Important Decision.

[From The Ohio Educational Monthly.]

The Supreme Court of New York has decided that the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States does not prohibit boards of education from establishing separate schools for colored youths, inasmuch as this abridges no privilege of a citizen, since no citizen has the privilege of choosing the school in the city to which he will send his children. The Court adds:

"The relator has equal common school advantages with other citizens He does not assert that the school which is open to him is not as good as the one which is closed. He does not pretend that there is anything in its position, its pupils or its teachers, which makes the limitation of his children to that school a practical refusal to them of common school advantages. If the school which is open to his children were materially objectionable, or if it were an improper school for them to attend, a very different question might then arise."

This decision is substantially the same as the one given by the Supreme Court of Ohio a few months since. Both agree that the equality of right guaranteed by the Fourteenth Amendment does not imply that white and colored youth shall attend the same school any more than it necessitates the attendance of the two sexes at the same schools—a view held by us from the first. What the amendment plainly guarantees is, that the two races shall be provided with equal public school advantages, and it is to be regretted that neither of these decisions unequivocally denies the right of school boards to maintain inferior schools for colored youth—an injustice much too common even in Ohio and New York. It is true that both these decisions imply that the school advantages furnished must be equal; but something more than this is needed to correct the wrong.

The Million Dollar Telescope.

The project of getting up a great million dollar telescope, by private subscription, bids fair to be realized. We presume that the Government will come to the aid, if necessary, in furnishing the last stipend that may be necessary to secure the construction of such an instrument. If possible it should be completed and mounted at Philadelphia ready for use at the coming Centennial Celebration.—Ex.

The Pre-Emption Law.

A citizen in Sacramento wrote on to an attorney in Washington, D. C., recently, in regard to the pre-emption law, and received this answer: "The bill before Congress repealing the pre-emption law did not pass last session."—Sacramento Union, April 2.

Hurricane at Carson.

[From The Virginia Chronicle, March 31.]

Yesterday the city of Carson experienced an exciting sensation. Early in the afternoon old Boreas let loose his dogs of war, and succeeded in doing considerable damage to property and creating a little alarm among the citizens. The wind began to blow quite briskly from the southeast, and very soon increased to a violent gale.

The hurricane, for such it soon became, has not been equalled for years, and for a long time fears were entertained that the destruction of property would be widely extended. When the gale was at its hight an alarm of fire was sounded, which added greatly to the consternation of the citizens. It was discovered soon that it was caused by the burning out of a chimney, and the anxious people who ventured out at the risk of their skulls soon beat a hasty retreat to a place of shelter from the flying fragments of wooden buildings, shingles, etc, with which the air was at times filled. We hear of no damage to any person being sustained, but the damage to property was quite extensive, and the wonder is that a greater loss was not sustained, for the wind whipped around with a spitefulness that is seldom witnessed. Early in the evening Mr. J. K. Sutterly received a telegram announcing that his branch office in Carson had been blown from its foundation, and that considerable damage had been done to the building and contents. Mr. Sutterly being unable to leave the city, dispatched his agent, who on arriving found that the building, which is a one-story-frame, sixteen feet by fifty, had been bodily blown four feet from its original position and dumped down in the sand. The building was very much shattered, and chemicals, cameras, etc., were scattered around within in anything but a satisfactory manner. The exact amount of injury sustained is not as yet known.

Several other buildings, as we are informed, were blown down, and the Ormsby House parted with a portion of its roof. Many roofs were materially loosened, and fences were knocked out of line in all directions. Property owners were injured, but mechanics will have busy times. "It is an ill wind that blows nobody good."

A Boy Shoots his Mother's Paramour Dead.

Monday night last a homicide occurred at the town of Sweetland, in this county. The facts, as we have heard them related, are as follows: Jack Moore, a young man of about 19 years of age, resides in Sweetland with his mother. The husband of the mother and the father of the boy is in the State of Nevada. A man named James Rogers has been in the habit of visiting the woman at unseemly hours, and it is said that an improper intimacy has long existed between Moore's mother and Rogers On the night mentioned Rogers had pulled off his boots and was trying to enter the house the boy and his mother reside in through a window. The boy seized a double-barreled shot gun and fired at the intruder. The charge took effect in Rogers' head and he fell to the ground under the window. After receiving the wound Rogers lived about an hour. The dead body was allowed to remain in the place where it fell until daylight, when it was taken charge of by the citizens of the place. Moore gave himself up to an officer, and was to have had an examination yesterday. The feelings and sympathy of the whole community are with the boy who did the shooting. It is related that a daughter of the woman some time ago left home on account of the intimacy of her mother with the man Rogers, and is with her father in the State of Nevada. The boy has been watching for Rogers for some time, and had warned the latter to cease his criminal acts. The warning had been given about three weeks ago, and just after the boy had run Rogers out of the house.—Grass Valley Union, April 2.

A New Confidence Game.

A well-dressed young man stopped at a Vermont hotel, recently, for a few days and made acquaintances. The evening of the second day of his arrival a nice young lady came along unattended, and instantly attracted the attention of the impressible youngsters, who canvassed her charms fully as they sat apart from her at supper. The stranger youth even went so far as to say that he would marry her if she would have him, and offered, for a substantial wager to pop the question and have the marriage ceremony performed right away. The wager was accepted, and also the proposal of marriage made so suddenly to her by the young man, and the parson called in, who soon united the twain. The sum wagered was paid over to the happy bridegroom, and he and his bride set off the next day on their marriage tour. What lends romance to the circumstance is the fact that the young couple had been man and wife for a year.—Concord Daily Patriot.

—The patron of a cheap eating house, who complained that they only gave one potatoe with his meat, where they formerly gave him two, was mortified by the waiters explanation that the last lot of potatoes they purchased was so bad that no gentleman could eat more than one of them.

Revivals.

Colorado is all at once burning with religious fervor. Rev. M. Hammond, the Evangelist, is traveling through the territory creating a great revival—the greatest and most earnest ever experienced there. Halls are crowded and meetings are held in the street. Prayer meetings are held, and many arise for prayers and declare a change of heart. There is no doubt that Mr. Hammond and the good people who assist him in these labors are sincere and earnest in their work, but there is such an air of theatrical clap-trap about these demonstrations as to prompt the thought that they are not productive of lasting good. It is not well to absolutely condemn such events, nor to throw an obstacle in the way of their great success; for if a single soul is saved there is so much gained. Yet the history of such revivals has been that after the fever of excitement has subsided the popular mind relapses to its former state and we hear of more backslidings from conversions that come from this source than we do from the more rational seeking for reformation and piety that comes from the more quiet labor of the pastor with his flock, and from the teachings of the pulpit. Such boisterous excitements cannot fail to produce an unhealthy state of mind.—Virginia Chronicle.

The Noble Savage.

The Arizona correspondent of The San Diego World thus describes his interview with Antonio Azul, the head Chief of the Pimos. Antonio opens the dialogue:

"You got shirt?"
"No."
"You got old coat?"
"No."
"You got old vest?"
"No."
"You got sojer obercoat?"
"No."
"Then what for you come see me, you dam fool?" and the indignant head of his nation once more assumed his first position, and abandoned himself to the care of his favorite squaw.

I found my friend leaning against a tree with tearful eyes and face the color of chalk, and cheerfully proposed that we call on one or two sub-chiefs, but he declared himself tired, and we strolled back to camp.

THE LAND OFFICE.

According to official notice given elsewhere by the officers of the Aurora Land Office, that office is now closed, by direction of the President, preparatory to a change of boundaries and removal to this place, where business will be resumed on the 31st proximo. Parties interested will do well to examine the official announcement.

Terrible Steamship Disaster.

News comes of the total loss of the steamship Atlantic of the White Star Line, from Liverpool to New York. She ran ashore, April 1, at a point about 20 miles from Halifax, which port she was endeavoring to make to replenish her stock of coal. She was running at the rate of 12 knots an hour when she struck, and in the darkness and high seas prevailing a scene of the direst confusion was followed by the most intense suffering and a woeful loss of life, some 500 passengers perishing. Some by drowning, a large number by being crushed to death by a boom that broke from its fastenings, but far the larger number by cold and exhaustion. But two women and one child of the many aboard escaped alive. It was a most terrible disaster, and is chargable in a great measure to want of seamanship in the commander, Capt. Williams.

Resigned.

Alexander Caldwell, United States Senator from Kansas, has resigned his seat in the Senate in order to end all further investigation on his account, and perhaps to head off possible expulsion. He was charged with using bribery and corruption to obtain the office.

Spotted Fever.

Spotted fever is prevailing at present in Fresno and Merced counties. The Expositor says there have been several cases in that county, and one death in Millerton. At Snelling out of about forty-seven cases six have proved fatal.

A Warning.

Archbishop Purcell, of Cincinnati, warns any Catholic who connects himself with a trade union or kindred society that makes use of an oath in its initiation, that he thereby cuts himself off from the body of the church.

The Sanitarium.

We are glad to be able to say that there seems to be a likelihood of the establishment of the proposed sanitarium in this vicinity. Mr. F. M. Shaw, under whose auspices the movement has been inaugurated, is well known to many of our people, and possesses their full confidence. A number of leading citizens are disposed to encourage the enterprise. We have already noted that General Stoneman had offered one hundred acres of his excellent land near the city as a site for the proposed buildings. We now learn that Mr. Beaudry is willing to give all the land needed; and also, that the Messrs. Rowland have tendered a large tract of well watered land. Thus it seems that our people are alive to the necessity of securing the establishment of the proposed sanitarium; and that no difficulty will be experienced on this score. We rejoice that there seems to be a probability that the project will be pushed to practical operation within a short time. Our climate is peculiarly adapted to a sanitarium; and our agricultural and pomological advantages are such that a most beautiful place could be made, which should become very attractive to invalids and tourists. There are thousands of people who will be anxious to spend their Winters with us, if they can do so with comfort and at reasonable expense. Give us the sanitarium.—Los Angeles Express.

Immense Railroad Work.

Last Friday three hundred and seven cars, constituting thirty-four trains, passed over the Virginia and Truckee Railroad between this city and Carson, and was the heaviest day's work ever done on the road. On the same day twenty-two cars, drawn by the locomotive Ophir, passed over the road, and was the longest train that has yet put in an appearance. Should the business continue to increase as in the past, the railroad will be forced to put down a double track, or meet opposition this Summer in fast freight lines over the Geiger grade.—Virginia Chronicle, Mar. 31.

Owens River Freight.

We learn from the last issue of The Bakersfield Courier that the stations of the fast freight line of the Kern & Inyo Forwarding Company are now established between that place and Tipton. Teams leave Tipton on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays and, traveling night and day, make the trip in twenty-four hours. As soon as the epizooty disappears, teams will leave each point daily, and the connection with Owens Lake be speedily perfected. —Tulare Times, April 5.

The Boston Transcript says, with an evident sigh of relief: "At last the coliseum has passed into history and kindling wood."

ALL FOR GLORY.

It will be remembered that, some two months since, F. K. Miller and his lovely chum and kitten's paw, E. H. Van Decar, District Attorney (Lord save the mark!) of Inyo county, attempted, before Judge Hannah's Court, to do certain things involving or interfering with matters of both public and individual importance. The effort was an abortion from its inception to its ending, as a matter of course. Notwithstanding that it had some respectable backers it didn't yield enough in ready coin to enable the aforesaid District Attorney to secure credit equal to half a usual drunk, while, as a legal effort on the part of the other, it had just force sufficient to sun his moccasins in a manner most pitiable to behold. In fact his attempt to play lawyer was such a lamentable failure as to create a sentiment of pity; for that reason, in addition to a certain degree of respect entertained for those whom he had deluded into his support, as well as the possible chance that his motives might be honest, his failure as a lawyer was passed over as lightly as possible. Both he and his weak chum, who never was credited in this with an honest motive, were treated with more leniency than they ever will be again so long as they endeavor to practice law at the public expense. In regard to the latter his short comings and utter incapacity to fulfil the duties of his office have been ignored as much as possible, in the hope that whisky had not drowned out every spark of manhood, and that a moment of sober reflection might sometime occur, giving this spark a chance of life and cause a solution of the difficulty by means of a resignation.

Perhaps there are some who think the hints, published not long since, in "Reddy's Dream" were not true to the facts? They were not only because too mildly drawn, that's all. If there ever was a commonwealth and a community imposed upon in a small way by a salaried object of charity in the person of the individual originally intrusted with its legal business, it is this of Inyo in general and of Independence in particular—but the last not in its legal rights strictly.

But not satisfied with drawing his salary (which, as an exceptional favor, must be in coin) for doing nothing of the least possible value in return, he seems to seek every opportunity to show his base ingratitude to the very people who keep him from starvation. Incapable as he notoriously is of performing his duties as the legal adviser of the county government, he uses the prestige of his official position in forcing the Board into lawsuits, the cost of which as well as of own maintenance the people have to bear. It is neither right, decent nor honest for him, as the paid agent of the whole people to accept his pay as such, and at the same time, take every opportunity as the willing tool of two or three individuals, to compel the former to defend their rights at the cost of thousands of dollars. As a nonentity—as a failure, mitigated by lack of ability, he might be excused as a useless but harmless dead weight. But without the ability to do good, he evinces considerable power for mischief as former acts prove and as shown in what is to follow in this:

At the instigation of this same Miller he some time since brought, as District Attorney or loaned his official name for the purpose, a certain action against the Board of Supervisors. It was purely technical and in no possible contingency could it have resulted in anything but a material pecuniary loss to the county. But in that, as in other similar gouging endeavors, his pal and himself were most ignominiously defeated, but at a cost to the county of some two thousand dollars. He was then ordered by the Board to dismiss the suit, which order they had a right to make as the suit was brought in the name of the county. Now see the presumption of this blundering attorney who can't correctly advise or draw up a paper for a Grand Jury, and is not allowed to even try any more. With the decision of an unquestionably unbiased Judge against him on every point, in opposition to the advice or opinions of the entire Bar, save perhaps one member other than his pal, and in direct contempt of the unanimous order of the Board, he puts the county to the expense of about $250 for a written and printed transcript of the proceeding on which to sustain an appeal to the Supreme Court. Occasionally, for weeks, we are told the next mail will bring an order of mandate, and of course, contingent thereon another bill of two or three thousand dollars against the county for nothing, except that Miller and Van Decar may learn to practice law on technical points only, since it is plain even to them that they can do nothing on any legal proposition more complex than a note of hand. Why not carry it up? They had everything to gain and certainly nothing for either to lose in legal reputation or otherwise.

But the order didn't come, so Mr. Milier got alarmed, and deciding on a new plan to mulct the tax-payers of the county out of some more thousands, he notifies his tool that the suit on appeal must be dismissed. Accordingly this is done, last week, in "pursuance of the order of the Board," made two months and a half ago!

And now comes F. K. Miller with a new idea. He will go to law for glory and for "fame." If those who backed him before, in his endeavors to prevent the Board from "squandering the peoples' money," won't back him no more, he will go it on his own hook—for fame. He knows that he has one he can count on to help save the county's money by forcing it into more expensive suits at law, because this one, in consideration of a certain amount of bread and butter and a well improved chance to bum whisky, solemnly swore to look after the legal rights of the county to the best of his ability, "so help me!" What does one little oath amount to when in the way of the personal "glory and fame" of a friend? Nothing worth speaking of then or any other time, with this pair. Indorsed by E. H. Van Decar, District Attorney of Inyo county, Mr. Miller brings suit in the name of the people against said county to the end that a virtually finished contract for public structures may be declared null and void, and all further payments on the same be stopped. He makes oath that he is, and was previous to September last, a citizen and "tax-payer" of Inyo county (see decree of unpaid taxes standing against him); that by reason of the illegal acts of the Board, the "business of the county has been greatly impaired," and "the people thereof damaged in the sum of fifteen thousand dollars, and put to much trouble and expense" by the said wrongful acts. What's one little oath between the two? Evidently these men have mistaken their calling, possessing as they do one very important qualification for the more profitable business of professional witnesses.

Mr. Miller also enters another suit (both in the District Court) in which he, as the Relator of the Petitioners and endorsed as before of course, prays the issuance of a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel the Board of Supervisors to order the election prayed for in that celebrated petition.

Save our delectable District Attorney he has no known backers in these suits to rob the tax-payers of this county of not less than $1,000 involved in the defense alone, to say nothing of contingencies. It is scarcely possible that he expects to win in either one, but then there is the glory, you know, and the fame!—the which would shame a Chinaman. But supposing that he should win what valuable point of law, abstract or material, has he settled, and how is the county to be compensated for learning him how to practice law at such a great public cost? By proving that the District Attorney is the governing power, superior to the Board and other officials combined and backed by the Bench and Bar of the county? If not that what else will we have for the money? However, such a famous lawyer can then easily point out all these things and where that $15,000 we have been swindled out of, is to come from, besides the other $15,000 and more that it will cost to get it, to say nothing about the cost of teaching this pair of heavy guns and tax-payers a few plain precepts of common law.

Of this pair of co-adventurers the attitude of the so called District Attorney is most despicable. Instead of trying to do his feeble best, as he swore to do, in defending the rights of the county, he arrays himself directly against them on every possible chance. What business has he, as the paid Attorney of the county, to aid in a suit brought directly against the county? Is he after fame likewise? Well, it is a sorrowful prospect for them both on that head; it is indeed.

The Kearsarge Decision.

[From The San Francisco Bulletin, April 4.]

A very important decision affecting the rights of persons who are stockholders and creditors of a bankrupt corporation was some time ago rendered by Judge Hoffman, which was reaffirmed Monday by Judge Sawyer of the Circuit Court, on a review. The facts were substantially as follows: The Kearsarge Mining Company owned a mine in Inyo county and worked the same, and a large amount of money was expended to put the mine in shape for profitable sale. J. S. Rothschild attached the mine for moneys due him, and to avoid his getting preference, another creditor put the company in bankruptcy. The company was adjudged a bankrupt in 1871. In due course an assignee was appointed. C. H. Van Gorder, who was the Treasurer of the company, presented a proof of claim for about $42,000, for moneys advanced by him to the company, all of which money was proved to have been used in working the mine. The money was advanced in order to save the levying of assessments, which is claimed would have injured the prospects of selling the mine. J. B. Winters also presented his claim for about $23,000, due him for moneys advanced and for services as Superintendent. Both Van Gorder and Winters were large stockholders in the company, and were such while the debts to Van Gorder and Winters were contracted. When they presented their proof of claim, the assignee, through Paul Neuuman, his attorney, objected to the claims on the ground that they were too large. A couple of thousand dollars, being for interest, was by the register taken off their claims, and the assignee was satisfied with the claims. Thereupon Mr. Rothschild presented objections, both to the validity of the claims, and contended further that as Van Gorder and Winters were stockholders and under the Constitution of this State primarily responsible and liable for the payment of the debts of the company, that the claims of Van Gorder and Winters should be postponed to the other claims of creditors who are not stockholders. A large amount of testimony was taken before Register Clarke upon the issue raised, and he reported adversely to the objections of Rothschild. The matter then came before the District Court and the case was argued by T. J. Bergin and A. H. Loughborough, for J. S. Rothschild, Paul Neuuman for the assignee, and J. Napthaly, who appeared on behalf of Van Gorder and Winters, who claimed that not only were their claims just, but that their claims should not be postponed to those of other creditors who were not stockholders, and that they should share in the distribution of the estate coordinately with the other creditors; that the Bankrupt Act in the distribution of estates of bankrupts deals with creditors, and that the bankruptcy courts cannot inquire into other relations existing between a person who tenders a proof of claim and the bankrupt or other creditors. The matter was submitted to Judge Hoffman, who filed an elaborate opinion sustaining the position taken by the attorney for assignee and the attorney for Van Gorder and Winters and confirmed the report of the Register, that Van Gorder and Winter's claims are just claims, and that their claims should not be postponed to those of others who were not stockholders. Messrs. Bergin & Loughborough filed a petition for the review of Judge Hoffman's decision in the Circuit Court (Judge Lorenzo Sawyer) and the matter was argued before him by the same counsel. The briefs which had been submitted to Judge Hoffman were again submitted to Judge Sawyer, and Tuesday Judge Sawyer affirmed Judge Hoffman's decision; thus holding that a creditor of a bankrupt corporation can share coordinately with other creditors in the distribution of estates of bankrupts, though such creditor may at the same time be stockholder in that corporation.

A Washington correspondent of The San Francisco Chronicle of April 7 gives the following:

The act of Congress to revise, consolidate and amend the law relating to pensions, passed during the last days of the late session, contains a provision which makes a radical change in the pensions allowed children and soldiers' widows. Under the old law one child, in the event of the death or marriage of widow, received no increase. Under the present law the pensions of widows are increased from and after the 25th day of July 1866, at the rate $8 per month for each child under the age of 16 years of the husband on account of whose death the pension has been or shall be granted. Under the new law the $2 increase applies to all children. Under the old law the widow of an officer received nothing for her children. Now, under the present law, she will receive $2 for each child. Although the law seems to be clear on the subject, the Secretary of the Interior has not yet determined whether the law is retroactive. The Commissioner of Pensions finds it impracticable to arrive at an approximation even of the amount required to meet this new feature of the law.

The provisions of the act which states that all persons who enlisted in the army during the war, and who are now prohibited from receiving bounty and pensions on account of being borne on the rolls of their regiments as slaves, shall be placed on the same footing as to bounty and pensions as though they had not been slaves at the date of their enlistment. The above law applies more to bounty than to pension, the latter not being materially affected.

Previously mothers could not be held dependent on a son when both were slaves. The interpretation of the Controller states that this only applies to claimants who were slaves. A colored enlisted soldier could not claim a bounty. He can under this law, but his mother or widow cannot, according to the last report of the Commissioner of Pensions.

Reports from Cimmaron and Red River, on the western frontier of Texas, and in portions of the Indian Territory, give every evidence of unusual uneasiness among the savages of these regions. The Cheyennes, Arrapahoes, Kiowas and Comanches, who range along the Cimmaron and Red rivers, have kept comparatively quiet since the lesson taught them by Gen. Sheridan, in the Winter of 1869. The Dog Soldier Cheyennes are composed of the most fierce and relentless of these savages, and several surveying parties have been attacked and their members killed by them recently. This restless spirit seems to prevail among many tribes, and in the opinion of the chief officer of the army needs to be checked to prevent a general Indian war during the coming Summer. The Seventh Cavalry has just started for the Plains and if necessary further reinforcements will be speedily sent in that direction. If this matter is left to the entire direction of the General of the Army, it is probable there will be no war, or if one should break out it will be of short duration.

Frequent inquiries have been made at the Internal Revenue Bureau as to when the act of December 24, 1872, abolishing the office of Assessor and Assistant Assessor of Internal Revenue, will take effect. The Commissioner, in reply, notifies all that the law will be put into operation on the 20th of May, and at that time the services of all the Assessors, 230 in number, and their assistants, about 1,200, will be dispensed with. The law provides that it shall go into effect on or before July 1 next, and the Commissioner has set the 30th of May as the most convenient time.

No appeal being taken in the case of the El Miguel rancho of Los Angeles county, California, and the question of the survey being settled, a patent will be issued in a few days to Juan Albia, on whom the grant was conferred.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Drunken Indians.

It is evident that we have one or two men in our midst claiming to be white who would sell their souls for a piece of silver, and it is equally evident that if Mephistoles himself was to become the purchaser he would be cheated at two bits each. These are the men who sell whisky to Indians. We hope some day to have an opportunity to chronicle their departure for a five years term at San Quentin, and as a very reasonable suspicion exists as to their identity, the chances are we will be gratified. Around a certain doggery not a hundred miles from this place drunken Indians are to be found almost any time. On Wednesday night last there was a band of them on the road north of town, one of whom made an effort to cut the leg of a soldier riding by, but got a pistol ball instead, at least the soldier fired at him and he fell to the ground. An examination by other parties, made an hour later, showed where the fallen body had been dragged off, though we have no positive evidence that the shot hit him. These felons that furnish the Indians the whisky are the responsible parties for acts of this character, which will sooner or later create a serious disturbance unless something is done to bring them to justice. The great difficulty in fastening this crime upon the right parties lies in the fact that the liquors are rarely obtained directly from the dealer but through the agency of some vagabond go-between.

Fatal Accident.

On the evening of the 4th instant Charles R. Sharpe, a miner working in the Union mine, Cerro Gordo, came to his death from a cave of some two or three ton of earth and rock. The most strenuous exertions were made to extricate him, but after some three hours work he was taken out dead. In the effort D. C. Haig received severe injuries from a piece of lead falling upon his leg, but he was not seriously hurt. Sharpe was a Canadian, about 27 years of age, sober and well thought of man. His obsequies on the following day were attended by almost everyone in town, the miners turning out almost to a man to assist in the sad rites of burial of their unfortunate comrade.

Gallardo.

Sheriff Mulkey arrived from Sacramento Tuesday last, bringing with him as a prisoner the above named monomaniac on matters of law, and landed him safely in jail with Peter Peerson and Ah Sin, an epizootic Chinamen. Gallardo before leaving Sacramento made application to have the Sheriff of that county accompany him here, swearing that he would be made away with and done for and never heard of more if left to the tender mercies of Sheriff Mulkey. He also, during his confinement in the Sacramento jail, entered a number of new suits for damages one way and another, among the rest one for the impeachment of Judge Reed. The man is certainly crazy.

Music.

Our town was for a few days this week favored with a treat rarely enjoyed so far in the sage brush wilds as this, in the shape of some excellent music, discoursed by the Anaheim Brass Band. The quartette consists of gentlemen who would, in a musical contest, lay in the shade many pretentious professionals, and their departure northward yesterday was a matter of general regret. THE INDEPENDENT establishment makes its profoundest bow for the compliment of a serenade. The boys are setting out for Pioche, taking in all the principal towns northward on their route.

Meeting.

The Trustees of the Waucoba Mining & Smelting Company will meet at Camp Independence, May 1st. The Company are now driving ahead on their road to the mines, and have it finished from Big Pine to the summit, about 15 miles. As soon as the road is finished a furnace will be erected and set to work immediately.

Off for Home.

Two of our old timers, G. W. Brady and Levi Firestone, started by the last Southern Stage, the first for "old Kentucky's shore," the latter for the Hoosier State, where they go to take the fashions for a few weeks, after which they propose to return here again, wiser, and let us hope happier men.

The Cerro Gordo Brass Band.

We last week inadvertently omitted to call public attention to the advertisement of the Cerro Gordo Brass Band, under the leadership of Wm. Hoskins, who are open to musical engagements. We trust that they may be shortly called upon to pay Independence a professional visit.

The Correct Time.

By some error not necessary to explain now, the time given last week for the departures hence of Ullrick's stages north was printed as "4 o'clock P. M." Now, instead of that, Brown toots his horn just before 1 P. M., and immediately after, on Mondays and Fridays, Dan is gone.

A Change.

Louis Munzinger has leased his interest in the Lone Pine Brewery to Frank Lenhart, the institution now being run by that gentleman and our old friend John Lubken.

More Whisky.

We are told that the people of Bishop Creek are getting very tired of having so many drunken Indians about, and as the only practicable means of putting a stop to the sale of liquor to them, and thereby avert a serious calamity, they threaten a Vigilance Committee that will clean out every doggery up there. It is not absolutely certain or even probable that the Indians obtain it directly at first hands, but it is certain that the Indians don't make the whisky themselves, but that it comes directly or indirectly from the saloons, so the keepers had better note very carefully those who buy whisky by the bottle or in greater quantities. This thing of jeopardizing the lives of women and children, and of having to kill Indians crazed with whisky as has recently been done in self-defense, is getting to be a very sorry joke, and one for which whisky sellers are alone responsible. If there was no fire there wouldn't be any conflagrations worth speaking of.

Somebody to Blame.

A short time since a young man came from Cerro Gordo to one of our valley towns, sick and in a few days died. He received every attention and a decent burial, but somebody was to blame for not forwarding to us for publication the fact of his death, with name and nativity in full. If a stranger dies in our land it is about as little as we can do to avail ourselves of the ordinary method of informing the world and the relations of the deceased, wherever they may be, of the occurrence. Also in the case mentioned elsewhere of the fatal accident whereby Sharpe met his death at Cerro Gordo, will some one tell us why the law regarding the finding of the cause of his death by coroner's jury was not complied with?

Sad Accident.

Letter from Cerro Gordo.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

CERRO GORDO, April 4, 1873.

MESSRS. EDITORS—Thinking that you would not take it amiss to receive a communication from this part of the world, I forward an item or two concerning what is transpiring in Cerro Gordo.

To begin with the principal topic of interest: The mines are still producing an abundance of ore, and the greater the depth attained the more astonishing the developments made with regard to quality and quantity. The remoteness from market as well as the great burden of a number of expenses comparatively unknown in other mining camps, have manifestly retarded the development of the mines, and prevented them from assuming a position among those of other districts, as they are second to none in point of richness and apparent inexhaustibility of ore deposits. The Front mine, of the O. L. S.-L. Co., is yielding a large amount of ore from the surface works, and notwithstanding the great and increasing demand made upon it for five years past, and the tons of ore extracted at a depth not exceeding 100 feet, still produces satisfactorily. A deep cut about 50 feet square has been made upon the vein from the surface, and the foot-wall, in all its huge proportions, exposed to the depth of 60 feet. This has been done with a view to uncover the beds of ore immediately beneath, by working from the top and stripping off the waste earth and country rock, all of which is quickly conveyed away by means of shutes from below and dumped at the mouth of the Omega tunnel. All attempts to attack this pocket from below are rendered abortive as well as very dangerous, on account of the very loose and broken condition of the ground. Work is about to be vigorously prosecuted on another mine belonging to the same company—the "Omega No. 1," which has been already prospected to a depth of 160 feet from the level of the Omega Tunnel, and has produced a paying quantity of carbonate ore. A large whim, of the most approved pattern, has been erected to facilitate the work of sinking on the vein. The Union mine of Messrs. Belshaw & Beaudry yields an abundance of argentiferous galena, more than sufficient to keep their furnaces running steadily, and the enormous pocket which was uncovered ten months ago exhibits no sign of diminution.

As no elaborate or detailed account of the mines is here attempted, I pass to other topics. The social condition of affairs in Cerro Gordo remains in statu quo. The history of other mining camps in California, in their early stages, before there came the softening and humanizing influence of churches, schools, etc., is here repeated. Dance houses constitute about the only entertainment of a public character, consequently dance houses are the popular resorts. A year or more ago some gentlemen with a reflective turn of mind, having been seized with a few misgivings as to the moral and intellectual tone of the amusements then so much in vogue, engaged in the laudable undertaking of organizing a literary and debating club, under the title of the "Cerro Gordo Social Union." The prime, moving cause that gave birth to this undertaking was the urgent necessity of diverting men's minds and attention from an amusement that had grown alarmingly fascinating and attractive, and of inducing public sentiment, in the character of its amusements, at least, to inaugurate an era of reform. The new movement was pronounced a success, and on debating nights the large and attentive audiences bore ample testimony to the interest engendered, as well as to the fact that the desire of cultivating the mind was not extinct, but yet remained predominant in the breasts of these reclaimed votaries of Terpsichore. Everything progressed swimmingly, the interest in the debates waxed more and more intense, and reached a culminating point, when a full house assembled to hear the crack speaker of one party (for the C. G. S. U. was divided politically, and party spirit ran high) deliver a withering denunciation of the corruption and profligacy of the other, in its base and sordid attempts to obtain the balance of power, by conniving at the appointment of a Democratic toll-keeper. The crack speaker was in his most eloquent vein; warming to the subject as it unfolded itself in glowing colors to his heated imagination, and having lashed himself into a state of furious indignation, he poured forth a volley of invective upon the crushed heads of his opponents, abounding in such mild and cheerful expressions as "vile machinations," "secret intrigues," "crawling reptiles," "demons of iniquity," "bribing," "suborning," etc. It was at this moment, when the orator had paused to take breath, there originated in a festive hail near by and came floating into the room, the soft, seductive strains of a harp and violin, thrilling the entire assemblage as it revived tender memories of the exhilarating pleasures from which they had long been barred. Not all the intense excitement of the debate, nor the undecided issue of the pending question could prevent an uncermonious adjournment, for simultaneously, like men under the mesmeric influence of a potent spell, they went for that music, leaving the champion orator to waste his eloquence on empty benches, which together with the Secretary (who was suffering from a lame foot), constituted his sole audience.

Such, alas, was the tragic ending of the Social Union! It was evident that it could not survive this cruel blow; and, as if affording a striking exemplification of the degenerate taste of the times, it died a wretched death. It is a matter of poignant and ceaseless regret to the party who were so mercilessly belabored at the last debate, that the Credit Mobilier developments were not made when the S. U. was in existence: for they say emphatically that the toll gate affair isn't a patch on that picture of Congressional villainy and rottenness; that it fades into utter insignificance when compared with a spectacle of venality and corruption in high places of such sublime and massive proportions that the whole world shrinks away affrighted and appalled.

Undoubtedly the "Social Union" was productive of good while it lasted. Some of the learned professions were were recruited from the ranks of its members. One who as President ruled over its deliberations now wears the judicial ermine; the promptness and justness of his decisions in the cases of offending criminals are doubtless facilitated by a practice acquired in deciding nice points of parliamentary law and etiquette. A now prominent member of the legal fraternity was connected with this society, and it is quite plain to his friends that the gift of legal acumen and convincing elequence for which he is noted was developed by many a sharp tussle with intellectual giants, in the forum of the Social Union, and before that august body.

MINER.

Engineer Appointed.

Mr. Archibald Blair, a prominent member of his profession, has received the appointment of Chief Engineer of the San Joaquin and Tulare Narrow-Gauge Railroad. It is his intention to view the route in person before taking into the field a full corps. For this purpose he will visit Visalia this week, and in company with the Tulare county Directors will make an observation of the road from Visalia to the San Joaquin river, at which point the Director from Fresno county is expected to join him and proceed with him as far as the Merced, where the Merced Director will take him, and so on through to Stockton, at which point he will be joined by his corps for making the actual survey. This fully confirms what we have previously said. The Board of Directors are fully awake to their duty, and the work is going rapidly though silently ahead, which is certainly a most salutary sign of ultimate success.—Fresno Expositor, March 26.

—Man and wife are generally called one. Some people though reckon them as two. But ten is the proper calculation of some couples—the wife one and the husband a cipher.

—Chinese servants don't like Philadelphia, as they are not allowed to pound on tin boilers Sunday.

Central America.

Dates from Central America to March 13 give the following:

The United States exploring expedition has finished its labors with respect to the country east of the Nicaragua, and is now about to proceed to examine the lines from San Carlos to San Juan del Norte, Point Mogo and other adjacent points on the Atlantic coast.

The rivers of Sapoa, Las Lajas, En Medio, Gil Gonzales, Ojhomogo and the line of Buenavista have all been carefully examined. Of these routes only three are practicable. All terminate in the Pacific at Port Brito.

The difference in the level of Lake Nicaragua and that of Manogna resulted in 21.35 feet, American measurement, and 24.3 feet Spanish measurement. Having concluded this work the Commission went to the capital, where they were cordially received by the Government, the members of Congress and the people in general.

The latest news from Honduras is that about the beginning of January disturbances were produced by a band of incendiary assassins in the department of Choluteca. From subsequent reports and private letters received in Salvador, it was seen that there were isolated acts of robbery which were not connected with any particular party or movement. The Government has kept up an active pursuit of these outlaws, and those caught have been severely punished.

Shocks of earthquake continue to be felt in the unfortunate city of San Vicente. The greater part of the houses in the valley of the Lempa are uninhabitable. After the great earthquake of the 30th of December last, the river Achahuapa, which runs close to the city, became quite muddy, which gave reason to believe that the causes were connected with the volcano of San Vicente, only that on the declivities of the mountain no damage was done. About four miles distant from the city, toward the east, there is a plain called Earthquake Plain, with a hill in it near the confluence of the Achahuapa with the Ismatic, where the shocks are more frequent and severe than in the city. At every shock great rocks roll down from the neighboring hills, and in "earthquake hills" deep and broad ravines opened up some 400 yards long. In this region it is feared that a volcanic eruption is about to take place.

The scene, says La Tribuna, presented by the city of San Vicente is deplorable and melancholy. Naked walls everywhere, rent and threatening to fall to the ground; roofs useless and public edifices ruined, the streets deserted and the miserable inhabitants living in the squares and vacant lots, sheltered by huts of branches of trees, and tents. For twenty-six days they have now been living thus, exposed to sun and the night dew. Twenty-five of the best families removed to other cities, generally without any hope of returning.

Is it a Villainous Plot!

George P. Bemis, of Omaha, a relative and the private secretary of George Francis Train, rushes to the rescue of his friend and telegraphs in advance, in this strain, to The New York Sun:

COZZENS HOUSE, OMAHA, March 16.

To Charles R. Dana, or Editors Sun New York:

I burst sixty-eight plots to thrust Mr. Train into an insane asylum, and I shall this one. Am after the hell-hounds. Davis, Comstock and all conspirators stand from under! My disclosures will throw the opinions of the medical commission to the winds, and lay bare the most damnable plot on record. I shall spare no one. Truth, justice and right must and will prevail. These developments will startle the world and crush all instigators. The world will stand by and sympathize with Mr. Train. GEO. P. BEMIS.

The idea that the story of Train's insanity was started by interested parties was sometime since suggested by The Herald, and the fact that at once upon the decision of Dr. Hammond, an attempt was made to induce him to sign a committment that should condemn Train to a mad house, gave additional color of probability to the suggestion. Mr. Bemis claims that the movement to confine George Francis in an insane asylum is the outcropping of a conspiracy, by near relatives, to secure control of his immense property. —Salt Lake Herald.

--Nervous old invalid—"Well, Miss Nipper, I think its quite time these passage walls were re-papered." Landlady—"Pardon me sir; but I was waiting to see 'ow your 'eulth goes on. Coffins is sech things to knock the paper off a comin' down."

—A hen has unfortunately been killed in Boston, which might in time have attained the power of laying golden eggs. A solid nugget of the precious metal was found in her insides, weighing four pennyweights, and in shape very like an egg.

—The people of Concord, N. H., give an annual concert and levee for the benefit of Lewis F. Miller, a little crippled newsboy, who is trying to work his way through Dartmouth College, and is now in his Sophomore year.

—A convalescent small-pox patient in England has been sentenced to £20 fine or a month's imprisonment for escaping from the hospital and making a circuit of the tap-rooms of the town in an eight hour "bender."

PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

THE SUBSCRIBER TAKES PLEASURE IN announcing to the people of Inyo county that he has purchased and fitted up as a hospital the Beaudry Hotel Building, adjoining the military post at Camp Independence. All the adobes have been removed and their place supplied with lumber; the grounds are handsomely laid out with shade trees and clover, and have a pure running stream of mountain water.

There is an excellent bath room and dispensary attached. One room is set aside for the county's sick, leaving ample room for private patients. The Northern Stage Line passes the door, and the place is easy of access from the town of Independence. The charges for board and lodging do not exceed those of any hotel or boarding house, offering equal accommodations, and the establishment has the advantage of having competent help and medical advice always at hand, being close by the house of the post surgeon at the camp.

Prospectus for 1873—Sixth Year.

THE ALDINE,

An Illustrated Monthly Journal, universally admitted to be the Handsomest Periodical in the World. A Representative and Champion of American Taste.

NOT FOR SALE IN BOOK OR NEWS STORES.

THE ALDINE, WHILE ISSUED WITH ALL THE regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light, and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of the THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. While other publications may claim superior cheapness, as compared with rivals of a similar class, THE ALDINE is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chromos, besides!

ART DEPARTMENT.

Notwithstanding the increase in the price of subscription last Fall, when THE ALDINE assumed its present noble proportions and representative character, the edition was more than doubled during the past year; proving that the American public appreciate, and will support, a sincere effort in the cause of Art. The publishers, anxious to justify the ready confidence thus demonstrated, have exerted themselves to the utmost to develop and improve the work; and the plans for the coming year, as unfolded by the monthly issues, will astonish and delight even the most sanguine friends of THE ALDINE.

The publishers are authorized to announce designs from many of the most eminent artists of America.

In addition, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view to the highest artistic success, and greatest general interest; avoiding such as have become familiar, through photographs, or copies of any kind.

The quarterly tinted plates for 1873 will reproduce four of John S. Davis' inimitable child-sketches, appropriate to the four seasons. These plates, appearing in the issues for January, April, July and October, would be alone worth the price of a year's subscription.

The popular feature of a copiously illustrated "Christmas" number will be continued.

To possess such a valuable epitome of the art world, at a cost so trifling, will command the subscriptions of thousands in every section of the country; but, as the usefulness and attractions of THE ALDINE can be enhanced, in proportion to the numerical increase of its supporters, the publishers propose to make "assurance double sure," by the following unparalleled offer of

PREMIUM CHROMOS FOR 1873

Every subscriber to THE ALDINE, who pays in advance for the year 1873, will receive, without additional charge, a pair of beautiful oil chromos, after J. J. Hill, the eminent English painter. The pictures, entitled "The Village Belle," and "Crossing the Moor," are 14 x 20 inches—are printed from 25 different plates, requiring 25 impressions and tints to perfect each picture. The same chromos are sold for $30 per pair, in the art stores. As it is the determination of its conductors to keep THE ALDINE out of the reach of competition in every department, the chromos will be found correspondingly ahead of any that can be offered by other periodicals. Every subscriber will receive a certificate, over the signature of the publishers, guaranteeing that the chromos delivered shall be equal to the samples furnished the agent, or the money will be refunded. The distribution of pictures of this grade, free to the subscribers to a five dollar periodical, will mark an epoch in the history of Art; and, considering the unprecedented cheapness of the price for THE ALDINE itself, the marvel falls little short of a miracle, even to those best acquainted with the achievements of inventive genius and improved mechanical appliances. (For illustrations of these chromos, see November issue of THE ALDINE).

THE LITERARY DEPARTMENT

Will continue under the care of Mr. RICHARD HENRY STODDARD, assisted by the best writers and poets of the day, who will strive to have the literature of THE ALDINE always in keeping with its artistic attractions.

TERMS.

$5 per annum, in advance, with Oil Chromos free.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscriptions must be sent to the publishers direct, or handed to the local agent, without responsibility to the publishers, except in cases where the certificate is given, bearing the fac-simile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

FROM AN OLD INYOITE IN THE SOUTH.

[Correspondence of The Inyo Independent.]

MURFREESBORO, TENNESSEE, April 2, 1873.

MESSRS. EDITORS—It has been a long time since, under the nom de plume of "Occasional," I wrote you a letter, but that is no reason why I should never write you again. "Better late than never" as the old adage goes. It gives me an opportunity, you see, of adding another word to my name, as "Semi-Occasional" instead of the plain democratic "Occasional." I don't use that word "democratic," Messrs Editors, in its partisan sense, for in that sense, as well as the word "republican," neither can scarcely be said to have a partisan meaning now, since the Credit Mobilier transactions have been brought to light and the increased back pay salary bill was passed. As a party neither of the formerly so called "Democratic" and "Republican" parties can truthfully be said to have much vitality. Like the dog that was blown to pieces by the explosion of a torpedo which he had swallowed, neither can now be said to be of much value "as a party." It is pretty generally conceded hereabouts that the Increase Salary Bill was a clear steal, or rather robbery of the public treasury. Of all the men who voted for it from this State not one, in my opinion, whether he be Democrat or Republican, will ever warm a seat again in either House of Congress through reelection. There are several Congressman from this State who voted for it who were elected last Fall to the Forty-third Congress, and of course they, being already elected, will serve in the next Congress. They cannot, however, in my opinion, be elected to Congress again from this State. There was but one member of the House from this State who voted against the bill, and that was John M. Bright, from this District. All the rest either voted for it or dodged the question or vote. Both Senators Brownlow and Cooper voted for the bill, and thereby damned themselves to everlasting infamy.

Permit me to say, Messrs. Editors, that I was in Washington this past Winter during the Credit Mobilier investigations, and was in the gallery of the House of Representatives at the time the vote was taken on the increase of salaries, and a more—well I won't say hard things of our honored Representatives, for there is plenty of other people who are saying hard things of them, but one thing I wish to and do remark right here and now, and that is this: I noticed that as many as three Representatives whose personal appearance indicated that they were schoolboys rather than Congressmen. I learn that these men were from Southern States, and were elected to Congress by negro constituencies. This illustrates and proves the statement to be true that "as the constituency so will the Representative be." If the one be ignorant and uneducated, so will their Representatives be; generally speaking in such case such Representatives will be unprincipled and selfish—a mere money grabber, knowing nothing of the honor of the position and caring less. Such men only go to Congress for the money there is in it, and generally run it for all it is worth. When on the Pacific Coast I frequently heard it told of a son of "Extra" Billy Smith, that in writing to his father, then in Virginia, he advised and urged him to come out to California, and held out to him as an inducement to so do, that many "mean men" got office out there. Well, now, I do not know whether this be true or not, but suppose not, and yet it illustrates somewhat an idea I have in reference to some portions or sections of our Southern country, in which some mighty "mean men" seek and get office. They flocked into these Southern States after the war like vultures seeking a carcass, not as bona fide immigrants to settle and build up the waste places of the country, but to fill the offices of the country. Now I do not mean to say that there were no mean men among the native Union men, but as a general rule the native Union men of the Southern States, those who took the brunt of the storm of secession and disunion, had a moral integrity and firmness of character that not only caused them to hold with undying and unyielding tenacity to the Constitution and Government of the United States, but also kept them from stealing and plundering the public treasury. After the war was over, however, a fine field was open for plunder and office in these Southern States. A gigantic civil war had swept over the country, brought upon the pretext of fighting for the right of owning slaves, finally ending in the utter overthrow and annihilation of not only the men who brought it on, but also the institution of slavery itself. Slavery would have been an institution of the land to day had it not been for their folly, ambition and short-sightedness. In the utter overthrow, prostration and helplessness of those who brought on the war, in came the office-seeking element (the so-called carpet-baggers), and in order that they might hold the reins of power long and firm (a large portion of the native element joining with them to this end) they sought to and did disfranchise the ex-rebel and enfranchise the ex slave en masse, that is of the male gender over 21 years. This accomplished they doubtless imagined they had a life long lease of power, but curses like chickens come home to roost, sometimes, and this was one of the cases where it was verified. Their power was but of short duration, for the better portion of the native Union element, both of the whites and blacks, soon came to see that there was neither republicanism or democracy in having, if not a majority at least a large minority of the people disfranchised. The ex-rebel was therefore enfranchised, and now the Jeffersonian rule of honesty and competency is being more frequently and generally applied to aspirants for office. The vocation of the carpet bagger is therefore fast fading into the dim vista of the past in many portions of the Southern States.

I see that President Grant has very recently said that he intends making his appointments to offices in the Southern States from native Republicans if he can find them who are honest and competent. Well, honesty and competency is a good rule, and I think as a general thing in these Southern States nativeism is a pretty good rule too, for the simple reason that so many dishonest men from all parts of the country flocked in here immediately after the war. To illustrate: Last October a year ago, I was stopping at a hotel in Washington. At the table immediately in front of me sat a young man, Littlefield by name, who in conversation told me that he had been living at Columbia, South Carolina, until a short time previous thereto. Having heard that one Harry W——, whom I had known in Nevada, was living at Columbia, I asked the young man if he knew him. He told me that he did, and was very communicative apout the said Harry. The young man went on to tell me of many of Harry's exploits, and among the rest was this one: The President of a railroad company wanted State bonds in aid of his railroad to the amount of $4,000,000. The President employed the said Harry to manipulate one Moses, the Speaker of the House, agreeing to pay Harry a large amount for his services, and authorizing him to go as high as $40,000 for Moses' influence and services. It was understood that Moses could control the negroes in the Legislature, a large majority of which were negroes. Harry saw Moses on the subject, and ascertained from him that $30,000 would secure his influence to carry the bill donating State aid to the amount required through the Legislature. Moses asking only $30,000 to secure his influence and services, Harry, naturally enough, supposed that $35,000 would be more acceptable to him, and that he, Harry, could, under the circumstances, safely enough tell Moses that $40,000 had been placed at his disposal for that purpose, or that he, Harry, had been authorized to offer as much as $40,000 for his influence and services. Harry therefore told Moses this, and agreed to pay him 35,000, or, more properly speaking, agreed that the railroad men should pay the $40,000, out of which Harry was to have $5,000 and Moses to have $35,000. Harry understood that Moses agreed to this, and that Moses was to represent that he got the $40,000 for his services and influence. Harry supposed that it was all right between him and Moses, but when the bill came up to be acted on in the House, Moses called some member to the chair, and went down on the floor of the House and made a most effective and strong speech against the measure. This of course was a bomb shell thrown into the camps of the railroad men, which not only astonished and astounded them, but confounded them. The young man who told me the story said that the President of the railroad company at the time the bill came up and Moses made his speech against it, was out of the city about two or three miles, and that he, the young man, jumped into a buggy and went for the President of the railroad at great speed, got him and took him to the House of Representatives immediately. That upon their arrival at the House Moses was in the Speaker's chair, and that the President went right up to and asked him what he meant, that he, the President, understood that he, Moses, was to go for the bill, and that Harry W—— had been authorized to say to him that he, Moses, was to have $40,000 for his influence and services. Moses thereupon told the President of the railroad company that Harry W—— was trying to swindle him, Moses, out of $5,000, and that he did not like to have anything to do with middlemen, that he thought the railroad men might have come to him direct, instead of sending that fellow Harry W—— to him. The President of the railroad company then told Moses to go on and put the bill through and he should have the $40,000. Moses then asked the President if he promised that upon his honor as a man. He was answered yes, and thereupon flopped over in favor of the bill, spoke for it and put it through. The truth was Moses saw that he had sold himself and influence to Harry W—— at a less price than the railroad men set upon them, and the more he thought about it and Harry's shrewdness, as he felt in swindling him out of $5,000, the madder he got, until at last he was determined that Harry W—— should not swindle him out of $5,000 as he said and felt, but that the railroad men should pay him the whole $40,000. After the young man got through telling me his story, we sat facing each other for some time, eating our dinner, when he spoke up again and said to me that he had forgot to tell me that he had a brother in that Legislature. I then remarked that I thought that I would not have told it if I had been him. He gave a little giggling laugh, looked at me quickly a time or two to see if I meant it, soon got up and left and has never spoken to me since. Now, Messrs. Editors, that is the story just as the young man told it to me, and as I have every reason to believe it happened. Indeed I have no doubt of its truth substantially as told me by the young man, and as I have related it above, to the best of my recollection. But enough of this. Now off to something else.

I had the pleasure of meeting your Mr. Josiah Earl in Washington, and was with him frequently. Mr. Earl is an energetic, active, wide-awake man, and I think was of great service to the people of Inyo county at Washington this past Winter. The truth is a Congressman has so much generally on his hands and mind, that he cannot give his personal attention to everything that is brought to his notice affecting the interest of his constituency. In a new country such as yours nearly every county has interests to be looked to at the national capital, and which it is almost impossible that your Congressman can attend to, and hence the necessity and importance of having a man there to aid your Congressman in all that it is desired. Mr. Earl was very active and effective. It was mostly through his efforts that the Aurora Land Office was removed to Independence and the boundaries of the district changed, as you have seen it announced in the newspapers. To him also is principally due the appointment of one of the editors of your paper to the office of Land Register or Receiver (which ever it may be) of the District. He also got quite a number of new mail routes established in Inyo and adjoining counties, and altogether Mr. Earl did much this last session of Congress for the advancement of the material interests and prosperity of the good people of Inyo county, and I think they ought to honor him for it by an unanimous election to the Legislature of your State at the next election. Mr. Earl has had some experience, to my knowledge, in deliberative bodies. He was once a member of the Convention that framed the constitution for the State of Nevada, under which the State Government is now operating and acting. How much more experience he may have had I am unable to say, but this I do say for him, that in my opinion he would make a good legislator, and a valuable member for the interests of your people and country. Wishing the good people of Inyo much prosperity, health and happiness, I am, very respectfully yours

SEMI OCCASIONAL.

The Columbus Wagon Road.

Mr. Wilson, a resident of Aurora, informs us that the Columbus Road Company are pushing their enterprise with much vigor, constructing bridges and grading, and that they expect to have the road open for travel for wagon travel within three weeks' time. This will facilitate traffic and travel between this point and the borax and silver mines of the Columbus district very materially, and bring about the long desired close relations between Carson and those important points. Mr. Wilson says that the Borax Mining Company find it very difficult to obtain the necessary labor, and there is work in the district for quite a number of men. Wages are $4 per day.—Carson Appeal, April 8.

Timber Lands.

At the last session Congress passed a bill to this effect: Any person, on making the proper affidavit of intention, may enter a quarter section of land and receive a patent for the same if he or she shall plant, protect and keep in growing condition for five years 40 acres of timber thereon, the trees to stand not more than eight feet apart each way. The patent, however, will not issue until after the expiration of five years of cultivation, which has to be substantiated by proper proofs. But as the planter himself derives all the benefits and profits of the trees he has cultivated, and obtains other land besides to the amount of 160 acres, it occurs to us that this is a very liberal law. Section 4 of the same Act makes a provision in favor of homestead settlers under the old law, to this extent: That any person holding a homestead who shall have had under cultivation for two years one acre of timber for each and every sixteen acres of the said homestead, shall upon due proof of the said fact, receive a full title to the whole homestead. The trees, as before, are to stand eight feet apart. All this to encurage tree culture.

A War of Races.

Affairs in Louisiana are apparently about to culminate in a war of races—"nigger or whiteman—which?" About 500 blacks were, on the 11th, entrenched on Calhoun's plantation, near a place called Colfax, and their armed pickets are patrolling the country. A large number of whites started up from Alexandria to clean them out, but after getting about half way, concluded that it wouldn't pay, so they marched back again. For a long distance along the river above and below Colfax, all plantation work had been suspended and no negro men were to be seen, all but the women and children having rallied to the standard of battle. The future for that region looks ominous.

A Stinking Contest.

The Supervisors of Alameda county, the majority of whom were opposed to Oakland as the new county seat, have selected a site for the Court House two miles from the business portion of the town and in the midst of the slaughter houses of the city. To get even the City Council have passed, or are considering, an ordinance making the grounds adjacent to the Court House site the permanent location for slaughter houses and the place for dumping night carts, etc.

On the Calender.

We observe the following four motions among many others for writs of mandamus and certiorari on the Supreme Court calender for April 14: Gallardo vs. Reed; Gallardo vs. Hannah; Gallardo vs. Hannah; Gallardo vs. Hannah. As the plaintiff in these cases was suddenly called away on important business to this, one of the "uncivilized border counties of the State," we presume these cases didn't come to an issue at the time set.

The Death Valley Party.

Senator Perkins, Rev. Mr. Brier and others whom we mentioned a few weeks since as having gone to Death Valley in search of Brier's Gunsight lode, reached Sacramento a few days since on their return. They didn't get a sight of the Gunsight, but report the discovery of numerous rich mines both of silver and borax, but all so far away from water and fuel as to be of no practical value.

Ku-Kluxed.

Representative Houghton has kukluxed us this week to the extent of nearly a score of finely bound volumes of reports of the Ku Klux investigation. He will please accept our thanks for his good intentions, whether we find many interesting jokes in these reports, or otherwise.

Kern County.

The Havilah Miner of the 12th instant speaks very encouragingly of the mining prospects of the county. It says of the Joe Walker mine:

The Joe Walker mine, which has remained idle since inundated eighteen months ago, has been bought by Hon. P. T. Colby, who has associated himself with one of the best mining experts of this Coast, E. R. Burk, Esq. These gentlemen have purchased a pump of immense lifting power, and will start at once to take the water from the mine, after which a large force will commence to extract rock, which will set the twenty stamps to jumping again. They mean business. Every man has been engaged in town and sent to the Joe Walker.

THE MASSACRE.

No event connected with Indian deeds and treachery that has occurred on this coast has ever excited a deeper feeling of indignation and humiliation withal, than that of the late massacre of the lava bed. These feelings are intesified from the fact that this old fiend incarnate, Captain Jack, through his wily diplomacy in holding at bay the whole power of the United States as it were, for months, merely that he might lure to their death the very men of all others who were striving hardest to befriend him in sympathy for his weakness. It was a dastardly deed even for an Indian. Still, with the memory of the Mountain Meadow massacre before us, which was not the work of Indians—and also when we remember the fact that these same Modocs were the victims of a piece of murderous treachery at the hands of Ben Wright which, for treacherous meanness, no Indians have ever yet excelled—when we consider these facts and attending circumstances, we feel more like characterizing this horrible deed as one worthy of the meanest of whitemen—a degree an Indian may equal but never excel, taking the examples mentioned as illustrations. In the one case the Indians in cold blood murdered their best friends that they might strike an enemy which, they know full well, has the power and the will to pursue them off the face of the earth for the act. Black as their hearts and deserving of death a thousand times over as they are, yet in true courage and manhood in thus immolating themselves on the altar of their wrongs, and resolving to die for vengeance sake, they stand head and shoulders above Ben Wright, those Mormons and their kind, who betrayed not only men but helpless women and children to their death, and this, too, in good care that no personal harm, present or future, could inure to them, the cowardly perpetrators! For twenty years the blood of Ben Wright's victims has appealed for vengeance, and now, in accordance with their Indian ethics, these Modocs have answered that appeal, though the blow does fall upon innocent parties and their own best friends. For twelve years the blood of the hundred and twenty-eight Mountain Meadow victims has cried out in vain for vengeance against the cowardly and fiendish murderers, and yet the mighty power of the whole United States has not been able to untie a single knot of red tape that stands between the lecherous perpetrators and the gallows.

While we sincerely hope the entire power of the Government, if necessary, may be used in hunting the last one of this handful of Modocs to his death for this foul deed, we at the same time beg his pardon for characterizing it as one too mean for any but his race to do. He is chivalry itself compared to those Mormons or Wright and his gang who lured so many unsuspecting Modocs, big and little, to their death.

But notwithstanding all this these Indians have been treated with an astounding degree of forbearance since this outbreak—a fact which gives a deeper feeling to their crowning act of treachery, independent of the worth of their eminent and kind-hearted victims. Henceforth it may be assumed that no more mistaken sympathy will be permitted to interfere in settling terms of peace in such wars. Let us hope that we have seen the last of Peace Commission appointments, and that the whole Indian question may be turned over to the military, where it belongs; that when conditions of peace are once offered they are not to be subject to amendments while an Indian stands to his arms.

This great Government is hardly excusable for its miserable stupidity in not bringing this Modoc question to an issue before the opening of Spring. It has been obvious for weeks, and the fact has been repeatedly urged upon the President, that that was the only object of Captain Jack's dallying policy. We have not the remotest idea that he will stand a decisive fight, or may be any kind of a fight at all, where he now is. He can take to the mountains and the vast areas of tamarack wastes existing not far distant, and while carrying on a bloody border war, most likely with the help of other tribes, he can bid defiance to the military and available volunteer forces of the coast for months, or until the snows of another Winter place it out of his power to longer escape. We hope, however, his overweening confidence may induce him to risk a fight where he is, and the end will soon come.

COMPULSORY EDUCATION.

In speaking of the demand for compulsory education The Sacramento Record makes this remark:

"The ignorant oppose compulsory education because demagogues have gained their ears; these demagogues fear to lose control of the herds they now lead by the nose; and because where there is a positive absence of knowledge there rarely exists any appreciation of its importance."

There is no doubt but there is truth enough in all this, but the opposition in the main has another base. The strongest opponents are those who affect to believe that such a law would be in contravention of their rights as free, American citizens having a right, not only to live in ignorance themselves, but to raise their children in the same manner if they want to. But in that they are laboring under a serious error, according to our notions of the true rights of American citizens.

Ignorance and vice are so nearly correlative that for a parent to assert his right to raise his child in ignorance is to maintain the right to educate him in vice, regardless of the rights of society. It does not follow as a matter of course that vice is always coupled with ignorance, nor that one is necessarily in individual cases a corollary of the other, but the statistical histories of both communities and nations abundantly prove that the denser the general ignorance the greater the amount of vice and crime and the less the extent of political freedom. Therefore it is as much a right and duty of a free people to legislate against ignorance, the prime cause, as against crime, the effect, which they must do for their own safety. The only safeguard for any free government is essentially contingent upon the general intelligence of its people, and such being the case, those who exercise their assumed right to raise their children in ignorance do so in opposition to the rights of society, and are insisting upon the very plan to deprive themselves or their posterity of far dearer privileges now vouchsafed by a free government.

The law now provides ways and means affording an opportunity for almost every competent child in the land to obtain a fair education. In every district free schools have to be maintained, and whether they are attended by few or many pupils. The law imperatively requires the maintainence of the schools and it ought to be equally so in requiring the attendance of those for whose sole benefit they are intended and sustained at so much expense in money, and time and labor oftentimes devolving upon individuals who derive or expect no direct benefit whatever.

As before stated, it matters not whether all or but a few children attend any given school, the cost to the community is the same. It matters not if there are none but abecederians attending a public school its teacher has to pass years in qualifying himself and then pass a rigid examination in the higher studies before he is permitted to teach such as they. These qualifications have to be paid for, and, in communities like this in which we write, almost entirely by those who have nothing but a general interest at stake. If it is fair to compel a community to furnish its children the opportunity to obtain an education for the general good now and hereafter, it is fair on the other hand to adopt some measure to secure the desired object by compelling an attendance of those for whom the school is intended. If a community has to be heavily taxed, as they are, to provide an educational antidote against hoodlumism in its midst it ought, by the same rule, to have the right to demand that the embryo hoodlums of both sexes be required to accept the proffered antidote.

Nothing short of a compulsory law will ever accomplish the desired object. Without that the community must ever be doubly taxed. First, in providing the only practicable preventative against hoodlumism or crime—the opportunity to obtain an education, and secondly, through its rejection in so many instances the consequent crop of hoodlums themselves will have to be taken care of eventually at the public expense. The probabilities of such finality are morecertain from these noticeable facts: That those children who chafe under the proper and essential restrictions of the schoolroom, and refuse to be governed by such, are generally the first to be withdrawn in consequence by shortsighted parents, who thereby offer a premium for a violation not only of of the rules of school and home, but educate the child in the belief that he is amenable to no restraints or laws except those of his own will. It rarely happens that a child brought up in due respect for the rights of others as well as the commands of parents needs punishment for violating essential rules of school discipline, while on the contrary, those who care nothing for home rule, care less for that of the school, and in case of well-deserved punishment, no matter how slight, are the first to be withdrawn and, acknowledging no restraints, the fault of weak parents in the main, an embryo hoodlum is turned cose on society—a result that a rigid, compulsory education law would often avert, and in a manner much cheaper to the public, and eventually far less galling to the pride of those parents who stand on their reserved rights of raising their children in ignorance, or what is the same thing, inculcate in their hearts the belief that they are amenable to no rules of government, in school or out.

MURDER OF GEN. CANBY AND THE PEACE COMMISSIONERS!

Last Sunday a dispatch from the Lava Bed, dated April 11, forwarded by the correspondent of The San Francisco Chronicle, was received in San Francisco, creating there, and subsequently throughout the country, an intenser excitement and a stronger feeling of indignation than any similar event since the Great Rebellion. It was the news of the murder by Capt. Jack and a portion of his band, of Gen. Canby and the Rev. Dr. E. Thomas, and the mortal wounding of A. B. Meacham.

Gen. Canby, accompanied by Peace Commissioners Thomas, Meacham and Dyar, with Frank Riddle and his Indian wife as interpreters, went by appointment of Capt. Jack to hold a final consultation with the Modocs in the hope and expectation of arranging terms of peace. The treacherous old fiend had notified the Commissioners the day before that terms previously proposed by them were accepted, and only desired a meeting with the above selected few to ratify and arrange details. The spot selected for the interview was on the banks of Tule Lake, and thither the old General led his little party. Soon after they reached the ground, eight Indians came in, and Meacham opened the talk. He was followed by Gen. Canby and Thomas, each making a short speech, the Indians interrupting at times by grunts of approval. Jack then spoke a few words, and rising moved back a few steps while old Sconchin talked. In the midst of Sconchin's speech Jack made a quick movement toward the General, who was sitting down, and drawing his revolver yelled, "Hetuck! hetuck!" (All ready!) and at the same instant leveled his pistol at the General's head, and pulled the trigger. The cap snapped! Before the whites could recover from their surprise at the astounding turn affairs had taken, Capt. Jack had re-cocked his pistol and fired again. This time the pistol went off, and a bullet went crashing into Gen. Canby's brain, just under his right eye. The brave old officer sank to the ground without even groan.

At almost the same instant John Sconchin leveled his pistol at Meacham and fired twice, one ball taking effect in the shoulder and the other in the head. Meacham fell, but was not killed, though it is feared he is mortally wounded.

Boston Charley and another Indian both fired at Dr. Thomas, and both their shots took effect in the head. The Doctor died almost instantly. He never spoke, so far as Dr. Dyar knew.

Hooka Jim fired at Dr. Dyar, but his cap snapped, and the Doctor, being fleet of foot, managed to get a few yards away before Jim could fire again. When he did fire he missed him. Hooka Jim followed some distance, but finally Dyar turned and drew a derringer on him, when he ran back. The whole of the horrible scene was witnessed by Frank Riddle and his wife, who, while the firing was going on, managed to make their escape, though the squaw was knocked down once by the rushing about of the Indians.

Gen. Gillem had stationed a signal officer on a distant eminence commanding a view of his own camp and the place of meeting. The diabolical act was thus by signal known to Gillem's command almost at the instant, and before it was fairly ended the troops were under arms and in the double-quick to the rescue. Owing to the nature of the ground it was nearly an hour before they reached the glade where the terrible deed was done. To use the words of the correspondent who accompanied the troops:

The Indians had of course fled, but the dead bodies of the slain General and Dr. Thomas lay there in all their ghastliness. First we found Meacham, who was a terrible looking object. His face and head were covered with blood, and he was utterly helpless, though able to speak a few words.

Next we came to the body of Rev. Dr. Thomas, the newly appointed Peace Commissioner, shot and stripped to his pants, but not disfigured. A little way from him lay the body of Gen. Canby, one of the bravest and best of men, shot in the head and stripped naked. I took of my coat and covered it until I could tear a strip from the tent to throw over and decently cover it. The General's face wore a peaceful look, and it was apparent that life had gone out without a groan of agony. The grief and rage of the soldiers at the sight of these bodies were simply terrible. They broke through all military restraint and demanded of Gen. Gillem to be taken instantly to the Modoc camp; but the General, though burning for revenge as fiercely as they, was not so imprudent as to run the risk of defeat by going in without even ten minutes preparation. He did send the troops, however, about half a mile beyond the scene of the massacre in the hope of catching some of the assassins. Of course they were unsuccessful, and they returned to camp taking the dead bodies with them.

Mr. Meacham was borne into camp on stretcher. His wounds have been examined and pronounced serious. It is hoped that they are not fatal. The bullet in the forehead ranged downward, cutting of the eyebrow and the ridge of the nose. There is one flesh wound in the right fore-arm, entering behind the right ear and escaping three inches above. A long incised scalp wound completes the list. The red devils did not have time to complete their murderous work or they would have had his scalp.

Frank Riddle warned the Commissioners that he apprehended danger this morning. On the way to the meeting he told Gen. Canby that he did not feel altogether safe, and even suggested that they return, but the General had faith and continued on to his death.

To show how insolent the Indians were in their demands, it may be stated that in his last speech before the massacre Capt. Jack demanded the ranches of Fairchild and Dorris for a reservation—lands which they had bought and paid for years ago. He was told that it was impossible to accede to his request, and in five minutes afterward the massacre began

In Memoriam.

"Thomas McMillan, Assistant Surgeon and Chief Medical Officer of the Modoc Expedition, died on Sunday last of the heart disease. His remains will be brought to San Francisco for interment."

Who among the residents of Inyo county, to whom Dr. McMillin was personally known, can read the above brief, startling announcement without experiencing the deepest feelings of sadness? Stationed for some three years as Post Surgeon at Camp Independence, Thomas McMillin, M. D., by his general bearing, suavity of manner, natural goodness of disposition, professional skillfulness and unceasing attention to those who demanded his medical services, he so completely won all hearts that not a murmur of complaint or dissatisfaction has ever been breathed against his well-earned name; but on the contrary, his memory seems enshrined in the hearts of every man, woman and child with the brightest recollections only.

A few, brief months ago (last October), the writer, with two other residents of Independence, had the pleasure of traveling from San Francisco to Sacramento on the steamer in company with the deceased. Apparently in the very prime of manhood, reveling in the enjoyment of the flush of health, brimful of life and animation, poor McMillin spoke gayly and cheerfully of the incoming years' bright visions when he intended, with Mr. B——, to gratify a life-long wish of making the tour of Europe; and so sanguine was he of carrying out that intention that he applied to the War Department for a long leave of absence, and which, I believe, was granted.

But, alas for the uncertainty of human calculations! The hand that so skilfully administered to the sick shall never again perform its tender duties. The eyes which with almost womanly kindness beamed so tenderly on that portion of suffering humanity to which his professional duties called him, are now fixed in the glassy stare of death! The merry, ringing laugh is heard no more, nor again will ever be felt the warm grasp of his friendly hand. Cut off in the very meridian of life, and while serving his fellow man and country in a most useful and noble field, let us hope that in bidding adieu to its earthly tenement his spirit has winged its way to the realms of everlasting bliss, to take up its abode in "That house not built with hands, Eternal in the heavens."

Independence, April 14th.

The Arizona Apaches.

The Arizona Miner of Saturday, March 28, has news from Gen. Crook's troops as follows:

Messengers from troops in the field in the Tonto Basin reached headquarters on Wednesday evening last, with dispatches from Major Brown and others. Lieut. Woodson's command killed fifteen warriors and captured two women. Lieut. Michler's command killed five warriors and captured five women. Capt. Taylor's command killed three warriors and captured two women. The Indians are very much frightened and scattered. Quite a number have come in at Camp Verde and surrendered unconditionally. They say that all are now desirous of surrendering. The commands are still operating in the field, and it is hoped that many surrenders will soon take place. The horses of the commands are suffering much from the epizootic, and the troops are doing their work mostly on foot. They are, however, in excellent spirits. The Indian allies are working admirably. Many of the Pinal and Aravaipa Apaches are restless on their reservation, and there is a well grounded belief that Cochise is all the time stirring up mischief among them and the Coyoteros. His own tribe still keep up their raids on Mexico.

Capsized.

The Inyo stage upset on Sunday night near Havilah. It was heavily loaded. Many of the passengers were bruised and the driver severely injured. The wagon was badly broken. It had overset before the same evening near Walker's Basin without doing damage. Many parts of the road near Havilah are dangerous to drive over in the night time, and if the road was much frequented accidents would often occur.—Bakersfield Courier, April 12.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Political.

Even at this early date, candidates and rumors of candidates—rumors, principally—are the order of the day. We undertake below a mention of the different gentlemen spoken of for the varfous positions. We have but a few direct from the parties most interested, the greater number being merely surmised by others. However, if the parties named are not candidates there is no harm done; if they are, it may suggest the idea of coming out openly—which is by far the best plan: For District Judge—Theron Reed, the present incumbent, Republican; Thomas Laspeyre, Democrat. For the Legislature—J. Earl, S. V. Stevens, Republicans; W. L. Hunter, John W. P. Laird, Jas. E. Parker, Democrats. For Sheriff—James Shaw, Republican; T. K. Hutchison, John Bourland, Wm. G. Squires, J. J. Moore, Democrats. For Clerk—R. A. Loomis, Republican; J. B. White, W. L. Moore, S. P. Moffat, Democrats. For District Attorney—F. K. Miller, Republican; R. B. Snelling, Democrat. For County Treasurer H. M. Isaacs, Democrat. There will be two vacancies to fill in the Board of Supervisors, for which J. C. Kingsley, Republican, and A. G. Boley, Democrat, are spoken of at Bishop; we have heard no name mentioned as to the probable candidate at Lone Pine or Cerro Gordo for the position. Other candidates may be on dit, but if so they have escaped our inquiries.

Columbus.

Affairs at the thriving camp of Columbus are represented to be of the liveliest description, the borax and mining enterprises being prosecuted to the fullest extent. The population is estimated from 750 to 1,000, and on the increase. One company will shortly have in operation 86 vats, each of which produces 1,500 pounds of borax every 24 hours. "Nadeau's teams" are unable to do all the transportation business connected with the various operations; and, we learn, that gentleman is about purchasing some fifteen more. The great prosperity of the camp is a matter of no small interest to the people of the northen portion of our county, as it furnishes a cash market for all the grain and produce that can be raised.

Well Satisfied.

Messrs. Peerson and Gallardo seem to be as happy as clams at high tide with the place, kind and quality of the accommodations supplied them by Under Sheriff Moore. Leastwise, when offered the opportunity last Monday to get out on bail they really felt much obliged but would rather remain where they were. It may be they are trying to induce Ah Sin, their fellow lodger, to take stock with them in a new damage suit, or it may be they think there is no hope of eventual escape from the clutches of our talented District Attorney unless they give him a fair chance to prosecute them, or it may be they don't like to trust their unprotected corpuses among the uncivilized heathens of this border county, you know.

Beginning to Arrive.

Several big freight teams loaded with goods for Rothschild & Co. got in here last week and some twenty more, destined for different points in the county, are expected in a very few days. Most of them have been laid up on the road for some time on account of the epizoo. The freighting business of this county is not likely to suffer any further interruption from that trouble.

Dull.

Our Lokleitems is on the verge of despair, at the general dullness of the news market. It is getting to be a long time between items. His assistants in other portions of the county have weakened, and it is in vain that he scratches his own cabeza for ideas—possibly because said operation has other results. However, somebody is respectfully requested to do something. Let us have a melancholy dance, or a delightful suicide, or a runaway. A dog fight would be refreshing.

Where Is It?

The Lone Pine package of last week's INDEPENDENTS turns up missing, a fact which has elicited some inquiry. We are totally unable to account for it unless the mailing machine got drunk and sent the addressed papers off under the wrong superscription. Will the Postmaster who finds the estray package start it in the right direction?

Lengthy.

Uncle Abe Parker has this week been welding together and fixing up two rods of iron for the Bend City bridge, each 77 feet in length and 1½ inches in diameter, besides a number of others of the same size 10 feet in length. This sort of work with indifferent facilities is not conducive to a very pious frame of mind, we are told.

May Day.

We understand that Busy Bee Lodge, I. O. G. T., are making active preparations for having a good, old-fashioned May Day party and picnic. The arrangement of the details seems to be in the hands of a very competent committee, and doubtless the "Tanks" will have an enjoyable time of it.

Bierstadt.

This noted landscape painter arrived at Camp Independence a few days since. We are not advised as to whether he is on a painting or mining expedition this time.

Send in Your Bills Early.

All those confiding souls who hoped for a dividend on their accounts involved in the Kearsarge bankruptcy suit, will be gratified to know that that hope is likely to be largely gratified. There is about $90,000 on hands—of accounts to be paid, and a surplus above costs of litigation of $400, or something less, with which to pay it. It took some real good engineering to bring about this bewitching grand finale, and for that much let us raise our thankful ebenezers, whether outsiders see much in it to admire or otherwise.

Stock Raisers

Who wish to replace their scrub bovines with graded stock from a throughbred Durham sire, will note Mr. Muller's advertisement. The animal he advertises is one of the fine lot he purchased at the last State Fair, and has few, if any, superiors of his kind in the State.

Bonds Filed.

Death.

Blas Mendez, a Mexican, we believe, died on Monday last, from pneumonia. The deceased was a well and favorably known resident of Lone Pine.

Gone.

The horse disease, which so extensively prevailed hereabouts a short time ago, has entirely disappeared. Good bye old Epizoot!

An Awful Earthquake.

Panama dates of April 10 give the following account of a terrible earthquake in Central America.

The city of San Salvador, Central America, has been destroyed by an earthquake. Eight hundred persons perished and $12,000,000 of property was destroyed. The earthquake was followed by a conflagration and many buildings were burned.

For a few days slight shocks had occurred, but no serious apprehensions were entertained. It was on the 4th instant, about half past 4 o'clock, almost without warning, a great part of the city was reduced to little more than ruins. The ground heaved like a ship in a gale; a terrible thundering burst from under foot; walls tottered and were rent in many places; roofs sank to the ground. Wild birds flew to houses, horses grew frantic in the stables, and dogs slunk howling for protection. Every few minutes shakings though of less violence occurred.

The scene beggars description. Ruined houses, panic-stricken people, men, women and children, fled to the fields with valuables hastily collected. Then the ringing of alarm bells and beating of drums calling all soldiers under arms, for in San Salvador murder and pillage accompany the confusion of great earthquakes, and frightened citizens leave town, and Indians from the forests prowl into it for prey, and are only checked by the bayonets of Government troops, which are posted in squads at short distances over the city.

San Salvador is the Capital of San Salvador, one of the Central American States. It is situated on a small stream which flows into the Pacific Ocean 105 miles southeast of Guatemala. It stands between wooded hights in a well watered vale several thousand feet above the sea, and about three miles southeast of the volcano of San Salvador. Seen from the town this fire-mountain forms a most beautiful cone, with a gently sloping summit, crowned to the highest peaks with thick forests. The city of San Salvador is said to have been founded in 1523 by Spanish emigrants. It has at different periods greatly suffered by earthquakes, especially in the years 1659 and 1854, when it was nearly destroyed. The population, a short time before the catastrophe of 1854, amounted to about 18,000 souls. The town was regularly built, contained several churches and convents, and was the seat of a bishop It was a depot for sugar and indigo, and had some manufactories of iron wares and cotton goods.

How to tell Borax.

Capt. Chase, of the Coast Survey, gives the following directions to test a supposed borax find: Pour sulphuric acid on the supposed borate of lime (previously heating the saucer), allow a few minutes to elapse then pour alcohol over it. Set it on fire and if it yields a yellowish green flame it is borate, the intensity of the color indicating the percentage. This is a commercial test, and is good only provided there be no salts of copper in the borate, or copper in the vessel.

Eastern News.

Hawley (Rep.) and an enemy of all railway and other incorporated thieves and robbers, runs in his district 1,600 votes ahead of the Connecticut State ticket. Ingersoll (Dem.) is elected Governor by from 2,000 to 3,000 majority. Last year the Republicans elected the Governor by 2,001 votes, and in November Grant had a majority of 4,758. Three Republican Congressmen are elected. Barnum (Dem.) carries the Fourth District. The Democrats gain four Senators. The House is probably Democratic by a small majority. Last year the Republicans had twenty-six majority in the House.

A desperado named Helm killed some four or five men with a knife at Galveston, Texas, April 5. Some of them were trying to arrest him for stabbing an unknown boy.

The latest figuring on the Ohio Constitutional Convention shows the following result: Regular Republicans elected, 50; Independent Republicans, 3; Regular Democrats, outside of Hamilton county, 42; in Hamilton county, 5 Democrats and 1 Liberal Republican, and 4 candidates are elected whose names are on both tickets. Both Democrats and Republicans claim the Convention, but until the official returns are received, it is impossible to know which party will have a majority in the Convention.

Secretary Fish has written a letter relative to the paper filed by Justice Cockburn in the record of the Geneva Arbitration, which claims that England's action during the rebellion was internationally legal. Mr. Fish severely condemns the paper, and charges that its tone justifies apprehensions of future difficulties with England, and virtually ignores the idea that any settlement of principle was effected by the Geneva Conference.

Heavy floods and great damages therefrom are reported as occurring in New York and Canada.

At Rochester, New York, on the 8th, a wall fronting on the Genesee river fell toward the stream, carrying into it twenty-five or thirty persons, all of whom were washed over the great falls and lost.

It is understood that the President will appoint Gen Lafayette McLaws Marshal for the District of Georgia. Gen. McLaws served with distinction in the Confederate service, and is a pronounced Democrat.

Fires are raging in the forests of Virginia, about Gordonsville, almost as terrible as those which swept over parts of Michigan a year from last Fall. The loss falls heavy on the farmers.

Pacific Coast Items.

The Bakersfield Courier says that everything is now ready to commence work on the extension of the railroad from Tipton south.

The State Medical Convention is in session in Sacramento.

In San Francisco on the 11th instant a German named Henry Ganz blew his brains out. On the Thursday previous, E. A. Marchant was shot down in his office by one John Samuel, and on the same day a man made an attempt on his wife and daughter with an axe, inflicting terrible wounds on each, and then hung himself. This maniac's name was John Kennedy, and was crazed with whisky.

HEART PICTURES.

BY JULIAN CROSS—SLIGHTLY ALTERED.

"Thirteen years?" Why, yes, quite that Since Maggie fust went wrong;
"Fault of mine?" You bet it wasn't!
You see, her will was always strong,
And that's the secret of it.

I couldn't tame the gal,
'Twere no use in me a-talking,
Her law was shant and shall;
When I spoke in anger
She'd open them brown eyes,
And laugh me into kissing,
While her tongue was telling lies.

I don't know why, but darn me if I weren't her biggest toy!
She took delight to rile me, and my tears would give her joy;
She'd never known a mother, and p'raps that's just the cause
Why all my talk and training couldn't keep the gal in doors.

Well, there, to cut it short,
When she was just sixteen,
She left me, with a sport,
Who knew that she was green,
And tempted her according,
In the blackest path of sin.

My Maggie, Sir, was ruined.
These tears, they won't keep in;
Don't mind 'em, Sir, they're nothing.
They won't bring Maggie back.
"Hear'd from her?" Not directly;
"And this little bit of black?"
For my darling child I wear it.

Yes she died, three weeks ago,
In a——haunt of shame,
Where, of course, she had to go;
I never saw her body, but they pointed out the grave,
And I often wander near it, tho' her name they dare not save;
A mound of earth and flowers, my own heart broken tears,
Are all that's left of Maggie, and my story disappears.

Treatment of the Meningitis.

The following card addressed to "the medical profession," is published in the Atlanta papers by Dr. J. J. Knott, who in answer to numerous inquiries gives a synoptical statement of his treatment of this terrible disease, thereby enabling the profession to employ this treatment during the present epidemic in this and adjoining States. Dr. Knott states that this treatment should not be employed by any but a skillful physician, as to such this communication is addressed. Persons reading it are requested to show it to their family physician. Papers generally are asked to publish the card:

TO THE MEDICAL PROFESSION

The following treatment which has been employed by me since the Winter of 1862–63, with uniform success in all cases where the treatment has been instituted within twenty-four hours after the development of the prominent symptoms: In the first place discard all ideas of this disease being an inflammatory affection of the brain and spinal cord, saturate a flannel (folded several times) with spirits of turpentine. Apply this along the whole course of the spine, pass over this after the ordinary mode of ironing, a common sad or smoothing iron, well heated. Continue this for ten or fifteen minutes until you have well stimulated the spine. In the meantime give the quinine in heroic doses, to be repeated every two or three hours until all symptoms are overcome. Follow each dose of quinine with a heroic dose of bromide of potassium combined in solution with an ordinary dose of solid Hyoscyanius. The object of the bromide is to control reflex action and the doses should be regulated according to the head and spinal symptoms, as this is dependent on electro monic charges in the periphery of the nerves, from this the action or the modus operandi of the quinine and bromide will be readily understood by the intelligent physician; under no circumstances use a fly blister or opiates in the outset of this disease; avoid all cold applications to the head and spine.

When constipation exists, which is generally the case, use large doses of calomel every three hours until the bowels act freely. Physicians con rely on this treatment when instituted in time.

Joint Entry for Pre-Emption Settlers.

The following act passed the last Congress, and is now a law:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That when settlements have been made upon agricultural public lands of the United States prior to the survey thereof, and it has been or shall be ascertained, after the public surveys have been extended over such lands, that two or more settlers have improvements upon the same legal subdivisions, it shall be lawful for such settlers to make joint entry of their lands at the local land office, or for either of said settlers to enter into a contract with his co-settlers to convey to them their portion of said land after a patent is issued him, and after making such contract to file a declaratory statement in his own name, and prove up and pay for said land, and proof of joint occupation by himself and others, and of such contract with them made, shall be equivalent to sole occupation and pre-emption by him. Provided, that in no case shall the amount patented under this exceed one hundred and sixty acres, nor shall this act apply to lands not subjected to homestead or pre-emption entry.

SEC. 2. That effect shall be given to this act by regulations to be prescribed by the Commissioner of the General Land Office.

Approved March 3, 1873.

NOTICE OF THE REMOVAL OF THE LAND OFFICE FROM AURORA, NEVADA, TO INDEPENDENCE, CALIFORNIA, AND OF CHANGE OF BOUNDARIES IN THE AURORA AND CARSON CITY LAND DISTRICTS IN NEVADA, AND THE VISALIA DISTRICT IN CALIFORNIA.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Aurora, Nevada, April 1st, 1873.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT PURSUANT to an order of the President of the United States, dated February 27th, 1873, and instructions of the Hon. Willis Drummond, Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated March 20th, 1873, we have this day suspended all action looking towards the disposal of lands embraced within the limits of the Independence Land District, hereinafter described, and that the Land Office at Aurora, Nevada, will be removed to Independence, California, and will be open for the transaction of business at the latter place on Saturday, the 31st day of May, 1873.

All business in said Aurora Land Office relating to the disposition of lands embraced within that part of the District lying within the State of Nevada will be suspended on the 15th day of May, 1873, at which time said lands will be transferred to the Carson City Land District.

The said Independence Land District will embrace all lands lying within the limits of California which heretofore formed a part of the Aurora Land District, and in addition all that part of the Visalia District which lies east of Range Thirty-two (32) Mount Diablo Meridian.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

THE SUBSCRIBER TAKES PLEASURE IN announcing to the people of Inyo county that he has purchased and fitted up as a hospital the Beaudry Hotel Building, adjoining the military post at Camp Independence. All the adobes have been removed and their place supplied with lumber; the grounds are handsomely laid out with shade trees and clover, and have a pure running stream of mountain water.

There is an excellent bath room and dispensary attached. One room is set aside for the county's sick, leaving ample room for private patients. The Northern Stage Line passes the door, and the place is easy of access from the town of Independence. The charges for board and lodging do not exceed those of any hotel or boarding house, offering equal accommodations, and the establishment has the advantage of having competent help and medical advice always at hand, being close by the house of the post surgeon at the camp.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Singular Suicide.

Here is a little story which for the ingenuity, coolness and calm determination of the principal actor deserves a prominent place in the annals of self-murder. Alfred Roberts was a young man of unexceptionable character and antecedents, employed in the lead mills of Messrs. Winder & Harross, Manchester, England. If he had any more trouble than usually falls to the lot of individuals of his age, the fact was not known. That he was tired of life and exceedingly anxious to get rid of it, was abundantly proven by the events narrated. The cause of this weariness he has carried with him to the great court of final appeal. Roberts was a member of one of the numerous volunteer corps with which our British cousins are now amusing themselves. Other employes of the establishment had similar military proclivities, and in order to perfect themselves in drill were accustomed to resort to a large room in the building and there practice blank firing. On the 4th of March, Roberts, in company with several of his fellow-clerks, was engaged in this species of mock warfare, and after they had each fired a number of times, he gave his rifle to a friend named Thomas Walter, and going to the other end of the apartment told him to aim at his breast. There was nothing extraordinary in this request, as the young men were in the habit of thus pointing their weapons at one another, for the purpose of acquiring steadiness of nerve. Walter therefore took the rifle, and after deliberate aim pulled the trigger. To his horror and dismay Roberts dropped dead—shot through the heart! In his hand was clutched this brief but all sufficient note:

MARCH 4, 1873.

I am very glad you have saved me the trouble of shooting myself. I know you are anxious to become a marksman in the corps; perhaps I will be of service to you by making a target of myself. Wishing you success to your first shot, I remain yours respectfully,

ALFRED ROBERTS.

Mr. Tom Walters.

Roberts, of course, must have slipped a ball cartridge into his rifle before he gave it to Walters—thereby accomplishing a suicide which has at least the merit of perfect originality. The unintentional murderer was completely overwhelmed by the occurrence; the real murderer is free from "malice domestic or foreign levy,"

Fleas and Dogs.

Josh Billings says: The flea is the smallest and most pesky of animals. They bite worse than a mosquito and oftener, because they bite on the run. About fifteen fleas die annually, except when a dog is drowned.

Dogs have infested this earth as long as man. There is no reliable evidence as to the first dog. Esau was a mighty hunter, but whether he kept a dog or not is not known. He sold his birthright for a mess of pottage. He found out like a great many others that he could not live on pedigree.

The yellow dog has no pedigree; his tail is a burden to him. Ever since Columbus discovered America the yellow dog has been an orphan.

The Newfoundland dog is useful to save children from drowning, but then you have got to have a pond and children running about loose.

The rat-terrier is a native of Great Britain. One who has no pedigree and can kill 97 rats per day is not worth as much as one with a pedigree who can kill 58 per day.

—The Rev. De Witt Talmadge, of tabernacular notoriety, has changed the wording of the Scripture in regard to salt. His reading is: "Ye are the antiputrefatic of the earth; but if the antiputrefactic has lost its antiputrefatic, wherewith will it be antiputrefaticated?"

—"Tom," said a girl to her sweetheart, "you have been paying your distresses to me long enough. It is time you made known your contention, so as not to keep me in expense any longer."

Lida Valley and Gold Mountain.

[From The Reese River Reveille, April 15.]

From Mr. Frank Clugage, who has just returned from that section, we get some items in reference to Gold Mountain and vicinity:

At Lida Valley there are at present about one hundred men, mostly engaged in prospecting and developing locations already made. The eight stamp mill of Hiskey & Walker is running steadily, the mines already opened keeping up a constant supply of ore.

At Gold Mountain there are about eighty men, mostly engaged in prospecting. A miners' meeting was held last Wednesday to consider means of getting water into camp, there being at present only sufficient water for domestic purpose. Six miles distant from the mines there is an abundance of water, which parties offer to bring in for the sum of $30,000. Mr. Clugage left before the adjournment of the meeting, therefore we have no means of knowing what action was taken in regard to overcoming the greatest obstacle to the working of the mines.

At Montezuma shot-gun arguments are the prevalent business, no two men in the camp agreeing on any one subject, and every one of them standing guard over a prospect hole like a lot of prairie dogs over their burrows. The water is taken from a tunnel, and that tunnel has got a door to it; to this door is attached a padlock, and this padlock has a key. Said key is carried by a man, and on the pleasure of that man depends whether or not, and how, when and where anybody gets any water. It is described as a very sociable camp, only the society is somewhat too demonstrative and somewhat inclined to be slightly aggressive.

Mr. Clugage describes Silver Peak as a very pretty and well laid out town, but of the "deserted village" order. There are said to be valuable mines at Silver Peak, but at present they lie unworked. They are owned by wealthy New Yorkers, and we are not informed of the reason for their being idle. The population of the town consists of about five men and a dog, though there are many good buildings which are vacant.

The stage line from Austin to Gold Mountain is now in running order, and as those who have visited the district speak highly of its prospects, there will in all probability soon be considerable emigration in that direction.

Relative Distances.

Cerro Gordo, according to the Government surveys, is thirty miles east and one hundred and seventy miles north of Los Angeles, and consequently the distance between the two places is one hundred and seventy five miles in a straight line. Cerro Gordo from Bakersfield is eighty miles north and sixty miles east, and the distance between the two places is therefore, in a direct line, nearly northeast, one hundred miles. When the sinuosities of the wagon roads leading to it from this place and Los Angeles are taken into account, we find the difference in favor of this place is kept up in the same relative proportion, while if the superiority of the road was considered it would be greater still. Tipton, the present terminus of the railroad, is twenty miles nearer to Cerro Gordo by the wagon road than Los Angeles, yet that advantage seems too small to attract all the trade from the old route in this direction. But this state of things cannot endure much longer. Work is now resumed on the railroad. It is not likely it will stop until it reaches this place; but in any event a new point for the delivery of freight will be established, in a few weeks more, at least thirty miles nearer in this direction. It remains to be seen whether any freight teams will still pursue the Los Angeles route with a difference of fifty miles, over a better road, in favor of that via of this place. —Bakersfield Courier, April 19.

Death from Smoking

The New York correspondent of The Buffalo Courier reports a sad case of death resulting from smoking. He says that for thirty years the victim had been a heavy smoker of the choicest cigars, but in all his other habits temperate and regular, and of excellent constitution—one who, of all men would have laughed at the suggestion that tobacco was killing him. On Sunday he was stricken with the progressive paralysis characteristic of nicotine, and on the next Sunday night he died. His death was most pitiful. First, sight was lost, then speech, then motion of the neck, then motion of the arms and so on throughout the body, and he lay for a fortnight unable to move or make a sign, save a pitiful, tongueless, inarticulate sound, which sometimes rose to an almost frantic effort, all in vain, to make known what he wished to say to his family or friends—for his consciousness and mental faculties were left unimpaired until within two hours of his death, to aggravate to the utmost the horror of his situation—a living soul in a dead body. The sense of hearing was left unimpaired, so that he was conscious of all around him, while incapable of communicating with them as if dead, save by a slight sign of assent or dissent to the question. The doctors were fully agreed that tobacco was the sole cause of this stroke.

—As an auctioneer in England was saying "Going, going, gone," the floor went from under him, and about thirty people went out of the world.

How They Keep School in Virginia.

The Virginia Evening Chronicle tells the following: Prof. Janes had another "high old time" yesterday in endeavoring to conquer an unruly boy, fourteen or fifteen years of age. He placed the boy in a room in the upper story of the Third Ward School building for the purpose of correcting him. The boy wouldn't stand it, and started to leave the room. Janes locked the door, leaving himself, the boy and a good, stiff rawhide inside. The boy fought like a tiger and kicked up a tremendous noise. A number of large boys went to the head of the stairs and threatened to kick in the door and "go the teacher some," but about the time they got ready to carry their threat into execution one of the lady teachers appeared upon the scene and commenced pitcoing boys down stairs. She dispatched one of them in this summary manner when the others followed precipitately of their own accord. The janitor of the school was then called in to guard the door against the rioters, while Prof. Janes continued to worry with his antagonist up stairs. The new rawhide used by the teacher was worn out until it was as limp as a dishcloth, hearing of which, one of the School Trustees sent down a fresh one. The boy was not conquered, however, for on leaving he threatened to waylay the teacher and "beat him to death." In rearing and plunging around the room the boy butted his head against a blackboard and knocked himself down, which little diversion enabled the teacher to take off his coat and go at it with renewed vigor. It requires a pretty able-bodied man to manage one of our Virginia schools, and as mental and physical power are not often combined in the same person to any marked degree, we would suggest the propriety of our school trustees employing (as at present) good teachers, and securing the services of O'Baldwin, the Irish giant and reformed pugilist, as disciplinarian.

—A savant, Dr. Struthers, has been making a special study of the bones of whales, and has discovered that the unfortunate leviathans are subject to rheumatism. Considering how much each of them must have, if they have it at all, and considering further that the cold water treatment can't do them much good, we think that the rheumatic whales must experience a sense of relief when they find themselve mortally harpooned.

STORMS IN INYO.

From all accounts, we should judge that Inyo county is not a very desirable place to reside in. From private correspondence we learn that on the 2d instant, at Independence, several houses were blown down and a number of people injured. They lately had an earthquake just as severe as the one of a year ago. In less than three hours, they had thirty distinct shocks. The Inyo people are not anxious to furnish news for the papers when it is of this nature, and there has been very little said about the recent storms and earthquakes in that section of the State.—Oakland News.

The capacity of exaggeration which has of late manifested itself in writers who speak of Inyo affairs is astounding, and would command our admiration were it not that their sheer maliciousness incites contempt instead. "A number of people injured;" "just as severe as the great one of a year ago." When lies grow to the magnitude of these we feel it useless to recount the tame facts in the case, but nevertheless submit the following to the next paragraphist who may have occasion to work up one of our items, or who may feel disposed to kill space by doleful comments on Inyo affairs:

At the latest earthquake in Inyo county, the other day, the convulsions of nature were simply terrible. Owens Valley lies betwen two chains of mountains, rising respectively to the hights of 8,000 and 14,000 feet. By some vast force one entire range was thrown directly under the valley, and as a consequence of the increased altitude the howling winds of Polar latitudes sweep over the region with relentless fury. By the continuous throes of the earth (thirty in three hours), millions of people have perished; and Death Valley, it being the chosen cemetery, presents a spectacle compared to which the Necropolises of ancient Egypt are but one small burial vault. As if in adding effect to the scene, the summit of Mount Whitney has been replaced by a fathomless chasm, while the volcano mentioned by The Chronicle "Commissioner" now has its vent immediately underneath the lake. The contents of Saline Valley have been spread over a territory extending from the Sierra on the West to the Colorado River on the East. On the northern end of this slightly disturbed country, Mono Lake and Bircham's volcano are engaged in an awful war of elements, a contest of enthralling interest to the beholder, but highly suggestive of such a hereafter as is in store for the editor of The Oakland News, et als.

Bullion.

Eureka alone is capable of producing 100 tons of lead per day for the next twenty years, if not longer. Three years ago our lead was worth only about $85 per ton, while now it commands $125. Eastern Nevada can supply the civilized world with lead for the next century. But we want railroads to fully develop this kind of mineral wealth.—Eureka Sentinel.

Inyo proposes to have a hand in the business of supplying the world with lead, neighbor, as she produces now some 40,000 pounds of base bullion per day, and from all appearances a capacity for such production only limited by the number of furnaces which she may have to reduce the ore. But the little railroad matter is what ails us, too.

Borax Locations.

It is stated that Commissioner Drummond, of the General Land Office, has decided that borax deposits may be surveyed and located upon under the provisions of the Mining Act of May 10, 1872. Under the construction of the Commissioner, no location of a placer claim can be made to exceed 160 acres, whatever may be the number of locators associated together, or whatever the local regulations of the district may allow; and no location made by an individual can exceed 20 acres, and no location of 160 acres can be made by a less number than eight bona fide locators.

A New Paper.

A new monthly magazine bearing the title of The Illustrated Press has been established in San Francisco, by Messrs Dewey & Co. It is a professed patron of the fine arts, contains a good variety of reading matter, and is superbly illustrated. Subscription only $2 per year; sample copies, 25 cents.

The Sandwich Islands.

Secretary Fish has taken occasion to emphatically deny the report that our Government is making efforts toward the annexation of the Sandwich Islands. The long-pending negotiations for a reciprocity treaty with them has thus far resulted in nothing definite.

GOLD OR GREENBACKS.

Financial circles of the State are actively discussing the question of an adoption of currency as a general circulating medium, and almost unlimited arguments are presented pro and con. On the 19th instant Amasa Walker delivered an interesting address before the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, in which he strongly opposed any change looking to the adoption of greenbacks as a basis of business and financial operations.

During the war, the State of Nevada patriotically adopted the national currency as a basis of taxes and disbursements, but the official effort to induce a general use of money other than gold and silver was a failure, and a subsequent Legislature restored the State government to a coin footing.

Now, however, commercial reporters in San Francisco have for months past been bewailing the great stringency of the money market, which is a state of facts never before prevailing at this season of the year, when stocks are usually buoyant and money easy.

We conceive that the remedy against future exigencies of the kind lies in a tedious and somewhat difficult action not likely to be taken—the repeal, change or modification of the clause in our State Constitution which prohibits banking, and by restriction tends to the formation of such immense financial rings as the California Bank—which holds financial sway over two States and controls the money market and rates of interest at will. Although gold is rising in New York and greenbacks are in consequence depreciating here, it is fair to presume that the financial policy of the Government will tend to the resumption of specie payment, when our current medium, obtained at a low rate, will equal gold and property values advance in a like ratio.

The establishment of money institutions based upon the system of the National Banks is undoubtedly to be desired, as a general introduction of Eastern capital would follow, not only on account of the superior general inducements, but because of the Govment's extreme liberality toward the institutions which must buy and deposit United States bonds as security for their outstanding notes.

The how this change is to be effected is not so clear, but people will use greenbacks when they can get them, as will also be the case with gold—which, so long as twenty millions are annually produced, will circulate with the same volume that it now does.

THE GRANT FAMILY.

The promotion of young Fred Grant from Second Lieutenant to Aid-de-Camp on the staff of the Lieutenant-General, just as he steps out from the Military Academy, is little relished by old army officers who have seen service and know by experience how slow and hard to get is promotion for them. In school, Prince Fred was chiefly noted for his abuse of the colored cadet, rather than for obtaining any honors in class. Out of it, on a leave of absence, he immediately hob-nobs with the rulers of Europe, under the kind protection of a distinguished General. The Army and Navy Journal says about it that "there is little profit in criticising injustice for which there is no remedy, but it is not well to disguise the fact that great dissatisfaction has been created in the army by the promotion of a young Second Lieutenant of infantry, just from the Military Academy, to the position of Aid-de-Camp on the staff of the Lieutenant-General, in place of officers whose services and position so much better entitle them to such a position." The New York Sun treats the matter thusly: "Is it not urjust to blame Gen. Grant for securing for his son Fred $3,500 a year instead of $1,500? Can those who approve the President's lobbying to get $50,000 a year for himself, when he had agreed to work for $25,000, properly find fault with his little game for doubling the salary of his oldest son?"

Nellie Grant, who has been accorded more honest praise by the newspapers, in a complimentary way, than was ever bestowed upon her father, is to join hand and fortune with a gentleman of New York by the name of Murphy, son of the wealthy Collector of that port, and—presumably a Frenchman.

Master Jesse, who has left Washington in company with ex-Senator Cole and family, has started on a tour around the world, and though but fourteen years of age, will make it unattended, a la Duke Alexis.

The Japanese Mission.

De Long's resignation as Minister to Japan is said to have been received and accepted by the State Department at Washington. Joe Goodman, of The Virginia Enterprise, is De Long's probable successor. The Japanese are wisely protesting against a change.

A REMARKABLE CASE.

The San Francisco Chronicle starts afloat a remarkable story of the recurrence in that city, on the person of a Miss Collins, of an ancient, so-called miracle recognized by those of the Catholic religion as the stigmata, wherein the patient, in a trance-like condition, endures and typyfies the sufferings of the Crucifixion. The subject in this case is a half-orphan English girl, 22 years of age. She is a volunteer Sister of Charity, going around visiting the sick and aiding the destitute, and ardent devotee and more than devout in her rigid observances of the requirements of her religion. Of the "strange miracle," we condense the following from The Chronicle's lengthy account:

On Thursday night, after a hard day's tramp among some poor people in a remote part of the city, she was taken quite ill. She felt a severe headache and was seized with a semi-unconsciousness which alarmed her companion. A messenger was dispatched to the Rev. Father Pendergast and also to Judge Tobin and family, John Sullivan and wife, C. D. O'Sullivan and wife, George Hooper and wife, and Dr. Pawliki, who are cited as having witnessed the occurrene which followed. That night her condition grew worse, and friends became seriously alarmed. The next day (Good Friday) Miss Collins suddenly went into a trance, and then it was that the startling manifestations took place. Suddenly the persons watching by her bedside observed red spots come in the middle of her hands. The spots grew redder and redder and in a few moments blood flowed from them. The spots had the appearance of wounds made by piercing them with a nail. They went clear through the hands, showing as plainly in the palm as on the back, and they discharged blood from both sides. The appearance of these wounds led to an examination, and two wounds of precisely similar character were found upon the feet. Like the hands, they exhibited two red spots, from which the blood flowed quite freely. Another larger spot, from which the blood likewise oozed, was found on the right side, just below the breast. During all this time the young lady lay in a comatose state and never breathed even. She lay in that condition all of Good Friday, but in the evening she showed signs of recovery. The blood ceased to flow from the supernaturally inflicted wounds, though the spots remain red and inflamed. The next day she recovered consciousness, and is now as well as ever.

Aside from the wonderful legerdemain which has so thoroughly deceived "some of the best ladies and gentlemen of San Francisco," the incident described is chiefly interesting to us because of the discussion which it has brought up, and the relation from religious authors of numerous cases of the phenomenon or miracle of stigmata. The Chronicle says that very many of the asserted cases have been exposed and punished by the Catholic Church itself, and editorially files its utter disbelief in either the stigmata of Miss Collins, nor in the stigmata of St. Francis of Assisi in 1226; nor in those of Maria Von Emerich and Veronica Giugliani; nor the 145 cases of Dr. Imbert Gourbeyre, nor the Lisbon nun. It thinks that "very good and pious persons, who are anxious to believe in miracles, can be unconsciously humbugged to a most miraculous degree."

The Sacramento Record comes up with the following compilation of several interesting, "well-authenticated" cases in which the stigmata appeared:

These singular phenomena were first exhibited before the class of emotional pietists known as Ecstatics, and there are on record numberless instances of such persons who had all the marks of the nails in the hands and feet, the wound in the side and the crown of thorns. A very remarkable case was that of Catherine Emmerich, a nun of Westphalia, who not long since created such a sensation among the literary circles of Germany. She underwent close and repeated examinations by Garnier, the Director of Police, and the principal physicians. By all of these her marks and wounds were declared supernatural, and the physicians said that such wounds could not be made and kept open by art without making them sore, which they were not in the slightest degree. An older but still well-attested case is that of Francis of Assisi. It is said that "his hands and feet seemed bored through with four wounds, and these wounds appeared to be filled with nails of hard flesh, the heads of which protruded and appeared upon the palms of his hands, and on the instep, while the points protruded on the opposite side, and seemed as if clenched with a hammer. His side, moreover, presented a red wound, as though from the point of a lance, and this wound occasionally gave forth blood." It is true that of the cases of stigmata on record the greater number belong to that period when superstition was too rife to permit of candid inquiry, save in exceptional instances, but fortunately we are not compelled to rely upon by-gone evidence in this regard. One of the most interesting, remarkable and elaborately investigated cases occurred in the present century in the person of Maria de Mœrl, a Tyrolean girl of noble family, in the year 1832. This case was examined and reported upon by Professors Gœrrs, Leon Bore, Edmund Cazales, Cerise and others, and the report was published in several languages in 1845. The most extraordinary feature of this ecstatic condition was that the subject simulated, with awful fidelity, the agony and death of Christ, and that this imitation occurred every Friday, on which day alone her wounds shed blood. We are tempted to quote a little here from the graphic account of Dr. Gœrres, one of the scientific investigators of the case, "The first time I visited her," says he, "I found her in the position in which she remains during the greater part of the day, on her knees, at the foot of the bed, in ecstacy; her hands were crossed on her breast, and showed the prints of her nails; her face was turned a little upward; her eyes were raised to heaven, expressing the most profound abstraction, which nothing external could disturb. During whole hours I was unable to detect any motion in her body, excepting that produced by an almost insensible respiration. The subject of meditation is the passion of our Saviour, which produces on her the most profound impression and is exhibited externally. Every Friday in the year the contemplation of this mystery is renewed. The action commences on Friday morning. At first the movements are soft and regular; but in proportion as the action becomes more distressing and powerful the image which she assumes takes a deeper and more distinct character. Finally, when the last hour approaches, and her heart is lacerated with grief, death is arrayed upon every feature. She is then on her knees, her hands crossed on her breast. A mournful silence reigns round. Pale as her countenance may have appeared during this sorrowful drama, you observe her still grow paler; the shudder of death occurs more frequently, and life is gradually departing. Sighs, breathed with difficulty, announce that the expression augments. Her eyes, more and more fixed and immovable, shed large drops of tears. Nervous spasms occur; involuntarily she opens her mouth; like a thunder-cloud presaging a storm, these spasms form larger and larger circles, until her whole countenance is distorted, and they finally become so violent that they shake her whole frame. Respiration, already so difficult, is changed into painful and plaintive sighs; a dull redness covers her cheeks; the swollen tongue seems to cleave to the palate; the convulsions become quicker and stronger; the hands, hitherto raised, give way, and fall rapidly; the nails assume a blue tinge and the fingers are convulsively interlocked. Presently the rattle is heard in her throat. The breath comes with more effort from the breast; the features are so distorted as to be scarcely recognized; the mouth is wide open, the nose shrunken; the eyes are fixed and seemed ready to burst their orbits. At long intervals some sighs escape through the stiffening organs, and it would seem that the last must soon be utterred. The head then sinks with every sign of death and the whole appearance is totally unlike herself. All remains thus for the space of about a minute and a half. Then the head is raised, the hands return to the breast, the countenance recovers its form and calm expression, and she is herself again."

It may be well to remark that all ecstatics whose cases have been intelligently observed have been ascertained to be subject to nervous attacks, and of an abstracted temperament and morbidly sensitive organization. The girl, Maria de Mœri, appears to have much resembled in her conditions the famous Seeress of Prevorst, whose ecstacy took the form of clairvoyance, and who was indeed peculiarly lucid in the magnetic state. No satisfactory explanation has been given by medical men or scientists of the phenomenon above described. It is clear that the theory of hallucination cannot apply to tangible wounds and marks, plainly apparent to thousands of witnesses. The other current theory is that of imagination, and as the power of the imagination has been shown by experiment considerable enough to produce death by pure fear, without any corporeal lesion, it is not perhaps easy to set a limit to its capacities. Of course such an interpretation involves a mental strain to the system full as great as though the ecclesiastical hypothesis of miraculous interposition is adopted. The most interesting thing to know at starting, however, is that the stigmata are possible, and that such phenomena are well authenticated.

The San Francisco Monitor, which may be regarded as a semi-official exponent of the views of the Catholic church authorities, comments editorially as follows:

According to an able work published recently by the celebrated Dr. Imbert Gourbeyre, there have been no less than one hundred and forty-five similar cases. The persons thus wonderfully visited by God have been of both sexes and of all ages and conditions of life; but all alike were remarkable to their devotion to faith and their habits of pious meditation. One young girl, for instance, named Angelica Della Pace, displayed the stigmata when only nine years of age, and suffered therefrom intense bodily pain, which she bore with the greatest resignation and even cheerfulness. More women have been so favored than men, and nearly if not all the women were bound by religious life. There is another curious circumstance about these stigmatists which deserves to be especially noted as tending to throw some light on the origin of the wounds, and it is this—they were all, without exception, devoted to the contemplation of the sufferings of our Lord on the Cross, and were accustomed to spend hours in prayer before a crucifix. A great variety were noticeable as to the way in which they were marked and to the amount of physical suffering they endured. Some had all the five wounds and the crown of thorns, and bled so copiously that death seemed to intervene at times. Some had marks only on the upper side of the hands and feet, and suffered only little loss of blood. Others, again, there were whose hands and feet appeared to be really transfixed. We read in the life of St. Francis of Assisi that hard excrescences, having all the outward semblance of nails, appeared on his hands and feet, and were distinctly visible on his body after death. All fragable proofs of their authenticity were given by contemporaneous authority.

It would be a great mistake, indeed to imagine that the Catholic clergy of the day were easily deceived or willing to accept the statements of the parties themselves or their friends as true, without corroboration. On the contrary, they showed a degree of skepticism and incredulity which, even in these days, would be confounded with obstinacy. Their first impulse on every occasion was to treat the alleged stigmatist as a dangerous impostor and to pay no heed whatever to the assertions of friends and relatives. It may fairly be said that they tortured their ingenuity to devise means of revealing fraud and testing the genuineness of cases. Any one wishing to assure himself of this fact need only refer to Gorres' famous work on Mysticism to light upon numerous instances thereof. The way in which Maria Von Emerich and Veronica Giugliana were put to the test was so severe and critical as actually, one would imagine, to border on cruelty. Suffice it to say, then, that in no case whatever did the priesthood give credence to the assertions of the stigmatists unless fortified by proofs and evidence sufficient to convince the most skeptical.

We may add that, as if it were expressly to contradict the postivism of those who maintain that "the age of miracles is past," this nineteenth century of ours has been more productive of such than any of its predecessors. In the early part of the century no less than eight were living in the same generation, and men yet in the midst of us recollect the wonderment created by the accounts of the "Ecstatics of the Tyrol," as given in a letter from the Earl of Shrewsbury, and other documents. Old and young alike can call to mind the facts of the case of Louise Lateau, the ecstatic of the Bois d'Hais, and can cite the astonishing trials to which she was put by the eminent Dr. Le Febre. Hundreds of persons, and we may well say thousands, Protestant and Catholic, visited her humble cottage, and were eye-witnesses to her sufferings.

The Apache War Over.

News from Arizona is to the effect that the rigorous policy of Gen. Crook has struck terror to the Apaches, and they are surrendering by hundreds at every post. Chatepan, one of the most powerful chiefs has sued for peace, and the only hostile Indians now in the Territory are those under Cochise, on the border of Sonora. The immunity of this band is owing to the mistaken clemency of Howard. It is believed that the peace now being made will be lasting. Crook has issued a general order in which he announces the happy result of four months' active operations against the Indians as being indicative of a permanent peace. He believes in the sincerity of the bands that have surrendered, and orders that after a sufficient time shall have elapsed to enable the friends of any renegades still at at large to bring them in upon their proper reservations, post commanders will use the troops at their command to pursue and force them in, and in case any such straggling bands continue to remain absent without the proper authority, they will be forced to surrender or be destroyed.

The Wilmington Breakwater.

The Los Angeles Star thinks that the completion of the new breakwater at Wilmington is destined to open up a new era in the trade and prosperity of that city, and that no competing sea port can ever wrest from them the trade of northern Arizona, San Bernardino, Kern and Inyo. Will The Star favor us with an exchange of its daily, or at least a regular "swop" with its weekly?

The Pope.

The latest telegrams from the East brings reports of the death of Pope Pius IX, but they lack confirmation. Pio Nono is nearly eighty-one years of age, and such news might prove true at any time. He was born in Singaglia, Italy, May 13, 1792, became a cardinal priest December 14, 1840, and was elected to the Pontificate June 16, 1846.

Chinese.

During the past five years the Pacific Mail steamships have landed 43,000 Chinese in San Francisco. The influx of these pestilential barbarians is only limited by the carrying capacity of the steamers, and in not many years hence the people of this coast will have wished them all at the bottom of the ocean.

New Volume.

The Daily News, Gold Hill, Nevada, entered upon its twentieth volume on the 15th instant. The News is published within a few hundred yards of some of the most productive mines in the world, and the paper itself is a success, as a productive concern, also.

Sensible.

The London papers advise ill paid farmers in England to emigrate, and the advice is being taken by a large number, who will settle in the United States.

Got It.

The epizootic is now flourishing in full bloom at Oakland, as well as in all the towns around the Bay.

Affairs in Louisiana.

A terrible state of affairs prevail in the poor, faction-ridden State of Louisiana, and as predicted, bloody war to the knife has opened between the whites and blacks. Without doubt both parties are equally culpable, and it remains to be seen if the Government will longer permit civil war and anarchy to rule in any portion of its domain without interference. The particulars by telegraph run as follows, under date of New Orleans, April 16:

The troubles in Grant Parish arose out of the distribution of Parish offices. The Lynch Returning Board ignored all the officers elected by the people of the parish, and Gov. Kellogg filled their places with his own appointees. These failed to qualify, and the Governor then ordered the parties originally elected to assume office. A large force of negroes, instigated it is said by several white members of the Kellogg Legislature, armed themselves and took possession of the Court-house at Colfax. They erected barricades, from which they issued, plundering plantations and stopping steamboats for a supply of food, etc. Meantime the whites of the parish began to gather at Colfax to consider what to do. They were joined by the whites of surrounding parishes, and by Saturday there were one hundred and fifty whites encamped around the Court-house in Colfax, in which were several hundred negroes, most of them armed with Enfield rifles. The white leaders of the negroes slipped on board a passing steamer on Friday evening and went to New Orleans, out of reach of danger.

The first fight occurred on Saturday. The whites, under command of Hadnot, a member of the Fusionist Legislature, were defeated, but there was no loss of life.

On Sunday noon the final battle took place. The barricades were stormed, and the negroes driven into the Court-house, and the assailants being unable to force the doors, set fire to it, and as the negroes ran out to escape the flames, shot them down one by one, to the number of one hundred. Many others were wounded; the rest escaped. The whites lost only two killed, including Hadnot, their leader. Several were wounded. At last advices not a negro was to be seen in the vicinity of Colfax.

New Orleans correspondence of the 17th says the massacre in Grant parish is even more horrible in all its details than was at first reported. Not a single colored man was killed until after they had surrendered, when over one hundred were shot down in cold blood. After the butchery the whites scattered, many leaving for the Texas border. Grant parish is over two hundred miles above the mouth of Red river. Few boats are leaving the city, and the State authorities have had the utmost difficulty in procuring transportation for the military. The Federal troops could not procure transportation. Gov. Kellogg succeeded in getting transportation for a small number of State militia, who got off Friday and arrived on Monday. The day after the massacre they buried over sixty bodies of the colored men found near the scene of the slaughter. The regular troops have left for Grant parish.

There is great excitement in New Orleans, and a conflict between the Kellogg and McEnery factions is imminent.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Long Valley.

We learn that Jesse Summers, who with James S. Moony, has for the past three years held the greater portion of Long Valley by virtue of a claimed purchase from the State of Lieu Lands, stated before the Board of Supervisors of Mono county that he had no claim or title whatever upon said lands, and, such being the case, he would pay no taxes thereon. Notwithstanding this statement, we believe that the understood owners of the land have for the past two years collected ranch bills for stock turned into the valley at the rate of four bits per head per season—and this action, to an outsider, would seem to indicate that moneys hitherto paid them for the purpose mentioned could be recovered. Long Valley is the Summer range for most of the Bishop Creek and Round Valley stock, and this action on the part of the former claimants is a matter of no small interest to stock-owners in the upper part of our county. The valley is about fifteen miles long by six wide, and contains from 10,000 to 15,000 acres of excellent grass land. The Summers & Moony claim has been an incubus on stockmen, and it is well that it is thus removed without expensive litigation.

Damage Suit

Suit has been commenced in the District Court by Alex. Russell against Messrs. Wood & Cohen for damages in the sum of $5,000, for alleged false imprisonment and malicious prosecution. Snelling & Laspeyre for plaintiff, P. Reddy for defendants. It will be remembered that Russell was arrested for passing an O. L. S.-L. Co. check which had been lost and was unendorsed, which Wood & Cohen accepted upon the endorsement of one Henry Smith. He was held over by an examining magistrate, on the testimony of the defendants in the present case, but the Grand Jury afterward ignored the charge.

Cerro Gordo.

As a fact attributable principally to the epizootic and partially to the big mining suit, Cerro Gordo is suffering from an attack of general dullness. The former having disappeared, the transportation machinery is being rapidly set in motion, and it is not improbable that things will be shortly running along as of old. Some 15,000 bars of bullion are lying at the furnaces, and the works are producing daily from 240 to 280 bars. We understand that Mr. Beaudry will again commence receiving wood and coal in May, which will make a material difference with the finances of a large number of men in in the camp.

Fruit.

Were it not that the past two years have been exceptions to all hitherto known to white settlers, our orchardists would feel inclined to throw up fruit growing and quit the business. This season, like that of last year, late frosts have killed all prospects of a yield of apples, together with a greater portion of the peaches—notably those of trees situated upon the lower grounds. The weather of February and April have, by some meteorological hocus pocus, been exchanged, and the fruit buds out in February only to be nipped in April. However, a half crop is better than none, and next year we may be able to go the whole hog, horticulturally.

On a Tramp.

After about three years of almost constant work, the editor-in-chief of THE INDEPENDENT has concluded to take a rest, and has gone out fishing—after coin. The particular streams to be honored with his financial-piscatorial attentions meander through Columbus, Lida, Gold Mountain, Benton, Big Pine and Bishop. We bespeak for him the most patronizing attentions: to the end that his overweening bashfulness may be overcome.

Died.

On Saturday last, at Cerro Gordo, J. E. Vogel, aged about 28 years, a Prussian or Bavarian, died suddenly from the effects of a paralytic stroke. His obsequies were attended by a large concourse of miners and citizens, a brass band playing the usual requiems of sorrow.

Teams.

There are twenty-five upward bound freight teams between Cayote Holes and Big Lake, loaded with supplies for this region. The importance of their movement of freight, however, consists in what they take out rather than what they bring in.

Rumored

That a legal gentleman of this place kept the entire population of Cerro Gordo drunk for a week. He is said to have explained the circumstances there that in the valley he must go straight to get posted, and up there to get posted he had to—well, go crooked.

Another Change.

On and after Thursday, May 1, the stages of the Northern Line will leave this place every Thursday and Sunday at 1 o'clock P. M. Three days through is the time to San Francisco.

Stock.

John W. P. Laird started northward to Round and Long Valleys on Thursday last with some 700 or 800 head of cattle, procured from John Broder of this place.

May Day.

The officers and members of Busy Bee Lodge, No. 250, I. O. G. T., are busy as bees arranging the details of the "old-fashioned" May Day festival, which we referred to last week. At their meeting last evening, the following officers of the day and occasion were chosen: Queen of May, Miss Lulu Lewis; Maids of Honor, Miss Alice Clark, Miss Sallie Lewis and Miss Annie Wallace; King of May, George Gill; President, R. H. Woolard; Orator, J. L. Darrah; Chaplain, Rev. E. H. Orne; Marshal of the Day, Richard Lewis; Assistants, Charles Butler, Patrick Gallagher. The programme, as shown us by the Secretary, requires the assembling of the Lodge and the public, to whom an invitation is cordially extended, at the hall at 9½ A. M., where the ceremonies of crowning the Queen, etc., will be followed by the oration and vocal and instrumental music. The designated orator is really an able speaker, and a treat (intellectually—no liquors) is in store for his audience. After which, the procession of carriages and wagons will form and proceed, lead by music and under the escort of the Marshals, to Eureka Glen, a beautiful picnicing ground about two miles above Bell's mill. Outsiders, with loaded champagne baskets without any champagne, are to be cordially welcomed, and our citizens can hardly fail to enjoy themselves by devoting a day in the woods to the observance of the old-time festivities of May Day. P. S.—We came near omitting mention that Uncle Abe Parker is billetted for the position of fairy or zephyr to the May Queen.

Fish Springs.

Our Fish Springs correspondent, writing under date of the 23d, says: I have been patiently waiting for something to turn up in the way of a "melancholy dance," "suicide," or "runaway." As for a dog fight, I tried my best to set two dogs fighting the other day, but they wouldn't fight worth a cent, as one of the dogs was a female. It has been very pleasant with the exception of this last day or two; grain is looking as well as it could be expected after the heavy wind. Mr. Goodale's grain suffered considerably therefrom. The Indians of Black Rock and Fish Springs have all moved to Big Pine. I asked different ones if they were going to have a fandango, and they said that the Big Pine Indians had "mucho money" and they were going up there to have a good time on the strength of it. May they enjoy themselves. The horses around here have all recovered from the epizootic; some of them had it quite severely, and it was pitiful to see them coughing.

Wouldn't Work.

A crowd of well-known citizens of this place one day this week became, from some cause not mentioned, but probably from the effect of their potations, galoriously, hielariously drunk—and took it into their heads to repair to the Sheriff's office and decorate that officer with the jewelry pertaining to his position. With a struggle they threw him down, but suddenly the befuddled crowd changed their notion in regard to the project and concluded to treat and say no more about it. By some subtile instinct, the Sheriff had divined their plan, and quietly locked up all the irons before they entered.

A Streak of Luck.

Assessor Dillon may be said to be reveling in a streak of horse luck—of the worst description. A few months since he lost a fine animal by the epizoo, and now it transpires that on Thursday night last some wretch, unmindful of the general affairs of this county government, stole Mr. Dillon's horse, saddle and bridle, from Big Pine. There seems to be no clue as to the direction the animal was taken.

Job Printing.

The job department of THE INDEPENDENT establishment has now on hand about the only complete stock of papers and stationery, of almost every conceivable variety, ever brought to Inyo, "the which" is desirable to work up as speedily as possible. Don't be bashful, gentlemen; send in your orders.

Bridge Broken.

The contractors of the Bend City bridge report that on last Thursday one of the long iron rods or "hog chains" gave way and let one side of the structure down. The bridge was not half finished yet, and the estimated damages are $150.

For Lida.

A pack train of about twenty animals, will start out to-day, laden with merchandise for the store of Senores Duarte y Flores, Lida, from the establishment of Messrs. Harris & Rhine.

Wood Stolen.

E. Chaquette has suffered a loss of a quantity of cordwood, and offers a substantial reward for information concerning the same.

Religious.

The Rev. E. H. Orne will hold religious services at the school house tomorrow, at 10½ o'clock A. M. Turn out, ye sinners!

Estrays.

The owners of a lot of trespassing stock will do well to note the advertisement of L. Gill, in this issue.

Mark Twain.

A New York letter says of this noted humorist:

To-day Mark Twain is droller and more popular than ever. His literary and financial future seems to be well established. Worth some $50,000 himself, his wife has in her own right property valued at $555,000. If he were in straightened circumstances he could easily clear $10,000 a year by lecturing, so it is useless wasting any further sympathy on the unfortunate man.

News of the Coast.

A daring attempt was made to rescue the notorious Mortimer, under sentence of death for the murder of Mrs. Gibson, from the Sacramento jail, by one J. W. Flinn, supposed to be a brother of the prisoner. Flinn succeeded in scaling the walls and rang the bell of the jail. Deputy Sheriff M. L. Cross, who was on duty, cautiously opened the door, and stepping forward saw a man masked advancing with a pistol drawn on him. Cross fired, the man staggered but moved towards him, when Cross fired a second shot; the man ran into the jail, and as he grasped the wicket of Mortimer's cell, fell and died in a few minutes.

Fire at Weaverville, Trinity county; loss, $10,000. Seventeen buildings destroyed.

There was a heavy shock of earthquake at San Benito, Monterey county, April 10. There was one continuous shake for thirty seconds. Heavy land slides in the mountains. No particular damage done so far as heard from.

The defalcation of County Treasurer Merrill, of San Mateo county, reaches $39,000.

The farmers in Monterey, Santa Clara and other portions of the State are becoming alarmed at the absence of rain, as their crops are suffering severely.

Arrangements have been finally concluded for the completion of the Northern Pacific Railway to a practical connection with the waters of Puget Sound.

All the locomotives on the Central Pacific Railroad are having their names dropped and numbers substituted instead.

The California Acclimatizing Society has hatched about 250,000 trout this year at their ponds near San Pedro From 150,000 eggs about 90,000 came to maturity. The patent hatching boxes with charcoal sides are used.

San Francisco exchanges furnish long accounts of the hearing of Bogart's case before the United States Circuit Court, and the further the investigation is pushed, the more outrageous the conduct of the Secretary of the Navy appears. It is shown that Bogart resigned his position as Paymaster's clerk, and the extraordinary manner in which he was arrested by the military authorities is most severely condemned. Bogart will get clear, and then somebody can look out for his onslaughts with his pen.

The Rev. V. Rightmeyer, of Gold Hill, fell in a fit on the streets of Virginia City a few days ago, and shortly after being taken to his home expired.

Admiral Thomas O. Selfridge has been detached, by order of Secretary Robeson, from the command of the Mare Island Navy Yard. He is to be succeeded by Commodore Wm. E. Le Roy.

The Chinese have been kicking up deviltry unlimited at Sacramento, several having been killed. The two factions are well armed, and indications are that before many days there will be another battle. The citizens are very much exasperated, and if the disturbances continue much longer there will be some hot work for the Celestials.

Lieut. Erasmus Dennison, of the United States Navy, attached to the steamer Saranac, put a pistol to his head and blew his brains out. Lieut. Dennison was 27 years old, and a son of Ex Postmaster-General Dennison, of Ohio, and brother of Henry M. Dennison Paymaster United States Navy. Cause—rum and domestic unhappiness.

A patent has been issued and sent to the Surveyor-General of California for the La Brea rancho, comprising 4,400 acres in Los Angeles county. Henry Hancock and Ex-Senator Cole are the owners.

The San Francisco papers state that in a few days about one hundred bales of cotton will be shipped from that city to Liverpool. This will be the first shipment of California cotton ever made.

THE MODOCS.

Active warfare has been conducted against the Modocs ever since the massacre, culminating in a severe fight, which commenced on the 15th and continued three days.

Orders were for Col. Mason's force to move from Hospital Rock at 1 o'clock, and take a position as near the Indian camp as possible and hold it. The Warm Spring Indians, D. McKay Captain, were to deploy to Col. Mason's left and by circling to the south and west form a junction with the right of the troops from the headquarters. Gen. Gillem's plan being to surround the Lava Bed, which was done on the 17th. It was not expected that the junction could be effected the first day, as the plan of attack was to hold each point gained and to safely clear the ground ahead without needless waste of life and fighting under cover.

The howitzers opened fire at 6 A. M., the shells bursting directly over the Modoc camp and causing the picket guard of the Modocs to cease firing for awhile. On Col. Mason's left the sharp rattle of musketry was now heard, and the artillery and infantry left headquarters, taking their line of march so as to encircle from the south the Modoc camp.

The Modocs came near getting Gen. Gillem. He, Col. Biddle, Capt. Hoyt and others, were sitting on a pile of rocks, when the Modocs opened fire on them, and caused them to scatter quite suddenly. Eugene Hovey, a citizen, was killed while taking horses to the soldiers. Schonchin John and Scar-faced Charlie are both dead. The former died from the effect of a pistol wound inflicted by Meacham at the time of the massacre. Charlie was killed by the troops on the 18th.

The Modocs, it is thought, are striking for the Pitt River region, and it is possible they may reach it. Gen Schofield, in view of this possibility, has sent two companies of artillery to that region, one of which is mounted to act as cavalry. This region is described as being worse than the Lava Bed, and what is worse still they will be reinforced by the Pitt River Indians In the latter case Gen. Schofield will assume command in the field. It is to be hoped that a final engagement has been fought, and Gen. Gillem's promise kept—"If possible, no Indian shall boast that he or his ancestor murdered Gen. Canby." Meacham is doing well and will doubtless recover.

Foreign News Items.

The latest intelligence from Cuba is to the effect that the cause of the patriots is improving. Correspondence of The New York Herald gives quite a satisfactory account of the condition of the Cubans. They avow that they will not make terms with Spain except upon the basis of independence. The Spanish commander has but little faith in his recruits, and the entire army appears to be approaching a state of demoralization. The army has no faith in the Republic, and as the spirits of the regulars become depressed, the patriots become more sanguine. In view of all the surroundings it is quite safe to predict that the day of Cuban independence is not very remote.

The railroad between Constantinople and Adrianople has been completed, and trains are now running between the two cities.

The British Government, which bought up all the electric telegraph companies in Great Britain and Ireland, now contemplates the purchase of all the railroads.

Carlist armies are still stirring in the north of Spain.

Up to April 5th, 4,250,000 000 francs have been paid on account of the German war indemnity.

Turkey is in the market for a loan of $250,000,000, to build railways and make up a deficit of $40,000,000 in the budget.

There is a rumor from Alexandria, Egypt, that Sir Samuel Baker and wife, who took the Egyptian expedition up the Nile, have been murdered by the natives in the interior of Africa. The rumor causes great uneasiness at the Foreign Office, though the Government has as yet received no information in relation to the occurrence. Granville has telegraphed to Alexandria inquiring into the origin of the report.

Sudden Death.

The Placer County Argus of March 15 contains the following account of the sudden death of an old Inyoite. The deceased was, as the account states, for a long time attached to the command at Camp Independence, and will be remembered by many of our citizens and soldiers:

On Saturday last, Wm. H. Smith, who has been for some time past a resident of Ophir, was standing on the sidewalk of Main street in that town talking to George Ten Eyck about the accident which had a few moments before happened at the Crala mine, when he suddenly raised his hands to his head, exclaiming, "How strange I feel!" and immediately dropped dead. Deceased was a native of Kennebec, Maine, and 33 years of age. He enlisted as a private in Co. "B," 9th Infantry, in April 1866, served three years and was honorably discharged on the expiration of his time of service, receiving an excellent character from Capt. and Bvt. Lieut.-Col. J. D. Devins commanding at Camp Independence. He leaves a wife to mourn his sudden demise.

—An elegant sample cavalry sabre, weighing about half a pound less than the present style, and with a straighter blade and more highly ornamented guard, has been completed at the armory, and will be forwarded to the ordnance office at Washington immediately. The trouble heretofore has been that the cavalry sabres were too heavy, and unless the soldier possessed more than the average of physical strength, after he had cut from twelve to fifteen of the enemy from scalp to brisket his arms began to ache. The troops also complain that a lighter weapon, one that can be used to stick hogs, cut plug tobacco and be utilized in various ways, is needed.

—A Jersey City wife had a sharp quarrel with her husband last week as to what they should have for breakfast on Sunday morning. The lord of the household insisted upon sliced bacon. The woman finally gave in. She had her revenge. When the bacon came to the table hot from the frying pan she took the stove-lifter and stuffed three slices of the dead hog down that man's throat, and at the last accounts he was drinking sweet oil by the pint under the advice of three physicians.

—India-rubber busties are not such bad things after all. A young woman the other night got up in her sleep and proceeded to enact the role of La Somnambula by partly dressing herself and tumbling out of the window. She lit square on her bustle and bounced back through the window right into the room again! The shock awoke her, but she didn't know that she had been out of the room.

—"Are you heeled?" is what a fellow, who was evidently mad, said to another in front of the Salt Lake House lately. "No," answered the one addressed. "Then go and fix yourself or I will fill you full of lead," continued the former. He went, and is probably going yet, as he has not been seen in those parts since. The prospect of carrying around a load of lead in the future was too brilliant.

—A Kentucky legislator, who evidently uses plug tobacco, said recently: "Mr. Speaker, this Legislature has not only drawn the elephant in the lottery, but, sir we have laid off more land than we can cultivate. In fact, sir, I may say we have bitten off more than we can chaw."

—A young doctress has opened an office in Worcester, Mass., and is reported to be doing well. A young gentleman has been vaccinated by her twenty-one times in three weeks. It is thought that he will wind up by taking her instead of the small-pox.

—When a Chinese gentleman wants to get married, he sends to the paternal head of some family having daughters for specimens of the size of their feet with prices attached, and makes his choice accordingly.

—In Lutterworth, England, three magistrates sent a woman 75 years old to prison for seven days, for the crime of having "broken a stick from a farmer's hedge, thereby inflicting damages to the amount of one penny."

—A successful evasion of the Prussian order forbidding the display of the tri-color was recently made at Strasbourg by three young ladies who walked around the streets, one dressed in red, another in white and the third in blue.

—Mush and milk festivals are held in Iowa to pay off the church debts. Whisky is introduced into the mush by wicked youths, and stingy old hunks get liberal and pay off the whole debt out of their own pockets.

—A writer on physiogomy sagely says, "a human face without a nose doesn't amount to much." Whereupon another writer observes that "a human nose without a face doesn't amount to much either."

—A boy found a beautiful black and white animal which he thought was a kitten, in the wood-shed, and undertook to play with it. The unlucky little fellow says "it smelt as loud as thunder."

John Smith.

In Latin he is Johannes Smithus: the Italians smooth him off as Giovanni Smith; the Spaniards render him Juan Smithus; the Dutchman adopts him as Hans Schmidt; the French flatten him out into Jean Smeet; and the Russian sneezes and barks Jonzoff Smitowski. When John gets into the tea trade in Canton he becomes Jovan Smhimmit; but if he clambers about Mount Hecla the Icelanders say he is Johne Smithson; if he trades among the Tuscaroras he becomes Ton Qua Smittia; in Poland he is known as Ivan Schmittitiweiski; should he wander among the Welsh mountains they talk of Jihon Schmidd; when he goes to Mexico he is booked as Jautli F'Smitti; if of classic turn he mingles among Greek ruins he turns Ion Smikton, and in Turkey he is utterly disguised as yourself as Voe Self.

OFFICIAL.

NOTICE OF THE REMOVAL OF THE LAND OFFICE FROM AURORA, NEVADA, TO INDEPENDENCE, CALIFORNIA, AND OF CHANGE OF BOUNDARIES IN THE AURORA AND CARSON CITY LAND DISTRICTS IN NEVADA, AND THE VISALIA DISTRICT IN CALIFORNIA.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Aurora, Nevada, April 1st, 1873.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT PURSUANT to an order of the President of the United States, dated February 27th, 1873, and instructions of the Hon. Willis Drummond, Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated March 20th, 1873, we have this day suspended all action looking towards the disposal of lands embraced within the limits of the Independence Land District, hereinafter described, and that the Land Office at Aurora, Nevada, will be removed to Independence, California, and will be open for the transaction of business at the latter place on Saturday, the 31st day of May, 1873.

All business in said Aurora Land Office relating to the disposition of lands embraced within that part of the District lying within the State of Nevada will be suspended on the 15th day of May, 1873, at which time said lands will be transferred to the Carson City Land District.

The said Independence Land District will embrace all lands lying within the limits of California which heretofore formed a part of the Aurora Land District, and in addition all that part of the Visalia District which lies east of Range Thirty-two (32) Mount Diablo Meridian.

Thursday, May 1, 1873,

For furnishing Fresh Beef, Flour, Salt Pork, Smoked Bacon, Hams, Beans and Lard to the troops stationed at Camp Independence, Cal., for one year, commencing July 1, 1873.

The Beef furnished under this contract, must be of good marketable quality, in equal proportions of fore and hind-quarter meat, and to be delivered at such times and in such quantities as may be required.

The Flour, Salt Pork, Smoked Bacon, Hams, Beans and Lard to be of the very best quality the country affords, and to be delivered from time to time as required.

The Flour to be fresh ground for delivery. The Salt Meat and Lard to have been cured since Dec. 1, 1872. The Hams to be sugar-cured. The Pork to be either Mess or Prime Mess, which, to be stated in the bid. No more than a six months supply will be received at any one time. Samples of all articles except Fresh Beef required.

Bidders will state the price per pound in U. S. Gold Coin, and are invited to be present at the opening of the bids. They will also state the kind of packages they propose to furnish; price of package to be included in price of article.

Proposals must be accompanied by a proper guarantee, signed by two responsible persons, stating that if a contract is awarded, they will enter into bonds for the faithful fulfillment of contract. A bond of $2,000 will be required from each party to whom a contract is awarded, and a certificate from the Clerk of the County Court, or a Magistrate, to the fact that each bondsman is worth that amount.

The contract to be subject to the approval of the Department and Division Commanders. In case of the abandonment of the post, the contract to terminate.

Bids will also be received for the above on the same day by Capt. Thos. Wilson, Chief C. S. Dep't of California, at San Francisco, Cal., No. 565, Market street.

For detailed information, apply either in person or by letter to the Acting Commissary of Subsistence, at Camp Independence, Cal., or to the undersigned at San Francisco, Cal.

The right is reserved of accepting or rejecting any bid, as may be deemed best for the interest of the United States.

Endorse envelopes "Proposals for" (name the article) and address the same to the Post Commissary at Camp Independence, Cal.

MEDICAL.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

THE SUBSCRIBER TAKES PLEASURE IN announcing to the people of Inyo county that he has purchased and fitted up as a hospital the Beaudry Hotel Building, adjoining the military post at Camp Independence. All the adobes have been removed and their place supplied with lumber; the grounds are handsomely laid out with shade trees and clover, and have a pure running stream of mountain water.

There is an excellent bath room and dispensary attached. One room is set aside for the county's sick, leaving ample room for private patients. The Northern Stage Line passes the door, and the place is easy of access from the town of Independence. The charges for board and lodging do not exceed those of any hotel or boarding house, offering equal accommodations, and the establishment has the advantage of having competent help and medical advice always at hand, being close by the house of the post surgeon at the camp.

MEDICAL.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

PUBLIC HONESTY.

We must put honest men in power,
If our land we would save;
Whose aim shall be each day and hour
To crush the public knave;

Who will not take the tempting bribe
Glossed o'er with worldly art,
Nor join the craven, thievish tribe,
That stab the nation's heart;

Who will not seek to cover up
The "jobs" that rob us all;
Who will not dram corruption's cup,
Nor hark to mammon's call.

We must strike down the fiends who prey
Upon the public purse,
And as we clear our thorny way,
Brand robbers with our curse.

It will not do to shield from harm
Those we were wont to trust,
Nor hesitate to raise an arm
To punish when 'tis just.

Indifference aids the nation's foe,
And makes him bolder still;
Our evils large and larger grow,
And ill but follows ill.

Our danger lies in saying naught
Against the men who steal,
And keeping silent when we ought
Our peril most to feel.

What we most need is earnest work
To drive the thieves away—
A few brave men who will not shake
The duty of to-day.

Wipe out corruption from the land,
No matter where 'tis found;
United as a watchful band,
Strike treachery to the ground.

Let worth, not wealth, have our support,
And this our motto be:
Integrity alone we'll court,
And from great rogues be free.

God speed the day when public men
Shall to their trust prove true,
And fraud be fought by tongue and pen,
And good works meet our view.

The Dear People.

[From The Owyhee Avalanche.]

The people are queer animals, and are frequently moved by queer impulses. They are prone to excitement, and are hilariously happy when the air is replete with the whoop and hurrah of some new-born hey-dey. They are not content if something is not happening, or about to happen, foreign to the ordinary routine of events; and the sublimity of their indifference to a past idol, or anything of pleasure, is only equalled by the sentiments of a spoilt child toward a cast-off toy. They build up an edifice amid shouts of joy and approval, and it is no sooner completed than with curses and imprecations they tear it down. The pupil of the eye becomes dilated with almost joyful excitement at the possible approach of a conflict, and they humbly thank God a few days afterward that the thing is over, and set to work dolefully lamenting the consequences. They huzza loudly at the successes of a favorite politician and glory in his promotion, and when he reaches the topmost round of fame's ladder, they pull him down to make room for another pet of the hour, and dump him among the castaway garbage. They set two dogs to fighting in one instant and try to part them in the next. They build up what they please to call monopolies, and then curse the objects of their own creation. They pray for rain or snow, and when their petition is granted they do wish it would clear off. They want a newspaper to expose corruption and criticise the occurrences of the hour, and if it does they get mad and threaten to put a head on the editor; in short, they, the people, are——a hellofaset.

State Boundary Survey

Col. A. W. Von Schmidt left Truckee yesterday with a corps of surveyors for Hot Springs, from which point he will continue the boundary survey between Nevada and California. The survey will be made to the southward from Hot Springs to the Carson Valley and from thence to the Colorado River. We suggested to Von Schmidt the propriety of getting all of Lake Tahoe within the State of California, if it is possible. We privately informed him that a man that could blow up Blossom Rock so easily ought to be able to crowd the little bit left of Lake Tahoe in the State of Nevada over in this State. The Colonel admitted the force of the reasoning, but asserted that there were engineering difficulties in the way over which he had no control which would prevent the consummation of such a desirable event. However, he said it was impossible to tell what another and a more accurate survey might accomplish.—Truckee Republican, April 15th.

Indian Jugglery

Jugglery is another amusement of which all Oriental nations are extremely fond. So numerous and various are the feats practiced by the performers in this line that "Indian Jugglery" is famous the world over, and their wonderful dexterity in all matters requiring unusual sleight-of hand has passed into a universal proverb. A visit at the house of a wealthy Hindoo, on the occasion of his son's marriage, gave me an opportunity of witnessing some of their rarest feats in this line. The wedding festivities comprised two whole weeks of banquets, processions, entertainments of all sorts, with a most extravagant display of jewels and torches, flowers and silks along the pathway of the bridal party, the whole costing, it is said, nearly a lakh of rupees, or some forty thousand dollars. But then, the bridegroom was an only son, and there is no other occasion on which an Oriental will so lavishly pour out his wealth as at the birth or marriage of a son. During the day the time was divided between eating, dancing, theatrical exhibitions, concerts, gambling and jugglery, and at night there was always a display of fireworks while the festival lasted. But of all, the jugglery was the most wonderful. Grass-seed was sown before our eyes, and in five minutes afterward a beautiful green lawn of smooth shaven grass lay at our feet. A tiny, two-leaved plant was handed us to look at. We saw and felt it, and perceived that it was a genuine mango tree, having but two imperfectly developed leaves, with a portion of seed still adhering. In half an hour we ate the mangoes plucked apparently from this very tree, which had seemed to grow before our eyes till it had towered above our heads, budded, blossomed and bore fruits that turned from green to golden almost as rapidly as they could be plucked and eaten.

A bronze basin of clear water, which we had the privilege of examining, was placed on a stand; and though when we thrust in our hands there was found nothing but the water, in a little while a magnificent lotus or water-lily sprang up therein, and lo! its huge blossoms, pink-hued and fragrant, were before us—mammoth flowers, eighteen inches in diameter!

The spectators were in ecstacy. Young and old, even the natives, who had all seen the wonders before, clapped their hands with delight; only the magician himself was quite reticent. Presently he held a piece of tissue paper, perhaps six inches square, and after turning it around and around in various positions, he formed of it quite a natural looking butter fly on his open palm, and so arranged two wax lights as to allow him to wave a fan rapidly between them without affecting the flame, and then by a more gentle motion over the insect, he started it into apparent life. First it moved slowly towards the fan, as if testing its powers of locomotion, then tripped more lively along the edge, and finally bore away, wheeling and dipping toward a vase of flowers that stood near, then floating away in very wantonness, and presently returning, lighting and coquetting among the dainty blossoms like a thing of life, the wings fairly quivering with excitement. Just then a mate was supplied to the lonely excursionist by the same magic power that had given the first its frail being; and together the fairy tourists set forth on their travels. Round they wheeled and floated, but always within the charmed circle above the conjurer sometimes kissing his cheeks and lips, together or singly lighting on the outspread fan or returning to flutter among the flowers, then flirting or coquetting with each other, putting their tiny heads together in mutual caresses, and shaking their gauzy wings with all the pretty airs and graces of live flirts. The scene ended by the magician taking a small pearl box out of his bosom, opening it and holding it toward the butterflies. They seemed to observe the downy cotton with which the box was lined, and in circling curves they moved towards it, and crouched down, with wings still outspread, upon the dainty couch prepared for them. The juggler closed the box at once, and as he did so we saw seated upon the top a live canary, that carolled forth sweet songs until its little throat seemed ready to split, as if striving to compensate for the departure of our butterfly favorites.

—An Iowa City printer who had an "uncommon bad" streak of delirium tremens, recently, shot himself in the breast, but the bullet did not hurt him much, and he tried to chop his head off with a hatchet. This time his wife interfered, but after they shut him up in jail he had things to himself, and in the seclusion of his cell found means for a quiet, but very successful hanging.

—A public school teacher in Wisconsin has substituted for corporeal punishment occasional doses of castor oil, which he says makes the pupils much more docile than the old plan.

—Whether tobacco is injurious or not has been definitely settled at Hartford, where a hogshead of it rolled from a dray and broke a teamster's leg.

—Our lady readers may be interested in learning that the large number of deaths from small pox has materially increased the supply of false hair.

—It is said that Stokes has conceived a happy idea, and will not be hung after all. He has determined to follow the example of Caldwell, and resign.

The Coming Race.

[From The Sacramento Record.]

One of Lord Lytton's latest productions was an ingenious, satirical volume entitled the "Coming Race." It is supposed to be written by an American citizen, who finds his way, through the bottom of a deep mine, to an underground world where dwells a race which has cultivated itself up to the highest conception of civilization. This race, originally surface dwellers like our own, had made its way into the interior to escape the (or a) deluge. For a long period it had undergone the same vicissitudes which mark all human history, and progress had been slow. At length a discovery had been made which revolutionized everything. This was the means of utilizing the subtle force various manifestations of which we are beginning to be acquainted with under the names of heat, light, electricity, magnetism. Through careful experiment the adaptability of this force was so extended that nearly everything was performed by its agency. It lighted that sunless region. It propelled air-ships and road carriages. It inspired with a simulation of intelligence the automata which performed domestic duties. It was employed as a healing agent and as a destructive force. Its discovery had put an end to all war, for men could not fight when every man possessed so tremendous a power of death. It could annihilate a city or army at the beck of a child, and only children were employed by the Vril-ya (the name of the people) for purposes of destruction.

Now the Vril-ya (Vril means the mysterious force which they employ so largely) have by degrees outgrown all the meaner passions of humanity. Poverty is unknown among them, and the lust of riches is equally absent. Ambition there is none, nor political ardor, nor envy, nor malice. The community is an absolute democracy, without any rank distinction, without any of the sharp social distinctions which real democracies (at least modern ones) exhibit. There is no modern literature belonging to this race, for as they have long passed the condition when passions are active their lives proceed calmly and smoothly, there is no friction, there are no contentious struggles, there is no conflict of policy, there is no division in public opinion. Crime of course there cannot be. The Vril put an end to that along with war. But it seems that all the dwellers beneath the earth are not as advanced as the Vril-ya. Some of them possess a form of Government, which in the Vril-ya language is called Koom Posh (Hollow-Bosh), and what specially aggravated the enlightened American citizen who was trying to convince them that he represented a civilization far superior to their own, was the fact that in all his accounts of the glorious United States Government they only recognized ugly likenesses to Koom Posh, with which they were familiar.

"In vain," said he, "I boasted of our great men, poets, philosophers, orators, generals—and defied the Vril-ya to produce their equal." "Alas," said Zee, her grand face softening into an angel-like compassion, "this predominance of the few over the many is the worst and most fatal sign of a race incorrigibly savage. See you not that the primary condition of mental happiness consists in the extinction of that strife and competition between individuals which, no matter what form of government they adopt, render the many subordinate to the few, destroy real liberty to the individual, whatever may be the nominal liberty of the state, and annul that calm of existence without which felicity, mental or bodily, cannot be attained? * * The most powerful of all the races in our world, beyond the pale of the Vril-ya, esteems itself the best governed of all political societies, and to have reached in that respect the extreme end at which political wisdom can arrive, so that other nations should tend more or less to copy it. It has established, on its broadest base, the Koom-Posh—viz: the government of the ignorant on the principle of being the most numerous. It has placed the supreme bliss in the vying with each other in all things, so that the evil passions are never in repose—vying for power, for wealth for eminence of some kind; and in this rivalry it is horrible to hear the vituperation, the slanders and calumnies which even the best and mildest of them heap on each other without shame or remorse." It may be as well to remember, in perusing these remarks, that the sage Vril-ya was not speaking of this Republic, but of an entirely different community living in the bowels of the earth. But what a curious institution that government of "Koom-Posh" would be!

—The Executive Mansion of Missouri is said to be so filled with electricity that every one who enters it is terribly shocked. The phenomenon is attributed to the over charging of the architect who built it.

—That Pittsburg girl has sent back those two barges of coal which her father gave her for a bridal present, and says she guesses she can make it hot enough for "hubby" without any outside help.

—A musquito taper is a Pittsburg invention. It creates such a smell when burning that the mosquitoes ask to be excused. It drives human beings out doors, also, which is its only defect.

LEGISLATIVE REPRESENTATION.

"Justice," in a communication given elsewhere, opens to discussion a subject of considerable interest by his reference to the local allotment by the County Central Committees of the candidates to be run for legislative honors by the respective parties at the Fall election. The writer confines himself to a consideration of the matter from a Democratic standpoint, and though it is generally conceded that that party has a majority in the district, the apportionment of candidates to the different counties is a matter of equal interest to the Republicans. So let us hear from both sides. Before the committees should meet there is not more than time enough to satisfactorily arrange the matter by correspondence with Tuolumne and Mono, and it should be attended to. Under all the circumstances we doubt not that Tuolumne will be content with the nomination from her own citizens of candidates for Senator and Assemblyman, having a place on the ticket for Inyo and Mono each. What says The Union Democrat about this?

Bad Work.

No catastrophe could befall our general farming interest that could equal the removal of our Indians to a reservation, such as we conclude is on the tapis, i. e., the establishment of a large one on the Big Muddy, to which is to be drawn all the tribes of the Great Basin. The invitation of war which such an absolutely senseless and suicidal action as this would be could only emanate from men who knew as much about the affairs and nature of Indians as we do of the Hottentots. Once made to feel the power of the whites, they are willing to be his useful servants when rightly protected as well as held in check by the military. As proteges they are excessively expensive and troublesome; as foes, they are dangerous; as servants, paid for their work, they are peaceable and valuable. What is to be said of the policy which invites the overrunning of our land with hordes of opium-eating Mongolians, who destroy society and drain the land of the money they earn, and at the same time at an immense public expense in feeding and supporting Indians, kills a labor which is self-supporting, valuable and leaves its proceeds at home?

Won't Do.

The Germans are a remarkably quiet, orderly and law-abiding people, but it won't do to raise the price of their lager beer. The experiment was ventured upon recently in Frankfort, Germany, with very disastrious results. A riot was the consequence, in the course of which sixteen breweries were destroyed, and twelve persons killed and a hundred and twenty wounded before the military could suppress it.

Borax.

The borax field on the road from here to Los Angeles has all been taken up. Goldsworthy, a Deputy United States Surveyor, is completing surveys to three points on the lake where clear deposits are found. At others the deposits are spotted. At the claim of Lent, the original discoverer, borax is being sacked for shipment to San Francisco.

The Texas Pacific.

One of the Directors of the Texas Pacific Railroad was recently in San Diego and made a speech to the citizens, in which he stated that the road was being pushed with energy at the eastern end, the expenditures averaging one million per month, and that work will be commenced at San Diego on or about the 2d of this month.

Ominous.

It has been rumored that the Cuban correspondent of The New Herald has been killed, and that paper is frantic over it. It says: "If our Commissioner has been assassinated, we shall know what course to take. It will be the death knell of Spain in America, and many a Spaniard, too.

A Nice Joke.

The Central Pacific people have largely increased their freight tariff on all goods from San Francisco to Nevada, on account of being compelled to pay $24,000 taxes. That State will of course re-elect the sweet-scented Bill Stewart to the U. S. Senate.

Railroad Change.

The formal transfer of the Los Aneles & San Pedro Railroad to the Southern Pacific company was made April 25.

Just So.

The highest mountain in the United States is in this county; the highest mountain in the world is in the moon.

UNDER MARCHING ORDERS.

The commanding officer at Camp Independence has received orders from Gen. Schofield directing the company to report at San Diego for escort duty on the line of the military telegraph to be constructed from that city to Fort Yuma. As the orders now stand, Capt. Dove will remain at the Post with five enlisted men to care for the buildings, commissary stores, etc.; but Major Egbert is instructed to stay the execution of the order until after the General commanding shall have received from him a full report as to the safety and advisability of removing the troops from this Post.

Few persons save the unprotected settlers outside of the towns have any idea of the alarming import of this movement, or of the deplorable consequences liable to follow. With the troops withdrawn, it means a renewal of Indian troubles in all their horrors; it means the calling in of the arms loaned the settlers by the commandant, not one in ten of whom have else than shotguns; it means the forced abandonment of half our farms and homes, and it foreshadows that the frontiersmen will be forced back to the cities to struggle for existence instead of being accorded the protection which will in time enable them to become a self-protecting and prosperous community.

At the present juncture, faithful watchers of Indian affairs are aware of an unusual attitude of the tribes, and of all times within the past four years, now is the very worst for such an order to come. Since the Modoc outbreak, followed by the fatal blunder of the Peace Commission, the whole Indian question is assuming a phase portentious of coming trouble. From all quarters the attitude of tribes peaceful and generally useful as those surrounding us is represented as indicating great discontent among them. Here the Piutes have become aware of the pending reservation business—information perhaps conveyed to them by the whites. But they are also well aware of the Modoc war—information not conveyed to them by the whites. As a result they have omitted putting in their small patches of corn, are indifferent to proffers of work, and it is said are removing the women and children to the mountains.

Within six months after the soldiers are gone comes hostilities, and then follows the fights and troubles consequent upon placing them in reservations, sequenced by the loss of their labor.

We would have our people continue to observe the utmost care in their treatment of the Indians, and should the order for removal be carried out, it would be well for all hands to provide themselves with the best of firearms.

We in common with the exposed settlers all over the valley to the northward, have the profoundest confidence in the superior judgment, based upon a most thorough knowledge of our Indian affairs, of the commandant at the Post, and if the military department shall act in accordance with his report, whatever that may be, there will be no cause for dissatisfaction.

HEAVY LITIGATION.

For months past the attention of the mining world has been attracted to the great Pioche suit of the Hermes vs Raymond & Ely, involving property of immense value, and at our latest dates no decision had as yet been arrived at. However disastrous to those immediately connected with the disputed property, these heavy and expensive litigations in a great measure advertise the mineral wealth of their section, and it may be argued that, in the long run, the capital seeking district is benefitted thereby.

Be this as it may, our county is on the eve of attaining a similar notoriety from the great suits of the San Felipe Mining Co. against M. W. Belshaw and Egbert Judson, and the same company against M. W. Belshaw and Victor Beaudry. The money damages sued for amount in the aggregate to $1,035,000; involved in the case, also, is the possession of the Union and San Felipe mines, extensive tunnel property, etc., some idea of the value of which may be obtained from the fact that in the Union is exposed to sight one body of ore, assaying from $100 to $700 per ton, of the enormous extent of one million tons. This may sound incredible, but we have the best assurances of the statement being an absolute fact.

By stipulation and agreement of counsel, the case comes up in the District Court on the 10th of June. As we understand it the action will not be tried by Judge Reed, much to the regret of both parties to the suit. But having declined to do so, his place on the bench will be filled by a Judge from some other district.

We have a very decided opinion as to the merits of the case, in equity at least, but an expression of the same is needless and not at all called for. However, during the progress of the trial we shall give as near as possible all the proceedings, testimony and arguments as they transpire.

INYO SCENERY.

Albert Bierstadt, widely celebrated as one of the first landscape painters of America, has been viewing Cerro Gordo with the eye of an artist, and from what we can learn proposes to reproduce upon canvas a scene which for sublime grandeur baffles all other powers of description. The town is situated near the summit of the Inyo Mountains, which divide Owens from Saline Valley, but with higher peaks rising on either side. Facing the southwest and looking down the canyon, the beholder sees in the foreground a V-like sag in the lower peaks, through which, as if an immense mirror, broad Owens Lake spreads its blue surface far below, appearing as though by a wild leap one could fall the distance into the center of its azure depths. On the opposite shore of this inland sea abruptly rises the rugged Sierra Nevadas, Mount Whitney towering up in the far background and center, to his right and left serrated peaks setting out sharp against the sky. At the meeting of the white covering of snow which crowns the summits and fills the gorges with the dark line of timber below, is usually interposed heavy banks of clouds, which hug the mountains as if seeking tranquil repose. Immediately beneath extends the timber to a brown expanse which reaches nearly to the water's edge, only intercepted by patches of green, which follow the narrow water-courses back to the mountains. At sunset, as the crowning feature of all, numberless broad rays of light, many colored as the rainbow, gloriously shoot out in diverging lines from the peak of Mount Tyndall—the mountain's shadows falling upon the sky, reflecting upon and tinting with silver and gold the gauzy clouds below. Beneath, in the faintest hues, the magnificent scene is inversely pictured in the lake, the whole forming a view of grandeur vast and indescribably impressive. It is a scene that inspires the most unimpressible beholder with wonder and awe, and is well worthy of portrayal by the art-loving Bierstadt. It has no counterpart in the world, and did it exist in Europe would be painted by a thousand pencils and apostrophised in prose and song. But to-day it is only viewed by those seeking wealth from the bowels of the earth; nevertheless, the toiling miner (as was the case with ye editor, years ago), sitting up n the windlass curb at eventide, watches the fading scene with absorbing rapture, heedless of the fierce calls from below—"HIST!"

The Legislative Candidates.

[COMMUNICATED].

INDEPENDENCE, May 2, 1873.

EDITORS INDEPENDENT:—In your issue of the 16th instant you mention the names of a number of persons spoken of as probable candidates for the various offices to be filled by election this coming Fall, and among them those for the Legislature. I would be pleased to have the candidate chosen from Inyo, and in strict justice we ought to have the candidate, as we have at least double the wealth and population of Mono; but I believe it is an old understanding between Mono and Inyo that they shall choose the candidate, if only one is allowed by Tuolumne, alternately, without one waives the right and without we can induce Tuolumne to do us justice and give each county a candidate, Mono has the right to choose. Two years ago we had the candidates; they were both beaten by the bad faith of Tuolumne, and Tuolumne had the whole delegation in both branches of the Legislature. Now, as Tuolumne acted so unfairly towards us then by ignoring our candidates, and in consideration of this fact alone, ought not she, in common justice, consent to giving Mono and Inyo each a representative. In fact, this side of the mountain, of right, is entitled to the Senator this term, as that honor has not yet been granted to a citizen either of Mono or Inyo. But we are willing to concede them the Senator, they allowing us each a Representative.

The assessment roll of Inyo is equal to that of Tuolumne; we therefore have as much property represented as Tuolumne and Mono thrown in. Now is it fair or just that Tuolumne should claim four out of five of the representatives to which we three are entitled, when we are so much superior in point of wealth if not in population, and especially when we only claim justice or a fair share of the representation?

We have in out county, on both sides of our political ranks, men, good and true, who would be willing to "serve their country for their country's good," and who fully understand the wants and interests of this people, and why should we not have a voice in the councils of our State when we are so eminently and justly entitled to the same.

JUSTICE.

The St. Paul Press notes that all the advertisements for Indian supplies call for just twice as many pounds of best brown soap as of plug tobacco, and it wants to know what the Indians can do with so much soap.

News of the Coast.

The Santa Cruz Sentinel announces a narrow guage railroad is to be constructed from the Pajaro depot of the Southern Pacific Railroad to the town of Santa Cruz, at a cost of about $300,000. Of this amount $75,000 have been subscribed. The county has voted a subsidy of $6,000 per mile.

Great excitement prevails in Oroville in regard to new and extensive diggings discovered near that place. Miners are coming in from all parts of the country, and claims are being sold at prices ranging from $1,000 to $6,000. Chinamen are offering the largest prices.

Cheyenne Indians made a raid recently on Sidney, a point on the Union Pacific, and have committed other depredations which are causing considerable alarm.

Brigadier-General Philip St. George Cooke of the army is likely to be retired on account of age, and it is thought that Colonel Crook, now of Arizona, will be his successor.

John J. Murphy was executed April 26 at Stockton for the murder of his brother-in-law, Patrick Murray.

Latest dispatches from the lava bed give but little information of a satisfactory character. The soldiers have not yet found the Indians, though forty of them are reported to have been seen by McKay.

Returns received by the French Consul of the drawing in Paris of the War Redemption Lottery, shows that a ticket sold by him in Los Angeles wins one of the best prizes, a diamond necklace, worth 30,000 francs. The owner is Geo. Towers, a boot-maker.

The refining of silver bullion for the San Francisco mint will hereafter be performed by the San Francisco refining works, owing to the insecurity of the branch mint building.

The first shipment of any note, 50,000 pounds of crude borax from the Slate range, was made April 25th. The entire district is being thoroughly prospected; over 200 claims have been located, which are owned by parties in San Francisco. These locations comprise an area of 40,000 acres.

Comstock papers give an account of a very mysterious attempt to assassinate W. H. Virden, book-keeper and collector for The Gold Hill News. He was found near his room in a fainting condition, stabbed in the region of the heart.

The coal vein discovered near Eureka is two and a half feet thick and has been followed to a depth of sixteen feet. It promises to lead to a valuable and large deposit.

The Reveille states that orders have been received from the Land Office at Washington directing the removal of the Land Office of the district from Austin to Eureka.

The Carson mint, and nearly all the assay offices and mill and mining companies are now using borax manufactured at the borax fields of Columbus District, Nevada. The Nevada borax is said to be superior, for all mechanical purposes, to the best English article.

The late frosts in Los Angeles county have done a great deal more damage than was first expected. The injury is greatest at Anaheim, where the vines and young trees have been damaged to a large extent.

State Surveyor-General Hardenburgh has been summoned to Washington on account of alleged official errors.

Eastern News.

The relative value of cabin and steerage passengers, after death, is established. The agents of the company to which the wrecked steamer Atlantic belongs offered rewards for the recovery of the bodies of the victims of the Atlantic wreck, and with a nice discrimination name $50 as the sum to be paid for the corpse of each cabin passenger, and $20 for the remains of each steerage passenger recovered.

The Germans of Chicago, in mass meeting assembled, have agreed to neither sell or give away lager on Sunday. This they do to show their obedience to laws which they hold to be both oppressive and unconstitutional.

As the office of Assessor of Internal Revenue will be abolished on the 26th of May, orders have been issued to all Assessors to turn over all books, except the list of debtors, which will be turned over to the Department.

The Indian Commissioners are in session in New York receiving proposals for yearly supplies to be furnished the Indian Department. The offers received amounted in the aggregate to over twenty million dollars, while the department only called for six hundred thousand dollars. Many proposals were received from leading houses in Massachusetts, Minnesota, San Francisco, St. Louis, Philadelphia and many other places.

The Atlantic cable companies have raised the tariff to $1 50 per word, on account of the break in the French cable.

A passenger train on the Stonington & Providence Railroad was wrecked lately, by the breaking of a bridge which had been weakened by a freshet, and six cars were burned. About twenty passengers were killed and a great many wounded.

One of our Vienna Commissioners has been caught disgracefully speculating on the sale of restaurant and peanut stand privileges in the American part of the Exhibition. Some of the others are suspected of like peculative enterprises, but on a larger scale.

Gov. Kellogg of Lousiana telegraphs to Washington that political affairs in that State have taken a more favorable turn, and that the taxes are being collected more rapidly than for the corresponding period of last year.

A national Convention of producers and consumers will be held in New York May 6th, to consider what can be done to reduce the rates of railway transportation. The Senate Committee on Transportation Routes will be present.

The Stigmata.

The San Francisco Chronicle winds up its reports of the alleged case of stigmata as follows:

Concerning the stigmata of the saints mentioned, we have nothing to say, but one thing is certain, that the hand of St. Francis Xavier—who is said to have died with the stigmata—preserved in the Jesuits' Church of the Gesu in Rome, though dried up, in an exhausted receiver, and otherwise embalmed, does not show even a scar of any such wound. The case of Miss Collins does admit of investigation, notwithstanding the fact that only priests and devout Catholics are allowed to see the miraculous sores. She was not attended by any one except her pious companion when the received them. Afterwards they were exhibited, bleeding, to several of the devout. They grew apparently larger towards evening, and bled afresh, notwithstanding that they were beginning to cicatrise already. They were only the depth of the epidermis or outer skin; the cutis or inner skin was not at all abraded, or but slightly so. The epidermis around them was ragged, and the general character of the wound similar to one that would be made by scratching or pinching off the skin. The wound on the back of the hand was deeper and more ragged; on the palm a bit of epidermis was simply removed. On one of the hands the upper and lower wounds do not coincide by over an inch, which would seem to indicate that they were the work of a person with a very inacurate eye. The wounds in the feet are quite small and unpretentions, while that on the side looks like a series of scratches only skin deep. The wounds are all irregular in size and shape, and bear the appearance of having been made either by pinching or scratching.

San Bernardino.

The San Bernardino Guardian, of April 26, gives the following items relative to its local affairs:

James Gamble, Superintendent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, arrived in town on Thursday last. Thursday night he was met at Starke's hotel by a number of our citizens for the purpose of talking telegraph. Three propositions were made to the people of San Bernardino, either of which, if the terms are accepted, will give us telegraphic connection at either Los Angeles or Anaheim. The proposition that seems to meet with the most favor, is the $2.500 subscription, which amount if subscribed and guaranteed the company on the completion of the line will secure us a telegraph within sixty days. A committee is now canvassing the town with encouraging success.

One of the greatest curiosities in the valley is a large pomegranate tree which forms a natural arpor at Dr Barton's place in old San Bernardino. It was planted by the padres many years ago.

"Olly" Wozencraft cut his alfalfa on Thursday—four tons from two acres, and he only cuts it seven times a year.

Indians.

Secretary Delano appears to have more confidence in the Indians than those who are fighting them. He says there are no hostile Indians in the vicinity of the Modocs, and there is no danger of an alliance offensive with any other tribes. In the first place there is no such thing as a friendly Indian. Tribes that are at peace maintain that attitude from fear, or some selfish motive; and it takes but a trifling difference between them and the whites to create war. It is astonishing that the authorities, after such a prolonged and bitter experience as we have had, cannot learn wisdom. It may be regarded as rather uncharitable to impugn the motives of the head of a Department in his official conduct; yet everybody knows there is money to be made in Indian commissions and Indian agencies, and in time of war an honest penny can be turned in furnishing supplies and transportation. Sometimes it is more profitable to prolong than to speedily close a campaign.—Virginia Chronicle.

How It Pays.

A Jersey City editor has been doing some close figuring on the Congressional back pay business, and has come to the following conclusions:

The late session commenced on the 2d of December and ended on the 4th of March, a period of ninety two days. Thirteen Sundays intervened, and both houses adjourned over from the 22d of December to the 6th of January, which included twelve working days. Thus the actual number of day was reduced to sixty-seven. At the rate of $7.500 per annum that the members received, it will be seen that the pay of each amounted to more than $111 10 per day. Now, it is safe to say that the average number of hours that they were in session did not exceed five per day, so that each member received $22 22 per hour, or a little over 37 cents per minute.

Feed.

The grass ranges are being eaten off rapidly, and the prospect of feed this year is not very good. Stockmen must make up their minds that they can not much longer rely on natural grass ranges. Year by year the grass is becoming shorter and scarcer. Stock keep it eaten off close to the ground. We no longer see waving acres of grass several feet high, as of yore. Alfalfa and other feed must be cultivated, and stock must be cared for. It will pay.—Los Angeles Express.

Los Angeles.

The Los Angeles Daily Star, of the 23d ultimo, has the following:

An immensity of flour is being imported by our merchants. A section of the depot is almost filled with this article alone, and still it comes.

It is said that rich and extensive deposits of borax exist at Pyramid Lake, in San Bernardino county, and that the present excitement has directed earnest attention to them.

Uses of Borax.

The excitement now existing in regard to borax discoveries renders a brief statement of its uses of interest. It is of great use in the arts as a flux. Having the property, when melted, of dissolving metallic oxide, it is used in soldering to clean away the film of oxide that would otherwise prevent the metals from uniting. It is sprinkled on the metallic surface and melts with the solder. It is also used in gold and silver refining, and in making enamel, to render the compound more fusible. It is extensively employed in the manufacture of certain kinds of glass, and fixing colors on porcelain and stoneware. It is very valuable to the chemist in blowpipe analysis.—Pioche Record.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

May Day.

In accordance with the programme announced last week, the good people of our town and the Post on Thursday last participated in the fun and frolic of a May Day Pic-nic, under the auspices of the lodge of Good Templars. At the hall, after the ceremonies of crowning the May Queen, etc., enlivened with martial and string music, Mr. Darrah delivered an effective, appropriate address, which we regret not being able to report in full. Darrah is an earnest speaker; his espousal of the cause seems to come from a long and thorough study of the subject, and his remarks were listened to with the greatest interest. Some six or eight wagon loads of folks bent on fun proceeded to a grove about five miles above the Post, where, although the surroundings were not of the most desirable description, enjoyment was had, including instrumental music, singing, speechifying and dinner, interlarded with occasional laughable douches in the creek. Mr. Curtis made a few remarks, in which he announced his conversion to temperance principles; Mr. Connelly said something about never making anything but "post-mortem speeches," and our reporter was called upon for a few timely, pertinent and appropriate remarks, and he—mizzled. But taking it all round, we believe the general conclusion was that the crowd was a success as picnicists. The affair wound up with a sociable dance in the evening at the Inyo House, where we observed a larger attendance of ladies than on any similar occasion for a long time.

Another Grab.

As an independent and fearless exponent of the people's rights, and in the exercise of our prerogative as a public accuser of evil doings in high and mighty places, we are again called upon to recount the details of another unwarranted assumption of power by our Board of School Trustees, who have, by means known best by such unscrupulous politicians as they, effected another lease of power and secured another grab at the emoluments of office. Our sensitive nature recoils at the necessity of relating the harrowing circumstances, but duty stands paramount to all other considerations: Our readers will remember the circumstances, as related by us at the time, of the election to office of the School Trustees of Independence School District, and the remarkable finesse with which they effected their scheme. Well, having been permitted to serve out their term, it became, on Saturday last, time for the selection of others. Mark how they went to work: They complied with the law by publishing a notice of the election in an obscure country sheet—the same being edited, when he's at home, by one of the aspirants—and by posting printed notices all over town. The eventful day came, and found all the conspirators away from the city; but they had hired strikers to go all around town and say nothing about it, so that nobody thought of the election. They will continue to hold their positions as Trustees, and for another term receive the immense emoluments of their office.

The Fort Contracts.

At the opening, by A. A. Q.-M. Dove, of proposals for the furnishing of commissary stores, on the 1st instant, it was found that the lowest bids were as follows: Flour, J. S. Rothschild & Co., @ $5.96 ₱ cwt.; beans, Harris & Rhine, 6 cts. ₱ lb; beef, John Broder, 15 cts. The only bid for freighting was put in by Chaquette, who proposes to bring it from San Francisco at $5.96 during the Summer and $6.96 in the Winter season. All the above are based upon currency, and as bids were received in San Francisco at the same time of course the awards can not now be made. The bids for wood, hay and grain are to be opened on the 15th instant.

The Court House.

It is to be regretted that the Court Room will not be ready as expected for the May term of the Courts—a result due solely to the delays caused by the epizootic. However, all the necessary material is now on hand, and the chances are favorable that the big mining suit can be tried in the new and commodious quarters. To-day the cupalo begins to cut quite a figure upon the building.

Completed.

The Bend City bridge has been completed, so far as the contractors are concerned, and it will probably be officially inspected by the Board of Supervisors to-day. We would suggest that the grading and filling in of the approaches be attended to by this road district, without expense to the county.

Approved.

Judge Ogden Hoffman, of the United States District Court, has officially approved the bonds filed by the appointed Land Receiver of this District. The date fixed for the opening of the office at this place is the 31st of the present month.

No Mas.

The publication of hotel arrivals is played quiet. Instead we will hereafter give each week a directory of all the people in the respective towns.

Meeting.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Directors of the Waucoba Smelting and Mining Company takes place on Monday next, at Camp Independence.

Horse Thief Captured.

We made mention last week of Assessor Frank Dillon having had his horse stolen at Big Pine, and now we have the satisfaction of noting the capture of both horse and thief. Starting out northward, Mr. Dillon got trace of "his man," who gives his name as Henry Kane, at the Owens river bridge at Bishop Creek. Starting out from this point, he somehow lost the track and returned to the bridge, where he found the animal, it having got away from the thief. Now determined to catch the gentlemen, he succeeded in getting the trail of the would-be-thief at a point above Fish Slough, and after a deal of hard riding got to McBride's ranch ahead of Kane, and just after he had left Benton. Upon coming up to the ranch, Kane observed Dillon, and notwithstanding his weary and almost famished condition, made an energetic effort to escape. Being headed off, Kane advanced to Dillon and offered him a pocket-book which he stated to have found upon the road. Frank intimated that he wasn't hunting pocket books, but would take him, which he did, and brought him to this place. Upon arraignment, Kane waived examination, and is now in the county jail. Mr. Dillon was placed under the greatest obligations by Mr. James Shaw of Bishop Creek, and Deputy Sheriff Hightower of Benton, both of whom rendered him untiring services and assistance.

Lida Affairs.

Messrs. Cruggage & Co. are now running a weekly stage into Lida and Gold Mountain, from Austin via Columbus, carrying mail and express. The distance from Gold Mountain to Austin is 190 miles, fare $30. Cruggage is an old stage man of great reputation and renown. On the 22d ultimo, the cabin of O. Glover was destroyed by fire; loss, $150. This is the fourth time in his eventful career that Glover has been bankrupted in in this manner. A gentleman by the name of Cross has, it is said, gone after the machinery for another mill at Lida, mainly with the view of working Gold Mountain ores, he having purchased several mines out there. Since the starting of their mill, Hiskey & Walker have shipped $20,000 in bullion from their eight-stamper. A very rich strike is reported in the Brown's Hope, at a depth of 140 feet, where they find a larger body and finer quality of ore than ever before opened in the mine.

Political.

Since our item of a week or two since, giving the names of the several gentlemen spoken of for the various positions to be filled by election this Fall, there has been but one or two matters developed themselves worthy of note. It seems, however, that A. G. Boley, of Bishop Creek, is an aspirant for the Democratic nomination for the Shrievalty, instead of supervisor. In the legislative matter, J. W. P. Laird files a protest against the mention of his name in that connection, and W. L. Hunter wouldn't touch it with a forty-foot pole. M. S. Clarke is spoken off as a possible candidate for nomination by the Republicans for County Clerk, and it looks as though this contest will lie between that gentleman and R. A. Loomis. None of the able officers now holding the prominent positions are desirous of a reelection; and if the fact was known, none of the places are worth the trouble of getting.

Official.

For the next few weeks it is presumable that our town will be livened up by an influx of outsiders consequent upon the sessions of the Board of Supervisors and the District and County Courts. There are several cases to come up in each, the most important being: The San Felipe Company vs. Belshaw & Beaudry (referred to elsewhere), Russel v Wood & Cohen, and the application for the writ of mandate compelling the Board of Supervisors to order an election for a vote on the county-seat question, in the District Court. In the County Court, the cases of the People vs. Gallardo, People vs. Pearson (both to be heard by the County Judge of Tulare), and the People against Henry Kane.

Court Calender.

The following cases in addition to those reported elsewhere, will come up in the District Court this term: Robert Love vs. T. D. Lewis, suit for possession of land; J. W. McMurray vs. Hugh Mann, action for collection of debt; Hughes vs. Hughes and Slinkard vs. Slinkard, for divorce—the wives bringing suits in both cases. We don't know the grounds, and wouldn't give them if we did.

Gone East.

Mr. F. F. Thomas, long the managing Superintendent at Beaudry's furnace, Cerro Gordo, started homeward last week for old Tioga county, New York. Cerro Gordoans claim that Mr. Thomas was the best and most successful metallurgist that ever operated on the hill. He is succeeded by Mr. W. L. Hunter, long a resident of the place, and a well known mill and mining man.

Dance.

A few days since a shindig in the wilderness took place at Gold Mountain, a company of ladies to the number of nine assembling from Columbus, Lida and Piper's—of which the Gold Mountainers are much proud. The Austin Reveille increases the company present by seven babies over and above the number reported to us by our senior.

A Chance.

On account of failing health, Peter Margalot offers for sale his desirable business stand. See notice.

Hard Riding.

Duncan Campbell, Jr., is lying dangerously ill at Lida. His parents rode out there from Big Pine in one night and on the following one his father rode 60 miles farther to Columbus, for the services of Dr. F. C. Smith—a pretty severe task for a man so well along in years.

A Striking Success.

THE INDEPENDENT establishment boasts of an eight day clock, an excellent time-piece, but the striking apparatus of which seems somewhat out of kilter. After careful fixing by a clock-sharp, it struck two hundred and fifty-nine times in succession, during the following night.

Wicks' Store.

Our old friend Wicks, a well known old Inyoite, holds forth in a store at Lida as may be seen by the advertisement, where he dispenses all the necessaries pertaining to mining and prospecting life.

Lida Saloon.

Lida, like most new camps, is supplied with a saloon or two, and in this particular instance the most prominent thereof is that of Messrs. Fitzgerald & Scott, whose "ad" appears in this issue.

Still Circulating.

Our senior is still sloshing around the metaliferous regions to the northward. We wish somebody would kindly send him home.

Ball at Lone Pine.

According to tickets issued, a grand hop is to come off at Mexican Independence Hall, Lone Pine, on Monday evening, May 5th.

Wild Parsnep.

[COMMUNICATED].

MESSRS. EDITORS:—A few days ago I was called upon to aid an old Californian (twenty years in this State), suffering from the poisonous effects of the root of the wild parsnep, which he had eaten, supposing it to be harmless.

Cattle men know the injurious effects of this plant, from sad experience, with losing cattle in the Spring of the year, when feed is short and the tubes of the parsnep are being thrown off or shed for propagation; later in the season, the tops of the parsnip seem to have no bad influence—cut into hay, they are quite harmless. The plant grows in swampy places and along streams of water; it has a rounder and shorter root than the garden parsnep, but its leaves are strikingly similar, also its manner of growth—in taste, it resembles the garden vegetable, but is sometimes pungent.

As a poison, it produces headache, dizziness, burning feeling in the throat and stomach, with loss of voluntary motion and mental power; but sometimes it relieves it's own worst symptoms by causing vomiting and purging. After any one has eaten of it, free action of an emetic should be had, (unless the drug itself acts so), and sweet oil or some other bland substance (raw egg does very well) administered, to relieve the burning of the stomach. Subsequently, a moderate dose of morphine or laudanum, with whisky, may be properly given, if much depression exists.

Its action is very similar to that of American hellebore (veratrum viride) used extensively as a medicine to reduce fever and to slow the pulse. In my recent case, the latter power was markedly shown by the parsnep.

I may here note that the garden parsnep if long self sown and neglected, especially if in wet places, develops a strong and disagreeable flavor, with possibly injurious properties.

I communicate this with a view to putting your readers on their guard, for themselves and for children they may be interested in, about this attractive appearing plant and root, which is so very common in our valley.

Times Not Dull.

[COMMUNICATED.]

BLACK ROCKS, April 28, 1873.

MESSRS. EDITORS—What is all this complaint of dull times, etc. Your epistle from Fish Springs and report of Independence would fain make the outside world believe our "barbarious" people were dying of ennui. I beg of you not to credit it, and list to a voice borne on the gentle zephyrs from the hights of the classical Black Rocks. Here situated at the head of an immense lava bed, is the well known sawdust manipulator, Black Rock Saw Mill, and here Capt. Jim (as brave a Modoc as ever flourished a hush-stick or polished an expletive) reigns supreme, and his genial ways have won great respect from his subjects. Rumor says the pale faces never tried to rout him but once, and then the besiegers were composed of old married ladies and small children. The gallant Captain fought it ought individually and alone, and come out fresh and vigorous, without nary a scar to blemish his comely figure or testify to the terrible, unprecedented ordeal he had passed through. But to my subject. I want to furnish you proof that times are lively and the epizootic has no more effect on the Black Rock (bull) teams than castor oil on Josh Billings' graven image, and as for canine difficulties, we don't allow anything of the kind. On the premises can be found only one specimen of Darwin, and he—a full blooded, venerable, Thomas cat, a fifteen pounder and a native of Iowa—is at peace with himself and the rest of the world. On or about the 21st the mill started up in good earnest, full-handed, plenty of power and excellent timber, and the receipt of bills from all parts of the valley, indicates the contemplation of considerable building and lively times for mechanics. But more anon.

ROCKS.

Wallapi Items.

A friend writing from Cerbat, Mohave Co., Arizona, under date of April 13, gives the following items of interest:

On the evening of the 10th instant, Henry P. Ridgway was killed by Fred. Husaker, under circumstances that seems to have justified the deed. Ridgway is the man that killed a Mr. Andrews in Fresno county some two years since. The circumstances of the case are as follows: Ridgway had said many times that he was going to kill a friend of Husaker's; Husaker warned his friend, and it got to Ridgway what had been said; he went to Husaker (a mere boy of a man), caught him by the collar, and with a six-shooter cocked, said that he would kill him if he did not take back what had been said. It seems as though many others have heard Ridgway say that he would kill Chas. Spencer on sight, but a friend or outsider caught Ridgway and prevented his killing Husaker; he also talked of killing those that came to the rescue of his intended victim. Many is the life that feels relieved since Ridgway is gone. He was a great talker and was often heard to say "shooting will commence in less than a minute." After Husaker got loose he left and was not seen in the place again during the day, but went after arms to defend himself with. He got a double-barrelled shotgun and loaded it with buckshot, and watched his chance, and at 9½ o'clock as Ridgway came from a saloon he was shot, three or four buckshot having passed through the brain, killing him instantly. The shot entered on the right side above the temple and came out on the other side, making a hole two inches; the back part of the skull was broken into hundreds of pieces. After the killing Husaker went to a friend's cabin and told what he had done and intended to give himself up as soon as the Sheriff returned, (this being the County Seat). Husaker is a peaceable young man, and is well liked by all, and it is to be regretted that he was compelled to take the life of a man. He is about 22 years old and has a father and mother living in Oregon. Ridgway was from Peoria, Illinois, aged about 40. Husaker is now in custody of the Sheriff.

At an election on the 10th of March we voted for the County Seat at this place, and had 23 majority; the county polling about 500 votes.

I saw an extract in "THE INYO" that Baker had the old Elder furnace. It is all a mistake; he never had any part of it, nor never will.

A Queer Country.

Some prospectors who spent a number of months prospecting the country in the Mongollon mountains, in eastern Arizona and western New Mexico, report the discovery of a lake in that region which has an outlet and inlet through one and the same channel; the water is kept in constant circulation, but never leaves the basin, only through evaporation. The outlet is through a canyon at the upper end of the lake, the water, almost on a level with the main body, moving sluggishly away in a circuitous course for several miles, when it returns and is precipitated into the lower end of the lake over high and perpendicular shore walls. Several streams empty into the lake which comprises many square miles, but no possible outlet is visible.—Pioche Record.

The Drollery of Drunkenness.

[From The Pall Mall Gazette.]

The teetotallers are, it is said, about to start a comic paper, in which the chief subject of ridicule will be drunkenness. Apart from all moral considerations, it will be interesting, as a question of art, to see how the writers and artists will set about their task. There is a stage of drunkenness which is undoubtedly comic; and all sorts of droll stories are told about drunken or semi-drunken men. The French—who, when they are not being besieged, bombarded, or otherwise maltreated by their victorious enemies, are a sober people enough—allow that it is excusable for a young man to get drunk once in his life—on drinking champagne for the first time. Afterward the act (if act it be) of getting intoxicated is looked upon as an offense against society; and though such offenses are no doubt committed, they are not considered laughable, but blamable, or at least pitiable. Accordingly the French comic papers deal very rarely with drunkenness as a subject of mirth; and there are plenty of French farces in which not one of the characters is seen in a tipsy condition from beginning to end. Perhaps crossing the channel upsets them, for in English farces, which are known to be for the most part taken from the French, a certain number of the characters are tolerably sure to get drunk; while in our numerous comic and soi-disant comic papers the gentleman returning from a dinner-party is a figure constantly turning up. If the preceding observations be accepted as true, it follows, we think, that the most sober countries are not those in which drunkenness is most frequently viewed in its grotesque aspect. But it must be remembered that in the farces and the "capital stories" in which drunkards (or rather, let us say, persons temporarily and accidentally drunk) are the prominent personages, the laughter evoked is not entirely that of derision, but is, to some extent, of a sympathetic character. Take, for instance, the celebrated and familiar case of Mr. Pickwick in the pound, declaring his name, his "cold punch," and so on. The reader laughs, but not with a bitter laugh; and if he will analyze his feelings he will possibly find that he is not altogether ungrateful to Mr. Pickwick for having given him an occasion for laughter. The teetotal humorist may say that the butt for his jokes will not be the exceptionally intoxicated man, but the habitual drunkard. He, however, is not a comic but a tragic character, causing "pity" to men and "terror" to women. On the whole we are of opinion that the teetotallers had better reserve whatever fun is in them for other subjects than drunkenness. Otherwise they will make no one laugh, and their "comic paper" will fail, or they will do their own cause the bad turn of rendering drunkenness amusing—which, properly considered, it is not.

Hooping a Flour Barrel.

Putting a hoop on a family flour barrel is an operation that will hardly bear an encore. The woman generally attempts it before the man comes home to dinner. She sets the hoop on the end of the staves, takes a deliberate aim with the rolling pin, and then shutting both eyes brings the pin down with all the force of one arm, while the other instinctively shields her face. Then she makes a dive for the camphor and unbleached muslin, and when the man comes home she is sitting back of the stove, thinking of St. Stephen and the other martyrs, while the burnt dinner and the camphor are struggling heroically for the mastery. He says if she had kept her temper she wouldn't have got hurt. And he visits the barrel himself, and puts the hoop on very carefully, and then he laughs to himself to think what a fuss his wife kicked up over simple matter that only needed a little patience to adjust itself, and then he gets the hammer, and fetches the hoop a sharp rap on one side, and the other side flies up and catches him on the bridge of the nose, filling his soul with wrath and his eyes with tears, and the next instant that barrel is flying across the room, accompanied by the hammer, and another candidate for camphor and a rag is enrolled in the great army that is unceasingly marching toward the grave.—Danbury News.

—A singular discovery has just been been made at the old Conciergerie prison in Paris. Fire had destroyed two out of the three towers, and a week or two ago the workmen engaged in repairing that of St. Louis came suddenly upon a mysteriously deep well. This was contrived curiously in the wall facing the quay, and proved to be nothing less than the fatal dungeon of the old Palace of St. Louis. An opening of two square yards in one of the turrets reveals a horrid tunnel, reaching to the level of the Seine, where it forms a gallery sloping gradually to the river's bed. The interior of this tunnel is lined with sharp iron spears and points, which cross each other in every direction; and when the powers that were became anxious to get rid of any captive of note they led him through a passage formed in the interior of the wall toward the dungeon. A secret door was opened and he was precipitated into the yawning chasm, and there, transfixed by spikes, perished in slow torture. It may be imagined that only portions of the skeletons ever reached the bed of the Seine.

—A woman in Gardner, Maine, weighs sixty-five pounds less than she did before the surgeons removed her from a tumor on which she had grown.

—A German veteran was recently bitten by a mad dog in his artificial leg, with the sole effect of being able to walk more rabidly than before.

—The Sultan of Zanzibar has finally refused to sign a treaty binding him to suppress the slave trade, alleging as a reason that slavery is permitted by the Koran, and that the system is indispensible to the prosperity of his people.

—Patti received a "benefit" the other night at St. Petersburg, and the public presented her with a circlet of diamonds valued at thirty thousand francs, and called her before the curtain thirty times.

—Marshal Bazaine is about to be released on his parole of honor, which is equivalent to a confession that the charges against him cannot be sustained

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Aurora, Nevada, April 1st, 1873

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT PURSUANT to an order of the President of the United States, dated February 27th, 1873, and instructions of the Hon. Willis Drummond, Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated March 20th, 1873, we have this day suspended all action looking towards the disposal of lands embraced within the limits of the Independence Land District, hereinafter described, and that the Land Office at Aurora, Nevada, will be removed to Independence, California, and will be open for the transaction of business at the latter place on Saturday, the 31st day of May, 1873.

All business in said Aurora Land Office relating to the disposition of lands embraced within that part of the District lying within the State of Nevada will be suspended on the 15th day of May, 1873, at which time said lands will be transferred to the Carson City Land District.

The said Independence Land District will embrace all lands lying within the limits of California which heretofore formed a part of the Aurora Land District, and in addition all that part of the Visalia District which lies east of Range Thirty-two (32) Mount Diablo Meridian.

MEDICAL.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

THE SUBSCRIBER TAKES PLEASURE IN announcing to the people of Inyo county that he has purchased and fitted up as a hospital the Beaudry Hotel Building, adjoining the military post at Camp Independence. All the adobes have been removed and their place supplied with lumber; the grounds are handsomely laid out with shade trees and clover, and have a pure running stream of mountain water.

There is an excellent bath room and dispensary attached. One room is set aside for the county's sick, leaving ample room for private patients. The Northern Stage Line passes the door, and the place is easy of access from the town of Independence. The charges for board and lodging do not exceed those of any hotel or boarding house, offering equal accommodations, and the establishment has the advantage of having competent help and medical advice always at hand, being close by the house of the post surgeon at the camp.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

ORGANIZATION OF PANIMINT MINING DISTRICT.

Its Local Laws.

On the 1st day of February 1873 four notices (of which the following is a true copy) were posted in the mountains of the Panamint Range as follows: One in "Windy Canyon," at a place called "Flowery Springs;" one at the mouth of "Mormon Canyon;" one at the "Mesquital" in Panamint Valley, and one at the "Rancheria" of the chief of the Indians in said mountains, in a valley called by the Indians "Quita-poa."

NOTICE!

There will be held at the camp of R. C. Jacobs & Co., in Mormon Canyon at the southern end of the Panamint Mountain Range, on February 10, 1873, a miners' meeting, for the purpose of organizing a new mining district, and forming laws to govern the same. All claim owners are respectfully invited to be present at said meeting.

R. C. JACOBS,
W. L. KENNEDAY,
R. STEWART.

Pursuant to the above notice a special miners meeting was held on February 10, 1873, at the camp aforesaid of R. C. Jacobs & Co., with the following result:

W. L. Kennedey was elected Chairman, and R. C. Jacobs Secretary of the meeting.

On motion the following resolutions were offered, voted upon separately and adopted:

Resolved, That we the miners of Panamint Mountains, here assembled, do ordain and establish the following:

1. The new district shall be known as, and called the "Panamint Mining District," and its boundaries shall be as follows: Commencing in "Windy Canyon" (a point four miles north of Telescope Peak) at a point called Flowery Springs, and running thence in an easterly direction, following the said "Windy Canyon" to the summit of the range; thence down the east side and out to the center of Death Valley; thence southerly to "Mesquit Springs," on the eastern slope of "Slate Range;" thence westerly to the summit of "Ceutrie Canyon," and down the same to its mouth, continuing the same course westerly to the center of "Slate Range Valley;" thence northerly to a point in "Panamint Valley" ten miles due west from "Flowery Springs;" thence easterly ten miles to the place of beginning.

2. We adopt as the laws of this district the act of Congress approved May 10, 1872, with the regulations issued thereunder from the General Land Office, bearing date of June 10, 1872, and September 20, 1872, with the following additional local regulations:

3. An exact copy of the notice of location of a mining claim, tunnel claim, mill site or timber claim must be handed to the Recorder of this district for record within twenty days from the posting on claim of said notice, or the location will be held as abandoned, and for every such record and certificate of same the Recorder shall be entitled to a fee of two dollars.

4. On locating a claim, if the locator so desires, it shall be the duty of the Recorder to visit the same personally and examine the boundaries thereof, for which he shall be entitled to a fee of five dollars and mileage at the rate of fifty cents per mile for every mile or part of a mile that the claim may be situated distant from the Recorder's place of residence.

5. One foot in blasting ground in either shaft, drift or tunnel, of ordinary size, shall be valued at $20, and in picking ground at $5 dollars, and when application is made by a claim holder, or legal representative of a claim, for a certificate showing the amount of labor performed or improvements made upon a claim, it shall be the duty of the Recorder to make a personal inspection of the same, and if in his judgment the amount seems correct he shall give a certificate to that effect, and for such inspection and certificate he shall receive a fee of five dollars ($5), with mileage at the rate of (50c) fifty cents per mile for each mile or part of a mile that the claim may be situated from the Recorder's place of residence.

6. The owner of a mining claim, tunnel claim or mill site situated in this district may hold for the use of such claim or claims the timber contained in an area of (320) three hundred and twenty acres of land.

7. It shall be the duty of the Recorder to call meetings of the miners whenever a petition is presented to him signed by ten or more persons owning claims in this district, or by legal representatives of such owners of claims, requesting him to give notice of such meeting for the purpose of altering or amending the laws of this district, and he must post such notices, stating the object of the meeting, in at least three different and conspicuous or public in the district, but no such meeting shall be held in less than 10 or more than 20 days from the date of such notice, and no person except a claim owner or his legal representative shall have a vote at such meeting.

8. A Recorder shall be elected on the 10th day of February of each year, and it shall be his duty to post notices in three or more public places in the district, ten days previous to the expiration of his term of office, to the effect that a miners meeting is called for the purpose of electing a Recorder, stating where the election is to be held, and appointing two claim owners, or legal representatives of such, as judges of such election, who shall permit none but claim owners, or legal representatives of such, to vote at any such election. The Recorder shall purchase the books, etc., necessary at his own expense, and on retiring from office shall deliver them to his successor, receiving payment from the said successor of the original cost of said books.

9. At all meetings held in this district a majority of the claim owners present voting for or against a measure shall constitute the adoption or rejection of such measure.

10. These laws, rules and regulations shall take effect from the date of their passage.

11. The Records of the district will be kept in Surprise Valley, Panamint Mountains.

After the adoption of the foregoing resolutions, an election for Recorder was declared in order. Robert Stewart was put in nomination, and on a vote being taken was unanimously elected for the annual term commencing February 10, 1873.

It was unanimously resolved that R. C. Jacobs compile the laws of Panamint Mining District and forward them for publication to the office of THE INYO INDEPENDENT, Independence, Inyo county, California.

W. L. KENNEDAY, Chairman.
R. C. JACOBS, Secretary.

Mormon Canyon, Panamint Mining District, Cal., February 10, 1873.

End of the Franking Privilege

After the first of July no free matter of any description will be allowed to pass through the mails. No changes are made in the rates of postage. Letters to all parts of the United States are three cents per half ounce. Pamphlets, occasional publications, transient newspapers, etc., are transmitted through the mails at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof. Books are two cents for each two ounces. All liquids, poisons and obscene publications, and all other matter liable to injure the mails are excluded. Newspapers regularly issued, and sent to regular subscribers, are charged thirty-five cents per quarter in advance, for dailies issued seven times a week, and thirty cents for six times a week; weeklies five cents, and monthlies, not over four ounces, three cents. Postage may be paid either at the mailing or delivery office. Newspapers dropped in the office for local delivery must be prepaid at the rate of one cent for two ounces. Full prepayment by stamps is required on all transient printed matter, foreign or domestic. The repeal of the franking privilege is likely to result in more good than has generally been expected. After the 1st of July, all the Departments will be required to pay postage on all correspondence. As this will amount to a pretty large addition to the cost of running each Department, inquiry has been made as to whether it is not possible to offset this postage account by a decrease in the expense attached to some other. It has finally been decided in some Departments to do away, as far as possible, with the use of whole sheets of paper in correspondence, substituting half sheets instead. For years the heaviest kind of paper has been used; and it is also decided that this must give way to a lighter and less expensive quality. The effect of these two changes will be to cut down materially the stationery bills and reduce the postage fully one-half. Adopted in all the Departments, it will save large sums every year to the treasury.

—An old lady said to her sons: "Boys, don't you ever spekerlate or wait for something to turn up. You might as well go and sit down on a stone in the middle of a medder, with a pail twixt your legs, and wait for a cow to back up to you to be milked."

Lord Lytton's Women.

Lord Lytton, with all his gifts, did not possess that of drawing women. It is rare among men—almost, if not quite, as rare as the faculty of representing man is among women; though the failure in the one case is very much less remarked upon and less noticeable, indeed, from the fact that women have but lately come to occupy leading places in works of fiction. A beautiful and sweet abstraction of womankind, with hair, eyes, throat, etc., with smiles and tears handy, and a few pretty speeches, is all that is necessary for a heroine of the good, old fashioned type. Lord Lytton has two of these types, the heroic and the gentle, as indeed Sir Walter had; and most novelists keep within these safe lines. The sentimental splendor of Volante, the sugary sweetness of Helen, may dazzle the hasty reader; but how to come to any sort of realization of these young women we are unable to inform him. Every mortal man has his tether, and here is one region in which Lord Lytton's tether is apparent, though he does his best by glowing diction and lavish sentiment to throw a glamour in our eyes and blind us to the fact. He does blind us so far that we accept the graceful outline enveloped in rainbow mists of beautiful effect as the symbol of woman—woman the consoler, woman the inspirer, as he says himself. The abstraction is enough for him who has no need for anything further; neither, we suppose, have the majority of readers, or the typical would not have been so long and so placidly accepted instead of the personal.—Blackwood.

District Judge.

At the Judicial election in October next the electors of this Judicial District—the Sixteenth—comprising the counties of Alpine, Inyo, Mono and Kern, are to elect a District Judge for the term of six years from the 1st day of January next, at which time the term of Judge Theron Reed will expire. Judge Reed will be a candidate for reelection. He was appointed to the position by Gov. Low in 1866 to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Judge Harvey Lee, and in the following year was elected for the full term of six years by an almost unanimous vote, his opponent receiving barely enough votes to show that he was a candidate. Judge Reed has made hosts of friends among the people of this District by his urbane manners, strict attention to the duties of his office and the justness of his decisions, the latter being generally affirmed by the Supreme Court when that tribunal has been appealed to, and the records of that Court will show that his decisions stands as high as those of any District Judge in the State. We do not know that Judge Reed will have any opponent for the position, his popularity being so well known. We are confident that Alpine will give him as unanimous a vote as in 1867, for he has been a good Judge, and when we get a good man in such a position we should keep him in service as long as possible.—Alpine Chronicle.

Petroleum.

The petroleum discoveries near Los Angeles are evidently to become valuable. There are thus far five claims located in the range, which is situated thirty-five miles north-west of Los Angeles, on the road to Fort Tejon. The Express says regarding these claims:

Three tunnels have been cut from seventy to one hundred feet in depth, and from these and the two wells the flow of oil is continuous. The petroleum is led through iron pipes to large tanks, and is dipped with buckets from the springs. The cost of transportation to Los Angeles is about two cents per gallon. We have seen the report of Louis Falke, now State Assayer, who estimates the value of the crude petroleum submitted to him for analysis, to be much greater than that of Pennsylvania or elsewhere in the United States.

A Suggestion.

The Sacramento Bee contains the following, which is submitted for consideration: An old Indian fighter said to us recently: "Do you know what I would do if I were in command of the troops near the lava bed? I would, having all things ready, lead them right into the lava bed at night, say at 11 o'clock, and the darker the night the better, and then have a hand-to-hand conflict with these Indians. Now the Indians fight in the daytime and the troops fight at night—that is the Indians see the troops and the troops cannot see them, and as long as this is the case the troops will be whipped, but give them an even show and they will hold their own. And in addition to thus meeting the Indians upon their own grounds and fighting them so that they would have no advantage over me by seeing my men, while they themselves were invisible, I would take with me a few Drummond lights, throw their powerful rays upon the locality whence the firing of the Indians might come, and thus blind them while exposing them to my own sharpshooters; and something like this will have to be done, or these Modocs cannot be cleaned out this Summer by a thousand men." The old "fighter" may not be far from right.

A RELIC OF HAHN—A QUESTION FOR SCIENTISTS.

Some four weeks since an Indian came into Gold Mountain from Death Valley, having in his possession a pair of field glasses, which he said he had found in the desert between Sand and Grapevine Springs. These glasses Mr. Sam. Halsey of Gold Mountain purchased from the Indian, and has kindly placed them in our possession. They can be seen at this office.

There is a melancholy interest attached to these glasses, based on the belief that they belonged to Hahn, Wheeler's lost guide, and were dropped by him during his last struggle for life. But be that as it may, there is this fact connected with them that we think will excite still greater interest in the minds of the curious and scientific: Both object glasses are covered with perfect and most beautiful photographs or etchings of desert shrubs; stems, branches, leaf-stalks, leaves and leaflets are as distinctly marked as if laid on in silver by a master hand There is no mixture or confusion, one plant with another, each having a clear border of unmarked glass, rendering it probable that the sun or lightning photograph, which, or whatever it may be, was received through the eye-glass. Except that a cayote had been taking liberties with them, the Indian could, or did not give any satisfactory explanation of the position and immediate surroundings in which they were found, therefore that important point towards elucidating the modus operandi is left to conjecture. We will add that these pictures seem to occupy a position about the center of each of the object glasses, but a little nearer the plane than the convex side.

In this connection we may mention a similar circumstance which occurred in 1864 at the old Ida mill, 12 miles from this place. One evening Wightman, the Superintendent, left his glasses on a table pointing towards the Sierra Nevada side of the valley. There came a sharp flash of lightning, and on taking up the glasses the entire opposite landscape, mountains and sage-brush was found distinctly and ineffacably pictured on both object glasses. It is hardly probable, however, that lightning was the agent in the instance first mentioned, as that phenomenon is rarely or never witnessed in the desolate region where these glasses have lain for nearly two years, perhaps without change from the position in which they were left by the unfortunate owner.

While speaking of the lost guides, we may mention here that during our visit to Gold Mountain, we were told that a man named Kelley had discovered near the new borax marsh in Death Valley a skeleton which he thought was that of Wheeler's other lost guide, the lamented Egan. We could obtain no particulars, however, as Kelly was then away at the marsh, 70 miles distant from Gold Mountain.

Charles De Long.

It seems that the Mikado thinks he can't possibly get along with any other United States Minister than Charles De Long, and has forwarded a letter to our Government asking that the said De Long may be kept where he is. But it leaks out that Charles has made numerous nice presents to his Highness, and it is thought that these things have had a tendency to warp his Highness' judgment, wherefore Charles is asked to report at Washington so that his Highness may have time to get his mind out of wind before he indites another letter on a subject that is none of his business.

The New Postal Law.

On and after the 30th day of June, next, the United States mails will cease to carry any free matter. The franking privilege ceases; the free transmission of newspapers within the county where published; all free newspaper exchanges cease and there has been no reduction of postage. The laws remain unchanged which permit payment of postage on newspapers at the office of mailing or delivery, at the option of the subscriber, and payment by newsdealers "upon their packages as received."

New Volume.

Our excellent contemporary across the big ridge, The Fresno Expositor, has just begun its fourth volume, and is proud of the rapid strides Fresno county has made towards wealth and permanent prosperity in the three years since the first number of The Expositor made its appearance.

ANOTHER DEFEAT.

It is with a feeling of astonishment and no less of humiliation that we again hear of the disastrous defeat of our soldiers at the lava bed. Making every possible allowance for advantage of position, it seems strange that with twenty men, armed with breach-loaders, hand-grenades, mortars and howitzers, to every half-starved Modoc an American army of 600 men can't at least keep themselves from being killed off by the score. Yet such is the fact—41 out of 63 killed and wounded by less than half the number of the wily foe, the same they had went out expressly to see!

Newspapers and others throughout the country are anxious to saddle the blame of this defeat and sorrowful loss of life upon somebody, and that somebody must of course be the General in command. With all due respect to the memory of Major Thomas and the brave officers and men of his command, all of whom lost their lives in this sad affair, we are decidedly of the opinion that the fault was wholly their own. They lacked not bravery, but it is evident that they were wanting in equally essential points — caution and judgment. But let the fault rest where it may, this fact is clear: that this handful of Indians have maintained their advantage and are likely to continue to do so until borne down by sheer weight of numbers, which must be greater than twenty to one.

The opinion seems to prevail that the regular army, no matter how brave, can not effect the subjugation of these Indians, and that volunteers alone can do it. If regular soldiers can not be depended upon to oust a foe from such a formidable stronghold as this of Capt. Jack's, we feel quite sure that no equal number of citizen soldiery, acting as they generally do, independent of system or command, can ever compass the object anyhow, in the probable event of encountering unlooked for obstacles.

The experiences of every pioneer of this coast—of this very lava bed itself, with regard to the Oregonians in the first big fight — show conclusively enough that there is a good deal "more talk than cider" about the immense superiority of volunteers, always hastily drummed together as they necessarily are. They are the best in a general hunt, but in a charge on a stronghold like this, however courageous they may be individually, there is always a fear of a lack of support or a doubt about what others may do in the face of unlooked for dangers that render volunteers more unreliable than disciplined troops. The volunteer system of fighting is the best without doubt, and the one which experienced regular officers always adopt as near as possible, and in such cases man for man accomplish just as much or more in the end than the volunteers about which so much talk is being made.

In speaking of the propriety of enlisting volunteers at this crisis, The Austin Reveille is decidedly of the opinion that Jeff Standifer can take 200 men and clean out Capt. Jack in a jiffy. We can name another man—W. A. Greenley, of this county—whom we believe to be as good and certainly no less successful an Indian fighter, but we don't think that the two combined, backed by their tried followers to double the number, can do it, since 600 soldiers and 70 friendly Indians have, after repeated trials, found it too hard a nut to crack.

Two Expositions.

The world is likely to be treated to two grand expositions—that at Vienna and one by the appointed Representatives of the United States, who can't even wait until the show begins before they commence stealing. One Van Buren, Wm. Mayer, Robert Sargent and A. E. Stansey are the names given of Vienna Commissioners whose peculations have already been exposed, and how many more is to come remains to be seen. Verily, we have fallen upon evil times.

Troops for the Lava Bed.

The 4th Infantry, composed of about 600 men, are now on the way from Arkansas to the Lava Bed, and also 200 from Arizona. If these fail to fetch Capt. Jack to terms, as a last resort it is proposed to have the Sheriff of Siskiyou go and arrest him by virtue of the indictments found by that sapient Grand Jury. Kelly, of The Oregon Statesman, and whilom Captain of the Webfoot volunteers, is to go along as bottle-holder.

Mines in Nevada.

Next week, in a single mine at Pioche, we have it from good authority, an additional force of 200 men will probably be put to work, while the forces of half a dozen other mines will probably be increased. We may have the good old times of yore back in a few days, and—we may not. It is evident a crisis is being reached in the affairs of the Ely Mining District, with the chances, according to our judgment, in our favor.—Pioche Record, April 27.

LIDA VALLEY AND GOLD MOUNTAIN.

As these two camps are attracting a great deal of attention, we shall devote considerable space in this issue in recording our personal observations made during a recent trip through that region.

THE TOWN OF LIDA

presents much the appearance of many of the old time mining towns of California, where, from temporary necessity, the walls of the greater portion of the buildings are composed of round timbers set on end and roofed with canvass. They are not pretentious in architectural design or beauty of finish, but are comfortable, nevertheless. As yet the town proper contains only about twenty-five houses, excluding a number connected directly with Hiskey & Walker's mill, which stands a few hundred yards below. The most of these buildings are devoted to business purposes, for kind and character of which see Lida advertisements. The site is well chosen, regularly laid out, and has water and fuel sufficient for several mills for many years to come. It is also surrounded by a very good stock range. A half mile south is a Mexican village containing two stores and saloons, a prospective dance house, and four small furnaces and bassos in operation and a corresponding number of dwellings of various styles.

HISKEY & WALKER'S MILL

is the pioneer, and as yet, the only one in the district. It has eight stamps and two reverberatory furnaces, and is decidedly a paying institution, notwithstanding the fact that it costs very nearly as much to run a mill of this size as one full three times its capacity. The ores are crushed dry, then roasted and under the highly skillful management of Mr. Hiskey, are made to pay not less than 80 per cent. of their assay value, though they are all of the most refractory character. It requires any quantity of faith, energy, determination, skill and coin, too, to build and successfully operate a quartz mill in such a wilderness so remote from a base of supplies, and for having done so these gentlemen are entitled to credit. The

for the most part lie within two parallel lines not much over half a mile apart, commencing at the summit of Lida Belle mountain thence, diagonally down that mountain and over others straight east ten miles to the very border of one arm of Death Valley. Near the center of these lines the town and mill are situated. The principal ledges west of the mill crop out on the abrupt, craggy face of the mountain, and consequently, can be tapped at any given depth by a nearly corresponding length of tunnel; but, so far, this economical system of mining has not been adopted, it being deemed more advisable to follow the ledge strictly.

The country rock or general formation is of a very mixed character—granite, quartzite, lime, talcose slate and lava rocks and deposits. With very few exceptions the ledges are all nearly vertical, with well defined walls running east and west, and without surface fault or break. The vein matter is generally about three feet thick, pay ore all of astonishing richness, from two inches to two feet, but most frequently about one foot in thickness. From ten to fifty feet from the surface the pay ore as a rule appears to pinch down to a stain, but in every instance where sinking has been continued twenty to seventy-five feet deeper it has come in again as good or better than ever.

With these general remarks we will, beginning at the western extremity, take a look at some of the most prominent mines:

THE LIDA BELLE,

mill company, owners, is worked out for a depth of 60 feet from the apex of a sharp, craggy peak which it cuts through from side to side, a distance of some 80 feet. An exception to the rule, this mine runs north and south and dips slightly to the east. It has produced quantities of ore averaging by mill process over $500 per ton. It "pinched," and a contract, which is being pushed night and day, was let to sink 100 feet deeper. This shaft is down 28 feet, the last 8 feet in 10 inches of fair ore. The developments of this shaft will pretty well determine the character of the mine, and it is useless to indulge in speculations in advance.

On the summit of a high mountain on the eastern side of the deep intervening gulch begins a string of locations extending diagonally down the mountain for a mile and a half, all supposed to be on the same ledge. The first of these are the neither of which we visited, but both considered very good mines, though no work of consequence has been done on either. Passing some intermediate locations we come to the

BLUE DICK,

Scott, Fitzgerald & Hartman, owners. It is enough to say of this mine that at the bottom of an 80-foot shaft, as was the case at the top but not all the way down, there is two feet of solid ore of the highest grade. It will work over $1,200 per ton, and often assays as high as $2,500. It bids fair to be the crack mine of the district, particularly if it should prove to be part and parcel of the long ledge before mentioned, as it is thought to be. This mine is very favorably located for deep working by tunnel. A few hundred feet higher on the mountain side, north of the Blue Dick, the mill company are sinking on which, at 25 feet shows a small ledge of excellent ore. Next in order east on the main ledge is the

THE MOUNTAIN VIEW,

MARTIN & HENRY,

which title commemorates the names of the locaters and owners. The shaft is down only about 12 feet with good ore at the bottom and on each side. The ledge is broken up somewhat, but is deemed a very valuable prospect. Next, down in the foot hill, and last on the supposed long lead, is the the property of the mill company. It differs but little from the others in its general characteristics, except that it shows no ore at the bottom of a 45-foot shaft, although it yielded well for 20 feet from the surface. The vein matter maintains its size and character and no doubt a body of pay ore will soon be found in it. Leaving, without special mention, a large number of locations in the mountain to the left, we pass down the valley two miles to the mill which stands on the north side, and directly at the foot of upon which there are numbers of very promising ledges. The lines of these ledges are much confused and the ore, which runs from $400 to $1,200 in silver, carries a heavy percentage of copper. It was on this hill that the first location of the district was made and called

THE CINDERELLA.

It belongs to the mill company, who are now at work upon it, although but little has been done upon it or elsewhere on the hill for sometime past. On the eastern slope of the hill is Len. Martin's pride and hope called but which, like nine-tenths of the others has only been prospected enough to show the top of a good ledge and some $1,100 ore. Passing a number of locations going east three miles to the verge of Death Valley, we arrive at the property of the mill company, the the most extensively and deepest worked mine of the district. The present owners paid a round sum for this and the Lida Belle, and from them have obtained the most of the ores they have reduced. Though narrow in places, very rich ores were found all the way along the ledge for 500 feet and from 30 to 50 feet in depth, at which it pinched down to a seam. A shaft is being sunk which, at 146 feet, is in a widening body of ore quite as good as any found above. The ledge runs northeast-southwest, with vertical walls of limestone.

Going south one mile we find the still nearer the edge of the valley from which the name is derived. This mine belongs to two gents from La Belle France, August Williams and August Costero and a third interest in dispute. The ledge runs north and south, parallel with the valley at this point, is in limestone, with a dip of 30 degrees east. In appearance the ore is very similar to those of the Blue Dick; the average yield by mill process is $430 per ton; there is about 30 tons on the dump and plenty more in sight, though the shaft is down only about 25 feet.

GENERAL.

Mining men whom we met from other districts, Austin, Belmont, Pioche ann others, pronounce the prospect of this district fully equal if not superior to either of those, with all their prestige But it should be borne in mind that these opinions are almost entirely based on mere surface prospects, real prospecting having hardly yet begun.

The town itself is certain to become one of considerable importance since, in addition to its own numerous mines, the locality is the only one possessing the essentials of wood and water necessary in reducing the vast quantity of rich ores which its neighboring district on the south, Gold Mountain and perhaps others, will produce.

The ores of the district are quite uniform in character, although an expert can easily distinguish the proper ore of any given mine from that of the others. They nearly all show considerable horn silver, but are mostly ranked as the richest class of chlorides.

Leaving Lida for the present, with a word of acknowledgment to Messrs. Hiskey and Walker, who for five days furnished transportation and by turns showed us all about, we will take a look at twenty-five miles south of Lida and on the opposite side of the arm of Death Valley above mentioned, which, in a circumference of over 100 miles, nearly surrounds it. Its highest point looms up to an altitude of 9,000 feet, on the sides of which there is considerable wood, but hardly in quantity sufficient to justify the construction of a mill depending upon it, even if water sufficient could be obtained—a fact yet to be demonstrated. The mines all lie on the northern slope of the mountain, in a space of 10 miles east and west, by 5 north and south. About the center of this space is located the camp, where, on account of a spring of good water in a tunnel, most of the residents of the district make their headquarters. As yet the town boasts of no stores or hotels, if we except a saloon and restaurant recently established by P. Benson, who is from "Faderland," and whose wife is the only woman in the district. The population is not large, but a cleverer set of strangers we have never before met with. They are, as a class, genuine prospectors, venturesome and brave—free and hospitable accordingly, and we can truly say that they deserve their good fortune in discovering and possessing such a multiplicity of extraordinarily rich mines.

THE COUNTRY ROCK

is almost uniformly the original granite, although some of the ledges lie in streaks of slate, and that portion of the district in the foothills next the valley on the south, and nearest Lida, is called the Slate Range, but more by way of distinction than from the general formation.

The mines of Gold Mountain, with one or two notable exceptions, are even more uniform in size and assay value than those of Lida, but differing from the latter in two important particulars The pay streaks are rarely less than two feet wide, and about one half of them are remarkably rich in pure gold. The silver ores are often rich gray carbonates, although chlorides, sulphurets and horn silver predominate—native silver is sometimes observable. The working value of these ores, as a rule, will exceed $400 per ton, while a fair average assay will frequently show from $1,200 to $1,500. One specimen (gold) from the Oriental gave $107,000, and another $33,000, but of course these were exceptionable.

The number of locations in the district that may be ranked in the above class exceeds a hundred, one company (the Manhattan, of Austin), having a full or partial interest in forty-two of these. At the western extremity of the district is the famous which is a most extraordinary mine, indeed. It was secured by a United States patent some years ago, since which time but little has been done upon it. We met in Lida one of the owners, Mr. "Joggles" Wright of Belmont, who was down looking after the property with the view of beginning work on it soon, intending to sink a shaft 100 feet deeper from the bottom of the present principal shaft, which is 70 feet deep. Boulder croppings containing from 10 to 40 tons of fine gold-bearing quartz mark the line of the ledge for nearly half a mile, when from the float it can be traced across the valley of a dry creek for a mile or more in the opposite or southeast direction. The casings are in slate, though the country rock is, outside of fifty feet on either side, all granite. The ledge stands nearly vertical, and from the top to the deepest points in the several openings uniformly from 12 to 13 feet wide. Fifty thousand tons at least can be extracted and shoveled into carts backed into the cut, without going a foot below the level of the two gulches cutting through it. But the ore, taken altogether, only runs about $30 per ton, which will not pay at the present time, as it will have to be transported from 15 to 20 miles for reduction. It, however will produce about three feet of ore that will average above the present depths about $150 per ton, and, as it is doubtless a true fissure vein, it is thought much richer can be obtained by sinking.

Traveling east six miles, one mile past the camp and five south of the numerous rich prospects of Slate Range, the is reached, Roth & Helling proprietors Personally we did not visit this location, but we have in our possession some gold specimens of the richest character, and are informed that the mine at 10 feet shows an abundance of fine ore. Thence over a high divide, three miles east, we, after passing numerous locations, reach

THE ENTERPRISE,

Kelly & Ober owners, which at a depth of 20 feet shows 14 inches of gold and silver ores, running from $400 to $2,200 per ton. Next is located in August last by Jas. Ruth, Geo. Ayres, F. Coats and Sam Halsey, none of whom are in the least afraid of work or of knocking the bottom out of their mines by digging down on them. The croppings on the Oriental are similar to those of the State Line, and it was from this ledge that the big assays above mentioned were obtained. Chiefly through Halsey's perseverance a shaft has been sunk on the ledge 145 feet deep, revealing two streaks of ore, one of two feet, about, of silver, the other, of a few inches, rich in gold. The Manhattan Company now own the half interest formerly held by Ruth & Ayres, and work is to be resumed at once on the mine, and big results are anticipated.

On the eastern extension of this ledge is so named in contradistinction to the dimunitive stature of the three owners, L. Marott, A. Pross and N. A. Frothingham, whose combined hight will not exceed 16 feet or thereabouts. But they stand a great deal higher than that for enterprise and perseverance in the face of serious difficulties. Commencing on the hillside with no indications of a ledge in sight, they sunk 110 feet and then drifted thence 20 feet, all in hard rock, before they obtained a color. At the end of the tunnel they lit square on the top of the ledge, which shows well both in size and quality. Under somewhat similar circumstances the "giants" sunk another deep prospect, mainly on faith, striking another good ledge called which lies to the eastward of the one last mentioned, and in the vicinity of a number of others, all of which we shall have to pass to reach the last in line to the east and near the borders of Death Valley. This is called owned by Bloomenar & Obendorf. The croppings of this mine are very similar to those of the Oriental. The shaft is down about 30 feet on a 2½-foot ledge, yielding on an average about $250 in gold. Though this does not assay as high as many others, the Rattlesnake is considered one of the prominent and most promising mines of the eastern portion of the district.

THE THREE GIANTS,

Gold Mountain unquestionably possesses a vast number of rich mines of good size—more and better, perhaps, than any other district of equal area now known. Its chief drawback, and the only one worth notice, lies in the fact that these ores will have to be taken elsewhere for reduction—but it will prove a flourishing camp, nevertheless.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

More Coin Salaries.

In accordance with an order from the District Judge, the salary warrants of the County Clerk and the Treasurer will hereafter be paid in coin upon presentation. These orders are doubtless made in accordance with law, but it is difficult to see why a salary warrant should be preferred over any other. However, we can not determine that this system will work much against the interest of general warrant-holders. The enaction of a bill by the next Legislature authorizing the issuance of bonds and the funding of our floating debt, thus placing the county on a cash basis, we believe to be one of the necessities.

Not a Candidate.

As Mr. Earl's name has been mentioned in these columns as a candidate for the Legislature, we are authorized to state that he has no aspirations in that direction whatever. We have neither sorrow or congratulations to offer in regard to things of this kind, but this we will say, that in our belief, and assuming his election, Mr. Earl would prove the most effective Legislator this county has yet had or, mayhap, will have. But politicians, so far as he is concerned, will have to look elsewhere for a victim of California Legislative iniquities.

Sentenced.

Judge Hannah of the County Court this morning called up Henry Kane, found guilty of grand larceny, and informed him that the State of California would be pleased to furnish him board and lodging down at San Quentin for a period of two years, for nothing, except that he would be required to perform considerable hard labor, merely to keep his mind occupied. Mr. Kane acquiesced in the terms proposed without a word, so the matter is amicably settled.

Officers Installed.

Last evening the following officers were installed by the Good Templar Lodge of this place, to serve for the ensuing term: W. C. T., M. S. Clark; W. R. H. S., Miss Annie Wallace; W. L. H. S., Miss Carrie Howard; W. V. T., Miss Sallie Lewis; W. S., R. W. Woollard; W. F. S., John Heckel; W. T., Mrs. Margaret Lewis; W. C., J. L. Darrah; W. M., Patrick Gallagher; W. I. G., Charles Butler; W. O. G., —— ——; P. W. C. T., Mrs. Rilla Clark.

Times Improving.

Cerro Gordoans report a general enlivening up of affairs in that region, Lone Pine is improving, and advices from Bishop Creek state that the farmers of that country are enjoying better times than during any similar season for years past. Of Independence, Judge Reed says that it exhibits more life than any country town he has seen during his recent trip.

Board of Supervisors.

The County Supervisors, in full board, have been in session during the entire week, but some of the most important business before them seems to be pending upon the result of suits now being heard by the District Court. We shall endeavor to obtain their entire proceedings for publication next week.

Celebration.

The anniversary of the battle of Pueblo, which recurred on Monday last, was observed by the Mexican residents of Lone Pine in their usual hearty, devil-may-care manner, and so far as we can learn no incident occurred to mar the general enjoyment.

For Other Climes.

T. A. Gardner has gone out northward, probably to bring up in Carson. A. J. Close, one of the pioneers of the valley, and John Harr set sail to-morrow for Eureka. We fancy the change of localities will not be largely to their advantage.

Number One.

Henry Stevens, of Lone Pine, is out with an announcement elsewhere of his candidacy for the office of Sheriff, subject to nomination by the Republican Convention. We doubt not that "Steve" would make a good officer.

Accident.

A Big Pine and Lida Valley teamster, known as "White-horse Chris," had his thigh broken, last week, in consequence of getting caught under his wagon wheel, by some means to us unknown.

Gone to the Springs.

Judge Wayland and John Lentell are down in the Coso range, about fifteen miles to the eastward of Little Lake, trying what effect their rheumatism will have on a hot spring there is in that locality.

Found a Nugget.

Fred Reinhackle of Big Pine is blowing around considerably because he found a nine-pound prospect the other day, which assays 100 per cent pure Dutch. See birth notice.

Thanks.

Mrs. M. S. Clarke has placed us under obligations for half a gallon of strawberries, the which, being the first of the season, were highly appreciated.

Reopened.

The old Inyo House saloon has been refitted and opened under the name of "Gem." It is run by "Joe" Schalten, whose advertisement appears elsewhere.

Adjourned.

The County Court adjourned this morning till Monday, May 19.

District Court.

The District Court, Hon. Theron Reed, Judge, met on Wednesday, May 7th.

After arranging calendar, as given below, the motion for a writ of review in the case of the People ex. rel. F. K Miller vs. Board of Supervisors and County Treasurer of Inyo was put on trial. Demurrer filed, which occupied the attention of the Court till Friday, when the case was submitted. Decision in writing demanded by counsel for Plaintiffs.

To-day the case of the People ex. rel F. K. Miller vs. Board of Supervisors, motion for writ of mandate, is now on trial. In both these suits E. H. Van Decar and F. K. Miller appear for Plaintiffs and P. Reddy for Defendants.

J. A. Sanchez vs. Jose Achoa, foreclosure of mortgage; passed for term.

J. A. Sanchez vs. J. W. Wolfskill et. al., foreclosure of mortgage; passed for term.

Robert Love vs. Timothy D. Lewis, et. al., restitution; set for Thursday, 15th instant.

Sarah Hughes vs. John R. Hughes, divorce; set for Monday next.

Alexander Russell vs. Wood & Cohen, damages; set for Tuesday next.

The People ex. rel. F. K. Miller vs. Board of Supervisors and County Treasurer of Inyo county, motion for writ of review; submitted.

The People ex. rel. F. K. Miller vs. Board of Supervisors of Inyo county, motion for writ of mandate; on trial.

Mary A. Slinkard vs. Andrew J. Slinkard, divorce; demurrer overruled: set for Tuesday

Big Pine.

J. Stewart & Co. having purchased Bell's saw mill, are engaged in moving it up nearer the large body of fine timber on Big Pine creek, and hope to have the mill in operation in about four weeks. There is quite a demand for lumber in that locality, which is the handsomest and has as prosperous a future before it as any in the county. Naylor and McMurry are each enlarging their store buildings and making other improvements of a permanent nature. Mr. McMurry, in order to accommodate the increasing business of his excellent hotel, designs to build a large new house for the purpose; also a new saloon opposite his store as soon as the necessary lumber can be obtained. A number of Nadeau's big teams are now due from Wadsworth loaded with goods for him. Besides its local trade Big Pine is bound to command a large portion of that from Waucoba and the contiguous camps across the range. It is the point of connection for the Lida stage line, has a new school house, fine farms, clever people, a fair and rapidly increasing number of the juvenile population, and is the objective point of settlement for several families from the east, so Big Pine will be a place of note one of these days.

Another Mill for Lida.

It is considered a fixed fact that the Manhattan company of Austin will proceed at once to erect a twenty-stamp mill in Lida valley. The agent, Mr. Frost (not Cross, as stated by us last week), has effected all the preliminary arrangements in the way of purchasing mines, water right, etc., having obtained the latter on very liberal terms from Judge W. J. Brown, who owned the fine spring a mile north of the town, from which it is to be conveyed in pipes. The mill is to come from Austin and is to be in operation by September next, though some delay is likely to be occasioned by the great scarcity of teams necessary to remove it. The company's mines are all located in Gold Mountain, from 15 to 20 miles distant.

Home Again.

We are pleased to note the return of Mr. Earl, after his extended sojourn in the East. He is looking so well that we conclude that a temporary residence in such an unhospitable clime as they have in the East will sometimes have a beneficial effect. Mr. Earl says that he knows to a positive assurance that no attempt will be made by the Department, or any thieving set of speculators, to remove the Owens River Indians to the Tule River Reservation or any other Reservation—which is well. Nothing decisive has been done in reference to the Registership of the Independence Land Office, but it strikes us it is pretty near time we were knowing something about it.

Drawn Out.

E. Olinghouse, the popular Los Angeles forwarder, informs us by letter that he has discontinued the business of forwarding, except so much as may be necessary to load his own teams. Mr. Olinghouse was the only Los Angeles business man, save the railroad company, that knew how to properly establish an Inyo business by regularly advertising in an Inyo paper, and it is to be regretted that the freighting matter will go into other hands.

Deferred.

We have devoted a great deal of our limited space this week to matters pertaining to the eastern side of the Inyo range, but are compelled to defer the consideration of several points of interest pertaining to the same region—business, agricultural, financial and incidental—more or less of interest to home readers. We shall probably notice some of these matters next week.

Rhubarb Wine.

We are indebted to Mr. N. Piper for a sample of wine manufactured by him from the rhubarb or common pie-plant. It will compare favorably with the best sweet wine made from grapes, being fully as palatable, and none but a connoisseur could distinguish it from the wine of the grape. From about a quarter of an acre of the plants he makes every year about 1 000 gallons of wine, which he sells readily at $3 per gallon.

A General Invitation.

See the advertisement of Kit Johnson & Co., Cerro Gordo.

BORAX.

There are now three sets of borax works in operation in Fish Lake Valley, and this number is to be increased by another set which Mr. Nadeau is about to erect, and run by steam. Mott & Piper are doubling the capacity of their works, now equal to 4,000 pounds daily, by the addition of four new vats. These works are said to produce the best borax in the country, it being fit for all ordinary purposes when boxed for shipment. Though all of Nadeau's teams and many others are employed in transporting this product of the several borax works about Columbus to the railroad, many more are needed to supply the demand.

Besides considerable quantities at other works, Mott & Piper had on the 1st of the present month, some 12 tons on hands, which, with a large daily addition, will have to remain there several weeks before the present force of teams can remove it.

The borax business has proved extremely profitable, and in consequence prospectors are keenly on the lookout for new fields. Extensive deposits have recently been found and located at two or three different points in Death Valley, some 70 miles, and more, south of Gold Mountain. There it is said to lie on the ground from one inch to a foot in depth, but containing a large percentage of borate of lime and other impurities.

One of these deposits is in the immediate vicinity of the spot where those 49 emigrants abandoned their wagons, which were subsequently burned by the Indians. It is doubtful whether these new and extensive deposits will prove of any immediate value to the locators, as, besides their reported inferior quality, their location are in or near the center of a most inhospitable region and distant from any practicable thoroughfare.

However, we are inclined to think that many of the supposed obstacles in the way of the successful working of these deposits will disappear by actual trial. Notwithstanding the fact that so many unfortunates have perished of thirst in the terrible desert of Death Valley we have it from good authority that water can be obtained almost anywhere in the valley within three feet or less of the surface.

Appalling Accident.

A dispatch from Chicago of May 4 gives the following account of a terrible accident which occurred at Dixon, Illinois, on that date:

A large crowd of people were assembled on the banks of Rock River to witness the baptism of a dozen converts by Rev. J. H. Pratt, a Baptist minister. Many had gathered on the bridge, an iron structure of the Truesdell pattern, over five hundred feet long, when suddenly a span gave way and about three hundred were precipitated twenty feet into the river, which is about six feet deep. The scene that followed is beyond all description. The most frantic efforts were made by those on shore to rescue the drowning victims, some of whom were drawn out by the hair or limbs, and every exertion made to rescue the unfortunates. Up to 6 o'clock forty-one had been taken out dead, and many were badly injured by the falling timbers, and fifteen or twenty were still missing. Many were women and children. The whole city is thrown into mourning by the sad calamity.

As the bodies were recovered, and the persons in the dense crowd learned of the death or injury of relatives and friends, the scene was heartrending. The river has a rocky bottom, and many were stunned by striking on the rocks. The water was almost icy cold, and swimmers were so chilled that they could not reach the shore. The bridge is of the same kind as the one that broke down at Elgin on New Year's Day, 1866.

Ivanpah.

A lot of very fine bullion from the Ivanpah District arrived in this city yesterday, consigned to J. L. Ward & Co. The prospects of this district are said to be very bright by those posted; and if the miners, who are now trying to bring it out, could receive encouragement from merchants in this city, such as the prospective trade of that camp will justify, they would soon be able to place their mines in a handsomely paying condition. We ought to strain a point to encourage the development of mining points which must depend on us for supplies.—Los Angeles Daily Star, May 4

Goods Coming.

A local item in The Star of the 4th instant says that four large teams started out from Los Angeles that day destined to this place.

THE CERTIORARI CASE.

His Honor, Judge Reed of the District Court, was engaged the greater part of Thursday and Friday in hearing arguments of counsel in Miller and Van Decar's motion for a writ of review in the matter of the Court House contract. Counsel for defendant, Mr. P. Reddy, demurred to the manner in which the action was brought in every essential point, and sustained his objections as a matter of course, save one or two, the principal of which was that the District Attorney had no official authority to bring an action of this character. This objection was overruled and the District Attorney was happy accordingly, although he took but little part in the subsequent fight which, go as it might, was certain to involve the county in considerable expense for no purpose whatever, except that the law, according to his ideas, would then be vindicated. However, it is out of the question for us to give even the points of the demurrer, much less a synopsis of the arguments, in this issue. It is enough to say that Miller made a very creditable fight in support of a bad cause poorly gotten up, and, though no formal decision has yet been rendered, that Reddy wins as usual, and that there are some costs and counsel fees to pay, and that it would be cheaper and better for the county to maintain Miller and Van Decar at some primary law school than to furnish subjects for them to practice on here, where law is such an expensive luxury, and that plaintiff's counsel are very anxious to know just how this catastrophe did happen and therefore demand an account in writing and detail from His Honor so that they may file it away as a warning to their respective posterities, and that as the Court will be otherwise fully occupied it will be several days before their desire can be fully complied with, and that in the meantime, they can learn some more law while prosecuting that prayer for a writ of mandate based on the petition which last came to grief, and lastly, this is a train of very melancholy circumstances, but in nature, let us hope, not entirely fatal.

The Modoc War.

We take the following reports of the Modoc war from The Sacramento Record, covering the principal incidents of the recent disaster to our troops:

HEADQUARTERS, April 27.

I have sad news to report regarding the reconnoitering party which left camp on the 26th. Their orders were to proceed through the first black lava bluff about four miles from camp, to find a practicable road, if possible, by which to take out the mortars in the event of attacking the Modocs in their present stronghold. If attacked they were ordered to fall back and not bring on a general engagement. We watched them through glasses until they were past the lava bluff and circling around a large sand hill some mile and a half beyond. They had met no Indians thus far.

The command seemed to be on the crest of a small sand hill about three hundred yards this side of the large hill, where there was no cover except low, stunted sage brush, where they began "signaling the camp," as the soldiers say, to tell us that they had been attacked, and then the fire became so heavy that they were compelled to stop, for from the ravine came a single shot in front at this moment, and then from the right came a heavy volley. There were but few rocks on top of the small sand hill, and Lieut. Harris, Battery K, and one or two others, got behind these and replied to the fire from the right, holding them in check. Suddenly a fierce fire was opened on them from the left, drawing their attention that way. But it was only a feint, as it afterwards proved, for in a few moments their right was heavily attacked, and they were surrounded on three sides. Battery A was ordered from the to support the right, and then it appears the command became demoralized, and then it was every man for himself.

From this point we saw the movement, but as the wind was blowing a gale, we could hear but a few guns and could scarcely see the smoke. It appeared that the troops had found a few pickets and were falling back in good order, and little was thought of it in camp for a while. But, alas! such was not the case, as we learned about 3 o'clock P. M. from some stragglers who came in, and were too much frightened to tell an intelligible story. From them we learned that the command were entirely surrounded and were or would be all slain; that all the way from 50 to 100 Indians were pouring in a deadly fire on the unfortunate band.

Col. Mason at once signaled on the lava bed to send troops to the assistance of the beleagured men, and Col. Green, with Companies F and H, First Cavalry, and Majors Cresson and Trumble at once started for the scene. From Mason's camp a batalion under Col. Miller, comprising Major Throckmorton's Battery M, Fourth Artillery; Miller's Battery E, Fourth Artillery, and troops G and B, First Cavalry. Captains Bernard and Jackson arrived in the course of an hour and a half, and deploying skirmishers to the left of our camp, swept up the lava bed in the direction of where it was supposed the men were, for now all was still—we could not hear a gun. The cavalry took the right, under the high bluff, and soon both lines were lost to sight.

One man who escaped says that he left Col. Wright, with eight others, in a little hole or hollow, where they had been gathered to avoid the bullets, and the Indians were firing down on them from all sides. He jumped out and ran; how he escaped he knows not. Saunders, private of Battery A, says that they were driven into a little hollow, from the rim of which the Indians fired down on them, and even tried to kill them with stones, so close were they. One stone thrown by a Modoc hit his hand, disabling his fingers for some time. Private Joseph McMellen, Battery A, had a shot through the right hand from side to side, as he was trying to prevent the Indians from flanking his troops. The shot carried away a piece of gun stock and disabled his hand, when he fell back, he says a mile, with the battery, the men being in good order but separated from the others. As he could be of no use he came into camp by order, supposing the company would arrive all right; but they became entangled and were forced to fight in the situation described by Saunders, but being too weak to cope with the foe there was a total route of the force.

Probably the highest number of Indians engaged was not over forty; those of the defeated troops who have come in and are not demoralized, place the number at from twenty-five to thirty.

We want here 2,000 men—volunteers—at once, with which to surround this scope of country, and by closing in on them kill the last one of these red devils drive them into the lake and drown them. It can't be done with less men. We can drive them from stronghold to stronghold, but not whip them, and in so doing they can destroy or render the small force here ineffective and suffer little loss themselves. Give the commanding officer men enough to work with and the tribe can be exterminated at once, but leave him with but a few troops and they will be exterminated and the Modocs remain masters of the situation.

Social Observances.

An ant ladened with a grain of corn which he had acquired with infinite toil, was breasting a current of his fellows, each of whom, as is the etiquette, insisted upon stopping him, feeling him all over and shaking hands. It occurred to him that an excess of ceremony is an abuse of courtesy. So he laid down his burden, sat upon it, folded his legs tight to to his body and smiled a smile of great grimness. "Hullo! what's the matter with you?" exclaimed the first insect whose overtures were declined. "Sick of the hollow conventionalities of a rotten civilization," was the rasping reply. "Relapsed into the honest simplicity of primitive observances. Go to grass!" "Ah! then we must trouble you for that grain of corn. In a condition of primitive simplicity there are no rights of property. These are 'hollow conventionalities.'" A light dawned upon the intellect of that creature. He shook the reefs out of his legs; he scratched the reverse of his ear. He grappled the cereal and trotted away like a giant refreshed. It was observed that he submitted with a wealth of patience to manipulation by his friends and neighbors, and went some distance out of his way to shake hands with strangers on competing lines of traffic. Nevertheless, this fable does not teach that social observances are always—or even commonly—grounded in good sense. If it did that would make it true.

—A London paper says the accommodations for first, second and third class passengers between two points in England is a two-horse wagon, and the following curious distinction is made between the passengers: First-class passengers are allowed to retain their seats throughout the journey; second-class have to get out and walk up the hills, which are both numerous and steep, after the fashion of Welsh hills; third-class have not only to get out at the steep places, but have to assist in pushing the vehicle up them.

—A country boy went to Boston forty years ago, wearing his father's boots, and kept them until he had earned money enough to buy himself a pair. Now he is president of a bank, and all the country boys within ninety miles of the Hub, who have heard of the incident, are worrying the lives out of their parentals, begging their old boots and permission to go to Boston.

—At Camden, N. J., a lady growing tired of her husband, and having come across the statement of Agassiz that "a man can live for ten days by chewing a pair of boots," locked him up in the garret and fed him on a delectable French kid. He died in just four days and seventeen hours, and now the authorities don't know who to hang, Agassiz or the woman.

—Some questions very naturally suggest themselves to an inquiring mind. An amateur farmer wonders "why, on all this fair earth, the ground is bottom side up, so that it must be turned over with a plow before corn can be raised?"

—Among the extraordinary animal remains discovered by Prof. Marsh in the eocene beds of the Rocky Mountains are those of an animal, nearly the size of an elephant, and furnished with enormous hoofs.

—Berlin is the most rapidly increasing city, of more than half a million of inhabitants, in the world at the present time. Even London has not kept pace with it in recent years.

—As so many articles in every day use are manufactured of paper, it is asked if paper beefsteak cannot be invented to take the place of the leather ones so common at boarding house.

—Three American gardeners will raise vegetables at the Vienna Exhibition.

—A new toothache remedy is to inject choloform into the gum.

NOTICE OF THE REMOVAL OF THE LAND OFFICE FROM AURORA, NEVADA, TO INDEPENDENCE, CALIFORNIA, AND OF CHANGE OF BOUNDARIES IN THE AURORA AND CARSON CITY LAND DISTRICTS IN NEVADA, AND THE VISALIA DISTRICT IN CALIFORNIA.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE,
Aurora, Nevada, April 1st, 1873.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT PURSUANT to an order of the President of the United States, dated February 27th, 1873, and instructions of the Hon. Willis Drummond, Commissioner of the General Land Office, dated March 20th, 1873, we have this day suspended all action looking towards the disposal of lands embraced within the limits of the Independence Land District, hereinafter described, and that the Land Office at Aurora, Nevada, will be removed to Independence, California, and will be open for the transaction of business at the latter place on Saturday, the 31st day of May, 1873.

All business in said Aurora Land Office relating to the disposition of lands embraced within that part of the District lying within the State of Nevada will be suspended on the 15th day of May, 1873, at which time said lands will be transferred to the Carson City Land District.

The said Independence Land District will embrace all lands lying within the limits of California which heretofore formed a part of the Aurora Land District, and in addition all that part of the Visalia District which lies east of Range Thirty-two (32) Mount Diablo Meridian.

VINEGAR BITTERS.

PURELY VEGETABLE, FREE FROM ALCOHOL.

DR. WALKER'S CALIFORNIA

Vinegar Bitters.

No Person can take these Bitters, according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion. Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. In these complaints it has no equal, and one bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood, or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that a marked improvement is soon perceptible.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittant Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing also the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, and in Bilious Diseases.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-worms, Scald-Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Grateful Thousands proclaim VINEGAR BITTERS the most Wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

THE SUBSCRIBER TAKES PLEASURE IN announcing to the people of Inyo county that he has purchased and fitted up as a hospital the Beaudry Hotel Building, adjoining the military post at Camp Independence. All the adobes have been removed and their place supplied with lumber; the grounds are handsomely laid out with shade trees and clover, and have a pure running stream of mountain water.

There is an excellent bath room and dispensary attached. One room is set aside for the county's sick, leaving ample room for private patients. The Northern Stage Line passes the door, and the place is easy of access from the town of Independence. The charges for board and lodging do not exceed those of any hotel or boarding house, offering equal accommodations, and the establishment has the advantage of having competent help and medical advice always at hand, being close by the house of the post surgeon at the camp.

Columbus Items.

[From The Reese River Reveille, May 9.]

To Mr. John Howell, Superintendent of the mill of the Columbus Mill and Mining Company, we are indebted for the following interesting items in reference to Columbus and vicinity:

The ten-stamp mill of the Columbus M. & M. Co. has been running steadily and producing bullion since last December. It is provided with a White furnace with Howell's improvement, which has been demonstrated to be a perfect and economical roaster, working the ore—which carries a great deal of base in the shape of lead, antimony and copper—up to 93 per cent. of pulp assay. The average run of the mill is twelve tons per day, and the average value of the ore is about $100 per ton.

The five-stamp mill of Sweetapple & Hazeltine is also running, and has a large supply of high grade ore on hand. The furnaces in use in this mill are the old reverberatory. The mines are in granite and porphyry formations; the ledges are large and well defined, and although no great depth has been attained, enough is known to give assurances of permanence. The principal mines are the Mount Diablo, owned by Sweetapple & Hazeltine; the Northern Belle, owned by Holmes & Co., and the Belwaurte, Major Tompkins, Platina, Black-Metallic and Gen. Thomas, owned by the Columbus M. & M. Co.

Borax is becoming one of the principal interests of Esmeralda county, and the working of borax fields is being extensively carried on in the vicinity of Columbus. The town of Columbus is situated on the edge of the principal borax marsh, and Mr. Howell estimates that there are 200 men engaged in this branch of industry in that vicinity. The shipment of commercial (refined) borax amounts to six tons a day, worth, in San Francisco, $500 per ton. The daily shipments of crude borax amounts to about twenty tons a day, which is valued according to its fineness.

Forty large teams are steadily engaged in transporting borax to, and freight from Wadsworth on the C. P. R. R. There are five refining works in the vicinity of Columbus which give employment to quite a number of men.

Mr. Howell speaks in glowing terms of the prospects of Columbus and vicinity, describing it as very prosperous at present and steadily improving.

Water is plentiful, but poor in quality, owing to its being largely impregnated with mineral.

There is some talk of the removal of the county-seat of Esmeralda county from Aurora to Columbus, as Columbus contains about three-fifths of the population of the county. It is supposed that the running of the boundary line between this State and California will throw Aurora into the latter State, and in such case Columbus would of course be the proper place for the location of the county-seat.

Domestic Servants.

A Santa Cruz paper states that an effort is about to be made in that town to secure a better class of domestic servants than the heathen Chinee affords. A joint stock company is to be formed for the purpose of introducing five hundred German girls. The capital stock is to be $25,000, of which $20,000 is already subscribed. When all the stock is taken an agent will be sent to the rural districts of Germany to hire the girls and secure their transportation to this country, where they will be hired out to farmers and others requiring help for a stated term, a percentage of their wages being deducted to pay expenses.

A Hundred Millions for Drink.

[From The Sacramento Record.]

Twenty million pounds sterling of the English budget, equal to one hundred million dollars, is obtained from the taxes on intoxicating liquors. The reflections suggested by such a fact are not pleasant. Punch probably hits as nearly as usual the nail on the head in caroling apropos of this exhibit, that "More than loom or shuttle, and more than forge or mine,

'Tis the Tavern and the Ginshop these millions in are bringing,
That more in drink than wealth or work John Bull may boast to shine;
That the tap-root of our revenue lies deep in sin and sorrow,
And feeds a fruit as fatal as Java's Upas tree;
That the best part of our surplus from our swinishness we borrow,
And pay some twenty millions into beasts transformed to be.

Not only the few who study political economy thoroughly, but also the majority of those who have any claims to be considered fairly well informed, are at this day familiar with the evils which intemperance produces. Those evils extend to every form of misery, crime and degradation by which the race is afflicted, retarded, made unhappy and brutal. It is true that the appetite for strong drink is in some respects inter-dependent upon sanitary conditions, but it is none the less a fact that the encouragement of drinking which must follow the reliance upon it by Government as a main source of revenue speaks but little for the enlightenment and humanity of the honorable gentlemen who devote their energies to the making up of budgets. We have taken the case of Great Britain because it happened to afford an apposite illustration of the practical defiance of economic laws which accompanies even considerable familiarity with their principles. The same strictures are applicable to our own Congress in precisely the same degree and to the same extent. It is evident that however far we may have advanced in the theory, we are yet are yet a long way from readiness to commence the practice, of obedience to natural laws.

The Wheat Trade.

The receipts of wheat at San Francisco last month were 464,100 centals, say 23,000 tons, making the total for the crop year to date 10,040,700 centals—say 502,000 tons. The largest receipts for the same term previously were in 1870, when they amounted to 5,787,400 centals—say 289,400 tons. In addition to the foregoing, flour from the interior and Oregon has been received equal to 949,900 centals or 47,500 tons, raising the aggregate receipts of wheat and flour for the season to the equivalent of 10,990,600 centals of wheat—say 549,500 tons. The wheat exports for April were 584,959 centals—say 29,200 tons—valued at $1,091,753, making the aggregate export for the season to date 9,174,763 centals—say 458,700 tons—valued at $16,525,833. In addition were 232,908 barrels of flour, equivalent to 698,724 centals of wheat, valued at $1,220,915; raising the total export of the season to date, in terms of wheat, to 9,872,487 centals—say 493,700 tons—valued at $17,746,745. The export of wheat and flour for May is estimated to be between 350,000 and 400,000 centals—say 17,000 to 20,000 tons—for which the vessels have been engaged. There will then be but little more business until the incoming of the new crop.

Thrifty.

The San Francisco correspondent of The Salt Lake New Endowment gets off the following at the expense of Thrift, mulcted in the sum of $12,000 by Miss Frazier:

Mr. Thrift should take the advice once given by some well-meaning matrons to a young scape grace of a Western town. He was handsome and gay, and was sought by ambitious mammas as a good match for their daughters; but he had often been before the Poor Board, called there to answer to the oaths of paternity of the unacknowledged offspring of some too confiding damsel. By his popularity, good luck and wealth, he had escaped the punishment he deserved. On one of these occasions several of the ladies of the village were present, and chimed in a chorus of congratulation and sympathy, saying; "Ah, Johnny! you got off again, have you; you sly rogue; why don't you take a wife?" To which he naively responded, "I sometimes do, but the husbands make such a fuss about it." Mr. Thrift should get married.

For Smokers.

Smokers of the royal weed are recommended to place in the bowls of their pipes a little powdered tannin, or a sponge saturated with tannin. The smoke will thus be deprived of all its characteristic aroma and all the vaporized nicotine, which is the intoxicating principle. At first the smoke will be entirely free from all taste and smell of tobacco, but as the sponge becomes charged with the nicotine the oder will reappear. By charging the sponge frequently, the smoker may indulge in his habit as immoderately as he pleases without injurious effects.

—A very patient mathematician has been in the habit of pasting away for reference all items relative to vast English estates which have fallen to American heirs. He footed up four years' accumulation the other day, and found the aggregate exceeded by $139,000,000 the appraised value of Great Britain. He didn't count the Geneva award, either.

Beaten at Her Own Game.

"So you have finished your studies at the seminary? I was much pleased with the closing exercises. The author of that poem—Miss White, I think you called her—bids fair to be known as a poet."

"We think the authoress will become celebrated as a poetess," remarked the young lady pertly, with a marked emphasis on two words of the sentence.

"Oh!—ah," replied the old gentleman, looking thoughtfully over his gold spectacles at the young lady. "I hear her sister was quite an actress, and under Mr. Hosmer's instructions will undoubtedly become quite a sculptoress."

The young lady appeared irritated.

"The seminary," continued the old gentleman with imperturbable gravity, "is fortunate in having an efficient Board of Manageresses. From the Presidentess down to the humblest teacheress, unusual talent is shown. There is Miss Harper, who, as a chemistress, is unequaled, and Mrs. Knowles has already a reputation as an astronomeress. And in the department of music few can equal Miss Kellogg as a singeress."

The young lady did not appear to like the chair she was sitting on. She took the sofa at the other end of the room.

"Yes," continued the old gentleman as if talking to himself, "those White sisters are very talented. Mary, I understand, has turned her attention to painting and the drama, and will surely become famous as an actress and painteress, and even as a lecturess"—

A loud slamming of the door caused the old gentleman to look up, and the criticess and grammarianess was gone!

DEATH'S DOINGS.

The King of Terrors has made a heavy requisition upon the prominent men of our country in the past few days. Commodore Aulick died at Washington May 1st. On the 7th, Chief Justice Salmon P. Chase was death stricken, and in the next two days died Oakes Ames and James Brooks, both members of the late Congress, and intimately connected with the Credit Mobilier scandal. The death of Chief Justice Chase, which was occasioned by a sudden stroke of paralysis, will be sincerely lamented from one end of the Union to the other. But few men of our country have been more prominently or favorably identified with our national history than Salmon P. Chase.

A few days previously Commodore A. M. Smith, who commanded the frigate Congress at the time she was sunk by the Merimac, died at St. Louis. Our Minister to Russia, the Hon. James L. Orr, of North Carolina, died at St. Petersburg on the 5th instant; and with this comes the news of the death of the Arctic explorer, Captain Hall, by apoplexy, and the probable loss of his vessel, the Polaris, and the greater portion of her crew. To these must be added two more notabilities who died in New York—Wm. Black, of the famous house of Ball, Black & Co., on the 2d instant; and on the 5th, an ex-President of the Venezuelan Republic, Gen. Jose Poetz; and again, in St. Louis, on the 2d instant, Dr. P. M. Sampson, who settled there in 1809, and was President Madison's Postmaster for some years. The most remarkable feature in this incomplete, but fearful list, is the fact that, with not more than two exceptions, all died from paralysis or apoplexy.

Murder at Columbus.

A man named Hank Durand was murdered in Columbus, Nevada, Sunday evening, May 4th, by John Stewart. We have received no account of the circumstances attending the murder, but Col. Putney, Deputy Sheriff, sends us the following description of the murderer, for whose apprehension, the Col. states, a reward of $350 is offered. Stewart is about 5 feet 6 inches in hight, has large, black eyes which flash when in conversation, and as a hotel waiter has a fashion of intoning or singing his orders. It was thought he might return to Lone Pine, but it is hardly probable that he will do so, as it is well known that he has been engaged in several murderous affrays in this county, from which he made his escape some time last February, immediately after an affray in which two of his chums, Clarke and Walker, got shot in a row with some Mexicans, one of which nationality Stewart had previously shot in Lone Pine. This Stewart is a very bad egg, and the sooner somebody does for him the better for all concerned.

Postage on Newspapers.

On and after July 1st next, postage will be charged on all newspapers going through the postoffice. Heretofore papers have passed free within the county in which they were published. The law abolishing the franking privilege of Congressmen also makes the provision regarding the newspapers. Even newspaper exchanges will no longer go free after the above date. The postage on regular papers, etc., must be paid quarterly in advance, either at the place of delivery, to the carrier, or at the office, otherwise they will be chargeable at transient rates. Following are the quarterly rates:

Dailies	35 cents
Six times a week	30 cents
Tri-weeklies	15 cents
Semi-weeklies	10 cents
Weeklies	5 cents
Semi-monthly, not over 4 ozs	6 cents
Monthlies, not over 4 ozs	3 cents
Quarterlies, not over 4 ozs	1 cent

Solvent Debts.

People who are so fortunate as to be able to return any solvent debts in their tax lists, will be pleased to know that, by a recent decision of the Supreme Court, such debts are hereafter to remain untaxed. The decision of the Court is given at great length, but the gist of it is that a tax upon mortgages and other solvent debts is simply to tax the same property twice and is therefore unconstitutional—which decision goes to prove that law is not always at variance with common sense, as tax-payers are frequently led to believe when called upon, as they have been heretofore, to pay taxes on all they owe and all that is owing to them. In conformity with this decision it is stated on good authority that the State Board of Equalization will issue an order to County Assessors to exclude all solvent debts from their tax lists.

INYO AND MONO.

The right of these two counties to a direct representation in the next Legislature has been submitted to the consideration of Tuolumne, the big member of the district. Judging from the tone of one of the local papers of that county, the desire will probably be complied with, Mono to be allowed one member and Inyo one, the Senatorship and one Representative, on each ticket to remain with Tuolumne. This arrangement will be both right and satisfactory. It is certainly right and proper and of essential importance that Mono and Inyo should have a direct voice in matters of State. They have had nothing of the kind in four years, and, failing this time, probably will not in the next decade. Their interests are, geographically, wholly separate and distinct not only from Tuolumne, through which they have been represented, but from any and all other counties in the State. We were very badly treated by a clique of Tuolumne politicians in the last election, which county, with a property valuation but $11,243 in excess of Inyo alone, had two Senators and three Representatives, while Inyo and Mono had none whatever.

But while taking exceptions to this unjust arrangement, we are bound to acknowledge that each and all of the said Tuolumne delegation took a special interest in legislating for the two unrepresented counties, and done well, and are deserving our thanks for what they accomplished. But we do not want a proxy representation. We want Tuolumne to name the Senator, but claim as our right one member of the Lower House for Mono and one for Inyo, and have no doubt that all fair-minded Tuolumneites will desire to accede to our wishes.

THE MODOCS.

Now comes the news that Captain Jack has effected a change of base, having with all his tribe left the lava-bed and struck out, it is reported, for the Goose Lake region. It took a number of days to ascertain the fact that he had moved. Gen. Davis first sent out two tame squaws to reconnoitre; they came back and reported no Indians. Next, the Warm Springs were sent out with a like result, and then it was deemed safe to take a strong body of troops and make a reconnoissance in force. As no enemy was found, nobody got hurt. Previous to this, however, Captain Jack left a line of fires burning to deceive the enemy, in which he succeeded admirably, and while moving out attacked and captured a lumber train, wounding three men and getting away with seventeen mules. He didn't take any more, because there were no more there at the time. As there is no honor in fighting Indians, it is not deemed any disgrace to be outgeneraled by them on every turn. Gen. Davis, as soon as circumstances appeared to justify, sent the Warm Springs after Captain Jack, and is going to try and clean out the old Sodom if it takes all Summer and a heavy force of web-feet volunteers. As the little Indians can't travel very fast, it is possible the Warm Springs may corral some of them before they make cover, in which case the whole army will be moved up to view the remains, if Captain Jack don't interpose any obstacles.

Another Shot.

The Secretary of the Interior has decided that lands between Sacramento and San Francisco, on the circuitous railroad line by way of San Jose, which were withdrawn January 30, 1865, for the Central Pacific Railroad Company, do not inure to the Southern Pacific Railroad Company of California, but must be considered a part of the public domain. The Secretary therefore directs the Commissioner of the General Land Office to restore these lands to market. They comprise 20,000 acres.

Another Cave.

A severe cave occurred, on the morning of May 8th, in Virginia City, over the Hale & Norcross old workings, near where Wood & Goe's stores disappeared some years since. The cave is 75 feet deep, 50 in diameter, and continually spreading. It threatens to swallow a couple of houses on C street and make B street impassable before long.

The Pioche Mining Suit.

Contrary to general expectation the Hermes won the big suit against the Raymond & Ely at Pioche, the jury standing nine for the former to three for the latter. The result produced a great sensation among the San Francisco stock gamblers. An appeal from the verdict is to be taken.

Transportation Needed.

A well-informed Cerro Gordo gentleman states that in addition to those already running, fifty 12-animal teams could not in a year's work succeed in clearing the furnaces of the accumulating bullion. Will Pioche kindly allow us one of her proposed railroads?

"HEADQUARTERS IN THE SADDLE."

Somewhat after Gen. Pope's style, the chief of our army against the Modocs has established his headquarters in the saddle—that is to say, Gen. Jefferson C. Davis thinks it would be a great pity to expose any more General officers to the dangers of the Modoc battle-fields, therefore he thinks that the right thing for him to do is to locate his head- (and hind) quarters 80 or 90 miles away from that unchivalrous, treacherous Capt. Jack, who otherwise might steal up and nip the General's side arms, and mayhap create a vacancy in the list of Brigadiers. There is nothing like "strategy my boy" in operating against a large body of the enemy full two dozen strong, and no well trained General who likes comfort and toddies would think of going into the field where his views must necessarily be circumscribed. He can do much better by directing affairs from afar. It is thought that Gen. Davis will soon have Yreka so strongly fortified that Capt. Jack can't possibly take it, but for fear of another accident no soldier is to be allowed to carry his arms with him when he goes out, and by thus cutting off Capt. Jack's most reliable means of replenishing his munitions of war, it is thought he can eventually be reduced to terms. The General's two poodles were doing as well at last accounts as could be expected, considering that their space for exercise is much restricted on account of the surrounding dangers. There is no truth in the statement that Capt. Jack proposes to clean out the United States Navy when he gets through with the army, as he is astute enough to know that he could do nothing with the big ships if he was to capture them, and he also knows that he incurs some risk of getting his daylights knocked out if one of the iron-clad guns should happen to hit him during the fight. As long as we can retain our navy we can still hope.

Pardoned.

A little boy named Sampson (a lineal descendant, probably, of him that caused the Phillistines so much trouble) slew a man in Sacramento named John Wilson. As the provocation was very great he was, on trial, found guilty of manslaughter, but only sentenced to the States Prison for one day. To save the boy's reputation the Governor granted him a full pardon before his incarceration.

Five Hundred Dollars Reward.

Governor Booth has offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of Charles McCray, who wantonly murdered B. Biggs and J. P. Stillwell, on the South Fork of Kern River, last March. McCray is described as follows: age, 21; hight, 5 feet 11 inches; light hair, and light grey eyes of which a great deal of the white is shown; sandy complexion, and is a vaquero in calling.

The Bowers Mansion.

The Reno Crescent contains the following relative to the disposition of the famous Bowers Mansion, in Washoe Valley, Nevada:

Senator Thompson, of this county, has about completed arrangements with Mrs. Bowers and her counsel to dispose of the Bowers Mansion in Washoe Valley, and all her other property, at a grand gift entertainment, to come off about the 1st of next September. The gifts will comprise some very valuable oil paintings by Hill and others, one set of diamonds costing $9,000, library of 600 volumes, $1,500 worth of silverware from the Bowers mine at Gold Hill, etc. The lands and improvements are very valuable, consisting 125 acres of land, with the house, barns, hothouse, bath-house and hot springs. The grounds are beautifully ornamented with fountains, artificial lakes, choice shade and fruit trees, flowers, plants, etc. The property to be given in gifts cost over $310,000 in coin, besides the coin gifts.

Town Election.

The town election on Monday last resulted as follows: For Trustees—S. C. Brown, 126; B. L. Conyers, 88; T. Lindsey, 129; W. F. Thomas, 122; A. A. Thompson, 125. These are all elected. For Marshall—Shearer, 104, Myers, 74; Treasurer—Samstag, 167, Goldstein, 14; Recorder—Bradley, 168, Dack Lee, 3; Assessor—Patrick, 165, Hill, 13. Total number of votes cast, 184.—Visalia Delta, May 8.

Carson Land Office.

The Carson Land Office is more than doubled in dimensions by Congressional legislation last Winter, by the transfer of so much of the old Aurora District to the District of Carson as lies within the State of Nevada. The Appeal says Mr. Butler, Register of the Aurora office, is at Carson arranging for the transfer of the archives to Carson.—Virginia Chronicle.

—The Chicago Tribune ventures the conundrum, "Why do flour mills burn?" We never knew they did, never having been burned by one; but suppose it's because they're combustible. Here's one for The Tribune: "Why do Summer roses fade?"

—A Terre Haute colored man licked his wife and went to sleep. She poured a kettle of boiling water on him and now he is half white.

Absconded.

Tyler Curtis, for many years a prominent merchant of San Francisco, and a leading politician, has left that city in a clandestine manner, and the most fearful suspicions are excited about him. Seventeen years ago he married the widow of Capt. James Smith, and became administrator of the estate of her deceased husband, a property valued at $300,000. Three children were placed under his guardianship and these have recently come of age. It is now feared that their estate has been squandered, and that Curtis has rendered false accounts. The absconder has for several years past developed a great ambition to be considered the leader of the Democratic party in that city, and has lavished his money on conventions and to carry elections—he having paid, it is said, $45,000 to secure the nomination and election of Mayor of the city against Alvord. But with all his lavishness he was defeated. He is said to have gone deeply into stocks recently and lost heavily. His wife died a few months since very suddenly, and his subsequent actions have excited fearful suspicions. Young Smith, the son, will have the body examined and placed in the hands of a chemist. The night before he fled, Curtis married an amateur cantatrice, Miss Anna McKenzie, who, with three children by his late wife, left with him. A few days before his departure, a Mrs. Swift assaulted him in a broker's office, and declared that he had seduced her daughter under promise of marriage. At another time his face was slapped in the Investment Insurance office, and he was criminally suspected in a forgery case. Indeed for some time San Francisco has been getting mighty hot for Curtis, and flight seemed to be the only escape out of his disgraceful difficulties.

State Funds.

An examination of funds in the State Treasury on the 1st instant showed that the Treasurer had in his possession $1,160,000 in gold coin, $121,961 61 in silver coin, and $16,642 95 in legal tenders—total, $1,298,604 56.

John Devine.

This murderer was to have been executed on the 8th instant, but Governor Booth granted him a respite until the 14th following, when, no doubt, the "Chicken" paid the penalty of his misdeeds.

Mortimer.

The Supreme Court refused a new trial to Charles Mortimer, alias Flynn, and affirmed the judgment, which was to be death by hanging, last Thursday.

A Wooden Railroad.

The wooden railways in the vicinity of Quebec are attracting considerable attention. It appears that there are now 100 miles in operation. The guage is 4 feet 8½ inches. The running time is about 16 miles per hour, but trains have been run at the rate of 35 miles per hour. The rails are made of maple 4x7 inches, set up edgewise and notched into the crossties four inches deep, and held by two wedges driven in the notch on the outside of the rail. The ties are eight inches thick and laid twenty inches apart. The cars have four wheels, and some of the engines weigh thirty tons. In frosty weather the driving wheels have less adhesion than on metal rails, but no considerable difficulty is experienced from this cause. The rails will last from two to four years, according to the quality of the timber and the amount of traffic. The cost of such roads is from $4,000 to $7,000 per mile. They seem to be very well adapted for light traffic, and as soon as the business of such lines may require it, metal rails may be substituted for wood without any change in the equipments.

What the Women Do.

Those who are so much distressed by the idea that the sphere of woman, especially as a worker, is not sufficiently expanded, should consult the census statistics. They will find female occupations arranged under no less than 72 heads, beginning alphabetically and ending with woolen mills. Domestic servants head the list in point of numbers, and next in order—which will surprise many—"laborers on farms." There are 97,000 seamstresses, 90,000 milliners and dress makers, and 84,000 teachers. There is a glorious army of 10,170 nurses. There are preachers, shoemakers, journalists, "mechanics not specified," and only 100 "show women." But who would dream of women "steam boiler makers, 5; bell founders, 4; hunters and trappers, 2?" We say nothing of hostlers, charcoal burners and miners, who also figure in the list.—Boston Journal.

Steam on Canals.

The commission appointed in accordance with an act passed by the New York Legislature, authorizing the payment of a reward of $100,000 for the best practical introduction of steam, caloric, electric or any motor power other than animal, for the propulsion of boats on the canals, have submitted a report in which they state that they have made no award because no model or list has fully satisfied them that it will lessen the cost of canal transportation and increase the capacity of canals. The committee, however, recommend further tests, and are hopeful of a practical result.

Pacific Coast Items.

Orders have been issued from the Interior Department that the Central Pacific Railroad Company, W. S. Green and others, who were purchasers or donees, must surrender their patents to lands in Yolo and Colusa counties received from the United States. The ground of the order is that the lands so patented to these parties by the Government belonged to the State of California under the swamp land law.

Foreign News Items.

They have had a slight shock of an earthquake in the old city of Rome. Bells rang, clocks stopped, etc., but no damage was done. The people of Italy are ripening for a fierce struggle. They are divided into two powerful parties, the papists on the one side, and the republicans on the other. Both hate the monarchy, which alone stands between them and a fierce conflict. While it assails the Pope the republicans will support it, and when it ceases to do so they will overthrow it.

Don Alphonso with his army is surrounded, and will have to surrender to the Republicans without a favorable accident.

A London newspaper ridicules the American department of the Vienna Exposition, and gives a list of the articles to be seen, which is disgracefully meagre.

The Carlists claim to have an army of 35,000 men in Navarre.

A dispatch from Rome of May 10 reports the Pope seriously ill.

News from Madrid, of May 10, is to the effect that Sabalo, the Carlist leader, recently shot dead one of the officers of his command whom he learned was about to surrender to the Government troops. A severe conflict has taken place between a band of Carlist under command of Don Alfonzo and the Republicans, resulting in the total defeat of the former. Sixty-five of the insurgents were killed and many wounded. Information has been received at the War Office of the defeat of the Carlists in a number of small engagements. Several priests have been arrested in Madrid for advocating the cause of Don Carlos.

A dispatch from Bayonne says that the Spanish Government army in the Province of Biscay has not been paid for some time and the soldiers are, in consequence, in a state of mutiny.

LOCAL AFFAIRS.

Lida Items.

The Mexican population of Lida duly celebrated the 5th of May, a national holiday, by firing "cannon," display of flags and general festivities, which included speechmaking, lager and something stronger, and a ball in the evening to which a free invitation was extended to everybody, and which passed off greatly to everybody's enjoyment. The managers didn't allow any of their own people to get drunk or make themselves obnoxious, but there was a "white" gentleman "I'd have (hic) you to know," who didn't come under their jurisdiction. The music was furnished by the Lida band, and as a matter of course was first-class.

D. Campbell, Jr., who has been quite low for some time past, is recovering rapidly.

For the few days previous to the 7th the wind blew fearfully and continuously and during the time managed to ruinate the "Court House," as Judge Brown's law office is denominated. Roof or no roof, the Judge will dispense justice all the same.

A traveling merchant, who carries a ten-mule wagon load of goods with him, is producing some worriment among the local traders by underselling them.

Deep Spring.

As many of our local readers have obtained the impression that Deep Spring Valley and adjacent mines are entirely abandoned, we will take this occasion to correct the error. It is true the old mill stands idle, but there are several miners operating in the surrounding hills, and in the Valley there is a stock man or two, and one farmer busily engaged in planting on quite an extensive scale. Notwithstanding the fact that a prominent mill man has condemned their "white quartz" as worthless, the miners of Deep Spring are full in the faith that they have better mines than anybody. One of these mines, the "Berry," at 80 feet, shows a five foot ledge which we are assured assays from $45 to $1,000 per ton as a body. The vein matter between walls is eight feet wide. The "Inye" ledge, at fifty feet, has two feet of ore assaying from $100 to $500 per ton. We don't believe that Deep Spring is "played out" by any means. We shall be pleased to hear from our friends over their frequently.

Didn't Pan.

"There's many a slip atween the cup and lip" is a saying often realized metaphorically in matters where cups and lips are not necessarily desired in contact. Thus it was in regard to two young gents of this place who fancied they had struck it big in borax down near the river. A mysterious silence was maintained during the time a sample was being tested in San Francisco, and the law affecting the right of minors to enter "agricultural lands" was being investigated. The last mail brought a report on the sample and a bill of $10 charges, and to-day, how to secure 160 acres each of agricultural lands containing "a mere trace of borax," no longer furnishes a problem for the cogitations of the aforesaid young gents.

Baptized.

Last Sunday Father Scannell baptized Dr. Gelcich's young daughter into the Church, christening her with the very pretty but somewhat lengthy title of Laura Emanuela Maria Gelcich. There were a large number of invited witnesses present who, for some hours after the ceremony, made it a business to drink champagne healths to the young lady, enough to last her two centuries, and happy recurrences of similar occasions to the proud parents, which, if realized to the full, would keep them engaged for five hundred years, and fairly populate the whole Pacific coast. Well, for our part, we hope the young lady may yet have at least one big brother to defend her, and make the hearts of her estimable parents glad.

Improvements.

John Shepherd is preparing to erect a large two-story dwelling on his ranch at George's Creek, and in this place, among other contemplated improvements, P. Reddy has the lumber on the ground for a new law office 26x28, a barn and an addition to his dwelling, and proposes, if anything is now lacking towards it, to have the nicest place of anybody in the county.

Billiards.

Amusement seekers in Lone Pine can now indulge to their heart's content in the fascinating game of billiards, Bob. Peterson having provided for his patrons the favorite new table and fixtures formerly owned by Dan Williams. Bob's bar room is the best frequented place in town, and deserves its run of custom. Read his advertisement, elsewhere.

Pastoral Visit.

Father Scannel, of Visalia, is now paying this section his second pastoral visit. He arrived early last week and will probably remain a few days longer. There is a movement on foot to build a Catholic Church at some point in the valley, but it is not likely any definite action will be taken towards erecting the building before the coming Fall.

Making Ready.

In the absence of any further or more definite orders, Major Egbert is taking time by the forelock in making every preparation for marching. We trust that he may have his trouble for nothing.

Proceedings Board of Supervisors—May Term.

May 5, 1873. Full Board present. Report of Roadmaster J. Alexander filed and accepted, and his resignation tendered and accepted.

Report of S. D. Mann, Roadmaster, filed and accepted.

W. J. Lake was appointed Roadmaster for Independence Road District.

Report of Reviewers accepted, and the following described roads declared public highways: From house of R. Love, near Owen's River bridge, past Hutchison's place to Lewis' lumber road. Road No. 2—commencing at the Round Valley road and running east between township 6 and 7 to the county road from Rowin's bridge.

Petition of citizens of Bishop Creek for new county road accepted and Reviewers appointed.

Ordered that the Bend City bridge be accepted at contract price, $6,725. The sum of $1,450, in favor of contractor, E. Chaquette, was ordered paid out of County Building Fund.

The sum of $3,575, in favor of contractor, E. Chaquette, was ordered paid on Court House contract, and the time for finishing said Court House extended to June 10, 1873. Extension of time excepted to by Supervisor Burroughs.

Report of J. L. Bodle, Roadmaster, accepted—balance of account against county rejected.

Ordered that the necessary maps for Assessor, as required by the new Code, be provided and purchased forthwith.

It appearing to this Board that it is necessary for this county to have its boundaries clearly defined, ordered that the counties of Mono, Fresno, Tulare, Kern, and San Bernardino be notified, through their respective Boards, that this county is desirous of establishing its boundary lines, as provided for by the Code, and the consent of said counties is asked for an application to the Surveyor General to order the necessary surveys at the earliest practicable moment.

The Board then, Saturday, May 10th, Adjourned for the term.

Dancing and Singing School.

Mr T. S. Harris, a gentleman who has just arrived in Inyo from Sacramento, intends making this his home in the future, and proposes to favor our dancing and music-loving community with instruction in the arts of terpsichore and song, alternating between Bishop, Independence, and Lone Pine. If there's any one thing in which our "fellows" do need teaching its dancing; and were it not for broomsticks, we'd intimate the same of the ladies in regard to singing—but then we won't. However, as soon as the necessary arrangements can be perfected, Mr. Harris will open the schools, when due notice will be given.

Endorsed.

It will be observed by a notice in another column that the Republican County Central Committee has formally endorsed Hon. Theron Reed as their candidate for District Judge, the same position he now holds and has so ably filled for years past. We doubt not that Judge Reed, leaving all partisan questions out of the issue, would come nearer receiving the unanimous vote of the people of the Sixteenth Judicial District than any other man in it. As a jurist he has made a splendid record, and nothing less as a man and presiding officer.

Photographic.

In our advertising columns this week will be seen the announcement of Mr. Alf. S. Addis, photographist and artist, who has fitted up a picture gallery in the second story of The Independent building, where he will open out for business to-day. We won't get off anything about "securing the shadow before the substance fades," but it's a good play, nevertheless.

Harness Shop.

Farmer's, teamsters, and others, will be interested in knowing that Mr. Ditsworth, late of Bishop Creek, has established a harness-making and repair shop adjoining the Pioneer Stables. Don't use any more rope-yarn in mending your harness, but come up and get them fixed decently.

County Court—May Term.

J. A. Hannah, Judge.

May 5.—No regular drawing of a Grand Jury having taken place, a special Grand Jury of fifteen was ordered to investigate the charge of grand larceny against Henry Kane, then in the county jail. Adjourned till May 6.

The following list of special Grand Jurors was returned, accepted and sworn in: A. Hood, B. H. Roberts, T. D. Lewis, Seth Currier, W. J. Lake, T. F. A. Connely, J. S. Brown, A. Parker, S. H. Mann, James Rose, B. L. Brown, Joseph Schalten and Louis Wood. This jury found a true bill against the prisoner, charged with stealing a horse from J. F. Dillon, and were then discharged.

The prisoner Henry Kane was arraigned and allowed counsel. Defendant gave his true name as Henry King. Pleading guilty to the indictment. Saturday, May 10, was set for delivery of sentence.

Wednesday, May 7.—In the suit of A. M. Loomis vs. L. B. Akers, as to the right of use of the water of George's Creek, unlawfully appropriated by defendant, judgment and nominal damages was rendered and allowed in favor of plaintiff, and the injunction prayed for granted.

Friday, May 9.—The defendant in the case of the People vs. F. F. Gallardo was this day brought into Court to plead to the indictment standing against him. Defendant plead not guilty and demanded a change of venue. This request was denied, but permission was granted defendant to select any County Judge in the State to try the case. He declined to make a selection, and objected to Judge Colby, of Kern. On motion of District Attorney Van Decar, P. W. Bennet and P. Reddy were admitted as assistant prosecuting counsel. Objected to by defendant, who also insisted upon having the action tried in San Diego County. Objected to by the prosecution, and the prisoner was remanded to jail.

Court adjourned to Saturday, May 10th, on which day Henry King was brought before it and sentenced to two years in the State Prison. The Court then adjourned to Monday, May 19th.

District Court.

Theron Reed, Judge.

Friday, May 9, Mateo Guzman was admitted to citizenship.

In the case of Love vs. Lewis, venire for 12 jurors ordered.

People, ex rel. F. K. Miller vs. the Board of Supervisors for writ of review; demurrer filed and argued during that and the following day; taken under advisement till Monday, May 12, when the demurrer was sustained.

On motion of Bennett, Geo. F. Haswell was admitted to practice as an attorney in this Court.

McMurry vs. Mann; venire for 10 to constitute a jury of 5 ordered.

The second suit against the Board (this for writ of mandate) came up; demurrer entered, and as in the other, sustained.

On motion of District Attorney, leave of ten days was granted ex rel. Miller in which to amend complaints in both suits against the Board.

In the action for divorce, Hughes vs. Hughes, the defendant agreeing to pay plaintiff $120 per month for her support, the decree of divorce was granted.

Tuesday, May 14. Slinkard vs. Slinkard, divorce decreed, plaintiff's prayer for allowance for costs of suit, denied.

A. Russel vs. Wood & Cohen, jury of six, to wit, H. Hopper, J. Fernbach, Jas. Shepherd, S. B. Parris and J. S. Brown. Case continued till Wednesday, May 14, and nonsuit granted.

McMurry vs. Mann; postponed by consent of counsel.

Thursday, May 15. Love vs. Lewis; jury, O. B. Bacon, Geo. Stevens, B. H. Roberts, S. A. Densmore, J. S. Brown and Jos. Schalten. On trial.

East of the Range.

Travelers passing through this valley for Lida and Gold Mountain may be interested in knowing something of the route, and what is to be seen in passing over it.

Taking Darrah's stage at Big Pine, the traveler passes over the Inyo range on Greenley's toll road, which, save its steepness near the summit, is a very excellent one. In 30 miles' travel Gilbert's ranch, in Deep Spring Valley, is reached, which is the only habitation to be seen save the toll house and the now deserted quartz mill in Deep Spring until, after going 14 miles more and passing another range of mountains, Piper's Ranch is reached. At present, stages stop here over night.

Piper's Ranch is something remarkable. For many miles around in every direction, this spot of less than a thousand acres presents the only exception to the utter sage-brush barrenness. Here is one vast field, to the eye almost as level as a floor, blooming with grain and wild and tame grasses, every inch yielding most bountifully, the very isolation of the place tending to make it financially one of the most valuable in the State. The product of near 300 acres in cultivation, amounting to about one ton to the acre on an average, finds a ready market at from $80 to $100 per ton right on the ground, although the nearest markets of any importance are Columbus and Lida, on opposite sides and respectively 40 and 26 miles distant. The Piper brothers located this place seven years ago, during a mining excitement in the neighboring district of Palmetto, and through dull times and no times at all, have steadily stuck to it and profited greatly thereby.

Passing on across the valley and up a long canyon, at a distance of 8 miles looms up another of the numerous evidences of New York mismanagement in the shape of a fine 12-stamp mill, its powerful engine motionless, no smoke curling from the lofty brick stack of the numerous well-constructed roasting furnaces, nor is the silence of the two large brick dwellings or offices ever disturbed except now and then by a passing traveler or the prying curiosity of a vagabond Piute. It is the old story—a hundred thousand dollars or more thrown away in an effort to teach scientific superintendents a little practical common sense.

Some 8 miles further and a little enclosure of less than an acre, near a small spring of water, comes in sight. No house or dwelling of any kind is seen, although this little farm is under a high state of cultivation. The proprietor is always to be seen diligently at work upon his property. He is an aged and remarkably sedate-looking old Piute, who is known as "Billy Rogers." Billy is rather of the polygamous persuasion, having a couple of mojeres, one of whom he keeps at work in the field, while the other attends to household affairs in the contiguous sage brush. When Billy's corn is in the roasting ear, he has many of his tribal friends to visit and stay with him until the last nubbin is gone, and then the locality to them loses its attractions, whereupon old Billy and his wives are left to dig the remaining crop of potatoes in quietness. Billy is proud of his success as a farmist, having last year sold his surplus (one sack) in Lida for $6. "Maybe so, heap sell'em 'nuther sack by-im-by; heap purty good, eh?"

From Billy's ranch it is 10 miles, over an easy road, to Lida, or 90 miles in all from this place. At present that place and Gold Mountain have a weekly mail by each of two routes. An effort is being made to have that from Austin increased to twice a week. It is certain that such service by one route or the other is much needed, although neither exactly conforms to the most feasible and most traveled freight route, which is or should be via. Piper's, Columbus and the new Aurora road direct to Carson. While that proposed route has the advantage over both in use at present, we are quite sure that those camps can be much betaccommodated by connecting with the Northern Stage Line at Big Pine than they ever can be by the Austin route, and by dropping a little of their foolish opposition to Owens River and California are far more likely to obtain the desired and needed extra mail service, and some other advantages, perhaps, than by the opposite course.

Notice to Claim Holders in Deep Spring.

A miners' meeting was held in Deep Spring district, May 1st, at which a resolution was adopted requiring that all locations made prior to the passage of the Congressional Mining Act of May 10, 1872, shall have their respective boundaries plainly marked by monuments or stakes, with notice of location and names of locators properly posted and recorded, or otherwise, after three months from date, the said claims will be considered subject to relocation.

On a Prospect.

Wm. G. Squires, late of the Inyo House, started last week on a prospect for a new business location somewhere in Nevada. His young bride accompanied as far as Bishop Creek. We fancy Mr. Squires will realize the truth of the old adage, "go farther and fare worse," during his search for a better business point than this county.

The Breach of Promise Case.

[From The Visalia Delta.]

The case of Frazer against Thrift, for a breach of promise of marriage, recently tried in San Francisco, and in which the plaintiff got a verdict for $12,000, has attained such notoriety as to be worthy of some comment. Miss Frazer is a young woman who arrives in San Francisco without means or friends. Thrift is a gay and wealthy Lothario of the city. He gets acquianted with her, pays her way and gives her money, a hundred dollars at one time which she spends for a ball dress. The intimacy soon culminates in illicit intercourse, and having attained his object, Thrift relaxes in his attentions. Miss Frazer will not let him off so. She claims his hand in marriage. He refuses, and hence this suit. We are not aggrieved because this gay deceiver has to pay $12,000. But we cannot think that it will contribute to the moral sense of the lively young ladies of San Francisco to know that such things are possible. However reprehensible the conduct of Mr. Thrift, that of Miss Frazer cannot be regarded as either prudent or respectable. In fact, every act of Mr. Thrift's should have been, and would have been to a modest and prudent woman, a demonstration that marriage was not what he intended. And her acceptance of such attentions, in our humble opinion, is a demonstration that she knew that marriage was not intended, and had no such expectancy. She should have had enough to pay her costs, and the balance should go the public schools or some other worthy purpose.

Havilah Items.

Last week the water in the Joe Walker mine was lowered to such a depth as to expose the Cornish pump which had been submerged twenty-two months. Much to the surprise of every one, the pump was, on examination, discovered to be in perfect order. It was started immediately and has been running regularly ever since. Fifty thousand gallons of water is now thrown from the mine per hour, and it is expected that the entire mine will be pumped dry before the 20th instant.

Addis, the artist, left yesterday for Independence, where he will remain for a couple of weeks. While here he, by his courteous bearing and good business ways, made many friends. We trust that he will meet with a kindly reception in Inyo. He is the best traveling artist on the coast.—Miner, May 10,

Decision in a $6,000,000 Case.

We give the following decision of a New York Court as being precisely analogous to one decided last Monday by Judge Reed:

Judge Hardin a short time ago gave a decision sustaining the demurrer interposed by Jas. H. Ingersoll in a suit brought against him by the State, holding that the State had no right of action unless the couniy was made a party to the suit, and to-day [May 5], on appeal, Judge Ingraham affirmed the decision. This is the famous suit for the recovery of $6,000,000 which the late ring were said to have taken from the county treasury.—New York Dispatch.
